Philip Ziegler tells the story of this nearly forgotten battle in generally quick-moving prose that fulfills his intention to "describe the battle in such a way that the reader will know something of what it was like to be there, what it felt like to face the headlong assault of 20,000 dervishes or to charge with the 21st Lancers into what seemed almost certain destruction".

The narrative is marred slightly by occasional patches of clumsy writing but for the most part the story rolls along and carries the reader along with it.

Literature — Output — Being Listed

Andrew Armitage, 35, and Nancy Tudor, assistant head of the cataloguing department of the Metropolitan Toronto Central Library are working with teams of two experienced librarians each.

"This is the first time anyone has made an extensive, organized attempt to produce an annual index of Canadian literature which includes small literary periodicals," said Mr. Armitage.

To date, Canada has no reference book that indexes the nation's yearly literature output and Mr. Armitage said the need for such a tool is necessary to keep track of books and periodicals published in Canada.

The project has been underwritten by the Canada Council and the $3,700 council grant is being used to pay indexers. Mr. Armitage is working on the project in his spare time.

The co-authors propose to index on an annual basis the year's output of Canadian English language publication.

With the exception of text books and scholarly works, they will attempt to make an index as complete as possible.

They estimate that it will include 150 books a year and perhaps 45 periodicals.

The Canadian index will have four sections, on essays, plays, poems and short stories.

The Owen Sound team is indexing literature and the Toronto team handles political science, history and general information material.

Experiment

MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. has launched an experimental program to determine the economics of using helicopters to haul logs out of inaccessible areas. Two concepts of helicopter logging will be tested; hauling logs from the stumps directly to water for sorting into log booms and hauling them from the woods to land sorting areas. The program is being carried out on steep mountain slopes near Port Alberni on the west coast of Vancouver Island. (CP Photo)

Service Industrial Acreage

TRENTON — The town will service industrial land north of Highway 401 "as soon as possible."

The town's administrative board made the recommendation Monday to council, saying there had been numerous requests from potential customers.

Trenton, like many other Ontario municipalities, is suffering a shortage of land that can be developed. The 30-acre parcel on the town's north limits constitutes its largest, single package.

Mayor Robert Patrick cautioned council against going ahead with the job before Ontario Municipal Board approval has been secured for the town's capital budget. Funds have been set aside in the budget for completion of the job. Other councillors said time could be saved if paperwork and surveying was completed in advance of an OMB decision.

Brain Fagan, town treasurer, said an answer from the OMB is expected within the next two weeks. The answer was delayed until the OMB had received an auditor's report of the town's spending in 1973.

Avie Hoorweg, commissioner of works, said the job would take approximately 10 weeks to complete.

B.C. Firm Testing 'Copters in Logging

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP) — Canada's largest forest products company has launched an experimental program designed to determine the economics of using helicopters to haul logs out of inaccessible areas.

The program is being carried out by MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. on steep mountain slopes at its Cameron forest division near this pulp-mill city on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Dave Turner, vice-president responsible for logging operations, said the company will test two concepts of helicopter logging—hauling the logs from the stumps directly to water for sorting into log booms and hauling them from the woods to land sorting areas.

"The ever escalating costs of road development into our timber areas and the high costs of crew transportation have made us take a look at some other methods of extricating the wood," said Mr. Turner.

He said the company also hopes to test the use of helicopters in the logging of small patches of mature timber left behind by earlier logging operations. "With a helicopter, we can go in and take out some of these small patches which otherwise could not be harvested because they are surrounded by second-growth timber in reforested areas."

Earlier attempts to use helicopter logging met with only limited success, primarily because the small size of the helicopters used in the trials drastically limited load capacity.

For the current trials program, MacMillan Bloedel has engaged the services of Okanagan Helicopters of Richmond, B.C., which has supplied a giant Sikorsky S-61L with a lifting capacity of 8,000 pounds.

The $2.5-million Sikorsky was designed primarily as a passenger aircraft with a capacity of 30 persons but Ken Blackwood of Okanagan says it can be readily adapted for freight chores.

"We've stripped this machine right down, taking out all the seats, the interior liner and some of the instrumentation to give a higher lifting capacity," said Mr. Blackwood. "We're positive that the helicopter can do the job on a sound economic basis."

Under the program, logs are felled and cut into lengths to conform to a log weight of from 7,500 to 8,000 pounds. The helicopter picks up the logs by means of a hook suspended from its belly by a 150-foot cable. Over the sorting area, the log is lowered to the ground or into the water and the pilot releases it electronically from his cockpit.

In the areas selected for the trial, the logs have to be moved about half a mile from the forest to sorting areas and Mr. Blackwood says his nine-man helicopter team is aiming at achieving 25 trips an hour, meaning the movement of a 7,500-pound log every three minutes or less.

"We hope to be able to move about 200 cunits a day once everything is functioning smoothly," said Mr. Blackman. A cunit is 100 cubic feet of wood and is a standard measurement used in logging operations. The two areas selected for the experiment contain about 2,500 cunits of timber.

Gary Griffiths, manager of MacMillan Bloedel's Cameron division, said he believes helicopters will prove useful in future in getting stands of mature timber out of areas that would otherwise be inaccessible because of steep grades or other terrain problems.

A company spokesman said any decision on large-scale involvement by the company in helicopter logging will have to await detailed analysis of the results obtained in the current program.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: I understand that the Pennsylvania Dutch Country is noted for its covered bridges. Where/what is this principally and what is the best way of getting there?

ANSWER: The Pennsylvania Dutch country centres on Lancaster County and the city of Lancaster in Pennsylvania.

Scattered here and there throughout Lancaster County, in some of the most picturesque spots one can find today, are located some thirty covered bridges. These interesting structures are a part of the history of the county and most certainly a part of its charm. Almost every stream in the county is crossed by a covered bridge.

Although covered bridges were built as early as 1805, the oldest one still standing in Lancaster County is Herr's Mill Bridge over Pequea Creek in Southeastern. Built in 1844, it is one of the world's most photographed covered bridges.

At a quick glance, all covered bridges look alike. There are, however, many designs which differ in type of truss, setting of the end braces and in the appearance of the portals. Most of the existing Lancaster County bridges are of the Burr-Truss construction, named for developer Theodor Burr who obtained a patent in 1817. Care and wisdom in construction have resulted in ability of the bridges to withstand weather and time.

Fire destroyed some and Tropical Storm Agnes swept away six in June, 1972. Two were restored by the county, several others being replaced.

The question is often raised as to why the bridges were covered. Several reasons have been offered, some of which are that the covering was to keep heavy snow from blocking the passage; that the cover gave the bridge a barn-like appearance, decreasing the fear of animals crossing the bridge; that a covering prevented the horses from seeing the water rushing below, thereby avoiding the bolting of the horses, and that it provided added strength to the bridge, enabling it to hold heavier loads. Protected by their roofs, these bridges far outlast ordinary wooden spans.

The best approach is by Interstate 81 from the 1,000 Islands Bridge to Harrisburg and State 283 southeast from there.

HELOISE AND ABELARD — Regine Pernoud

Eight hundred years ago a brilliant young lecturer at the University of Paris seduced the niece of a canon of Notre Dame. Abelard, castrated at the canon's instigation, became a monk and Heloise took the veil. The author, one of France's leading authorities on the Middle Ages, has researched twelfth-century sources to reconstruct what happened. The story that emerges is unexpected, and highly dramatic.

The Rothschild empire was founded by Mayer Amschel Rothschild, the tall, gentle Jew from the Ghetto of Frankfurt. He was a second-hand dealer with an interest in old coins, and with five talented sons. With banks in Frankfurt, Vienna, London, Naples and Paris, they controlled the strings of Europe for over a century. By the 19th century the banks had dwindled to three, but the family went on making history and producing sons who became bankers, members of Parliament, Zionists collectors, patrons of the arts, entertainers of royalty, scientists, sportsmen and eccentrics. A dazzling history of a brilliant family.

ALISTAIR COOKE'S AMERICA — Alistair Cooke

Surely everyone has seen Alistair Cooke's popular 13-part television series on the history of America. His book has the same special flavor. It has all the richness, wit, knowledge and affection born of a 40-year love affair with his adopted country. Expanding his narrative and selecting numerous pictures, many in color — the best of the television film itself and the best from historical collections all over the country — he has given us an incomparable Cook's tour of the American past.

THE AMAZING WORLD OF KRESKIN — Kreskin

This autobiography is drawn from the author's experiences with ESP, mind reading and other occult phenomena. Kreskin tells of his own life and how he discovered his remarkable powers of perception. He exposes hypnotism as a "well-meant fraud" and offers $10,000 to anyone who can prove there is such a thing. Nor does he believe in "seers", magicians, witchcraft, or seances. Kreskin describes how he perceives a thought, how it arises, telepathically in his mind. He offers information on tilting tables, automatic writing, waking up without an alarm clock, and beating the blackjack odds at Las Vegas.

TO EVERY THING THERE IS A SEASON: — The Gardening Year — Thalassa Cruso

Here is a month-by-month sharing of the author's gardening year — the pleasures and the problems, indoors and out. The author offers countless practical hints on every aspect of gardening . . . provides complete essays on individual plants from winter aconitums to heathers. Easter lilies, orchids and amaryllis. Mrs. Cruso tells the best way to grow paper whites, squash and corn. Her book is witty, warm and overflowing with practical information for every gardener.

FROM GUNK TO GLOW — Gewge Greatz

The author, George Greiz, is better known as the Furniture Doctor and has written several books on antiques, refinishing, and home decorating. In a delightfully breezy style, Mr. Greiz tells the reader all he needs to know about the art of restering antiques and other furniture at home, how to remove old finishes, staining, varnishing, faking the grain, restoring old paintings and much, much more.

Edited Transcripts Contain Two Versions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House acknowledged Tuesday that the edited Watergate transcripts released by President Nixon two weeks ago contain two versions of a portion of one presidential conversation.

There are substantial differences in key words and phrases in the two versions of the tape-recorded conversation between President Nixon and Assistant Attorney-General Henry Petersen on April 16, 1972.

White House spokesman Gerald Warren said White House secretaries went "over and over" various portions of the transcripts to try to pull out all of the words possible."

"What apparently happened is that one of the revisions was just added onto one of the earlier versons" and included in the material released by the White House on April 30, Warren said.

Warren acknowledged the discrepancies after the Washington Post published a story about the incident.

Warren said he does not know whether there are any other such duplications.

Asked what the disclosure does to Nixon's argument that the transcripts provide all the evidence on the Watergate political espionage scandal needed by the House of Representatives judiciary committee for its inquiry into Nixon's possible impeachment, Warren said:

"I think it's obvious the transcripts provide a great amount of evidence. It should not be forgotten the (Democratic) chairman and ranking (Republican) member (of the judiciary committee) have been invited to listen to the tapes and verify the transcripts.

Warren also noted that the committee has tapes of eight of the conversations covered in the transcripts.

Nixon released the transcripts in response to a judiciary committee subpoena for tapes of 42 presidential conversations. However, he refused to release the tapes themselves.

What's That One About A Lull Between Seasons?

From time to time, we get suggestions, requests really, concerning more coverage of a certain sport.

Most often, they are offered in a friendly manner. And we're glad to hear your ideas.

But after awhile, we begin to wonder where it's all going of end.

Like the cost of living, the growth of sports continues to soar.

And, fare you listening boss?) it's becoming more and more difficult to keep tuned in on everything.

It's enough to make a person seriously consider taking up something far less demanding. If there is such a thing these days.

For, while you're making an effort to keep up with NHL, WHA, NBA, AHL, Memorial Cup, Centennial Cup, Allan Cup and who knows how many other hockey playoffs, and basketball parties, baseball is in full swing on the national scene.

Football rumbles to go away, even for a month or two, golf, soccer, lacrosse, pro tennis, you name it.

And in the middle of all this, another of the fishing season opened a week ago, half way up the Trent or somewhere.

Anything stirring on the local scene?

Without even trying we'll rhyme off a few organizations who have not played a meet season on are about to, and each and every one of them demands we expect and damn it, probably deserves, equal time from the sports staff.

There's a new Premier Soccer League, the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association, the Quinte Fastball League, the Belleville Industrial Softball League, tennis, ladies' softball, harness racing, lawn bowling, the Apollo Barbell Club, high school track and field, lacrosse, and so on, half a dozen or so golf courses, Brighton Speedway, and we're leaving at a batch ..... not even considering exhibition or pre-season contests in many of these sports.

What about the Belleville Minor Baseball Association's house league and EOBA teams Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association, house league and South Central Lacrosse Association; the city's minor softball setup while inhabes house league and OASA representatives; minor soccer.

Oh, yeah. We realize there are more.

Perhaps we are.

But swinging back to the Premier Soccer League for a moment, if indeed any of you are still with us, we may as well tell that group right now to get with it.

All along, we have had the opinion those who organized this operation had something on the ball. Obviously they haven't.

The league opened in Oshawa on the weekend. So far, no one has bothered to let us know how it went.

Those of you who are interested will be glad to know that in the official opener on May 11, Oshawa Italians and Kingston Italo Canadians played to a 1-1 draw.

Sunday, in Petersborough, the host, Vi-Mars were blanked 3-0 by Oshawa Wanderers. The game in Kingston, matching the home town Portuguese against Ottawa Royals, was postponed.

Now then, Belleville Olympics make their first start May 25, playing host to Portugese at Zwick's Island, at 6 p.m. We expect to have someone cover that game but if the league isn't interested in keeping us posted on results of other matches, we wouldn't count on it.

Come to think of it, maybe we're in an ideal position. There is so much going on, it's impossible to keep a finger on all the action. We'll pick our favorites and let the rest fall where they may.

Serious? Not really.

But it may be well to point out that when you are appointing or electing officers, better include a publicity man or woman on the list. And make sure that person is conscientious.

It never fails in this business. The groups who write to let us know they appreciate the coverage are at the same time giving themselves a well-earned pat on the back. These organizations are kept us informed. In turn, we've been able to keep our readers informed.

Co-operation is a two-way street.

Hope we've made our point.

Lord Durham's first start will probably come in the seven furlong Marine Stakes on May 25.

Lenders Win BISL Opener

The Industrial Softball League finally got the 1974 schedule under way last night, with one of the three games scheduled being played. In that contest, the Hotel Quinte Lenders defeated the Post Office 7-1. The other two games, Intelligencer playing CNR, and Constellation meeting Canadian Tire were postponed due to wet weather caused by heavy weekend rains.

Lenders collected seven hits off Post Office pitcher Norm Lockhart to take the win. Barry Reynolds and Bob Lloyd each bagged a pair of singles, with Bob Stroh banging a triple. Cliff Hinneman had one single for the Lenders as well.

Steve Cronkwright accounted for the Posties' only run with a solo homer. Other hits went to Eric Brewster with a double, and Lockhart with a single.

Vario Leads Lakeshore

Dave Huntley replied for the Warriors with three goals while Bill Patterson and Blair Campbell scored two each. Jerry Quevic, Ken Patterson, Dave Self, Scott Newton and Bill Murdoch added single goals.

Auger Team Should Be Solid

BY ALAN TEBWORTH
Sports Staff

SECOND OF A SIX PART SERIES

Trenton Auger Men's Wear should make the top four in the Quinte Fastball League without their two big guns, according to team manager and assistant coach Wayne Drake, but with them, they will make a run for the top spot in the six team loop.

The team's two big producers in 1973 were George Ferguson and Larry Mavety. The two are as yet unsure about playing this season.

Ferguson, who compiled a 10-1 record in league play and a .29-1 won lost record in the total gear's grabes, also fanned well over 170 batters. A mainstay of the team at the plate as well, Ferguson has attended all the team's workouts but his summer arrangements have not been confirmed as yet.

Mavety's record as possibly the most dangerous hitter and best defensive catcher in the area speaks for itself. With commitments to his hockey schools, no firm decision has been made. He is currently involved with the World Hockey Association final series, playing defense for the Chicago Cougars.

But despite the possible absence of the two big men, the team should be at least as solid as the squad which finished third last season. The club finished with a 14-11 record in 1973.

In case Mavety is not available, the team will rely on the services of Dennis Orr and the catching duties. Orr is a fine defensive catcher, who can play first base as well.

First base seems to be one of the steadiest positions on the team, with Roger Drake the man at that position. Drake knows the first base position like the back of his hand, and will provide some of the team's offence as well.

Al Ferguson, last year's captain and this year's team coach, seems to have the head on second base. According to Wayne Drake, Fergy is the best ballplayer on the team, but had an off year last year. Ferguson hit .275, with most of the hits coming late in the season.

At shortstop, Joe Theriault, with one of the best arms in the league provides dependability for the left side of the infield. The team is looking for another good year at the plate from him as well. He hit .293 last season.

At third base, Art Barker, has made a comeback after playing with the team a few years ago in the Trenton Valley League and should fill in well. Very steady at the plate, Barker will hit for the average.

Auger's possess three of the faster men in the league, and all of them are equally aggressive at their positions.

In right field, Steve Barker, no relation to Art, has a good arm, and is also steady with the bat.

In Jim Clements, their centre fielder, they have come up with the fastest man in the league. At 6'2" and close to 200 pounds, Clements is dangerous on the basepaths.

In the pitching department, the team seems to be set. Ferguson appear to should be the scene. Two other hurlers will see action as well. Bob Swan has agreed to play, coming over from Howard and Robert Printing where consistency has been his key. Swan gives up very few bases on balls.

Another new face, Bob Richardson, has recently moved from Kilcheer, where he played in that city's top league. A right hander with good stuff, he should make a strong bid with a solid effort.

Auger's open their 1974 schedule against last year's defending champions, Rollins Construction. In the second game of the opening doubleheader, Monday evening. First game gets under way at 7 p.m., with the Auger-Rollins contest starting at about 8.45.

Dan Gurney Spells Out Economics of Racing

TORONTO (CP) — Dan Gurney, the California racing driver who has turned to building and designing cars, talked of some of the economics of racing Tuesday when he cited $500,000 as the cost of his own participation in the May 26 Memorial Day 500 race at Indianapolis.

Gurney, who left racing four years ago to concentrate on his American Eagle racers in his plant at Santa Ana, Calif., was here to help publicize Can-Am Weekend at Mosport Park June 14-16. He expects to have two cars there.

Besides the $550,000 tab for American Eagle participation at Indy, he gave some other figures for his Indy-type cars—$25,000-$30,000 each for engines, with cars running about $35,000 apiece.

He will have at least three men besides his drivers at Indy, in addition to the back-up squad at home in Santa Ana.

"A lot of the cost of racing, however, is justified by the publicity value," he said at a news conference, "but it's tough to put a hard figure on that."

Gurney's last appearance at Mosport was in 1970 when he won that section of the rich Canadian-American Challenge Cup series. Driving a Bruhn McLaren, Oct. that day he also set a lap record of one minute, 18 seconds, over the 2.45-mile road circuit—better than 113 miles an hour.

The record stood for two years until it was shattered by the late Peter Revson with a mark of 1:15.2.

Can-Am Weekend will be a doubleheader with an international Formula 5000 race Saturday, June 15, and the opener of the seven-event Can-Am series for big-bore sports cars on Sunday.

CATTO LEAVES

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League said Tuesday that Chuck Catto's position with the team has been terminated by mutual agreement. Catto joined the NHL team as general manager last May and was later named director of player personnel.

REDS CALL UP KING

CINCINNATI (AP) — Catcher Hal King has been called up from Indianapolis by Cincinnati Reds, who sent outfielder Ken Griffey down to the Indians of the American Association. King is hitting .333 with four home runs in 19 games with Indianapolis.

Philadelphia Flyers Just One Win Away from the Stanley Cup

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — "It's been so long since I've seen the net bulge I couldn't believe it," said Bill Barber of his third-period goal that helped Philadelphia Flyers defeat Boston Bruins 4-2 for a 3-1 lead in their Stanley Cup final.

The fifth game of the best-of-seven series will be played Thursday night in Boston and the sixth, if necessary, Sunday afternoon in Philadelphia.

Barber's first goal in his last 10 playoff games eluded goalie Gilles Gilbert at 14:25 of the third period and broke a 2-2 tie.

Defenceman Andre Dupont wrapped it up for the Flyers slightly more than two minutes later and sent the crowd of 17,007 into a chant of "We're No. 1."

The power-play goal by MacLeish was his 12th in Na-tional Hockey League playoffs this season and gave him the best goal-scoring record. He also has nine assists for 21 points, tops in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

But centres Phil Esposito and Andre Savard gave the Bruins a 2-2 tie before the period ended by beating goalie Bernie Parent.

"Lonsberry made the big play," the left winger said. "He forced Bobby (Orr) to try to bank the puck off the boards and it wound up dead.

"I picked it up and I knew I had plenty of time, so I just shot it. It took off and went in."

Gilbert said he had ducked to take a better look as Barber fired his shot and "never saw too much of the puck."

Philadelphia coach Fred Shero said the Bruins played well, especially in the first period. It was the fire time the Bruins have suffered three successive losses in 101 NHL games.

"But I'm proud of my team—especially in the last five minutes," Shero said. "During that time they never gambled, they kept controlling the puck."

Shero, who last weekend said he would quit hockey to return to law school if the Flyers won th Cup, said he intends to attend a coaching seminar in the Soviet Union at the end of this month.

He has been an admirer of Russian methods of training hockey teams.

The teams each finished with 14 penalties and 27 minutes. Sixty minutes were assessed in the first period, 21 to the Bruins. The first-period total included six majors for fighting, three to each team.

Rogers 6-1 — Expos Are First

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Steve Rogers pitched a six-hitter and his Montreal teammates backed him with a 15-hit assault that carried Expos past Philadelphia Phillies 12-3 Tuesday night and into first place in the National League East.

The Expos struck for three runs in the first inning. Rod Fairly hit his fourth home run of the season in the third, then the Expos blew the game open with a five-run fifth.

Ron Hunt's single, a sacrifice and successive singles by Willie Davis, Ken Singleton, Fairly and Bob Bailey in the opening inning started Jim Lonborg down to his third defeat against

The Expos sent 10 men to the plate in the big fifth. Singles by Davis, Bailey, Barry Foote and a double by Jim Cox drove in runs.

Rogers struck out three batters and walked only one. Davis gave him the most support with three hits while Hunt, Fairly, Bailey, Cox and Foote had two apiece. Bowa had two of the Phils' hits. Lonborg pitched 2 3 innings and gave up eight hits and four runs. George Culver was the victim of the Expos' fourth-inning splurge.

In the fourth, Larry Lintz led off with a triple and Davis singled him home. Singleton walked, then Cox dropped Fairly's bunt to allow Davis to come home.

When a pitch got away from catcher Bob Boone, Singleton made it to third but Fairly was thrown out trying for second. Then Bailey singled, Cox doubled and Foote singled for three runs.

Rogers' sacrifice moved Foote to second, and he came around on Hunt's hit. Lint, up for the second time in the inning, ended it with a grounder.

Mike Caldwell became the first pitcher in the National League to win six games this season—just 15 minutes ahead of Steve Rogers and about four hours ahead of Don Sutton.

Caldwell baffled Cincinnati with a five-hitter Tuesday night while Tito Fuentes and Garry Maddox drove in two runs apiece to lead the San Francisco Giants past the Reds 4-0.

Caldwell and Rogers had plenty of support as Sutton had to provide his own heroics in Los Angeles. He limited Houston to four hits, struck out nine batters and drove in his own winning run with a second-inning bases-loaded single that gave the Dodgers a 1-0 win over the Astros.

Rick Reuschel fired a four-hitter in Chicago Cubs' 7-1 whipping of Pittsburgh Pirates. Atlanta Braves turned back San Diego Padres 3-2 and New York's game at St. Louis was rained out.

One of the hits off Caldwell, 6-1, was a double by Pete Rose that put the fiery outfielder first on the Reds' total-bases list with 3,064.

Larry Dierker walked Willie Crawford and Ron Cey and hit Steve Yeager with a pitch to load the bases. Then Bill Russell couldn't come through, forcing Crawford at the plate. Sutton hit a single to right, scoring Cey and, ultimately, widening the Dodgers' West Division lead to six games.

Reuschel also pitched and hit his way to victory, doubling and scoring a run in the rout of Bob Moose. Jose Cardenal had three hits and Rick Monday, Billy Williams, Jerry Morales and Vic Harris two apiece in the Cubs' 13 hit attack that kept Pittsburgh buried in the East Division basement with a 9-20 record.

Phil Niekro and Tom House combined on an eight-hitter and dealt the Padres their seventh straight loss.

The Braves scored all three of their runs in the fourth inning, two on a single by Frank Tepedino and another on Craig Robinson's sacrifice fly after Dick Allen had loaded the bases on singles by Hank Aaron and Darrell Evans and a walk to Dave Johnson.

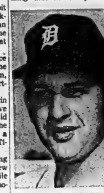
Nothing to Houk's Liking? Well, His Tigers Won

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS



Ralph Houk came back to New York and found everything missing—the park, the beer and the spittoon.

The new manager of Detroit Tigers found nothing to his liking, in fact, but the American League baseball game with the Yankees. The Tigers won that 8-2 Tuesday night.

Making his first appearance as a visiting manager in a city that made him known, Houk said he felt uncomfortable.

"If the game had been in Yankee Stadium, it might have made a big difference," said Houk, who spent 35 years in the Yankee organization, 11 as manager, before joining the Tigers this season.

The Yankees are playing their home games in the New York Mets' Shea Stadium while their own park is being renovated the next two seasons.

MICKEY LOLICH

hand in Yankee Stadium.

Also, Yankee Stadium provided the tobacco chewing Houk with a spittoon in his office. He had none at Shea and was forced to use a cardboard box.

In other games, Milwaukee Brewers beat Baltimore Orioles 8-3, Cleveland Indians trimmed Boston Red Sox 6-2, and Kansas City Royals beat Oakland A's 4-3 in the first game of a doubleheader before dropping the second game 2-1 in 10 innings.

Lolich entered the game with a 1-5 record and 4.85 earned-run average. The 33-year-old lefthander held the Yankees hitless for 3 2-3 innings but fell behind 1-0 when Lou Piniella singled. Jim Ray Hart walked and Graig Nettles singled.

The Tigers then jumped on Pat Dobson, 2-6, for three runs in the fifth to take the lead.

Aurelio Rodriguez highlighted a two-run rally for the Tigers in the eighth with his fourth straight hit.

Billy Champion, 1-0, who had worked only eight innings previously this year, outdueled Jim Palmer, 2-4, who was raked for seven runs in 4 1-3 innings.

The Brewers, staying on top in the East, scored two runs in the second inning on Garcia's single and two more in the third when Briggs, extending his hitting streak to 18 games, hit his seventh homer of the season.

George Hendrick hit a two-run homer and scored two runs on Willie Williams, Jerry Morales and Vic Harris two apiece in the Cubs' 13 hit attack that kept Pittsburgh buried in the East Division basement with a 9-20 record.

Phil Niekro and Tom House combined on an eight-hitter and dealt the Padres their seventh straight loss.

The Braves scored all three of their runs in the fourth inning, two on a single by Frank Tepedino and another on Craig Robinson's sacrifice fly after Dick Allen had loaded the bases on singles by Hank Aaron and Darrell Evans and a walk to Dave Johnson.

Penguin Rookie Injured

PITTSBURGH (CP) — Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League said Tuesday forward Wayne Bianchin is in hospital in Hawaii recovering from a broken neck suffered in a surfing mishap last week.

A Penguins spokesman said Bianchin is expected to be transferred to a Pittsburgh hospital later this week to continue tests and treatment.

Bianchin, 20, a native of Nanaimo, B.C., was the Penguins' second-round draft choice last year from Flin Flon Bombers of the Western Canada Hockey League. He scored 12 goals for the Penguins last season.

Jack Button, Penguins general manager, said: "Barring any complications, doctors have advised us that Wayne could be ready to play when the training camp opens in September."

Nick Durbano Sells Forum And Teams

HAMILTON (CP) — The Hamilton Forum and two junior hockey teams that play in it were sold by Nick Durbano to three local businessmen Tuesday.

Durbano said he sold the Forum and the two clubs to Mario and Ron Capido and Joe Finocchio so junior A hockey would remain here.

The new owners plan to apply today to the Ontario Hockey Association for ownership transfers for Hamilton Red Wings of Finocchio so junior A hockey series.

Also involved in the sale were the Finocchio and Capido Junior Red Wings, winners of the provincial junior B title in an abbreviated series last month.

Brantford, Cambridge and Niagara Falls had been mentioned as possible homes of the major junior A club after Durbano said he had incurred financial losses last season.

1-0 Win in Overtime Gives Steelers the Cup

OTTAWA (CP) — Ninety-two hard games boiled down to a single overtime goal Tuesday night as Selkirk, Man., Steelers defeated Smiths Falls Bears 1-0 to win the Centennial Cup.

After three scoreless periods, Gord Kahanski took a pass from brother Gary at 7:09 of the 10-minute overtime period and shot it past Fraser Greenwood, goalie for the Ottawa Valley team.

"I just stopped in front of the net and the goalie was at the side of the net. The puck came out from the corner and I slapped it in," said Gord.

"I was in the perfect slot position. It was a great win."

"Smiths Falls seemed to be outplaying us in the last few games," the 16-year-old winger said. "But we never let up tonight and we were controlling the game."

The two teams came out cautiously in the opening period, opting for close forechecking rather than taking chances.

The Steelers outshot the Bears 9-4 in the first period. But the Bears had eight shots on Steeler goalie Andy Steess in the second while Greenwood turned aside six. Both teams had 12 shots in the third period.

Selkirk had 11 shots in overtime for a game total of 38 and Smiths Falls had six for a total of 38.

"Gordie played great," said coach George Dorman. "The only thing that will stop him from making the pro leagues is if he loses an arm or leg."

Dorman changed the Steelers' strategy for the final game because of the fiery style of the Bears. "We just had it figured and it turned outt o be a heck of a forechecking game."

Smiths Falls had two scoring opportunities in the third period, the latter one stopped by Chris Magnusson of the Steelers.

Penalties were the Bears down in overtime. They were two men short late in the period

It's Old, Familiar Story For Stapleton's Cougars

CHICAGO (CP) — Chicago Cougars are back in a familiar position in the World Hockey Association—a hole looking for a way out.

The East Division playoff champions dug their own hole Sunday night when they tried to outmuscle Houston Aeros. They paid for it as the Aeros, winners of the West Division, took a 2-1 victory in the opening game of the best-of-seven final.

The Cougars have the prospect—after the second game at home tonight at 8:30 EDT—of the next three games in Houston.

And while the Cougars have been big winners on the road throughout the playoffs, they have never won a game against the Aeros in Houston.

Sunday's game was a heavyhitting affair with sticks held high most of the time.

"I was really surprised to see them try to outmuscle us," said Houston coach Bill Dineen after examining his club through an hour-long practice. "No club in this league can intimidate us, at least no one has in two years."

"The only way we can beat this club is to outskate them. We won't do anything different ... We'll continue to play our right game and hope some breaks come our way."

Houston's offensive power is an obvious factor in their success, but Dineen said not enough attention has been paid to his defencemen and goaltender.

"We finished the regular season with 41 goals against less than any other team, yet we couldn't put the finger on them as all-star team," McLeod said.

"That's probably the most unbelievable thing that's happened this year," Dineen said, "especially with Popiel and Schella. If anyone belongs on an all-star team, they do."

Popiel says "the whole secret is we're confident, we think we're going to play well."

"We're disciplined enough to know that we will hold our positions."

Joe Szura did a good job Sunday, but "it's not the Howes' style better," Dineen said. "He gets the puck, looks and gets it to Gordie who likes to control the play."

Chicago, meanwhile, will have to continue without goaltender Cam Newton, who remains in bed with a sore throat.

Reason for Loss? 'Tough Luck'-Bep

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — For a coach whose team is on the brink of elimination in the Stanley Cup final, Bep Guidolin had a lot of confidence in the players he has been criticizing.

"All we have to do is play like we did tonight in Boston on Thursday and we'll win," Guidolin said after Philadelphia Flyers took a 4-2 triumph Tuesday night to give Philadelphia a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven National Hockey League playoff.

Guidolin said it was "tough luck" for the Bruins that the Flyers capitalized on a defensive lapse, allowing Bill Barber to score the winning goal late in the game.

The teams were tied 2-2 after a penalty-filled first period that offered numerous scoring chances.

What the Bruins weren't getting, however, was decent performance from Phil Esposito, although the lack centre did get the goal that got them moving.

Bobby Schmautz also has been a disappointment to the Bruins. He missed out opportunities that would have given the Bruins the second score.

"I choked," he said of an open-net shot from 10 feet in the second period that went over the top bar. He couldn't control the puck on a third-period breakaway that was smothered by goalie Bernie Parent.

"Ross kept the play inside the blueline when he forced Bobby Orr to bank the puck off the boards."

"The play took place across the ice from Barber's zone, and the Bruins were making a move to cover it, so he stepped up the loose puck and, using Orr as a shield, fired a shot that beat Gilles Gilbert.

Barber has been having his own problems of late and it was only through an injury to Gary Dornhoefer that he got a starting berth with Lonsberry and Rick MacLeish.

"I'd really be hurting if we were losing and I wasn't scoring," Barber said. "But we have been winning and that helps."

Captain Bobby Clarke of the Flyers seemed to be upset by Guidolin's criticism of the Bruins following Sunday's game.

"I certainly don't think he should be saying things like he's been quoted as saying," said the young centre who, along with Parent, has been the reason the Flyers are leading the series.

"They played pretty good for him all year, so why knock them now?"

Macabre Novelist Now Hits Paydirt

MOSCOW (Reuter) — A leading economist says Soviet scientists have been commissioned to design robots which will help man extract natural wealth from the wastes of northern Siberia.

After over a century's continuous exploitation, some of the mineral deposits in the European part of the Soviet Union are nearing exhaustion and extraction costs are rising.

But thousands of miles east, beyond the Urals, locked up in the frozen soil of northern Siberia, lies a vast mineral wealth—oil, gas, gold, platinum and metals of all kinds, to say nothing of diamonds and gigantic timber reserves.

In the next 15 or 20 years, many Russians, especially young ones, will have to trek into the harsh north and eastern portions of this vast country to feed the furnaces of industry with raw materials.

But the north is an area where little grows except stunted shrubs and brown grass. The frozen surface thaws into a mosquito-ridden quagmire in the brief arctic summer and houses have to be built on stilts to anchor their foundations safely in the frozen subsoil.

Fyodor Kotov, a senior official at the Soviet state planning office in Moscow, says Soviet scientists are studying the feasibility of robots to help workers—or replace them—in manning future plants built in the northern territories.

Kotov says conditions in the northern territories are so harsh that workers should not be expected to spend long periods of their lives there.

"Robots should work there permanently; man should not be permanent."

Their research is governed by a 15-year master plan for the development of the Soviet economy in the period of 1975 to 1990.

Almost all scientists and technicians in institutes throughout the country are in some way connected with the 15-year plan.

Some are estimating how much protein the Soviet man and woman of 1990 will need. Others are charting population statistics to arrive at the best possible estimate of how many there will be to feed in 1990—and how many will be in the warm south and how many in the inhospitable north.

One of two branches are gazing at educational requirements and trying to decide how many scientists will be needed to tend the new branches of the machine industry which will concentrate on robot production in the coming era.

Apart from the awesome problem of maintaining a shifting population in the frozen north the planners have to cope with a squeeze on manpower which will reach its worst stage in 1980-85 in the middle of the 15-year plan.

The Soviet hope is that robots—and this includes all kinds of automated and programmed machines—will be able to make good the human deficiency.

Other groups of scientists are working on contrary projects, based on a plan to produce artificial climates in small northern townsite by erecting vast domes over urban settlements—with constant temperature. Power would be provided by miniature nuclear plants.

Kotov would like to see broad co-operation by all developed industrial growers in the search for work-robots.

He notes that other countries have labor problems too. In the chemical industry there are jobs where men are exposed to harmful effects and where robots could be better employed.

If all scientists and governments would co-operate in designing robots for various kinds of jobs this would be a supremely useful example of international division of labor.

Feet Soles Give Clues To Disease

TOKYO Reuter) — The soles of the feet provide valuable information in detecting diseases and determining over-all human ability, says a Japanese professor.

Prof. Yaichiro Hirasawa of Shizuoka University in central Japan said in an interview at his Tokyo home he had studied the soles of nearly 300,000 people in the last 30 years.

Physical fitness, character, living environment and vocational aptitude can be determined by measuring the soles of feet with a "pedoscope" he developed three years ago, the physiologist said.

"The soles of feet tell you whether the man is an extrovert or introvert, whether he is an urban or rural resident and whether he is emotionally steady.

"They help early discovery of various diseases, including those caused by pollution, and give guidance to a process of treatment.

"They also tell you if the man will be able as a musician, pilot or sportsman."

Hirasawa said he had developed an interest in the soles of feet while serving as a physical instructor at a primary school.

"I noticed children tapped the floor with their feet as they got tired of a long lecture. I thought it must be a means to relieve their frustration."

His early findings included differences between urban and rural people in the width of a foot and the shape of the arch.

When one of the toes was not sufficiently in contact with the floor, something had to be wrong with other parts of the body such as digestive organs in the case of the first toe and respiratory organs in the case of the fourth, he said.

The professor said footwear such as a pair of slippers which does not allow sufficient use of the heels can cause a headache.

With the development of the pedoscope, the otherwise invisible contact of feet can be observed and provide useful information, he said.

The pedoscope consists of a glass plate with pressure transducers at the corners and two angled mirrors and a recorder underneath, as well as a camera and electronic devices.

As a person stands on the glass plate, the shape of the soles and the position or movements of the centroid or central mass of the feet can be recorded.

Anyone whose centroid is outside a certain area, which varies according to age, must be suffering from some physical trouble, he said.

"For instance, a man having eye trouble has his centroid forward and a man with motor disturbance has his centroid close to the heels."

The standing ability of those aged over 65 corresponds that of a six-or seven-year-old, the professor said.

If a person was emotionally unsteady, the centroid was also unsteady.

By measuring the position of the centroid, a physician could determine whether a child suffering from cerebral palsy could be operated on or whether he was ready to practise walking.

Degrees of physical fitness could be observed by leaning or rotating the body on the glass plate.

"A soccer player makes a smooth move of the centroid in an oval shape while an untrained person has an irregular move," the professor said.

"When accompanied by music, leaning and rotation tests will help determine if a man is sensitive to rhythm."

Haitian President Settles In

PORT AU PRINCE (AP) — Three years after becoming president at age 26, Jean-Claude (Baby Doc) Duvalier has a firm grip on his job and things are looking up for Haiti, say Haitian and diplomatic sources.

Tourists are back and the economy is beginning to take a turn upward. The 23-year-old president is seeking ways to give the black majority a greater return from any future prosperity.

But Haiti remains the poorest country in this hemisphere, with a majority of its five million people earning less than $100 a year.

"The president is in charge, learning his trade and becoming a real political leader," one diplomat said.

"The time of the beatings on the street, random arrests without charges, killings and the entering of houses after dark is part of the past."

The envoy, who asked not to be identified, was referring to Haiti under Francois (Papa Doc) Duvalier. Papa Doc died on April 21, 1971 and that was the day his son took over as president for life.

A Haitian close to the government said that while Baby Doc is on the way to becoming a political force in his own right, he still is only a symbol of power in this Caribbean republic which shares the island of Hispaniola with the Dominican Republic.

He added, however, the young president one day will have full political power.

"In Haiti," the informant said, "we say there are three presidents at the palace."

One is Jean-Claude, another is his mother Simone, the widow of Papa Doc, and the third is Paul Blanchet who recently became defence minister.

"Duvalier probably will not attain full power until his mother dies. Then there will be no need for a third president."

When Jean-Claude came into the presidency there were quiet expressions of doubt that he could fulfil his role because of his lack of experience and education.

But he has shuffled his cabinet three times without difficulty and the economy is improving.

Tourism was reported up 50.6 per cent in 1972, the latest figures available. Construction increased 21.2 per cent and manufacturing 8.7 per cent in the same year. Statistics in terms of dollars to demonstrate this growth are not available.

The government's chief thrust now is in economics and not politics. One of Duvalier's programs is to give more economic power to the black majority. At present, the wealth is controlled by a group of mulatos and non-blacks who make up about four per cent of the population.

A diplomatic source said young Duvalier "no longer must deal with political infighting that occurred when 10 armed attempts were made to overthrow Papa Doc's government."

Papa Doc reigned from 1957 until he died.

The Duvalier name and the legacy of Papa Doc have helped Jean-Claude in his three years in the presidency, the Haitian source said.

"The name Duvalier . . . brings our people together."

Not 'Cop'

PICTON — Constable George Wright, safety officer for the Picton Police Department, Monday explained "What's in a name" to youngsters attending a police week display.

Constable Wright told pupils of grades three and four at St. Gregory's School that policemen prefer to be called "sir", "police officer" or just "mister" instead of "cop."

He said "Cop" is acually an abbreviation for the phrase, constable on patrol.

New Course Needs Funds

MADOC — A new course in outdoor education is to be offered at Centre Hastings Secondary School for the school year 1974-75. The course is structured around geography, camping and recreational skills.

Major difficulty in operating such a course is funding for equipment such as canoes, paddles, lifejackets, snowshoes, tents etc. which are quite expensive. Therefore, the Outdoor Education Program is operating a raffle in order to try to raise funds to purchase some of the equipment required for the course. First prize in the raffle will be the winner's choice of either a street motorbike or trail bike. If a minimum of 1,200 tickets are sold, a second prize will also be drawn with the runner receiving what ever bike remains.

Flour Firm President Denies Gouging Charge

TORONTO (CP) — A flour company president has rejected suggestions by David Lewis, federal New Democratic Party leader, that his company was gouging the public when profits increased 278 per cent.

W. T. Tait of Ogilvie Flour Mills Ltd. said Tuesday his firm raised prices to bakeries by exactly the amount of increased wheat prices.

He said Mr. Lewis had not taken into account that Ogilvie's return over recent years has been poor with the money invested in ownership of the company earning less than five per cent.

Mr. Tait said the upturn in profits provides opportunity for replacement and expansion.

Mr. Lewis had said that swollen profits of food companies are primarily to blame for rising food costs and described the Ogilvie profits as "whopping."

Mr. Tait said the profits realized mainly from improved margins in mill feeds and in exports which account for 20 per cent of sales.

Finds Bomb

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — An area youth made an unexpected catch while fishing in Rainy River. On the banks of the river he found a canvas bag containing 94 sticks of dynamite, the type which police said is used by farmers to blast stumps. Investigators said the fuse of the bomb had been lit but fizzled out.

Plumptre Is Accused Of Entering Campaign

OTTAWA (CP) — Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the food prices review board, was accused Tuesday of making an "unwarranted intrusion" into the election campaign by saying the board will continue to publish reports and make recommendations during the campaign.

The charge came from James McGrath, Conservative consumer affairs critic, who has criticized the board almost continuously since it was formed early last year.

Mr. McGrath (St. John's East) was commenting on remarks by Mrs. Plumptre at a conference in Toronto Monday of the Grocery Produce Manufacturers of Canada.

She said the board will continue to operate but will try not to "add unnecessarily to the flames of political controversy." However, she added, wage and price controls, as proposed by Robert Stanfield's Conservatives, will not work.

Mr. McGrath said in a news release the board is trying "to prepared the public for Trudeau government inaction in containing living cost increases."

Gets Degree

VANCOUVER (CP) — Governor-General Jules Leger is to receive an honorary doctor of law degree during the University of British Columbia's spring convocation exercises

Stewart Exonerates Potato Wholesalers

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Agriculture Minister William Stewart told the legislature Tuesday that an investigation into potato wholesale companies in the Metropolitan Toronto area showed no evidence of wrongdoing.

Published reports last month said three major wholesale companies in the area had business ties and farmers complained that the prices paid them did not rise as retail prices rose. Some farmers said they were threatened when they began dealing with other wholesalers.

Mr. Stewart said he met presidents of food companies and found "no evidence that we can see of any collusion to force the price of potatoes in any way."

He said "one or two" stores buy from "the particular people who were referred to in the newspaper article," but other chain stores "are not buying all their supplies there at all."

"In fact, they are buying them from a variety of sources throughout Ontario which is, I suppose, the appropriate and normal thing to do."

Morton Shulman (NDP—High Park) asked Mr. Stewart whether he had "taken the trouble to question the people who were threatened when they were changing their method of supplying the potatoes."

Mr. Stewart replied that he had not.

"That's a matter that will be properly investigated but not necessarily by my ministry," he said.

Marketing Agencies Get Monopoly Powers

OTTAWA (CP) — New import restrictions against U.S. eggs and turkeys have given monopoly powers to the domestic marketing agencies for the products, the Consumers' Association of Canada said Tuesday.

The restrictions were imposed May 8 by the government to keep cheap imports out and domestic farm prices up.

The association said in a statement it "strongly objects to the manner in which producer-controlled-egg and turkey marketing agencies are exercising their monopoly powers and to the unnecessarily high prices consumers are being forced to pay for these products."

Figures in the statement showed that the national marketing agency for eggs had spent $2.4 million up to the end of April to keep surplus eggs off the market. A total of 4.03 million dozen eggs had been exported to the United States during the first four months of the year to help keep domestic prices up.

About four million dozen Canadian eggs are being held in storage, the statement said. "How soon will the taxpayer be forced with the costs of destroying these over-age eggs."

The statement said that a total of $16 million had been paid to turkey farmers between Jan. 1 and April 1 to store turkeys.

Dentists Object To Role for Mechanics

HAMILTON (CP) — The controversy over denturists flared anew Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Ontario section of the Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC).

A resolution was introduced which called on Ontario Health Minister Frank Miller to amend existing legislation to permit dental therapists to make and sell false teeth to the public without the supervision of a dentist. But the proposed resolution said therapists should be restricted to producing only full sets of dentures, not partial plates.

Gordon Smith of Toronto, a spokesman for the Denturists' Society of Ontario, and Jim Hawkins of Kitchener, president of the Citizens' Committee for the Repeal of Bill 246, were in the audience and spoke against the motion.

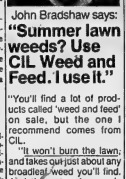
They disagreed with the restriction and with the term dental therapists, saying only those who now belong to the denturists' society should be given the legal right to produce false teeth without supervision of a dentist.

They said the resolution intimated the market should be opened to dental mechanics employed by laboratories that produce dentures for dentists.

Bill 246 now prevents dental technicians from fitting or selling dentures to the public unless supervised by a dentist.

The resolution finally was approved by a majority show of hands among the more than 150 persons attending the convention.

Dentist Fears Bill's Revision



TORONTO (CP) — The president of the Ontario Dental Association (ODA) renewed his criticism of the provincial government Tuesday for what he called rumored plans to let denturists deal directly with the public.

In his last speech as ODA president, Dr. L. G. Moran said that he has heard reports that the government has drafted new legislation that will reverse last year's decision which gave the ODA control over the right to fit dentures.

"The responsibility for the alleged lack of growth of the low-cost denture service can be laid directly at the government's feet," Dr. Moran told the annual meeting of the ODA.

The service has not been given the opportunity to work because the government has allowed denturists to break the law and to mislead and confuse the public, he said.

"You'll find a lot of products called 'weed and feed' on sale, but the one I recommend comes from CIL.

"It won't burn the lawn, and takes out just about any broadleaf weed you'll find. And those tough, woody creeping weeds too.

"If you'd like my complete guide for the perfect lawn, talk to the CIL dealer below. He can really help you."

Get Right To Durham As Name

TORONTO (CP) — Divisional Court ruled Tuesday that the regional municipality of Durham is entitled to keep its name.

The decision overruled a lower court judgment that the Town of Durham, incorporated in Grey County in 1872, should be allowed under the Corporations Act to seek an order restoring the regional municipality to change its name.

In the earlier judgment, Mr. Justice Alexander Stark ruled that he had jurisdiction to deal with the matter and he directed a further inquiry into the case.

However, Chief Justice John Wells said Tuesday he had been unable to find that the Corporations Act has anything to do with a municipal corporation, which is governed by the Municipal Act.

The regional municipality of Durham, incorporated last Oct. 15, encompasses the city of Oshawa, the towns of Ajax, Newcastle, Pickering and Whitby, and the townships of Brock, Scugog and Uxbridge.

May Move

WASHINGTON (CP) — After almost a half-century in the same mansion on midtown Massachusetts Avenue, the Canadian Embassy may be getting new quarters.

All possible options are being considered, embassy officials say, including the development of a building or compound that would try to make an indelible Canadian impression in a capital filled with monumental architecture.

JOHN RHODES

Air Service Is Planned

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government plans to link 12 isolated northwestern communities by air to the rest of the province.

John Rhodes, ministers of transportation and communications, said Tuesday in the legislature a three-year demonstration project is planned to tie the communities into regional and national air systems.

NorOntair—the government air service—will link Fort Frances and Red Lake to Dryden and another air hookup will tie Kenora, Sioux Lookout and Pickle Lake to Dryden.

The other planned links are: Fort Frances and Atikokan to Thunder Bay and Marathon; Geraldton, Manitouwadge and Wawa to Thunder Bay or Sault Ste. Marie.

Plan Adopted

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation was introduced Tuesday in the legislature to set up an Ontario Council on University Affairs.

Warrants Out

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — A warrant was issued Tuesday for the arrest of George William Keeping, 39, of Toronto, who failed to appear in provincial court on a charge of stealing a plaque marking the birthplace of Dr. Norman Bethune from a home in nearby Gravenhurst last March.

Also charged are Gerald James Doyle, 21, and Geza Matrai, 30, both of Toronto, who were remanded to June 3.

Matrai, vice-president of the Ontario Social Credit party, was an unsuccessful candidate in Toronto's High Park riding in the 1971 Ontario election.

Not OK

TORONTO (CP) — Carling O'Keefe Ltd. of Toronto reports a loss of $3.8 million for the nine months ended March 31, compared with a profit of $1.8 million for the corresponding period a year earlier.

Share Small

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says telephone solicitors working for the Canadian Foundation for Youth Action collect about $12,000 a month for the Riverdale Community Action Centre in east-central Toronto.

But the newspaper quotes Deborah Wolfe, chairman of the centre's board, as saying only about $3,000 a month is passed along to the centre to pay for its crafts, theatre and film work with the area's children and mothers.

Device Poor

OTTAWA (CP) — Small portable oxygen inhalers made by the British Oxygen Co. have been withdrawn from the market because they apparently provide oxygen for too short a period, the health protection branch said Tuesday.

MARTIN O'CONNELL

To Run Again

OTTAWA (CP) — Martin O'Connell, principal secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau, has resigned to run again as the Liberal candidate in the Toronto-area riding of Scarborough East, it was announced Tuesday.

Mr. O'Connell, 57, a former labor minister first elected in 1968, was defeated by Conservative Reg Stackhouse in Scarborough East in the Oct. 30, 1972, general election and subsequently was appointed to the prime minister's office.

Nun Appointed

HALIFAX (CP) — The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce has announced the appointment of Sister Catherine Wallace, a prominent educationist and clergywoman, to the bank's board of directors.

Recently appointed chairman of the Maritime Provinces Higher Education Commission, she taught in Roxbury, Mass., Brooklyn, N.Y., and Vancouver before joining the faculty of Mount St. Vincent University here in 1959.

Social Worker's Role Is Called Vital

TORONTO (CP) — There is a need for greater recognition of the role social workers provide in health care, members of a legislative committee were told Tuesday.

Mike Quiggen of Toronto, spokesman for the Professional Association of Professional Social Workers, said a great many social workers are providing health services without legislative endorsement.

He was speaking to the standing committee on social development studying the Health Disciplines Act. The act, which has received second reading, would establish licensing and disciplinary procedures for medical professions.

Mr. Quiggen said rules should be established that would set out the authority and responsibility for social workers.

Health Minister Frank Miller said he agreed in principle with what Mr. Quiggen suggested, "but I defy you to implement regulations."

He said the government cannot even get medical profes-

Court Orders Permit Issued

TORONTO (CP) — The city was ordered Tuesday to issue a building permit to two developers who plan an 11-million, 23-storey building in the down town core.

The case in Divisional Court was one of the first tests of the city's holding bylaw that would limit all core-area development to 45 feet in height.

The court said the bylaw did not apply to the developers because it had not been approved by the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB). The court rejected a city request to delay judgment until the OMB had given its decision on the bylaw.

sions to agree where some responsibilities exist.

The minister said he hopes that once regional health committees are established they will work out programs where social workers and the medical professions are able to work more closely.

Bill to Bar Land Speculation Is Described as 'Road to Hell'

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's Revenue Minister was told Tuesday that he is on "the road to hell" with his government's proposed land speculation tax.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, teamed with Liberal critic James Bullbrook of Sarnia to criticize the minister as he attempted to get the bill through committee stage.

The bill is aimed at putting a 50-per-cent tax on profits made by land speculators.

However, the opposition argues that the bill is full of loopholes and hurts the little man, not the speculator.

The government already has passed 21 pages of amendments to the 27-section bill.

The NDP leader said that not only was Revenue Minister Arthur Meen on the road to hell with his support of the legislation, he still was totally inflexible on the bill although it has been five weeks since it was introduced into the house.

Mr. Lewis said he had never seen such a partisan attitude as displayed by Mr. Meen.

He said the government showed a "singular failing" in not asking federal tax experts for their opinion on the application of the proposed tax.

"That's incredibly incompetent, that shows a kind of reckless irresponsibility on your part that does not engage the applause of this house," Mr. Lewis said.

The NDP leader said it was time that the government gave the legislature a definition of what would happen if the bill were approved.

Mr. Meen said that two weeks ago a Conservative member of the House of Commons asked the federal finance minister about the proposed provincial tax.

Mr. Bullbrook jumped on the minister's remarks and asked if the government of Ontario worked through the official opposition in Ottawa.

"If you are saying that, we are bereft of direction on this bill," said Mr. Bullbrook.

The Liberal member said the provincial government should know that the finance minister does not collect taxes and that any queries should go to the revenue department.

The bill remained bogged down in committee stage after a day-long debate.

Earlier, backbench Conservatives threatened to rebel over clauses in the proposed legislation which could have placed farmers in the position of being speculators.

Mr. Meen withdrew that section.

Debate on the matter continues today.

Canadian Colonel Returns To Vietnam as Foster-father

TORONTO (CP) — A Canadian Forces colonel who served in Canada's peace-keeping contingent in Vietnam last year is returning there this month to care for 8,500 Vietnamese children and their families.

Lt.-Col. Frank Campbell, 50, a native of Vancouver, facing compulsory retirement at 51 under Canadian Forces regulations, has decided to put his knowledge of Vietnam to humanitarian use.

He leaves Sunday for Saigon, where he will take over as director of Foster Parents Plan Inc., an international aid organization with headquarters in Warwick, R.I.

He spent six months in Vietnam in 1973, serving as a regional commander of Canada's 250-man military contingent in the International Commission of Control and Supervision.

"During that time, I had to lease the affection and admiration that I developed for the hardy Vietnamese."

"Faced with compulsory retirement within a year, I looked at the options for my future—going into civilian personnel work or perhaps into teaching."

Foster Parents approached him because of his intimate knowledge of Vietnam and selected him as the best replacement for the Saigon job formerly held by an Ottawa social worker, Anne Storey.

Mrs. Storey, formerly Anne Davison, left the post following her recent marriage.

Foster Parents, operating on a budget of about $1 million in Saigon and in about six other centres in South Vietnam, relies on contributions from private individuals who adopt children.

Its social workers arrange for monthly correspondence between the adopted children and foster parents in sponsoring countries, Canada, the United States and Australia. About 16,000 Canadians now contribute more than $200 a year each to the plan.

Montreal Hospital Evacuating Patients

MONTREAL (CP) — The remaining 200 patients at Sacre Coeur Hospital will be evacuated within 48 hours if 1,200 hospital employees continue their walkout, hospital administrators said Tuesday night.

There were 280 patients removed from the hospital Tuesday. Hospital director Gerard Marcoux said the move was necessary because there was no staff to sterilize equipment, change bedding, bathe patients and assist in operations.

Sacre Coeur was negotiating to transfer patients to other hospitals if the walkout continues. It began Thursday with 20 workers and escalated to 1,200 Monday, Mr. Marcoux said.

About 300 doctors and 800 nurses remained on the job Tuesday after declining to support the walkout of orderlies, radiology technicians, practical nurses, non-professional and support personnel.

The walkout was sparked by the one-month suspension of Monique Menard, 27, disciplined for taking off five days without permission of her supervisor. She was advised to take the days off by the union in which she belongs, a union spokesman said.

The union, affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions, decided the nurse's side was owed the leave, he said.

Plant Planned

CALGARY (CP) — A province-wide petrochemical complex providing many jobs and $250 million in annual production by 1978 was outlined Tuesday by the Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd. (AGTL).

The company announced formation of Alberta Gas Ethylene Ltd. as an AGTL subsidiary.

No-fault Car Insurance Asked in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Automobile insurance should be taken over by the province if private insurance companies fail to adopt obligatory no-fault automobile insurance and make other changes, says a report of a committee study on car insurance in Quebec released Tuesday.

TORONTO (CP) — New Democratic Party spokesmen exhorted the provincial government Tuesday to retaliate and "play tough" with the giant Texasgulf Corp.

NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said the company was guilty of "bullying" tactics in its announced intention to suspend development at the $35 million Kidd Creek Mine smelter operations near Timmins.

Mr. Lewis said the company was operating on "the alleged basis that federal and provincial mining taxes require the suspension of all activity."

He said the company gets special dispensations from Ontario in hydro power and transportation costs as well as an $8 million loan.

Treasurer John White said he didn't know of any "moral suasion" that he could bring to bear on the matter.

Donald C. MacDonald (NDP—Toronto York South) said the company was engaging in thinly disguised intimidation and blackmail.

Mr. MacDonald said the government should play tough in return.

"Don't let Texasgulf intimidate you," said Mr. Lewis.

"If the honorable members think for one minute that Texas Gulf is running me, you've got another think coming," said Mr. White.

Mr. White blamed the recent federal budget for the problem and said the federal government had done a "complete flip flop" in mining tax policy.

Don't Damn Polluters, Help Them, Is Advice

HAMILTON (CP) — Consumers should take a more active role in environmental problems that affect health, says the chairman of a recently concluded provincial government study group on health services in Ontario.

"Don't damn polluting industries," Dr. J. P. Mustard, dean of the faculty of medicine at Macmaster University, said Tuesday night.

"Think how financial aid might be given to the industry to clean up its pollution and yet permit it to remain competitive."

Helping industry clean up would pay off by reducing the money spent on health services for those affected by pollution.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the Ontario Section of the Consumers Association of Canada (CAC), he said the major factors in determining a individual health, in descending order, are personal biology environment, lifestyle and health care.

Terrorists Expected

OTTAWA (CP) — Keeping terrorists and hijackers away from Montreal's international airport during the 1976 Olympics may be almost impossible without the diligent support of other countries, a federal aviation safety expert said Tuesday.

Aviation officials expect terrorist trouble during the Games, and turning the airport into an armed fortress might not be effective prevention if terrorists can fly in on international flights, H. R. Finley said in an interview at a meeting of the Canadian Aeronautics and Space Institute.

Transport officials hope security screening of passengers destined for Montreal on international flights will be extensive, said Mr. Finley, chief of aviation safety for the transport department.

Education Growth Over

BARRIE (CP) — Ten years of unrestricted spending in education has forced the imposition of a ceiling that causes many people to think education no longer enjoys a priority status, Education Minister Thomas Wells told a group of Simcoe County educationists Tuesday.

Oiber reasons the education system is being increasingly questioned, he said, include changes in the curriculum which make teachers wonder if the basics of education are still there.

He told the group that the education business is no longer a growth industry.

He said spending ceilings have forced educationists to make some hard decisions as to their priorities and added that in the foreseeable future, he could see ceilings as a way of life.

Global Owes $9 Million

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the Global Television network faces debts of about $9 million and is asking its major unsecured creditors to settle for 25 cents on the dollar or wait five to 10 years for full repayment.

The newspaper quotes an unnamed creditor as saying the offer would be particularly damaging for most of the independent program producers who created and supplied programs or studios but have received little or no payment.

IN MEMORIAM

MUNGO — In loving memory of a dear friend and wife who passed away May 13, 1973.
Always remembered by Marjorie Hill and family.

LUCIOLA — In loving memory of our mother, Lucy Lucciola who passed away two years ago today, May 15, 1972.
We do not need a special day,
To keep you in our mind,
To think of you is what we do,
We very hard to find.
—Sadly missed and ever loved by son John Kevin and daughter Nancy Lucciola.

JOHNSON — In loving memory of a dear husband and grandfather, George Howard who passed away May 15, 1961.
Never more than a thought away,
Quietly remembered in every day,
No need for a special day,
To call love,
Still true.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by son George, daughter-in-law Ruth, granddaughter Judy, Jessica and Jeffrey.

SWARK — In loving memory of a dear mother and sister who passed away May 15, 1968.
What we would give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see,
Her dear voice, see her smile, as in the days that used to be.
But some day we'll meet again,
Beyond the shadow land,
And clasp our hands in God's own light
Never to part that happy life.
—Sadly missed and forgotten,
Joseph and family, Mary Lou, Jean, Ruth, Jim, Bill, Joe, Jack and dad Albert.

WRIGHT — In loving memory of our dear brother Clyde, who passed away May 15, 1963.
Today recalls the sorrow
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of him today,
Are those who knew him best.
Memories are by upon his grave,
May wither and decay,
But the love for him who lies beneath,
Will never fade away.
Always remembered and loved by sisters Kathryn, Ivy and Lorraine.

WRIGHT — In loving memory of our son David who passed away May 15, 1963.
The shock that we received that day,
No one can tell,
God gave us strength to meet it,
And comfort us so well.
But not memories like you,
No one will ever know,
We loved you so much,
We miss you more each day,
We wish you were here with us,
Sharing your joys and sorrows,
You held so one a last farewell,
Nor even goodbyes,
You were gone before we realized,
That you were leaving us for ever.
—Always remembered and so sadly missed by Mum and Dad.

LUCIOLA — In loving memory of our dear brother, John Arthur, who passed away two years ago, May 15, 1972.
Today recalls the memory,
Of a loved one called to rest,
And those who think of him today,
Are those who loved him best.
—Always remembered by brother Fred and family.

WRIGHT — In loving remembrance of a dear grandmother who passed away May 15, 1963 in the following year.
The years will quickly pass by,
Thomas still we can't forget,
For in the heart you live,
His memory is kept,
—Sadly remembered by Peter.

PARKS — In loving memory of our dear father, Frederick Lloyd Grant Mervyn Parks who passed away May 30, 1958 and Minnie Parks who passed away May 15, 1971 of Plainfield, Ont.
Loved and sad and many years missed.
Since our great sorrow fell,
The shock that we received those days,
No one can ever tell,
Memory and smiling, always content
Loved and respected wherever they went,
His lovely wonderful lives came a sudden end,
They died as they lived, everyone's friends,
Now the only tears as we speak their names,
Rest John in our hearts remain the same.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by Orby and Mary Harris and 14 grandchildren and great grandchildren.

ATTYFILE — In ever loving memory of our Pa, David James Attfield, of Belleville, who passed away quite suddenly Friday, May 10, 1974.
He lives with us in memory,
And will live forever.
—Always remembered by his family and grandmother.

LUCIOLA — In loving memory of our son, John Arthur Lucciola who passed away two years ago today, May 15, 1972.
When a cure was sought in vain,
He closed his arms around you,
And whispered come home to me,
You didn't deserve what you went through.
And so He gave you rest,
God's garden must be beautiful,
As He only takes the best.
—Loved and remembered by Mom and Dad.

Actor Enjoys Rodeo Circuit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Asked why he competes as a steer roper on the rodeo circuit, actor James Caan swept an arm toward a movie set and said: "It helps me get away from all this (expletive deleted)."

Caan, the lusty Sonny of The Godfather, was moody and restless on the set of Funny Lady, in which he is playing Billy Rose to Barbra Streisand's Fanny Brice.

The reason for his restlessness was that rodeos were soon being staged at such nearby places as Thousand Oaks and Riverside, and Caan is constrained from entering them.

"Now they put it in my contract that I can't compete while I'm making a picture," he grumbled. "Hmmm. Maybe I'll just do it anyway."

IGNORES RISK

Asked if he wasn't concerned that an accident might harm his face, and hence his livelihood, he scoffed:

"My face? I could get it ruined on the street the way I act."

Caan is like that, a rugged, super-male type, and he admitted that the rodeo life appealed to him as "part of the macho world." He came to rodeoing late because there weren't many horses in his home town, New York City.

"As for steers, I carried them in my back yard. I guess I'm the meat business."

His first introduction came when he was making a film on location in Nebraska and he was invited to a branding by a rancher.

Later, in California, a friend taught him to bulldog, and a couple of years ago, Caan began competing in rodeos as a steer roper.

"I think they learned pretty soon that I wasn't just fooling around, that I was serious. If they like you, they like you. There's no (expletive deleted) with them."

"Oh, I've made a few hundred dollars, but it's a tough way to make it living. You've got a horse to take care of, and there's an entry fee of $35 or more for every event.

"I don't know how those guys survive."

Showbiz Shorts

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ted Kotcheff movie The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz has been chosen to represent Canada at the Berlin international film festival June 20-July 2, the federal film festivals bureau announced Monday.

The film, directed by Mr. Kotcheff, stars Richard Dreyfuss and Randy Quaid. It was produced by John Kemeney for International Cinemedia Centre Ltd., with financial help from the Canadian Film Development Corp., a federal agency.

The choice was made by the festival from a recommendation submitted by a selection committee in the secretary of state department.

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Frank Sinatra has been signed for a one-week appearance at a Lake Tahoe nightclub, it was announced here Monday.

Sinatra will appear at Harrah's Tahoe Hotel-Casino July 31 through Aug. 6 it will be his first performance in the Reno-Lake Tahoe area since 1962.

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian National Exhibition (CNE) said Tuesday the Osmonds, a pop-singing brother act from the United States has been signed for a fourth consecutive year and will appear at the grandstand show Aug. 30.

The CNE also announced the Guess Who, a Winnipeg rock group, will be making its fourth annual appearance.

Other Canadian acts booked include Lighthouse, a Toronto-based rock group, the de Franco Family, a singing group from Welland, the Canadian Drum and Bugle Corps competition and four nights of the World Festival Tattoo, featuring a 130-member pipe band from Winnipeg.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Richard Pryor has been sentenced to 10 days in jail and fined $10,000 after pleading guilty to wilful failure to file a federal income tax return.

U.S. District Court Judge Manuel Real suspended $7,500 of the fine and placed Pryor on three years probation.

Pryor said Monday he didn't file a return for 1967, in which the government said he earned $69,804.13.

Pryor, 33, has appeared in nightclubs and on television and with Diana Ross in the movie Lady Sings the Blues.

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 60 persons were injured, some seriously, and 43 were arrested Monday in sporadic rock-and-brick-throwing incidents outside Robert F. Kennedy Stadium where the Jackson Five group performed.

It was the second such disturbance here in three days. On Saturday, 24 persons were arrested and more than 40 hurt when fighting broke out after a rock-and-soul music concert on the Washington Monument grounds.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Betty Jean Foxx has filed suit in Superior Court to end her 13-year marriage to actor-comedian Redd Foxx.

Mrs. Foxx, 43, filed her action Monday, citing irreconcilable differences. Her lawyer says she is seeking alimony and a division of community property.

Foxx, 51, star of the television series Sanford and Son, filed for divorce from his wife last week in Las Vegas, Nev.

The couple married July 22, 1956, in Las Vegas and separated May 6. They have no children.

DETROIT (Reuter) — Behind the smile and laughter of a comedian, there is a depressed and anxious person, says New York psychiatrist Samuel Janus.

Dr. Janus, in a paper presented Monday to a conference of the American Psychiatric Association, said a study of 55 top U.S. comedians showed most spend much of their time worrying whether they are being loved and appreciated.

The paper says comedians are usually easily hurt, depressed and anxious.

Performing provides a therapy for them, Dr. Janus said. The more affection they receive from an audience the more reassured they become.

This Version Best

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Adjudicator Sandy Black says that when he was in London and saw Man of La Mancha his musical version of Don Quixote, he didn't like it.

But when he saw it by Scarborough Music Theatre here Tuesday night in an Ontario Theatre Festival competition, he liked it because of "the attack, the enthusiasm, the movement, the guts and the love that obviously went into the production."

"I could quarrel with the director (L. Garth Allen) on a lot of little things," he told the capacity audience which gave the show a standing ovation at the final curtain.

"But I was struck by the play's theatricality and the excitement of the set."

Mr. Allen, director of the technical production program in the theatre department of Ryerson Polytechnical Institute in Toronto, praised the costuming and set.

"I was green with envy," he said.

Bryan Stanish as Sancho, Don Quixote's faithful servant, was named top for the highest individual praise. He was "incredibly good, and carried and supported Don Quixote in the way he should," Mr. Black said.

Christine Howarth, as Aldonza, had "a beautiful voice and lots of power you could hear, see and feel."

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Thursday, May 16

Aries (March 21-April 19) Conditions not entirely under your control are working in your favor. Let events proceed undisturbed for a bit.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) It's more to your advantage at this time to be the leader rather than the follower with intimate associates. Step out front. Stay there.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You have a staunch ally who is working behind the scenes on your behalf. He can be relied upon where some others can't.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Something that's going on where others are involved will have a favorable effect upon you when you learn of it.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You will find that male friends will treat you with more consideration today than your lady friends will. Select your company accordingly.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Insights gained today from discussions with another will prove helpful and constructive. At least give them serious consideration.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Tasks you put your hand to today will turn out to be quite profitable, though they may not appear so at the time. Do your best.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is a day when your popularity with others will be very evident. Those who can will go out of their way to favor you.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Something is astir where your work or career is concerned. It will make you feel more secure and sure of yourself.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your presence will add sunshine to any group you involve yourself with today. Just let go. Be considerably. It will work nicely into your present plans.

No Cure Known For Psoriasis

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About the first thing one reads in any discussion of psoriasis is that the cause is unknown and the disease incurable.

I find that, statement difficult to believe in view of the recent achievements of the medical profession in other fields. Psoriasis has been with us a long, long time and is more prevalent than many people realize. Certainly there must be a vast accumulation of factual data concerning it.

I wonder if you would discuss this matter a bit? What studies have been or are currently being made in this field? What facts if any are there to substantiate the "incurable" statement?

In engineering we do not usually accept unsubstantiated statements as facts. We hunt for proof. I am sure the medical profession does the same.—G.W.M.

Well, just what do you want me to discuss? Psoriasis? Or lack of a cure?

The cause of psoriasis is unknown, and the reason is that nobody has been able to find out the cause. I have never said that it is "incurable," so you must have misunderstood that question, whoever told you that.

What I have said is that no specific cure is known. Psoriasis sometimes disappears with one treatment, sometimes with another—and sometimes without treatment. Everybody who happens to be having a particular treatment (whether it is old granny-type things or the latest in medicine) and is freed of his psoriasis is positive that he has "the cure." But the next fellow, or the next hundred try it and nothing happens. Which is real proof—rather than "unsubstantiated statements"—that no specific, no reliable, no generally curative treatment has been found.

Dermatologists can, however, prescribe treatments to keep the skin softer so it won't itch and won't scale as much.

You ask about research on psoriasis. If you are sincere about that, just contribute a few dollars to the Psoriasis Foundation and get their newsletter. The foundation supports some research projects, keeps track of a lot of others.

Incidentally, you find that statement about cause and cure "difficult to believe in view of the recent achievements of the medical profession." What did you have in mind—cancer, muscular dystrophy, warts, arthritis, birth defects, or what? The causes of these aren't known either. The living body is immensely complicated thing and there's an immense amount that we want to know but don't.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are a brain scan and an angiogram test done for the same purpose?—B.F.

Could be. A brain scan is used to detect some mass, such as a tumor, that shouldn't be there. An angiogram (which may be performed in areas other than the brain) looks into the blood vessels. Distortion of the vessels around such a mass would be visualized. So both procedures might be used in aid of the diagnosing of such a condition.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Some of my friends have told me that it is impossible for a woman to be pregnant and menstruate the nine months she carries the baby. I don't see how this is possible. Could you explain what causes that?—M.A.K.

I've never known of it happening—maybe a month or two, but that's all.

Early finesse pays no interest

By Oswald and James Jacoby

"Finesse, finesse, finesse," the groaned Hard Luck Joe. "For lucky players they always work; for ordinary players they work half the time; for me, they never work."

Joe had finessed the jack of hearts at trick one. The finesse had lost and there had been no way for Joe to make his contract.

As usual Joe had no reason to complain about bad luck. His opponents could have bid five spades and been down only one trick. But they had elected to let Joe play a five-diamond contract that could not be beaten.

There is no interest paid on an early successful finesse. Therefore, a player should postpone his finesses when possible. There was no hurry about taking dummy's heart finesse.

Joe should have won the heart lead with his king, drawn trumps, puffed out his two spades and played ace and another club. The defence could take two club tricks and then would be stuck for a lead.

West wouldn't have another heart to lead; East could only lead a heart up to dummy's ace-jack while a lead of any other suit would have let Joe ruff in dummy, discard a heart and claim.

CARD Service

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
	1♦	Pass	1♥
Pass	1 N.T.	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠K3 ♥AJ765 ♦A64 ♣Q96
What do you do now?

A—Pass. Your partner does not have 11 points. He is likely to be short in hearts as one no-trumper should play all right.

TODAY'S QUESTION

This time your partner has responded two clubs. You have passed. West has bid two spades and your partner three clubs. What do you do now?

Bernard Ostry Heads Museums Corporation

OTTAWA (CP) — Bernard Ostry, journalist, broadcaster, TV personality, historian and social scientist, now has become excited boss museums.

The National Museums of Canada, he says, can make a significant contribution in national unity. As the new secretary-general of the museums corporation he intends to see that they do.

The museums include the National Gallery, the National Museum of Man, the National Museum of Natural Sciences, the National Museum of Science and Technology, the Canadian War Museum, the National Aeronautical Collection, all in Ottawa, and a cluster of others devoted to such things as folk culture.

There are also museumobiles—tractor-trailer caravans that take museum displays into remote communities. These alone can make Canadians more aware of their historic beginnings and the diversity of the country's culture, Mr. Ostry said in an interview.

Only one trailer now is on the road, displaying Eskimo and High Arctic culture and resources in Northern Ontario. But it will be expanded to a three-trailer caravan this summer, later to be joined by others displaying many facets of life in Canada, past and present.

The country, Mr. Ostry said, is "hungry for nationalism," and there are perhaps 1,100 to 1,200 museums of various sizes and subject matter scattered across the land.

The National Museums are working on a national inventory of artifacts which will be "a tremendous resource for everyone."

"How much do they mean for tourism? How much do they contribute to education, to science, to academic research? How much can they do to let Canadians in one part of the country know more about another part?

"The limits are endless. We have something to contribute to national unity, and we can show results in a measurable way."

Mr. Ostry, 47, is a native of Wadena, Sask., educated in Winnipeg, with postgraduate studies at the London School of Economics. His wife Sylvia is the country's chief statistician, head of Statistics Canada, and they have two sons.

He took over the National Museums corporation early this year after it had been criticized in successive auditor-general reports for laxity. Perhaps it is part of the nature of museum curators that they are not as concerned with business procedures as they should be.

It is a $35-million business, of which $22 million has to be voted by Parliament. Only $1,000 is budgeted as income this year for sales and service fees.

Mr. Ostry has moved to strengthen the central administration of all the museums in order to leave individual curators and museum directors freer to do their specialized work.

The corporation's current embarrassment is that its biggest display centre, the Victoria Memorial Museum, is still closed. It has been closed since 1971 for repairs. It should open this fall after complete reconstruction and a thorough overhaul of its exhibits.

Mr. Ostry says the story of the Victoria isn't a disaster.

"It's a success story. It looks like a disaster because people weren't told how much work had to be done, along with strikes and shortages. Any other museum would take five to nine years to do the work they've been doing."

When it reopens this fall, there will—be more display space on two floors than there was in the whole of the four-storey building before it closed. Eight display galleries will cover the earth sciences, paleontology, birds, mammals, prehistoric Canada, Prairie Indians, Iroquois culture, the Eskimos, and native peoples.

Museum staff and display materials now are scattered through 33 buildings in Ottawa. A comprehensive plan to consolidate them in new buildings—including a new National Gallery—has been approved by the museums corporation and passed on to Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner.

When the plan will be acted upon is uncertain. The decision was to have been made in March, but so far as anyone knows the plan still awaits action.

The richness of Canadian museum artwork and display material is uncountable, Mr. Ostry says. More must be done to make people aware of what they have.

"More Americans know what is in the Quebec Museum, for instance, than Canadians do."

One idea Mr. Ostry is toying with is to work out a deal with private publishers to market museum publications.

Baltimore Couple Top Producers

NEW YORK (AP) — "Something's really got to hit us," said Kenneth Waissman.

"It has to be an irresistible urge," added Maxine Fox.

And that's as close as you can get to how the married team from Baltimore have become Broadway's hottest producer tandem.

Since setting up shop five years ago, the pair produced four successes in a row. Currently they dominate the impresario ranks as operators of Grease, the longest-running musical around, and Over Here!, a prime song-and-dance contender for this season's award hoopla.

Both traffic heavily in nostalgia, the first for the rock 'n' roll 1950s and the other for the big-band era of the Second World War. Waissman says this "is just an accident, we're not going to restrict our opportunities."

The pair just might turn out to be the fresh management blood the anemic Great White Way has been seeking since David Merrick and the elder producing generation withdrew from multiple enterprise.

"The important thing about two simultaneous hits is that it proves that there is an audience out there," said Waissman.

"People ask why we're willing to take a chance because a few critics can kill you. Well, that's the way the business has always been and we went into it knowing that."

The partnership was formed with initial reluctance. Back in Maryland, the two families—his in jewelry, hers in advertising—knew each other, and both youngsters attended Forest Park High School.

"I'm three years older," said Waissman, now 32, "and I was graduating when she was entering—back there that was quite an age gap."

Miss Fox got to New York first, at 18, moving through a series of showbiz jobs that included apprentice experience on a pretty impressive streak of shows—Barbra Streisand's noted in Funny Girl, Sweet Charity and Mame. Then she went on the road as a manager of You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown.

Waissman got his master's degree at New York University and went off for a couple of years to make Peace Corps films to be shown in South America. His first stage job was in an office where Miss Fox had previously worked.

"Friends kept telling each of us about the other one from Baltimore," said Waissman, "but you know what that sort of thing is like."

He eventually did phone her. "On our first date we discovered we'd both wanted to be in theatre ever since childhood. We gradually discovered our instincts about producing were identical."

After a couple of socializing years, both developed symptoms of loneliness working for other people. When she returned from the Charley Brown travels, they decided to try business together.

"We told people we would like to see scripts but no one sent us anything," he said, "so we bought a page ad in Variety for $750 listing our experience credits."

The phone started ringing and the pair were launched.

Their first production was Sal Mineo's raw-edged version of Fortune and Men's Eyes, off-Broadway.

The prison drama reaped a slight profit, which spurred them on as co-producers of Paul Zindel's And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little. After a year's tour with Julie Harris, the play rewarded backers with a 60-per-cent profit.

One of Waissman's college chums told them about the amateur Chicago show that ultimately became Grease. The musical was first produced off-Broadway for $110,000 and on a wave of rave notices was transferred to the Main Stem for an additional $40,000. In contrast, the production of Over Here! directly for Broadway cost $800,000.

So far, Grease, with the original and two touring companies, has returned $1,500 for every $1,000 invested. The couple makes angel-finding sound easy.

"When we were working for other producers we were cultivating people who had confidence in us," said Waissman. "So they were the ones we first went to. After that, you meet new people along the way."

She lived in midtown, he in Greenwich Village.

"About the time we were doing Grease, to all intents and purposes I moved in with her," said Waissman.

"By then we knew that we'd get married," said Miss Fox. "It was just a matter of finding the mental and physical freedom to do it."

On a weekend holiday last June in Las Vegas, where matrimony is a 24-hour business, the pair went down to city hall at 3:30 a.m., bought a licence and walked across the street to a marriage chapel.

"There were four of them in a row and one had a sign saying the ceremony could be charged on a credit card," said Waissman. "So we chose that one. I used my card."

Professionally the couple decided to operate individual identity.

"We feel exactly the same about everything," he said. "We've never had a really big fight. On the way to work we may not talk if she didn't mail a letter or because I forgot some chore around the house—things like that."

Maxine gets credit for being "a little better at business details." Said Waissman: "We will go for something in a contract and she will find a little extra something to go for—and get it."

21 Israelis Killed

Bombings Follow Terrorist Raid

MAALOT, Israel (AP) — Israeli jets bombed, rocketed and strafed seven refugee camps and guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon today, less than 24 hours after the Maalot schoolhouse massacre in which 21 Israelis were killed, the Lebanese defence ministry said.

There were no immediate reports of casualties in the raids.

The Israeli command reported that its jets hit guerrilla positions near Sidon and Beirut, but that it was "purely a military operation" and refugee camps were not deliberately hit.

Northern Israel was on the alert after security forces discovered another band of Arab guerrillas slipped across the Lebanese border during the night, Radio Israel said. All schools were closed to prevent any repetition of the massacre at Maalot Wednesday, in which 20 Israeli schoolchildren were killed.

Officials said the guerrillas cut the barbed-wire border fence near Manara, a small farm settlement on the western edge of the Israeli panhandle that juts up between Lebanon and Syria.

In Beirut, the leader of the guerrilla group that claimed responsibility for the Maalot massacre, Nayef Hawatmeh, said the Israeli government freed 23 imprisoned guerrillas.

In Maalot, helicopters lifted the last wounded troops from the stricken hilltop town. Weeping villagers scrubbed blood from the schoolhouse floor. A 15-year-old schoolboy named Yossef pounded his head with his fist and cried: "My friends were killed."

The terrorist tragedy was over, and Israel counted the dead—20 Jewish children massacred in Maalot's school; a man, his wife and child murdered in their home; a soldier killed in the attack on the school and an Arab woman shot in an ambush.

There was grief, too, for the 74 wounded, most of them children.

Hours earlier, Israeli troops stormed the school where three Arab gunmen, explosives hung from their necks, had held 85 boys and girls hostage since dawn and threatened to blow them to pieces unless the Israeli government freed 23 imprisoned guerrillas.

"All the children were killed by the terrorists," a military source said. "It was all over in a second. The Arabs started shooting the kids immediately Israel soldiers entered the building."

It was about 3:30 a.m. when the three guerrillas pounded on the door of a Maalot home, said they were police looking for terrorists, then killed the couple who lived there and one of their children. A baby was found safe under a bed where its mother—seven months pregnant—apparently had pushed it.

A few minutes later the gunmen said a cheery "Good morning, are there any children inside?" to the janitor at the village school. Then they shot him and charged into the building.

Shrieking inside were more than 100 teen-agers from a religious school at the nearby town of Safad. They were touring biblical sites in northern Galilee, and several of their teachers were with them.

At 2:15 p.m., the Israeli government announced that, for the first time in its history, it would comply with the guerrillas' demands.

Twenty prisoners were taken from prisons while a United Nations plane waited to take them to Damascus. The other three Arab prisoners whose freedom was demanded were hospitalized in Maalot. Blindfolded, they talked with the guerrillas through loudspeakers. The French and Romanian ambassadors awaited nearby. But no cool word came.

There was no doubt that the terrorists intended to carry out their plans and use their explosives by 4 o'clock, said Mrs. Meir. "So at 5:30 the Israeli defence forces went in."

Confusion Reigns Over Gas Prices

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Confusion reigned at many gasoline pumps across the country Wednesday as oil companies and retailers started to adjust their prices with the end of the temporary freeze on petroleum products.

Gasoline jumped by as much as 14 cents a gallon in Toronto, 10 cents in Winnipeg and Edmonton and many areas reported no change. Heating fuel and diesel oil costs also went up in some areas but not in others.

Imperial Oil Ltd., the country's major integrated petroleum company, increased its wholesale prices effective today, following earlier increases effective Wednesday by BP Canada Ltd., Petrofina Canada Ltd., Texaco Canada Ltd. and Sun Oil Ltd.

Imperial's increase for gasoline will be 9.2 cents a gallon west of the Ottawa Valley energy line and 3.7 cents a gallon east of the line. Heating oil prices will increase 8.6 cents a gallon in the west and 3.1 cents in the east.

In British Columbia, however, Imperial said the increase would be eight cents after receiving a telegram from the B.C. Energy Commission requesting that oil companies hold increases to that figure.

While only minor differences, these follow the other increases announced earlier.

Macdonald Raps Stanfield, Lewis

OTTAWA (CP) — Political opponents got a verbal whipping Wednesday from Energy Minister Donald Macdonald as he discussed the government's oil price policy with reporters.

Mr. Macdonald seemed in election-campaign form as he took swipes at Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield and New Democrat Leader David Lewis and threw some barbs at William Davis, Conservative premier of Ontario, for good measure.

The export charge will go to $5.20 a barrel from $4 in June if oil exporters agree to Mr. Macdonald's request earlier this week that they pay the extra sum.

Three oil companies have rejected positively to the request although the Liberal government's defeat last week removed its authority to levy the tax, Mr. Macdonald said.

Mr. Macdonald said Mr. Lewis was not accurate in suggesting that if the export charge can be collected then measures in the defeated federal budget also can be implemented.

It was relatively easy to ask a handful of oil companies to comply with a government request, but obtaining implementation of the proposed measure to eliminate sales tax on clothing "would have involved thousands or tens of thousands of companies across the country."

PCs Would Make Ex-auditor Adviser on Federal Spending

HAMILTON (CP) — Former auditor-general Maxwell Henderson will be appointed special adviser to reduce federal spending if the Progressive Conservatives form the next government, Robert Stanfield said Wednesday.

Criticizing the Liberal government's "misadventure and waste," the federal Conservative leader said the fight against inflation must begin by a thorough review of all federal programs.

Speaking to a $50-a-plate fund-raising dinner for Duncan Beattie, Conservative member of the last Parliament for Hamilton-Mountain, Mr. Stanfield said Mr. Henderson's expertise in pruning budgets would supplement, and not replace, the efforts of the present auditor-general, J. J. Macdonell.

Mr. Stanfield said the main issue in the July 8 election campaign is competence of government in the areas of inflation and the cost of living.

A Conservative government would institute a "stabilization program" with a temporary freeze on all prices and incomes.

He stressed the freeze would be short-term, and would not work to the detriment of the average Canadian by freezing prices at high levels and wages at low levels as has been charged.

Mr. Stanfield said that the Liberals and the New Democratic Party are misrepresenting his plans by spreading fear among Canadian workers that wages will be frozen if he becomes prime minister. The controls would apply to all income, not just wages, and only for a short period.

Kissinger's Hopes Fading

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger of the United States returned here Thursday to try to pin down an agreement to disengage Syrian and Israeli forces on the Golan Heights but prospects for a successful end to his mission were fading fast.

Oil Spills As Salmon Go to Sea

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — A massive and ever-lengthening oil slick contained to drift south on the Fraser River Wednesday as new fears were raised for millions of migrating sockeye salmon fingerlings on their way to the sea.

The salmon from the Stuart River run are at the peak of their annual migration and fish and wildlife official said a major die-off could result from highly toxic emulsified oil which covers the surface of the Fraser.

More than 10,000 gallons of crude oil spilled from a West-coast Petroleum Co. pipeline 30 miles north of Prince George on the Salmon River Tuesday. It is the second major spill in the area in two years.

G. Simonds, War Hero, Dies at 71

TORONTO (CP) — Lt.-Gen. Guy Granville Simonds, 71, former chief of the general staff and Canada's top battlefield commander during the Second World War, died in hospital Wednesday after a lengthy illness.

He became Canada's youngest general at age 39 in mid-war. He went overseas in 1939 with the 1st Division as a major. A short time after, he was promoted to lieutenant-colonel to command an artillery regiment.

In 1942 he went to Africa to watch Field Marshal Montgomery fight German Gen. Erwin Rommel and break the Alamein line. He was called back to England to take over the 2nd Division.

He took the 1st Division into Italy, was transferred to the 5th Armored Division, then recalled to command the 2nd Corps in its preparation for the Western Front.

One of his innovations during the war was his use of armored troop carriers to keep pace with attacking tanks. This became of tactical importance to the Allies.

After the war he became a senior instructor at the Imperial Defence College in Britain, and later commanded at the same time the National Defence College and the Canadian Army Staff College in Kingston, Ont.

Marketing Boards Criticized

Consumers' Head 'Just Plain Mad'

HAMILTON (CP) — Maryon Brechin says she is "frustrated" and "just plain mad" about inflation. She also has no use for farm product marketing boards and believes that the retail food industry has "a degree of monopoly in Canada that no other country would tolerate."

At national president of the Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC), Mrs. Brechin's opinions, backed by extensive research and surveys, have a clout far beyond CAC's approximate 110,000 membership.

Mrs. Brechin, whose home is in Toronto, was interviewed during the two-day annual meeting of CAC's Ontario association which ended Wednesday.

She said the whole subject of inflation is clouded by interest groups.

She did not hold much hope that inflation would be eased because "conventional economics cannot cope with scarcities."

Farm product marketing boards were partly to blame, said Mrs. Brechin, a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College.

"They are inefficient, stronger than any government . . . have no consumer representation. They are monopolies which set prices, quotas and quality."

But she said the provincial marketing boards' only philosophy seems to be one of limiting production to keep prices high in their own areas.

There appears to be no sharing between provinces with a high production in certain commodities — such as eggs — and those with lower production.

Mrs. Brechin said her latest concern is the impending introduction of universal product coding by retail food chains.

Under this system, all goods on supermarket shelves will be marked with their price in a computer code. There will be no legible price on the individual product only on the shelf.

Mrs. Brechin's worry is that the consumer will not be able to check the price on the individual product. She already has approached several of the food chains to install scanners so the customer can check the computer-coded price.

"But I don't think prices will ever decline. Never again will food take only 18 per cent of income."

Conviction Ends Trial for Rape

County Court Judge W. S. Lane found Arnold Edward Stone, 19, of 224 East Moira Street guilty of a charge of rape at the conclusion of a two-day trial in County Court here yesterday.

Stone was found guilty of raping a 23-year-old Belleville woman, twice, in the back seat of her car during the early morning hours of Feb. 23.

The complainant, who testified for several hours Tuesday and again on Wednesday morning, told the court that Stone had raped her twice, once while her car was parked along the Alkens Side Rd., and once when it was parked along Highway 401 near Kingston, early in the morning of Feb. 23.

The woman said she had driven a boy friend, Stone and two other men to Kingston, late Feb. 22 so that Stone, who was an acquaintance of her friend, could borrow some money from a Kingston man.

Once in Kingston, the four men entered a building, which was referred to throughout the trial as a "booze can" — premises on which liquor is illegally served to patrons after licensed beverage rooms are closed. The Belleville woman stayed in the car, waiting for the men to return so they could all drive back to Belleville.

Around 3 a.m. Stone came out of the "booze can" and told the woman the other three men were not going to return to Belleville with her and offered to show her the way back to the highway.

While driving along Highway 401, Stone slipped the woman's necktie around the woman's neck — in such a way that it formed a sliding noose — and forced her to stop the car at the side of the highway and remove her clothes off.

He then forced the woman to drive along the highway at her under went sex in the back and on two different occasions made her stop the car and get onto the back seat.

During all those acts, Stone kept the belt fastened around the woman's neck and on two occasions tightened the noose the force her to do what he wanted.

As the car approached the Deseronto turnoff, Stone apologized to the woman, saying he had just got out of jail and "went a little bit mad."

Near the Shannonville Road interchange, Stone removed the belt from the woman's neck and allowed her to put her clothes on.

He then told her to turn off the highway at Wallbridge Road, and made her drive along the Alkens Side Road before forcing her to stop the car for the sixth time during the ride from Kingston to Belleville.

Stone then made the woman drive him into Belleville and told her he would kill her if anyone bears anything about this". He left the car in the vicinity of College Street.

The woman returned to her apartment crying and sobbing and told her sisters she had been raped by Stone.

The next day, she discussed the incident with a friend who was a police constable, and reported the occurrence to the Belleville OPP.

Stone, who pleaded not guilty to the charge, did not testify during his trial. The only evidence tendered to the court on behalf of the defence was a statement Stone gave to the OPP when he was arrested Feb. 25.

In the written statement, Stone admitted to having sexual intercourse with the woman and explained the act was performed with her consent, on the back seat of her car while it was parked on the Alkens Side Road.

Stone, three men who had been with Stone and the woman in Kingston all testified that they had not told Stone they were staying the night in Kingston.

In making his finding of guilt Judge Lane said: "I have come to the conclusion that she (the complainant) was telling the absolute truth . . . I have no doubt in my mind. I feel that a jury that would acquit this man would not be doing its duty."

Stone will appear before Judge Lane for sentence at 3:30 p.m. today.

Probation For Assault

A Belleville man, Vernon Oddy, was convicted of assault causing bodily harm and placed on two years' probation in County Court yesterday.

Oddy, who pleaded guilty to the charge when he appeared before County Court Judge W. S. Lane, was convicted of beating up another man, Maurice Bell, of Belleville, during a domestic dispute at Oddy's home, April 8, 1973.

Bell suffered a broken jaw and two black eyes as a result of the beating and spent nearly one week in hospital after the incident.

In passing sentence, Judge Lane said that he would normally consider a stiffer sentence but noted that there were mitigating circumstances in the case.

All-county Government: Picton 'OK'; Village 'No'

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

BLOOMFIELD — Bloomfield ratepayers have rejected a proposal for a one-tier county government in Prince Edward by a 63.15 vote.

Township clerk Charles Fraleigh said village councillors later passed a motion suggesting a continuing study of the system with "more definite plans and cost estimates to be made available".

In Picton ratepayers Wednesday night voted 16 to 4 in favor of the one-tier system.

In Athol Township this week, ratepayers supported the proposal by a vote of 13 to 1.

Under the proposed concept Prince Edward's 10 autonomous municipal councils would be replaced by a single council.

Mr. Fraleigh said basic reason for rejection of proposed restructuring of local government appeared to be the lack of cost estimates.

"You're just buying a pig in a poke," he commented. He said the provincial government position paper on the proposed system was not issued to the public soon enough.

Village Reeve Allan Anderson said Thursday that residents rejected the proposal primarily because they had not had sufficient time to study it. He suggested their main concern is more time to become acquainted with the proposal.

Reeve Anderson said that explanations of one-tier government have appeared in the press but added that most people do not read those stories.

He said that many Bloomfield ratepayers urged a plebiscite on the scheme.

Reeve Anderson said he attributed the high attendance at Thursday's meeting to letters sent by the clerk to all ratepayers. At several other public meetings in Prince Edward called to discuss the proposal, the average attendance has been 20-40 persons.

Reeve Anderson and Mr. Fraleigh agreed that a secret ballot vote encouraged freer expression of opinion. The reeve termed stand-up votes as being " just like an international pig-pong match," where each voter eyes his neighbor.

They didn't go into Confederation overnight," he observed, commenting on the hasticipality's decision to further study the proposal.

The study received substantial support in Hallowell and Hillier earlier this week.

Nothing Goes Smoothly

MARMORA — Eldon Killian, on behalf of the area curling club told Marmora Village Council recently that members were unhappy with ice surfaces provided this past season and had not paid their rental.

Mr. Killian said the club has agreed increased rental fees when the arena committee hired a qualified manager for the arena but he quit after two weeks. He was followed by four others who had to be shown how to operate the ice-making machine and many times the ice wasn't satisfactory for curling.

The club had been unable to discuss the matter with the Arena Committee, Mr. Killian said, because Councillor Leo Prevost, committee chairman had not been able to get even a quorum out to a meeting in March or April.

Survey OK

MARMORA — A letter of appreciation will be sent the ministry of transportation and communications in Kingston from village council following the province's decision for a traffic study at the corner of highways 7 and 14 in August.

The ministry at first declined to make the study requested by Council on the grounds it was too busy. The decision was changed when Clarke Collins, MPP, Hastings intervened on the village's behalf.

Blood Needed

MARMORA — The Tri-Town blood donor clinic will be held at Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc May 22.

The Clinic will operate from 1-4 p.m. 6-8:30 p.m.

Last year students and teachers at CHSS outnumbered residents of Marmora, Madoc and Tweed. The Marmora-district Lions Club has again offered transportation for Marmora donors, who can call Brian Goodchild at 472-2721.

Obedience Course Makes For Cannier Canines

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

EAST LAKE — School's in for Prince Edward County canines enrolled in obedience classes at Denco Boarding Kennels.

Teacher Mrs. Karen Sorensen already has instructed her "pupils" and their handlers in the first in a series of lessons in command performance.

The class, begun this month, includes an Afghan Hound, a St. Bernard, two German Shepherds, an Alaskan Malamute, and a Bull Terrier.

Mrs. Sorensen, a native of Denmark, has been giving dogs obedience-training in Prince Edward for more than 10 years. She estimates that hundreds of animals have graduated from her classes and, through their training, have become more enjoyable pets.

The lessons include instruction in basic commands.

Owners are expected to work with their pets between lessons to convey the meaning of commands.

Although the initial course offered at Denco Kennels offers only basic obedience training, Mrs. Sorensen also is qualified to teach more advanced lessons.

Many owners who enroll pets are not interested in showing the animals. In fact, several of Mrs. Sorensen's students have been family mutts.

Other handlers, such as Mrs. Joanne Dunkley of Hangelav Kennels, East Lake, train their dogs with an eye to the showring.

Mrs. Dunkley, who assists Mrs. Sorensen, says there are only four CD Companion Dog (CD) Bassett Hounds in Canada. She owns two of these obedience winners and both were trained under the direction of Mrs. Sorensen.

Formerly a collie breeder, Mrs. Sorensen now is surrounded by dogs of all breeds at her popular boarding kennel. She still owns an obedience champion collie named Maestro, while her son Johnny is proud trainer of an Alaskan Malamute. Her daughter, Hanne, recently purchased an Afghan Hound named Godfrey.

The trainer begins obedience classes each Spring and continues them periodically as new dog owners express interest. At the completion of each series of lessons an official graduation is held.

More Light

MARMORA — Village council has approved a suggestion by Ontario Hydro that changes to upgrade the system of street lighting here be tied to Hydro's plans for a new substations east of Marmora.

Mohawks To Mark Landing

Events will begin at 9 a.m. at the landing ground at the east of the reserve on the Bayshore. The Mohawks will parade from the spot to a nearby memorial cairn where a special service will be held. Later, a church service will be held at nearby Christ Church.

Some Other Issues

Serious as inflation is, it would be a massive waste of the public forum and a serious deficiency in civic and national vision if the current election were to be confined solely to this fiscal and monetary issue.

We are not suggesting many votes will hang on them, but this is as good a time as any to think about some of the other ills of this country and its people. Too often these are lost amid concern for so-called wrongs in far-off lands.

Consider for instance the alarming number of diphtheria cases that have been uncovered of late among western Indians and Metis, spawned apparently by squalid and overcrowded living conditions. They accounted for more than half the 169 cases of diphtheria in Canada in 1973. The latter figure is more than double that of 1972.

This is an extraordinarily steep rise, even allowing for the fact it is accounted for in part by stepped-up testing programs in Alberta where the incidence of the disease among the Indians is reported. Doctors describe it as a serious health problem with no easy solutions.

If this is the situation obtaining among Indians in Alberta, what about conditions elsewhere in Canada? Why, after all this time, when the white materialist society's virtually every want is satisfied, if not by honest toil then by Government beneficence . . . why should Indians still be living in such a lamentable state? And in Alberta, which is one of the wealthiest provinces in the country and which, incidentally, now has an Indian lieutenant governor.

There comes to mind the foreword to Without Reserve, a book by Sheila Burnford (The Incredible Journey) about the time she and artist Susan Ross spent among the Cree and Ojibwa Indians. Mrs. Burnford, once a Port Arthur resident now living in England, quotes some poignant words from a Cree Grammar: "Someone Hath Touched Me. O child, Is It Thou? What shall I do for thee?"

What then shall we do about evidence of neglect and of need in this supposedly fortunate land of ours?

Camouflage

Doubtless it was good tactics by the IRA Provisionals in Belfast to have as headquarters an ivy-covered home in the city's exclusive Malone Road area. For who would have thought to look among this suburb's gracious homes and pleasantly-landscaped gardens — a riot of pink cherry blossoms at this time — for such sinister evidence of the last fruits of urban guerrilla war?

This is where anybody who is anybody, as they say, in Belfast, lives, and the discovery of the guerrilla H.Q. there may account for the symbolic attacks a couple of years ago on a judge's home in the vicinity, and on the home of a woman senator.

The late Errol Flynn's parents and sister lived in the Malone Road area during the war years when his father, Prof. T. Thomson Flynn, was professor of zoology at the city's Queen's University. Prof. Flynn was also civil defence officer for Belfast at that time.

Being something of a wag and a daredevil, the celebrated movie actor (he died in Vancouver in 1959) would have understood the irony of events as chronicled from Belfast in recent days.

Visit Of Princess

If Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, have been having their marital ups and downs, they seem to be bearing up splendidly with during their current visit to Winnipeg for the city's 100th anniversary celebrations.

If their visit is a low-key one, from a publicity standpoint, they are nevertheless welcome, in the tradition of Royal visits to Canada.

Certainly they seem to have been received enthusiastically in Manitoba. Let's hope the remainder of their tour brings happy hours and that the future for them is bright also.

Ounce of Prevention Can Beat The Fast-Buck Operator

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Fast-buck operators usually find it easy to keep ahead of consumer protection laws. By the time the cumbersome legislative machinery has blocked a given offence, the operators have found a new way to extract unearned money from the gullible.

A new law has been proposed in Ontario, which would give a broad general application to the concept of consumer protection, instead of trying to deal with each specific shady practice.

Assuming that the bill will be passed in a form that also protects the honest merchant or salesman from the unscrupulous individual—a way, in other words, that recognizes that consumers have responsibilities too—it could be a big step forward and a model for other jurisdictions.

The maximum fine under the proposed Ontario bill would be $25,000. The legitimate complaint of consumers is that courts seldom impose penalties that are severe enough to be a real deterrent to those who prey on the unwary.

Even when a victimized consumer is redressed and the fast-buck operator penalized, a court case is a long and bothersome procedure. It's far better to apply the onus of prevention.

Here's a checklist from the pamphlet, Tricks In The Marketplace, compiled and distributed by Consumer Buy-Line, Ontario Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations, 555 Yonge St., Toronto:

—Ask for identification when dealing with any door-to-door salesman.

—Deal only with known, respected and established companies.

—Never sign a blank contract or paper. Read and understand the contract.

—Be sure the names and address of the company are included before you sign a contract.

—Be strong enough to say "no" if you are not interested.

—Make sure you understand and know exactly the total cost of your purchase. Add up the interest charges. The law doesn't guarantee the price or quality of the merchandise, nor the integrity of the vendor).

—Compare price conditions by shopping around.

—Be familiar with brand-name goods and prices, so that you can compare merchandise.

—Make sure you understand what the guarantee means.

—If you pay by cheque or money order, it should be made payable to the firm and not to a salesman.

Opposition's Charges Refuted

Donald Irvine on Cost Of Regionalization

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The government finally has come up with a rebuttal of those figures critical of the cost of regional government which the Liberals have been using widely.

Minister without portfolio Donald Irvine in a Morrisburg speech said the critics deserved a fiction award for the figures.

And he gave a few corrections.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, he said, had alleged that in the first year costs of government in the Ottawa-Carleton region had increased by 36 per cent from just under $80 million to $91.3 million.

Actually, the minister claimed, there has been an increase from $63.2 million to $71.3 million, or only 14 per cent.

In the Niagara Region, he said, the Liberal leader had declared there had been a first-year increase of 45 per cent from $39 million to $56 million.

In reality, he said, the increase was 29 per cent, from $43.9 million to $56.5 million.

Even with the true figures, the minister said comparisons could be misleading.

One reason he offered was that during the first start-up year or two there were extraordinary costs in getting regional government under way.

For example, there must be new personnel, facilities and equipment.

Also normally there was an upgrading of services in some member municipalities to bring them to a uniform standard. In the form of better fire protection, better recreation facilities and parks and so on.

Even if Mr. Irvine is right in his figures and Mr. Nixon is wrong, however, there still has to be some unease in one's mind about the financial aspects of regional government.

A 29 per cent increase in the first year, such as the minister grants for Niagara, is certainly enough to make one wonder whether there hasn't been extravagance and lack of good spending judgment.

And suspicions can be abetted by the fact that half or better of the money in the regional budgets is provided by the province.

In fact one has to believe that from an economy viewpoint, at least, regional government hasn't been perhaps the best it can have taken.

A Look at Regional Government

Picton Gazette

For close to a decade now municipal representatives have been aware of the intention of the provincial government to reorganize existing municipal governments into larger and more viable units.

A number of counties, Prince Edward amongst them, discussed the regional changes that were being made and discussed ways of restructuring their own municipal organizations so that they were better equipped to deal effectively with the many and varied problems with which they were concerned in this fast moving age.

Initially, much of the thinking was in reducing the total number of persons serving on county councils to make the group more streamlined, but it became obvious that this in itself was not sufficient reorganization maintaining as it did the existing arrangement of town and township councils, and of county council and separated towns.

Many services originally run by local authorities became too complex to be administered on a local scale and were transferred to the provincial government, services such as assessment, health and the administration of justice.

Prince Edward county council was the first to approach the provincial government with concrete proposals for a new system of government, a senior government in a restructured county that would be very much still rooted in the historic boundary of the county.

This basic system of government as it fitted in with provincial plans to restructure existing county units in the province. Some units were amalgamated into regions, others will likely operate as reconstructed counties, but most will change their political boundaries. Here the unique geographical shape of Prince Edward County means the governments are willing to allow the county to operate as a unit within existing boundaries.

Donald Irvine, Minister without Portfolio made it clear in his speech expressed very recently that a great need existed for everyone in political life to look at ways of strengthening local governments. He said if the elected officials of the county, after consultation with the people through public meeting, decided they could make any changes to the present system at this time, the changes would be thrust upon them.

He was unable to promise that no changes would be made in the future however, "If you do do something there may come a day when the government will have to step in if we are not responsive as we must be to the needs of the people."

Clearly stated the warning was that if nothing is done now voluntarily, the provincial government may, and probably will, do something in the future. That something may be to include Prince Edward County in a larger regional unit.

We have the opportunity now to take charge of our own destiny, to return to a one-tier county government control over far more of our local service needs, the availability of regional grants.

The opportunity should be grasped now. Delaying for later will serve no purpose except to leave municipal councils in the limbo for a while longer unwilling to make decisions of consequence because the spectre of reorganization looms above them.

What is needed in municipal councils today is a statesmanlike approach to the needs of the citizens. We are confident the municipal councillors will respond to the challenge.

County Government Issue

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

After reading Reeve Russell Thompson's remarks about county government in last Friday's Intelligencer. I am beginning to wonder if he fully understands all of the issues.

The truth of the matter is as I see it, that each municipality will bestow all of its assets on the county administration to be used as a majority on that administration shall direct. There will be no such thing as borrowing or lending because the present local corporations will cease to exist. The local people who have paid their taxes and contributed services will actually own nothing, except as a part of the county system.

It is true that it is planned to appoint local boards to administer such things as museums and parks. But, if the county authority decides that some artifact presently owned by a local museum should be in the county museum at Picton, who is to prevent them from taking it, because they will own it?

It is obvious that some municipalities expect to gain by the creation of a county government and that, conversely, other municipalities will have to expect that Amelias burgh will be among the losers and probably, I will be accused of being parochial.

However, I cannot help but recall a few things.

At my first session at county council in 1945, a county councillor from Picton flatly stated that no county road money should be spent in Amelias burgh, because our people paid no taxes. Just on or three years ago, former Mayor Ackerman of Picton, was quoted as saying words to the affect that she was in full support of county government as it would strengthen Picton's tax base.

I am not blaming all of these people, because they were being honest, but they were more parochial than I am. Show me the representative in municipal, provincial or federal government who, within their respective bodies' jurisdiction doesn't strive to obtain the most he can for the people he represents and I'll show you a poor one!

At this time, the minister responsible for municipal affairs, Hon. John White, has flatly stated that he has no intention of imposing any more regional development and regardless of his assistant, Donald Irvine, MPP, the whole Prince Edward County government would be a political feather in his cap, there is no urgent reason for a quick decision.

Realizing as I do the problems that exist in some of our municipalities—particularly Picton and Wellington regarding orderly development—I am going to suggest some alternatives. Others may come up with better ones.

First of all, I would suggest that since it is desirable that, in certain parts of our county, expansion takes place in industry, housing and services, municipalities in the long run to the people who will use these services, that the county council of Prince Edward be authorized to borrow money to carry out the necessary capital costs. Each proposition would be considered on its own merits and if, necessary, an able member of the legislature could be requested in sponsor a private bill or bills to achieve this purpose.

Secondly, the smaller municipalities could well reconsider the idea of amalgamation. The Marysburgh and Athol could well become Mary-Athol. Hallowell and Rossmore could become Bloomfield. Hillier and Wellington would become Wellhill. Why should Ameliasburgh and Sophiasburgh not become Amelia and Sophia? Surgha are a term of Europe, why use them here?

In conclusion, I would say that no one could serve the people of Prince Edward County the number of years I have done, without having a great love and admiration for them. I am making this humble contribution in all sincerity.

Invitations are now going out from the UCS to individuals and agencies to be on hand at the Belleville YMCA to meet the incoming director of the UCS.

As is usual in such cases, the general public who foots the bill will be out of the bill, are not being invited.

All the taxpayers of Belleville are entitled to be there, unless if the UCS entitled to be invited. The bylaws state that any individual who supports the concept of the UCS is invited to be a member.

As all the citizens contribute by way of taxes to the salary of the executive director they should all qualify for invitations.

TV and Other Foreign Media Producing 'Zombie' Culture

Kingston Whig-Standard

"We are in danger of becoming a zombie nation, our physical structure intact but our souls and minds gone abroad."

This was the opinion of a former Canadian diplomat, John Holmes of the Institute of International Affairs, when he addressed recently at Lawrence University in Canton, N.Y. Mr. Holmes was in Canada when concerned with television which, he said, may well ultimately conquer Canada. "It's a hell of a way to die", he added.

There is plenty of evidence to show that our "souls and minds have gone abroad" already. For Canadians we don't even know what language we are speaking at times. "Eh" days — and haven't for many, many years. The result is that we have never as a nation decided whether to stick with the English language in its original state — which was part of our culture — or to adopt, which can usage of that language. Consequently there are few Canadians who know the difference — and fewer who care.

The yet has gone so far that the Minister of Health, Marc Lalonde, has actually threatened to jail World Football League invaders (because they are Americans). Two huge American magazine publishers, on the other hand, were given special status for income tax purposes by...a Canadian Government. The result of this special treatment is that Reader's Digest and Time have been able to "export" Canadian advertising dollars, thus depriving Canadian periodicals. Time and Reader's Digest have been exempted from a Canadian law recently that the cost of advertising aimed at Canadian periodicals is to be deducted from the advertiser's income tax. An ad in either magazine is deductible.

Oof top of that, the Post Office estimates that the Canadian Government has a deficit of $3 million in mailing costs for Time and Reader's Digest in 1973. This was part of a total of $11 million for that year. The deficit was caused by the fact that incoming mail in Canada is of the second class mailing category mail. Receiving countries are responsible for the delivery of mail within their boundaries.

The informed Canadian citizen, or any official and private — remains odd to say the least. The federal Government, according to a spokesman for the Secretary of State, Hugh Faulkner, is "studying" the situation. A recent scholarly work on the Time-Readers' Digest issue had to be published by Praeger of New York. The Praeger was that no Canadian publisher could be found who would deal with it.

Liberal and NDP Colors Clash

OTTAWA (CP) — More evidence that the Liberals and New Democrats no longer are thinking alike: Their campaign colors clash terribly.

The NDP has picked a screaming orange color as background for signs and stickers stamped with bold black letters to sell voters its "People Matter More" theme.

The Liberals are relying on a more traditional red, but organizers say the color will be toned down somewhat from the 1972 federal campaign.

"I'd say it was a softer red," said one Liberal. "It doesn't have the same bang-bang, lift-off-the-page effect of the former."

He added that there will be a noticeable absence of the word Liberal on campaign material. Instead, the party would use a stylized L with a Maple Leaf insignia on stickers and leaflets.

The flag sign, used on most government letterheads and vehicles, gave people a "strong" identification with Lester Pearson," prime minister when the current national flag was adopted.

To the left of that logo, which runs along the bottom of stickers underlining the slogan "Now, for all the right reasons," the party has placed another logo which uses the letters PC to form bars on either side of a red maple leaf.

One party worker said the idea of only slightly changing the tri-color symbol is to make it easy for voters to identify with the last federal campaign, held in October, 1972.

"The national office told us that if we had anything left over from the last campaign to use it again. The new material would not be that much different."

Liberals have not picked a slogan for the campaign, though Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield has suggested one for that party.

His idea? "It's a mess."

That might be a pretty good slogan for our Grit friends," he said recently in Fredericton. He suggested that it sums up government policy on a range of issues.

Prime Minister Trudeau has said that his party may not use a slogan this time, and organizers say they have not thought of a replacement for the "Land is Strong" theme used in 1972.

Labor Pools Set Up

OTTAWA (CP) — A system of 32 farm labor pools now being set up will assure farmers of all the manpower they need for harvest this year, Manpower Minister Robert Andras said Wednesday.

Mr. Andras told a news conference the new labor pools will give first priority to Canadian workers seeking work on farms. If the supply of Canadian manpower is insufficient, foreign labor will be recruited under agreement with three Caribbean countries and possibly Mexico.

But Mr. Andras, who is immigration as well as manpower minister, said the government will not tolerate illegal imports of foreign laborers, as happened last year.

Most MPs Retaining Offices

OTTAWA (CP) — Early indications are that most of the 120 members of Parliament who have publicly-financed constituency offices will keep them open during the election campaign.

A check with party officials and Commons spokesmen showed that so far only four—two New Democrats, one Conservative and one Liberal—will close their storefront offices, opened this year under a new program designed to make MPs more accessible to their constituents.

"But I imagine there will be others," Commons Clerk Alastair Fraser said Wednesday when asked to confirm that T. C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands), David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North), Don Mazankowski (PC—Vermilville and Hugh Poulin (L—Ottawa Centre) will close their offices.

Money for the constituency offices was approved by Parliament in December.

The program provides up to $500 a month for staff and a maximum $200 a month for office rental. All bills are paid directly by the Commons.

Free space in federal buildings is an alternative to renting, but many MPs demurred because these usually are closed on weekends.

Last Jan. 15, Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux issued a directive saying the offices were not to be used for political purposes and could not be part of political party headquarters.

When the July 8 election was called, all four parties announced they were leaving it up to their individual members to decide whether to close the constituency offices during the two-month campaign.

Mr. Douglas said his reason for closing his office is that it is in the same building as his party campaign headquarters.

"It's not even on the same floor . . . but I'm closing it to be absolutely sure there's no misunderstanding."

In many of Britain's new footwear collections, platform soles have shrunk to a discreet quarter-inch. These three styles are from the new over 21 range by Norvic. At left is Charmer, available in several colors with white platform and-

Shoes: Lower Platforms

LONDON (CP)—Arbiters of fashion in Britain say the zany look in clothes is definitely on the way out, making way for a more elegant and classic mood. And it's starting with the shoes.

Though the hunt for the highest platforms in which it's still possible to totter may continue for a while among the very young, elegant women who are the real leaders of fashion want shoes that look like shoes, give the slimmest possible look to the feet and flatter the legs.

In many of the new collections of fashion footwear by British manufacturers, if platforms do creep in they're a discreet quarter-inch.

Also on the way out are bumpy, bumpy toes reminiscent of football boots, exaggeratedly high fronts and big, flashy metal trims. The new trims are extremely discreet and designers have relied on subtle combinations of leather either in texture or color contrast for interest. Toes are more pointed than they have been for a long time. Heels are higher, but slender, though without any return to the stiletto.

Michael Quinton, sales director of Norvic of Norwich, says the smart woman in 1974 will want heels about half an inch higher than she has been wearing lately, probably up to three inches, though he thinks the popular 2¼-inch will go on selling.

Norvic is sticking to mini-platforms where the firm introduces any at all and forecasts a growing popularity for slingbacks.

"Where one pair in 10 we sold was a slingback three years ago, now it's one in five," says Quinton.

All these light-looking summer shoes and sandals will be best sellers in white, with parchment, beige and ivory also popular as well as sweet-pea colors such as pink, mauve and lilac.

Several leading firms have really got to grips with one big shoe problem—styles designed in wider fittings for the young, smart woman. Only a few years ago it was assumed that if you needed a wide or extra-wide shoe you were an elderly lady whose interest lay solely in comfort, regardless of style. But research has shown that many young women want pretty, fashionable shoes but can't get into normal fittings.

Bradford and Sons of Leicester has specialized in this field, making well-styled shoes that somehow contrive to look streamlined and elegant even in the widest fittings.

One of Britain's most famous firms in the field of shoe-styling, Holmes of Norwich, presents a collection for 1974 which it describes as "refined and feminine". This firm has always produced shoes for the elegant, fashion-conscious woman rather than gimmicky styles for the way-out, the current designs, use of materials and clever effects produced by texture and color balance are typical of the latest trends.

As Peter Holmes, the company's chairman, points out, there is a tendency towards higher heels and the soft, oval toe, with some models featuring a restrained version of the chisel toe, hated by the too an "edge". This "platetsu", as its makers call it, is also used on shoes with rounded toes but is undoubtedly most effective with the chisel line.

That old favorite of the 1930s which Americans call "Spectaters", the white shoe with brogued toecap in black-tan or navy, is tipped as a winner for 1974 and so is the lace-up, medium-heeled semi-sports shoe in two colors, such as off-white buffalo calf and black patent. These have a "period" flavor but are up-to-the-minute shoe fashion.

Among the new materials featured in the higher-priced ranges are lizard patent, calf stamped to simulate ostrich and real water-snake, the texture of which is particularly effective when used in two pale contrasting colors such as beige with white for an elegant slingback by Holmes.

A British firm whose name is practically a household word for its cosy, sheepskin-lined boots, Moriands of Glastonbury, Somerset, has broken out for the coming season with a completely new range called "Sloopers". As the name implies, they are casual, designed for fit and comfort but beautifully styled, and all in Moriands' famous soft suede, sometimes combined with leather trims.

All have low to medium-low heels and excellent details, such as contrasting soles and heels.

Clothes — Higher Costs, Cause Higher Prices

MONTREAL (CP) — With cotton fabrics and those made from petroleum derivatives in short supply, garment manufacturers are experiencing increased costs and consumers are picking up the bill, says Billy Hitsig of Pierre de Paris Fashions Ltd.

"It's a matter of who can get the fabric supplies and do something with them," he said in an interview.

"Right now five out of 100 firms are surviving and the supplies of those that close down are being snapped up by the large manufacturers."

Since one firm cannot cater to the needs of the entire market, garment firms are having to become specialized and cater to one section of the market, said Mr. Hitsig who has been in the business six years.

"We have to change with the times and can't run a firm as it was done 25 years ago."

He said costs of both labor and fabrics are rising and forcing up the price of clothes bought at the retail level.

"Medium-and lower-priced garments are attracting the consumer because she can't afford to pay as much for clothes as she did a few years ago."

He said older women tend to spend less on fashion—"once the family food bill is paid there's not much left over to spend on fashion"—but the younger girl, primarily office staff, tends to be fashion-conscious and buys more.

Co-ordinates—shirts, skirts, sweaters, pants and jackets—are good buys, he said, because they permit "interchanging for a variety of looks."

He said skirts this year tend to be longer, ranging from 21 to 26 inches with pants showing a narrower leg and a natural waistline.

first to admit that the average woman is not shaped like a pencil and that garment manufacturers must cater to the mass not the minority, in picking their styles and pattern sizes.

'Unclaimed' Feels Isolated

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have a thing about failing for a guy and liking him at a distance. I'll smile at him day after day until he smiles back. And that's as far as it goes.

One boy started noticing me when I was on way to work. He would give me a great big smile and say hello. Would you believe this went on for three months.

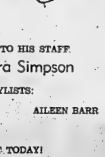
I haven't had a date in so long I feel totally isolated. So I looked forward to seeing him and was always let down when he wouldn't try to ask for a date. A girl friend said he wouldn't take his eyes off me as I walked toward him. I feel he is so close but so far out of reach.

I feel so much for the stranger with the warm smile he gave me!

Unclaimed Treasure.

Dear Treasure: The name is apt. Most female treasures of 17 are still unclaimed, so don't feel rejected.

Another thing: You have an eye for good looking boys — especially those with warm smiles. Being able to feast yourself on a male countenance is a thrill in itself, isn't it? Male or female, this is worth looking at and will be all your life! Artists have worked at reproducing them on canvas over the centuries.



Later on you are going to want to know more about what is beneath that eye-catching exterior. My mother used to say, "Handsome is as handsome does."

Look for personality. Believe in yourself; and watch for clues to character, kindness, an interest in living. That way, you will be a mile ahead of the girl who falls for every handsome face.

Recycle Your Wardrobe at New Shop

By SHARON AIRHART

There's a place in town where you can pick up a "name" wool suit for about $20. And a really good evening gown for about the same price.

Hard to believe?

It would be unless you knew just one more thing about the clothes.

The pair opened the shop with the idea of selling, on consignment, very good used clothing.

For that reason, before they accept merchandise for the shop, the women carefully look over things persons bring in to sell. No rips, no badly worn spots, no stains. And the articles must be freshly laundered or dry cleaned.

Then they display the clothing just as new clothes are displayed, hanging on racks, complete with sizes.

Prices are determined by both the seller and the shop operators.

The clothes are accepted for display in the boutique only for 90 days then they're either given to charity or returned to the owner, depending on her wishes.

One of the shop's drawing points is a whole rack of good children's clothing and shoes at low prices. There are toys, too. The women plan to begin selling infant's furniture soon, too. There are even toys for visiting toddlers to play with and a play pen with toys to amuse babies while mothers shop.

Besides clothing, the boutique offers an assortment of other used articles like hardback books, bric a brac and even some new ceramics.

Some of the ceramics belong to Lois Vaughan. In fact it was her hobby that provided the impetus for the shop.

Mrs. Ross explains: "We were sitting around over coffee one day and Lois said one day she'd like to have a little boutique to sell her ceramics and other things. I said what I'd like to do is open a shop like the chain family friends have in Toronto — the Ex-Taggery — that sells used clothes. That was a few weeks ago and here we are."

The boutique is located on Dundas Street just past Towers; it's open from 10 to 5.30 every day but Monday and open until 9 on Friday.

Seniors Meet

A Variety program consisting of a singsong, readings and cards were part of a Mother's Day observance arranged for a meeting of Marmora Senior Citizens following a potluck luncheon recently.

Readings were given by Ada Donaldson (The Art of Living Every Day), Eva Post (Mothers and Grandmothers) and Florence Fuhr (Tossed Salad).

Second Time Around

Mary Lou Ross and Lois Vaughan with some of the clothing they sell at the Mary-L Boutique. All of the clothes are good quality used items. The women plan to sell infants furniture along with the children's and adults' clothes now offered for sale.

People and Events

Mount Pleasant Rawdon United Church Women met recently at the church hall to hear a program on missions presented by Nellie Smith, Fern Weaver, Ruth Joslin, Marguerite McMullen, Marjorie Conch and Mabel Wrightman.

* * *

The most recent meeting of the Tweed and District Senior Citizens Club, no. 399, took place this week at St. James' Church Hall. There were three new members who joined at this meeting, and the president, Vince Healey was in the chair.

The new projector, screen and camera were on display, and in fact many scenes from the area were shown on the new equipment by Art McCarey, and also shown to the gathering were movies, taken by John Burns, these were shown with the new movie camera and were much enjoyed by the group.

Jennie Moffat, the visiting committee chairman, reported that three ladies from the Club had made visitations at the Hastings Manor since the last meeting, volunteers are being sought, both drivers and those who will visit persons there from Tweed and District.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, and the Manor since the last meeting, scenes and movies, a lunch of fruit breads and beverage were served by the committee in charge for that day, under the leadership of Mabel Wims.

Females Stay Home

Legendary Israeli Woman Disappears

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — Have Israeli women gone soft? The Arab-Israeli war of last October and its aftermath have highlighted changes in the status of this country's womanhood.

The legendary pioneer Israeli woman who drained malarial swamps and built roads alongside her man a few decades ago apparently belongs to the past. The girl paratrooper seems to have vanished.

Female response to the economic and industrial emergency caused by the war was disappointing.

Following the large-scale callup of reservists, Israel's industrial plants and factories were semi-deserted and the economic output was reduced to 50 per cent of capacity.

Public transport was almost totally paralyzed. Some small firms and shops that had flourished in the economic boom following the six-day war of 1967 had to shut down.

In Tel Aviv only 2,000 women volunteered in the months following the October war to replace men in factories, plants and hospitals, said Hilda Galinski, director of the Tel Aviv Labor Exchange.

Mrs. Galinski was critical of the lack of response. "Women are apathetic, they don't care any more," she said. "The security crisis is over. They don't feel that operating machines in a textile plant is a contribution to the war effort."

The situation was similar in Jerusalem and Haifa.

Ariel Gurel, director of the labor ministry, said in January: "There are today 200,000 unemployed women without growing families who can be assimilated into the labor force. Of these, only 8,000 have been trained in various fields of electronics and metal work since the war."

Alika Tamir, head of the women manpower branch of the Histadrut, Israel's trade union federation, said women were not trained during peacetime and so were not equipped to take over key industrial positions during the wartime crisis.

On the war front, thousands of women soldiers were assigned duties away from the front lines: Clerical work, packing war rations, and communications maintenance.

A military spokesman said: "The army doesn't train them for professional positions because their service is too short (18 months for women compared with three years for men) and when we call them for reserve duty they're already married and have families."

The spokesman added that women were not used as drivers of heavy vehicles and communications operators in the war zones because, though trained to use weapons, they were not fully equipped for combat.

Several —women soldiers were assigned to Molach, an emergency economic drive organized by the defence ministry to replace missing manpower.

Ruth Remik, a leader of the Israeli women's liberation movement, said: "Women were frustrated during the war and their professional skills completely wasted. The modern Israeli woman is viewed as weak and incompetent. In Molach, former female officers and skilled engineers were given clerical duty. It's outrageous."

On the home front, women performed traditional wartime duties. They knitted thousands of socks and caps for the soldiers and baked cakes to boost army morale.

Women showed most initiative in the country's 250 Moshavim (co-operative agricultural villages) and Kibbutzim (communal settlements).

After the callup, women there took over the administration and maintenance of the settlements.

The modern female "kibbutznik," well versed in the latest fashions, presents a contrast to the sturdy pioneer women of the past, though many today still do manual labor.

Eli Nassan, one of the organizers of the Moshav movement, attributed the change to a higher standard of living. Women were more indispensable during the founding of the state. Today they want easier conditions, he said.

Market Tea Held by OES

The Masonic Temple was the setting yesterday for the "Farmers' Market Tea" held by the Belleville Chapter 55 of the Order of the Eastern Star.

The hall was filled with tea tables, and booths which featured salads, baked goods and handmade articles.

At the door of the "market" was Heather Jones, Dairy Princess of Ontario, with a display of cheese and other dairy products.

Luella Brickman was ticket convener and Dorothy Jones was tea room convener. In charge of the kitchen committee was Jean Stevenson.

Pouring tea for the occasion were Eleanor Silver, Marg Bobbin, Mayme Fewling, Trudy Connors, Viva Darling, Betty O'Neil, Nan Wait, Verna Woodbeck, Marg McQueen and Win Steel.

Greeting guests at the door were Worthy Matron Evelyn Elliot and Associate Matron Janet Hamilton, along with Mrs. Hart and Miss Jones.

Soviet Scientists Say Easy Life Is a Killer

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Soviet scientists experimenting on how to keep people young are testing a theory that an easy life may be one of the world's killers.

"Take it easy and drop dead" is the Soviet headline used to describe an experiment at the Institute of Gerontology at Kiev, in the Soviet Ukraine.

Two years ago Prof. V. Frolkis and a team of Soviet scientists launched an experiment with 1,000 animals to try to find out which organs succumb first to age, and why.

Functions of the genetic mechanism were studied at three levels—the molecular, the cell and whole systems such as the nervous, endocrine and cardio-vascular—to see which organ, link or system sets off the aging process.

A report on the outcome says: "A series of experiments were staged on animal life spans. Some animals were provided with ideal conditions of life—quiet, fresh air, plenty of food and no cares whatever.

"Sleep if you like, play if you want. The fur of the animals began to gloss.

"Another group of animals was placed in conditions that involved cares and joy, setbacks and surprises of all kinds."

The experiment is not yet over but one trend is emerging.

Researchers found the first to fall sick and break down were animals existing in seemingly ideal conditions.

Frolkis said his experiments, if successful, may go far beyond other attempts to prolong life.

"Conquering cancer and heart diseases would, at best, add only seven to 10 years to man's average span of life, bringing it closer to 80 years in the Soviet Union," he explained.

"But by slowing down the process of aging, life expectancy could be increased by one-third, as nature has endowed man with a maximum life span of 115 to 125.

Frolkis said man is programmed by nature for a life span of this duration but it is reduced by changes in the cardio-vascular and nervous system brought on by his mode of life.

Work in the institute shows that so far as man is concerned changes connected with aging occur first of all in the heart and the nervous system.

It is still a bit too early to speak of a clinical answer to the problem of premature aging, Soviet scientists say.

For one thing the biological clock in every person is set for a different period. "That is to say science does not yet have data enabling it to say to any person—live in that way and you will live to be 80 or 120," Frolkis said.

A key role in the aging process is played by the hypothalamus, a tiny part of the brain not much larger than a pea controlling man's inner environment, his emotions and behavior.

It has been found at Kiev that the nuclei of the hypothalamus do not age uniformly.

This discrepancy leads to some hormones falling and others rising in old age. The result is a drop in the dependability of all systems.

Despite a reluctance to forecast a method of prolonging life, the Kiev scientists feel sure that the point where aging begins lies in the genetic apparatus—the cells.

"Our experiments offer hope that it will be possible to block the impairment of these cells at a certain age," the researchers said.

Scouts and Cubs Plan Busy Spring

On June 1 at Zwick's Island, cubs and their leaders will take part in the annual Cubaree. This event starts at 1 p.m. that Sunday and will take up most of the afternoon.

On June 13, 14 and 15, the scouts and their leaders have their get-together with a Scout Rally taking place at Camp Sagonaska in Vanderwater Park.

Other important dates, coming up of interest to people involved in scouting in the area are:

Friday, May 24 — Last meeting of Scouters' Club at Parkdale Community Centre, 8:30 p.m.

Saturday, Sunday May 25-26 — Wrap-up weekend for those leaders taking part in the provincial wood badge training course at Camp Sagonaska. This is the windup of Part II of the four-week course that marks the first time this event has been held in this district. A total of 65 cub and scout leaders, the majority from the Quinte region, took part in this practical course.

Sunday, May 26— Annual Church Parade: All boys and girls involved in scouting will take part in the parade which starts at 1:30 when it leaves the A and P parking lot on Pinnacle Street and heads down Front Street. There will be an outside service at the BCI campus starting at 2.30 p.m.

Sunday, June 9 — Family Day at Blue Springs near Acton, Ontario. All scout people interested in spending a day with the family picnicking and relaxing are invited to attend this one-day event.

Monday, June 10 — Final meeting of District Council for 1973-74. To be held at Ponderosa Steak House 6 p.m. followed by a trip to Camp Sagonaska.

Familiar Faces Appear In Pilot Films for TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A lot of familiar faces are appearing in pilots this season.

Since the debacle a few years ago of signing a number of movie stars directly for series and seeing them all fail, the networks rarely take chances these days.

Even stars who have carried previous series for years have to go through the process of making a pilot for a new show and having it tested on the air.

There is, of course, another consideration. With the lure of a series, the networks can get a major star to appear in a movie. Ostensibly, it's a pilot. But even if it doesn't work out as a series, at least the network has had the drawing power of that star in a movie.

The familiar faces include James Garner, Ernest Borgnine, Andy Griffith, Desi Arnaz, Richard Crenna, Lee J. Cobb, Michael Landon, Fess Parker, Cloris Leachman, Jack Warden, Peter Graves and Fred MacMurray.

MacMurray, the star of My Three Sons for 12 years, is back with a new family and appeared on ABC April 11 in his first TV movie, The Chadwick Family. This time he has a wife, four children, in-laws and grandchildren.

He played Ned Chadwick the publisher of a newspaper in the picture postcard town of Chadwick, Calif. Perhaps merely a background for the family drama to parade across.

"I thought television had all changed," said MacMurray. "It was getting into areas we wouldn't dare a few years ago. Once on My Three Sons we mentioned pot. That's as deep as we ever got.

"But along came The Waltons, Love and kindness and nostalgia were back in again."

MacMurray said he's not really eager to get back into a TV series, particularly since he would not have the working conditions he had on My Three Sons. On that show he would film all of his scenes for 13 shows in six weeks, then retire to his ranch until it was time to film the last 13 shows of a season.

"They made whatever concessions they could, so I'll only have to work six months a year," said MacMurray, 65, reputed to be one of the wealthiest film stars.

He said he really didn't think of a new TV series in terms of exposure, that is, keeping his face before the public.

"It's like Jimmy Stewart said. It's a chance to practise your craft," he said.

"I don't want to do little theatre or go on the road with a show. And the feature films they offer me I won't do because of the sex and violence. I'm not good on talk shows. And at this point, it's nice to be wanted to do anything."

MacMurray said he doesn't want to play any more heavies. He was a killer in Double Indemnity and Pushover and the bad guy in The Caine Mutiny and The Apartment.

"I'm down to do, except that people don't accept me as good there any more," he said. "Not after My Three Sons and all those Disney pictures. You have to protect your image.

"You'd think people would regard you as an actor and you could play anything. But with TV they regard you almost as a member of the family."

Museum Will Open in Summer

SOUTH MARYSBURGH — A building constructed at South Marysburgh's Mariners' Park Museum should open late this summer to house marine artifacts.

A spokesman for the marine society, Philip Dodds of Cherry Valley, says boat, lights and water have been installed in the concrete block display centre but it is not yet completed.

Mr. Dodds added that the annual Mariners Service, held at the museum park, has been tentatively scheduled for Sunday, August 18.

He told that among new exhibits collected for the outdoor park is an old anchor donated by Prince Edward County warden Keith MacDonald. The anchor, reportedly taken from a sunken ship, was a lawn ornament for a number of years at the MacDonald's summer resort, Lakeland.

ARTIFACTS FOUND ..

COURTENAY, B.C. (CP) — Archaeologists digging in the Buckley Bay area, 16 miles south of this Vancouver Island community have found more than 1,100 Indian artifacts. The discoveries include two complete human skeletons, estimated to be 3,000 years old, tools made from bone and stone and ornaments.

Marital Counselling For City Is Sought

Within two weeks, a brief outlining the need for marital counselling in Belleville is expected to be complete, Norm Slater, chairman of a special steering committee said today.

Over the past three months the committee has been compiling statistics for inclusion in the brief. It will be submitted to the provincial ministry of health as a supporting document in a request for permanent funding.

No single agency in the Belleville area currently counsels couples with marital problems. This situation prompted the United Community Services to set the wheels in motion for the formation of the committee late last year.

Mr. Slater said today any new agency could expect approximately 70 individuals or couples to use its counselling services each month. In part, the figure is based upon a projection of the number of referrals the Hastings County Board of Education, Telecare and the family court would make monthly.

Due to the lack of a family counselling agency, no such referrals have been made.

Once the brief is complete, Mr. Slater said a meeting with provincial officials will be arranged through Dr. Bert Conn, director of psychiatry at Belleville General Hospital.

Extra Voters Vetoed

Hastings county will not seek special legislation to allow another municipal councillor to attend county as a voting member in the absence of the reeve.

County Honors Administrator

County recognition for 28 years' service with the county homes for the aged was extended Tuesday evening to Kenneth Yorke, retired administrator at Hastings Manor.

Attending the testimonial dinner at the Sun Valley were approximately 50 county councillors and department heads.

Reeve Jessie Carr, chairman of the county homes for the aged committee presented Mr. Yorke with a plaque in recognition of his long service to the county. Carl E. Bateman, county administrator, on behalf of county council presented Mr. Yorke with a purse of money.

Mr. Yorke retired as county home administrator at the last of February at which time he was honored by members of the manor staff and residents.

The request for such authority was made by Wollaston deputy-reeve Bud French at the last meeting and was referred to the Municipal Reform Committee for consideration.

Tuesday the committee report noted the municipal act sets out the composition of council and said that no provision is made for official attendance by other than duly qualified members.

To change the procedure, a amendment to the provincial statutes or a private bill governing representation would be required.

But the Wollaston deputy-reeve was not taking the committee recommendation sitting down, and when the committee report came up for approval immediately moved an amendment calling for a Private bill or amendment to the municipal act to allow attendance in the absence of the reeve.

Until the end of this year, Hastings county council has a membership of nearly 50 including reeves and deputy-reeves. But some months ago council voted to drastically reduce membership at county meetings.

Currently each of five municipalities send deputy-reeves to council, but next year under the reduced membership policy there will be only two deputy-reeves.

Sculptor Produces Piece a Fortnight

LONDON (CP) — David Wynne is only 47 but in his 22 years as a sculptor he has produced an average of one piece every two weeks and at least two major pieces every year.

With the unveiling of his Girl with a Dolphin, a bronze piece, outside Tower Hotel in front of famed Tower Bridge, he has more pieces of sculpture inside London than any other living artist.

There is the huge gorilla, of black fossil marble, in Crystal Palace; the 17-foot column of marble at Hammersmith made for British Oxygen Co.; the Embracing Lovers at the Guildhall; the Dancers at Cadogan Place outside Cadogan Towers Hotel and all the heads of notable people, from former foreign minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home to the Beatles.

Wynne is the son of a sailor who served as a commander during the Second World War. He was educated privately, then went to Trinity College, Cambridge University, to read zoology and agriculture.

As a student he travelled to the East, working his own passage to Beirut, as he had a strong interest in comparative religions and the ancient sculpture of the Orient. During his final year at university he decided take up sculpture.

He decided he did not need the conventional art school training. Instead he asked advice of everybody he could find, including Jacob Epstein, Britain's most famous sculptor in the classical tradition.

"What I had seen of the ancient sculpture filled me with fire," he said in an interview. "And I decided to try. I had always been good with my hands."

He disdained art school because he felt he could learn to sculpt by common sense.

"All you need to know is how to make the clay stay on a stick. There is really very little technique, and you can find that out by asking.

"I learned to carve in a stone quarry in England and worked as a stonemason in Paris. A welder taught me to weld. And I studied drawing and sculpting under George Ehrlich, an Austrian sculptor. There is no one in the art schools who knows the techniques like the original craftsmen anyway.

"I was very lucky from the start, though. Everyone I asked was very helpful and encouraging. My father never said 'you won't make any money'."

He decided that if in three years he did not make any money he would go back to sea for a career. He moved to London and began to sculpt heads of friends and patrons.

The first 10 years were lean, the next five precarious. The last five have been comfortable. He is married to Jillian Grant, daughter of novelist Joan Grant, and they have four children.

They live in a large, rambling house on the southern edge of London, where David has three studios built into the garages. One contains his smaller pieces and maquettes; one the plaster casts for the bronze pieces; the third houses an enormous winch and banker for the stone carvings.

His versatility now has been shown in a new departure, medal casting. He has done a gold medal for the World Wildlife Fund, the new British 50-pence coin which has the symbol of European unity on the reverse, a new effigy of the Queen which will soon be on Britain's coinage and a head of King Hassan of Morocco.

As much of his work is found abroad as in Britain. In the United States, for example, he has a 40-foot bronze bird fountain outside Ambassador College in Pasadena, Calif.

The first piece that made him well-known was a sculpture for Taylor Woodrow, the British construction firm, in 1958. Carved from 100 tons of granite, it was the largest piece of granite carved since ancient Egypt and it took him a year to complete.

Exports Of Oil Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — F. K. North, professor of geology at Carleton University, says he continues to oppose any expansion of oil exports but he had nothing to do with a submission on the subject made May 2 to the National Energy Board by the Consumers Association of Canada.

Dr. North said Tuesday that he submitted his own brief May 2 to the board and supported the Consumer Association position posing new oil export licences but that statements attributed to him in a Canadian Press news story are from the Consumer Association brief, not him.

The CP story referred erroneously to Dr. North being a Consumer Association witness on the basis of a news release from the association saying he had done so.

The consumer brief was presented by its general counsel, Andrew Roman.

Dr. North, formerly an exploration geologist with Standard Oil Co. of California, said his contention was that the petroleum companies are "going through the motions" of exploration in Canada so they will be allowed to continue exporting from existing reserves.

In his view no reliance should be placed on "frontier" or other unknown resources that have not been proved and may never be found. The energy board should only accept production forecasts based on proven reserves.

Known accessible reserves of conventional oil in Canada would only meet projected domestic needs until 1983.

Undervalued

BUFFALO (AP) — An 18th century Bernard Calcanius violin and bow worth almost $15,000 were stolen and pawned Wednesday for $10, police said.

The antiques, stolen from the State University of New York at Buffalo, belong to Jon Shallit, 21, a student at the university.

Mail Backlogs

OTTAWA (CP) — There are still some repercussions from the postal strike, almost three weeks after postal workers returned to their jobs, a post office spokesman said Wednesday.

He said Montreal and Toronto, both hit hard by the two-week strike which ended April 26, still report a slight backlog of third-class mail.

But he said first-class mail at all centres has been moving smoothly for more than a week.

Misdeal

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A Cocoa Beach waitress has filed a divorce suit against a woman who is legally her husband and father of her five-year-old son.

Carolyn Ann Earthorne said the seven-year marriage was "irretrievably broken" after her husband, Gordon Dale Earthorne, went to Morocco for a sex change operation and became Kathy Ann Earthorne.

Kathy Earthorne said she will not contest the suit.

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — An investigation into charges that male attendants at Brockville Psychiatric Hospital mistreated patients will open today before a committee headed by a provincial ministry of health official.

VICTORIA FALLS (Reuter) — Oscar Dribber, whose daughter was shot to death by Zambian troops near here a year ago, has cancelled a planned visit to the scene of the incident after receiving no response from the Zambian government to his request for a guarantee of safety.

WILLIAM CALLEY

Plan Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Justice department announced Wednesday it has notified the courts it intends to appeal a decision which permitted William Calley to be freed from confinement.

The department said the notice of appeal was filed Tuesday with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit in New Orleans.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert Elliott set the former army lieutenant free on his own recognizance in February.

Trapped

NEW YORK (AP) — Bank Teller Vincent Pepitone was at his post in a Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. branch Wednesday when a man handed him a note demanding money.

Pepitone pulled a revolver and, the would-be robber was arrested.

What he did not know was that Pepitone was only moonlighting at the bank. His regular job is as a member of the police department's street crime unit.

Municipalities Will Get Control Over Demolition

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will introduce legislation within two weeks which will allow municipalities to control demolition within their boundaries.

Donald Irvine, minister without portfolio, gave the commitment to Toronto Mayor David Crombie, and the private bills committee of the legislature Wednesday.

But he rejected a Toronto bill which would give the city the power to freeze demolition in residential areas.

Mr. Crombie said more than 100 houses could be demolished by large developers wishing to build high rises.

Mr. Irvine, minister in charge of municipal affairs, said the government recognized "Toronto has a real problem."

But he said the government could not support the present bill.

The compromise, hammered out at a meeting between Mr. Crombie, Mr. Irvine and Treasurer John White Tuesday night, is that the government will introduce legislation affecting all municipalities by the end of May.

The anti-demolition law, giving cities and towns the power to stop developers from tearing down buildings, could pass the legislature by the end of June.

The Toronto mayor said Toronto council felt there was nothing wrong with its bill but would accept similar government legislation.

The bill will be drawn up in consultation with city officials.

Industry Booklets Assailed

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS, B.C. (CP) — It costs the construction industry in Canada $300 million a year to produce, distribute, receive, store and retrieve product information.

And according to Jim Findlay, of Vancouver architects McCarter, Nairne and Partners, too much of this information is ineffectual and part of the expense of handling it is eventually passed on to the consumer.

"It is estimated that 20 million to 30 million pages of literature are disseminated annually in a flood growing at the rate of eight per cent a year," Mr. Findlay said.

"That this is not an efficient system is borne out by the estimate that 65 per cent of such literature is discarded either on receipt or after first reading.

"The waste represented by such ineffectual literature is an unnecessary charge upon construction, which is ultimately borne by the consumer."

Coroner Feels Doctor Lacked Understanding

TORONTO (CP) — Specialized geriatrics training for medical personnel was recommended Wednesday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of an 87-year-old Toronto man.

The recommendation came after the jury heard evidence into the Feb. 28 death of Norman Disney, who died waiting for an ambulance which never arrived. The jury was told a doctor gave the ambulance dispatch centre the wrong apartment number.

Evidence presented earlier at the inquest indicated the doctor, after calling the ambulance, left the man in the care of Mr. Disney's 77-year-old wife and an 82-year-old neighbor.

Coroner Dr. Margaret Milton, in her charge to the jury, said that training in geriatrics in the province is poor and there is little provincial care for such geriatric cases.

Five Canadians Jailed After Smelling Sweet

LONDON (CP) — The sweet smell of French perfume proved the undoing here of an international drug-smuggling ring, including five Canadians, and led to stiff jail terms for most of the gang.

The seven people had been buying marijuana in Morocco and Britain and shipping it to Canada for sale. All those accused admitted their part in the operation when they were sentenced at the Old Bailey court Wednesday.

The prosecution said the three girls in the drug ring carried the marijuana around their waists and in their boots, hiding its smell with large doses of strong French perfume.

The strong scent raised the suspicions of a steward when one girl returned by boat to London from the continent last December. Police were called and the drugs discovered, the prosecution said.

Richard Clark, 26, Robert Miles, 23, and Carroll Heurmann, 28, all of Toronto, each were sentenced to five years in jail. Miles is a Canadian citizen. Heuermann, a West German citizen, was living in Canada as a landed immigrant. Clark, an American, was travelling on an illegally-held Canadian passport.

Charles Matchinn, 19, of Toronto was given a four-year prison term and Patricia Barron, 21, also of Toronto, was sentenced to two years in jail.

Mary Kenny, 20, and Deborah Staden, 19, both of Toronto, were sent to reformatories. Length of their sentence was not specified but it is usually six months.

Indian Life in Quebec Described in New Book

By DENNIS TRUDEAU
The Canadian Press

For years, Max Gros-Louis has been a spokesman in Quebec for the Indians, relating to Europeans Quebecers in a province where most native peoples cling to the language of federal administrators or Anglican missionaries.

With his long, powerful hair over one shoulder as he unfolds a tattered map illustrating the Indian claim to most of the land in Quebec, Chief Gros-Louis heads a delegation of vanity, humor and pride as he explains the Indian stand to local service clubs.

Now, in First Among the Hurons, written in collaboration with his friend Marcel Bellier, the burly six-foot chief from the Huron reserve near Quebec City tells a tale of growing up Indian in Quebec.

It is also a book of praise for the Indian way of life and his respect for and harmony with nature.

From the one-room reserve school to the secondary school Max was exposed to the white version of Canadian history and attempts to force the freedom-loving Indians into the white Christian mould.

Expelled from school for striking an aged teaching brother who called him a "godamn savage," Max turned to helping his father guide hunters and earning his Huron name One-Onti—good paddler.

A summer guiding surveying crews in northern Quebec taught him that not all white people were alike while a combination of bad luck and bad weather sorely tested his paddling and guiding skills. They were not found wanting.

But Max found his leadership talent wanting when, returning from the bush, Max, the surveyors and three other Indians greedily sat down to their first meal in a week while a fifth Indian had to wait for a spot at the table.

"Was that the way a chief should behave," I asked myself.

But "I wasn't the captain of the ship and I congratulated myself for it. I needed to experience many things before I would deserve the title."

Back in the south, Max joined his Mohawk sweetheart and tried in vain to adapt to the 9-to-5 routine of a bank messenger.

Even then he had ambitions: a flag for the Indian nation, a united Indian people, the post of Great Chief of the Hurons and a dance troupe, of which, of course, "I would be the promoter, the director—the chief."

The dance troupe was eventually formed and made a successful visit to France, marred only by the refusal of the Quebec cultural affairs minister to attend the inauguration of the Tours Fair because the Indians had been invited.

Returning to Canada, Max also realized his dream of becoming Great Chief and since then he has been a driving force in the Indians of Quebec Association and instrumental in founding local industries on the tiny Lorette-ville reserve.

And a reader might complain that the exploits of One-Onti are stressed more than the plight of the Indian.

But the book presents the background for the Indians' demand for compensation for the 1st tolls from them 200 years ago that has led to the current dispute with the Quebec government over the multi-billion-dollar hydroelectric development in the James Bay region.

First Among The Hurons. by Max Gros-Louis with Marcel Bellier; translated by Sheila Fischman; Harvest House, Montreal, 1974. 151 pp.

When J. J. Talman retired as chief librarian of University of Western Ontario, his professional colleagues published Aspects of Nineteenth-Century Ontario in his honor.

Twenty-one history specialists made contributions from recent research relating to Talman's special field of interest—the social, intellectual and cultural areas of Ontario history in the last century.

This scholarly tribute to a scholar gives recognition to the historian, archivist, journalist and librarian—facets of Talman's well-rounded career. This there are articles on origins of local government, construction materials in colonial Ontario, pioneer drinking habits, the rise of the temperance movement and the Fenian rebellion.

The hope is that the book will provide background for university courses dealing with Ontario history as well as becoming a useful addition to collections of high schools and public libraries.

Executives Are Rented

DETROIT (AP) — Kelly Services, Inc., which sells the services of part-time secretaries, now rents retired executives for $15 to $30 an hour.

Clark W.Pearson, 68, a retired General Motors Corp. executive, is in charge of Kelly's "hire a boss" program which began last fall.

Since that time, Kelly has placed 10 persons on assignments averaging two months each. They include a retired financial vice-president and a former comptroller.

Pearson said he got the idea for the pilot program after running into former colleagues who told him they were bored with the inactivity of retirement.

"Many of my friends kept telling me, 'Gee, I wish I was busy like you' and they wanted to work," said Pearson, former director of finance and administration at GM's parts division until he retired in 1970.

Former Belleville Man in Army Vote

LONDON (CP) — The selection of Commissioner Clarence Wiseman of Canada as the next head of the Salvation Army means that the two top officers of the worldwide organization are Canadians.

"I am very pleased that this is the outcome," said Commissioner Arnold Brown whose home, along with Wiseman's, was in the final ballot by the Army's High Council. Originally there were four candidates.

Wiseman's choice, announced Monday, drew wide publicity in the British press today. He will assume his new duties in July.

Brown, who remains as chief of the Salvation Army's staff, is a 60-year-old native of Britain who moved with his family to Belleville, Ont., when he was a boy.

In an interview today, Brown echoed Wiseman's emphasis on youth in future Salvation Army work and also cited the importance of the movement's missionary work—notably education and medical—in the world's developing countries.

Brown was territorial youth secretary for the army in Canada before his transfer to the army's London headquarters in 1964 as head of public relations.

In analyzing Wiseman's election as the army's next general, The Guardian cites a remark by him that the movement must continue to be responsive to changing world conditions.

"If changes are demanded, there shall be changes," said Wiseman, 67, a native of Moncton's Harbor, N.B.

Says The Guardian:

"This will be taken by many in the army to mean a consolidation of work, renewed commitment, rather than some new militant campaign. This had been the hope of some younger officers."

The Times says Wiseman, who has been commissioner for Canada and Bermuda since 1967, is no revolutionary and waits to uphold traditions.

But the paper also cites the lobby of the general-elect in responsiveness to world changes.

Wiseman himself said he wants to see "an army of young people, marching through the world, telling other young people about Jesus."

Baby Sold To Woman

METZ, France (Reuter) — A woman bought a baby boy from two men for $2,000 and deceived her husband and a doctor into believing she had given birth to it, police said here.

They said the boy had been kidnapped from a nursing home six months ago when he was only days old.

Simone Sebbane told police she bought the child because her second husband longed for one of his own, but she had not told him she had been sterilized after having three children by a previous marriage.

The woman told her husband she was pregnant, collected the baby and presented it to a doctor who signed a birth certificate

Americans Copying Curb on Conventions

NEW YORK (CP) — David Smart of Toronto, newly-elected president of the Canadian Association of Convention Bureaus, wants to throw some stones. Trouble is, he lives in a glass house.

How do you fight a proposed change in American tax laws that would hurt convention business from the United States, he asks, when you have the same type of law in Canada?

Legislation to end tax deductions to Americans who attend conventions outside the country now is in committee in the House of Representatives. It may go before the House as part of a tax-revision package in July.

Smart said Canadian associations which meet outside their country already lose their tax deduction for that convention.

Fruit Growers Face Another Late Spring

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Niagara Peninsula fruit growers may be in for their third straight year of reduced crops unless the weather takes a turn for the better, officials say.

Kekh Matthie, secretary-manager of the Ontario Tender Fruit Growers Marketing Board, says even weather improvements might leave grapes with only a "moderate" crop, on a reduced harvest.

He said bees that account for most fruit tree pollination have appeared because of cold temperatures. Even pollination by wind has been reduced because of rain, he added.

Bob Wilcox, Vineland Horticultural Research Institute here, said, however, that the effects of the poor weather may not be determined until harvest season.

The 20,000 acres of Niagara orchards produce 80 per cent of Canada's fruit crop and employs 3,000 persons.

Allocation Power Lacking

TORONTO (CP) — The new council on university affairs set out in proposed provincial legislation Monday is "a long step in the right direction" by the government, William Winegard, president of the University of Guelph, said Wednesday.

But Mr. Winegard, chairman of the council that represents the presidents of Ontario's 15 universities, said he is "a little disappointed" that the government did not follow his council's recommendation that the new body be given the power to allocate money.

Grotesque Theatrics Feature Genesis Show

TOROONTO (CP) — In the dimness of an unlit stage a shrouded, immobile figure peers out at its audience as if standing in judgement. The only perceptible highlight of the figure is a fluorescent green band outlining the unseen, scrutinizing eyes. A heavy, ominous mode from an organ floods the concert hall to complete the spectral aura.

The introductory flourish is typical of the five-man British rock band's style, mixing heavy, electronic music with grotesque theatrics. The latter is exclusively the province of lead vocalist Gabriel, who goes through the entire performance garbed in bizarre masks, makeup and costumes.

The dress-up style, while relatively new to the contemporary music industry, is not unique. With the acceptance in the last few years of such personalities as (Mr.) Alice Cooper and the self-admitted bi-sexual David Bowie, weird facial makeup and uncanny dress on male heavy-rockers is on the upswing.

Take Genesis, for example. During a recent concert at Massey Hall here, Gabriel went through no fewer than five changes of "character," bee-lining for the stage wings during extended instrumental passages, to appear minutes later in a get-up more fanastic than the last.

Often these images are heightened in their effectiveness and shock value by precision lighting and, at times, by such stage devices as screened projections, black lights, strobe lights and unexpected magnesium explosions.

Despite the careful planning involved in such a show, Genesis leaves itself open to critical questioning about its inspirations and motives. Genesis, it has been noted, adopted the dress-up gimmickry only after performers such as Cooper and Bowie had shocked audiences with it. And as to the stage show, harsher critics argue that a sensational stage production can be used at times to compensate for less-sensational music.

The group is serious about defending itself against such comments. Gabriel's costumes are not presented merely to draw shock reaction, as do other singers; his garb is always relevant to characters in the lyrics, and provides a visual accompaniment to the songs.

To Genesis, the theatrics are necessary to the group's product only in that they help convey a mood to a live audience. The band's records have been selling well for years in Britain on quality of sound alone.

In an interview between shows, Phil Collins, the group's indefatigable drummer-vocalist, discussed the role of theatrics in the Genesis product.

"The two go hand in hand as far as we're concerned. The reason we started doing the theatrics, with Peter playing the parts, was to get all the music across to the people. A lot of lyrics get lost in a concert hall.

"We use projected slides and costumes of the characters we're singing about. It helps get over the moods and take (the audience) from one thing to another."

While the group's music stands on its own merit in Britain, it is at present secondary in North America, where Genesis has only recently been recognized and is known basically for the sensational-ism of the stage show.

"It becomes frustrating because people tend to ignore the music," Collins said. "The music is what it (the theatrics) comes from. We're a musical band first and foremost."

Unfortunately the competent performances by the group's members, including Tony Banks on keyboards, lead guitarist Steve Hackett and Mike Rutherford on bass and twelve-string, are likely not fully appreciated by audiences distracted by the lead vocalist. And although Gabriel's voice is powerful, he tends even in upstage his own singing with the elaborate characterizations.

Prices Increase

TORONTO (CP) — House prices in this city during the first part of May increased 6.3 per cent over April despite predictions by officials that prices would drop or at least remain stable.

Maurice Park, president of the Toronto Real Estate Board, who last week predicted prices would drop by about five per cent, said Tuesday the price of an average resale house rose to $37,875—an increase of $3,681 from April.

Housing Minister Sidney Handleman also predicted last week house prices had stabilized.

But Mr. Park said buyers should not be confused by what appears to be an increase in average sale prices.

He said 60 per cent of the May sales have been at prices above $50,000, 38 per cent for more than $60,000 and 21 per cent higher than $70,000.

He said expensive houses are selling more rapidly because those buyers are less likely to have problems securing mortgages.

Nixon Asks Teachers To Unite

HESPELER, Ont. (CP) — A professional organization of teachers should be empowered by the education ministry to regulate and discipline teachers as well as certify them, Opposition Leader Robert Nixon said Wednesday.

It is necessary for the various teacher organizations "to reinforce even more than in the past their co-operative strength through a single organization, the Ontario Teachers Federation," Mr. Nixon said.

He said this require the abandonment of the affiliated organizations but a recognition of a strengthened professional aspect of teaching would come about faster as far as the community is concerned.

New Home Warranty Prepared by Builders

HAMILTON (CP) — A warranty and insurance plan for new homes has been prepared by a national builders association which is "going to" to put it into operation, the annual meeting of the Consumers' Association of Canada (Ont.), was told Wednesday.

Keith Morley, president of Richard Costain (Canada) Ltd of Toronto said the plan devised by the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada (HUDAC), "is designed to ensure that no purchaser of a new dwelling in Canada need in future be materially out of pocket due to sub-standard construction or builder bankruptcy."

The builder would be responsible for fixing any defect in a home within a year after it is completed and protection against any major structural defect would be provided for an additional four years, said Mr. Morley, past president of the 3,000-member HUDAC.

He said the plan also provides that for a fee of about $25 anywhere in Canada, the new home owner could extend his coverage against structural defects for another five years.

The HUDAC plan is to be discussed at this week's meeting in Jasper, Alta., of the federal and provincial ministers responsible for consumer affairs, said Mr. Morley.

The builders association has no money to start the plan if the federal and provincial governments can not agree on the plan or some modification of it, he said.

Pipeline Haste May Mean Environmental Gambles

OTTAWA (CP) — A tight timetable by the federal government could force Interprovincial Pipe Line Ltd. to cut a few environmental corners, the National Energy Board was told Wednesday.

The Trudeau government has declared a 254-mile line between Sarnia, Ont., and Montreal as being in the public interest. It will bring western Canadian crude oil to Eastern Canada.

Robert Duncan of Vancouver, in charge of environmental studies for the Ontario leg of the pipeline and Andre Mercan, in charge of the Quebec studies, were questioned at Wednesday's hearing by provincial government lawyers.

Mr. Duncan's report recommended ditching across southern Ontario farms be done in the fall and also that water crossings be confined to times of low-water levels and when fish are not spawning.

Owen Linton, in charge of the project for interprovincial aqued the company might not be able to follow all of the advice of the consultants because of the time factor.

Earlier the board granted a Quebec motion that fees for transporting the oil from Sarnia to Montreal not be fixed at this board hearing.

Responding to questions, Mr. Linton admitted that no environmental studies were commissioned by the company until the line route was decided upon.

Lawyers for the Ontario Federation of Agriculture did win a concession from the company that it would remove excess subsoil from the farms after the pipe was buried.

The federation also took strong exception to parts of the Ontario environmental study which said in part that food over-production was a problem in Ontario and that food surpluses existed.

Mr. Duncan, who did the report, said he took the information from a publication of the federal government released in 1972.

Service Station Gasoline Prices Vary Widely Across City

The gas price picture in Belleville varies widely today with some gas stations reporting no increases at the pump, while other quote hikes of anywhere from 9.2 to 11 cents a gallon, a telephone survey of major gas company representatives revealed.

Price hikes at some city service stations have been forced as a result of the wholesale gas price increase announced by the major gas companies recently.

The average price in Belleville is up 10 cents a gallon at both the regular and premium pumps.

Even within the same company, prices vary, with some service stations carrying the old price while others have made feeding the gas-guzzler dearer.

Two Esso stations pulled have upped their pump price this morning following notification by the company Wednesday. At Ed's Esso on Station St., the wholesale price increase of 9.2 cents has been passed on directly to the customer. Regular gas costs 86.9 cents a gallon, premium 71.3.

Gulf Oil stations have not increased their prices but appear to be assuming a price hike is imminent. No word has yet been received from head office.

Two BP gas stations in Belleville are split. Bonsor's BP on Dundas St. is selling regular at 87.9 and premium at 83.9 — the old price. As of 11 a.m. Wednesday "the BP station on North Front St. increased its prices by 10 cents a gallon.

Texaco stations have been notified that tank wagon prices will cost them an extra 9.2 cents a gallon. A Texaco district office spokesman said today he had no idea whether all company service stations were upping their pump rates. Two stations checked revealed no increases.

Two Sunoco station pump prices were up 10 cents a gallon upon instructions received from Ottawa yesterday. It is expected that prices at all stations will go up after today.

The Shell Oil picture is unclear as well. Doug Rollins Shell pump prices are up by 10 cents a gallon as the company has passed on an approximate 9.5 cent a gallon increase to dealers.

Mr. Rollins said today that the dealer's increase is the first major hike that he has had in eight years.

Friday, Gordie's Shell at Bridge and Coleman Sts. will go up 12 cents a gallon, boosting the pump prices to 89.9 for regular and 74.9 for premium.

1973 Surplus Reduces Hastings County Budget

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Despite sharp cost increases in the operation of several departments, including health services, Children's Aid society and county homes for the aged, Hastings County council has come up with a "stand pat" budget for 1974.

The year's budget, given council approval at an all-day session Wednesday, calls for total expenditures of $5,700,584.

A big assist in holding the county levy down to an increase of less than one per cent over 1973 was a surplus of $298,117 on last year's operations.

Last year the county levy was reduced by $228,588, while in 1972 it was identical to that in 1971.

After government grants and other revenues, this year's county levy against constituent municipalities will be $1,868,639, as compared with a levy of $998,680 in 1973, or an increase of only $7,959.

County clerk-treasurer and administrator Carl E. Bateman said this year-end the county had a financially successful year in 1973 and the surplus on operations had gone "a long way to alleviating pressures from increased expenditures in most of our departments".

This year social services will cost an estimated $3,397,117, or well over half of the total county budget; the operations of the health department is expected to cost $1,550,756; general government $545,302; the county planning board $97,380 and miscellaneous $189,928.297.

Although the budget deliberations took considerable most of the day as they went over the day-by-item estimates presented by the administrator, the only department that met much discussion was that of the children's aid society and increased costs of which had been questioned at the last session of council.

Total costs of the county aid to this year are estimated at $695,681, of which the county's share is $78,117.

Bruce Kerr, CAS administrator told council that his 1974 budget was 11.4 per cent over 1973 costs.

But adding to the financial problem of the department was a 1973 deficit, the extent of which Mr. Kerr said the society had not experienced in the past. For the first time the CAS had become unionized with resulting higher wages. Also the society had no control over the number of children in care.

Much of yesterday's discussion evolved around the question of whether the county should actually approve the CAS budget in light of a letter from Hon. Rene Brunelle, minister of the provincial ministry.

The letter from Mr. Brunelle, dated March 20, but received by the county nearly a month later, advised that approval of the year's CAS budget should be deferred in view of possible provincial budget constraints.

Belleville and Trenton, both included in the county CAS, earlier in the year had given approval to the CAS budget.

Despite the department letter, county administrator Bateman felt the county should approve the budget as it was necessary that requisitions go out to the municipalities so they could prepare their tax bills.

If there was any reduction in the CAS budget called for by the province, Mr. Bateman suggested the resultant saving to the county could be considered as surplus to the overall year's operation.

Alan Bronson, CAS board chairman, told councillors that since the March letter had gone out to CAS boards across the province, Mrs. Brunelle at a department convention said CAS boards should not reduce their budgets.

Mr. Bronson said the only way the Hastings CAS budget could be cut would be to reduce services. This he would not like to see as the society was "doing a tremendous job".

Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins was asked if he could shed any light on the apparently confusing directions being received from the provincial department.

Mr. Rollins telephoned Toronto and department officials apologized for the March letter and advised that the county CAS budget should be approved.

The county roads department this year will cost an estimated $1,550,750, down from last year's actual expenditures of $1,537,308.

County road construction this year will cost an estimated $825,650, maintenance $361,500 with $141,000 being earmarked for overhead.

Added to the above figures will be a total of $197,200 for suburban roads.

For most municipalities the 1974 budget will mean slight decreases in assessment levied by the county.

The main exceptions are the townships of Sidney and Thurlow which see their apportionment considerably increased. The increase over last year for Sidney is $18,638 and for Thurlow $7,252.30.

Mr. Bateman said the reason for the increase for these municipalities was because these were the county's main growth areas.

Nomination Meeting Dates Set

Liberals and Conservatives in Prince Edward-Hastings federal riding plan nomination conventions for the current election campaign later this month.

The Conservatives will stage their convention at Trenton High School May 29 and are expected to formally confirm George Hees, MP for the riding, as candidate.

Doug Whitley, riding president, said Wednesday he had as yet heard of no serious contender against Hees' nomination.

Meantime, the Liberal convention has been called for May 27 at 8 p.m. at Bateau Recreation Centre, riding president M.P. Halloran said.

Keynote speakers for both rallies will be announced later.

Ellis Will Pay Bills

Cost of the mobile unit used by Jack Ellis, MP Hastings as a constituency office, will be entirely a personal expense during the current federal election.

Mr. Ellis makes the point in the most recent issue of his newsletter he sends constituents.

Mr. Ellis said today cost of operating the unit is apportioned equally between himself and government contributions. Since the 9 on the day the election was called — he will bear all costs until the campaign ends, he said.

Money for constituency offices was provided by parliament starting last December. The government pays an MP up to $500 a month for staff and $200 a month for premises rental.

Meantime, Mr. Ellis said the regular office has personally operated in Belleville since the 1972 election to help with constituency business will remain open as usual during the campaign.

Product Still A Mystery

At a Belleville and District Employment Committee industrial commissioner Fred Bemis was asked if the company planned manufacture of cosmetics.

Mr. Bemis said it is not known what the product will be but "they will not be making cosmetic".

The company recently announced it would start clearing a site in northeast Belleville for the plant that will go into production next year and employ about 150.

Yes! It's Been That Wet

It's been a soggy spring, with plenty of rain in recent days. Result has seen Bay of Quinte water levels rise — even over the road as Jim Hannah and Scott Rushlow, both 14, show. They're bicycling gingerly through flooded strip of George Street.

Land Tax Legislation Likely to Raise Prices

Effects of Provincial Treasurer John White's budget proposal a 90 per cent capital gains tax on owners who sell land without having made any improvements to it are still not clear, said Quinte Home Builders Association president Mike DeMark Wednesday.

"It's bound to affect Belleville, just the same way as it will across the province," Mr. DeMark said.

The new legislation will affect housing costs in one of two ways — it will either increase or lower the price of homes.

If a guy is in the land development business, he has to make a profit. But if he has to give 30 per cent of that profit to the government, he'll increase his selling price accordingly."

Prices of lots, and as a result, homes would go higher, Mr. DeMark felt.

On the other hand, developers could also hold on to land, then avoiding the payment of the 50 per cent provincial tax — almost at what treasurer White called artificial hikes in land prices.

This however, is not occurring in Belleville, said Mr. DeMark: "Developers are selling serviced land as fast as they can get it."

The president's comments followed discussion between home builders and Peter Stevens, Ontario Council representative of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada (CHUDA) Wednesday.

During the meeting yesterday, the HUDAV official outlined to Belleville builders the legislation's amendments which would exempt them from the speculation tax.

Among the 21 amendments introduced to the provincial legislature 10 days ago were some that HUDAC had proposed to protect builders, he said.

Most significant in HUDAC proposals for amendments is that a builder would be exempt from taxation if he takes out a building permit on at least 50 per cent of lots within a year of their purchase. The balance would be taken out within two years. A one-year life of the building permit is proposed.

However, builder president Mr. DeMark felt the speculation tax will little affect what he predicts as a slowdown in housing starts in the city this summer.

The tight mortgage money situation, coupled with the shortage of materials and skilled tradesmen will likely affect house construction, he said.

Job Survey Planned

A detailed survey of Quinte district industry, that possibly will mean more demand patterns, will be launched next month by the Belleville and District Employment Committee.

The survey is the result of earlier committee discussions with local education and industry spokesmen that revealed concern over lack of trained labor.

It's a general shortage facing Canadian industry, but the committee is anxious to pinpoint local problems.

It decided Wednesday to mail at least 500 questionnaires to manufacturing and service industries in the Belleville - Bancroft - Trenton - Picton - Napanee region within the next month.

Judge Quashes Assault Charge

A charge of assault causing bodily harm laid against a Belleville police constable, Maurille Roy, was quashed by Judge J. L. Clendenning yesterday at the conclusion of a two-day preliminary hearing.

Constable Roy, a first class constable with seven years' experience, had been charged with assault following his attempts, while investigating a domestic complaint last Dec. 30, to stop a Belleville man from striking his wife.

Charged with assaulting Ralph Leroy Welch of Belleville, Constable Roy had indicated his intention to plead not guilty and had elected to be tried by a judge and jury.

The preliminary hearing was held to determine whether or not there was sufficient evidence to substantiate the charge and justify the holding of a trial.

Constable Roy was charged after he was involved in a scuffle with Mr. Welch, last Dec. 30, when the police were called by Mrs. Welch to the Welch's Dundas Street East home to assist in settling a domestic dispute.

Welch had complained that PC Roy had struck him over the left eye with his fist and had manhandled him while trying to arrest him for assaulting a police officer.

The court hear the testimony of a total of 17 witnesses during the course of the hearing held April 11 and May 1.

Judge Clendenning quashed the charge on the grounds of insufficient evidence, after stating that the prosecution provided by a preliminary hearing applies equally to all persons, whether or not accused is a policeman or a civilian, and that it is not the job of the Crown Prosecutor, Richard Sheehy, to be the manner in which he prescribed his case.

Mr. Sheehy had told the court at the conclusion of the hearing that he did not feel there was sufficient evidence to warrant a trial and noted that the chief Crown witness, Mr. Welch, had hazy recollections of some aspects of the evening of Dec. 30.

Mr. Welch had admitted "total fairly inebriated" at the time of the incident.

Something New Added

Reg Dunham, federal returning officer for Hastings Riding packs something new that is being added to election literature this year. It's a pamphlet explaining details of electoral process which will be given householders by enumerators. Enumeration starts next week in Belleville and Mr. Dunham and staff are packing kits for the 208 people who will collect names for voters' lists.

Province Will Pay On Farm

The province of Ontario, through the Ministry of Natural Resources, will contribute $357,500 to the Maira Rutherford Conservation Authority for the purchase of the 346-acre Potter farm property west of Belleville.

Announcement of the grant approval was made today by Hon. Leo Bernier, ministry head.

Option price of the property is $715,000. The local share of the cost would be paid over a three-year period.

The authority's purpose in purchasing the Potter property would be to establish it as a multi-use conservation area to be known as the Quinte Conservation Area.

The ministry announcement said the property was in an area where there is a marked scarcity of public land.

The city of Belleville and the township of Sidney as the two neighboring municipalities will bear most of the authority's share of the cost. The township of Thurlow has declined to share directly in the conservation project.

Highway 2 and the Canadian National Railway cause the Potter property to be divided into three parts. The first parcel consists of 11.35 acres with a frontage of about 9,588 feet on both the highway and the Bay of Quinte. A creek flows south to south in the eastern portion. This section contains two frame dwellings fronting on the highway and two frame cottages fronting on the bay. The western section contains a frame office and storage area and 25 frame cabins.

The second parcel comprises 31.3 acres on the north side of Highway 2. A nine-room two-storey frame house with outbuildings is located on this parcel, as well as a two-storey, 6-room frame dwelling with a good barn.

The third parcel comprises 236.95 acres north of the CPR line. The land is rolling farm land, some cleared and some in bush. The creek crosses the southeast corner of this parcel.

Almost Half Jobless Young

About 40 per cent of unemployed people are 25 years or younger.

This is a national average that has been a traditional feature of Canada's job scene, the Belleville and District learned Wednesday.

Canada Manpower statistics at the end of March this year show 1,297 people registered for work in the Belleville district. Of these, 477 were up to 25 years old.

Rita Nobes and Pride and Joy

Blisters, Sweat Results at Mall

Like the car buff he is, Mr. Nobes entered his wife's 1940 Willys into the Road Kogue Car Club exhibition starting at the Quinte Mall tonight. It ends Sunday with a swap meet and show in the Mall parking lot.

However, Rita hasn't complained too much, saying, that he hadn't asked her to might have been working on the car for another couple of years."

Already, the near-complete reconditioning of the 1940 Willys coupe has taken close to four years. But only last February has the couple been able to work steadily on the car in a garage behind their Wallbridge - Hungerford Rd. home.

Preparations have been rushed to complete the gold colored slope-backed machine for the show. All necessary welding has been done by Carman. Taillights and some chrome pieces have been hard to find.

The body work and painting was done by Rita, or as she put it: "Nobody laid any sandpaper on that car but me."

And how did she get into the hobby of reconditioning old cars? She bought a pile of rusted metal that was once a Willys coupe from her husband for $5. (He immediately gave it back to her for a shopping expedition.)

Her interest was kindled before 1970. Her husband, now the proud owner of some 15 vehicles for cars he has rebuilt, has been going to and fro car and swap meets for years.

Last year, during the second annual Road Angels exhibition, Mr. Nobes entered a Model A Ford. This year however, his wife's Willys is the only Nobes entry.

Tonight through Saturday, some 12 reconditioned cars, and several motorcycles will be displayed in the Quinte Mall concourse. Sunday, a combination flea market-swap meet-car show will be held in the parking lot. It is expected approximately 30 cars will be shown while auto reconditioners are searching for parts for their latest or next four-wheeled projects.

Philadelphia's Dave Schultz Can Play, Too

Doug Walsh

Sports Editor

Thought for a moment Tuesday night that Flyers had blown the duke. When some members of Fred Shero's go-go-go gang decided they'd rather fight than win, it looked as though Bruins would be going home for tonight's fifth game, with the series even at 2-2.

Dave Schultz and company appeared to lose sight of the fact that the Cup goes to the team with the most winning games to its credit and not to the club which holds the edge in man to man combat.

In Dave's case, that should read man to men. He managed to bang a dandy on an innocent bystander while already engaged in a scuffle with another Bruin. And Schultz got out of that one with a double minor as we recall.

After a tiring first 20 minutes (viewers were tired of watching hockey players tire themselves out with the endless display of senseless brawling) which took more than an hour to wade through, a degree of sanity returned to proceedings for the second and third periods.

This same Schultz who managed to score 20 goals during the regular season when he wasn't settling up a bachelor's pad in penalty boxes around the league, (348 minutes in penalties) has demonstrated that he has the talent to play the game and play it well when he is motivated in that direction.

* * *

A 24-year-old product of Waldheim, Saskatchewan, the 6-foot-1, 185 pound winger is an accomplished puck carrier with all the moves to go with it. Unfortunately, Schultz doesn't play it straight often enough. But that may not be his fault entirely.

Perhaps he does as he's told.

At any rate, one more Flyer win and they not only get the Cup, they enable this observer to keep a streak alive. If it's picked to go all the way in this corner, a team is in trouble before the first shot is fired.

Sorry about that, Bruins.

There seems to be the idea in some circles that Flyers will rist be giving it thei big effort tonight, preferring instead to wrap up the set in front of the home fans, Sunday.

If Bruins are still in the hunt after Game 5, it will be because they've earned their second win and not because Flyers handed them a gift-wrapped victory.

Boston may be down but no one, least of all the Philly crew, is counting Guidolin's men out.

If the teams stick to Sockey, tonight's game should be very interesting. If not, we'll be in for another dreary evening.

SLICES — Slipping back to Schultz for a moment, some who are sticklers for this sort of thing may find it interesting to note that no fewer than 10 pro hockey players listed in the 1973-74 NHL Guide have last names which begin S-c-h.

Who are they, you ask?

Glad to oblige.

United Shades CFB 2-1

Belleville United took a 2-1 win from CFB Trenton in Bay of Quinte Soccer Association play Wednesday.

United opened the scoring at the 35-minute mark with a goal by Dave Hadley. He took a pass from brother Ray, and made no mistake in driving the ball into the net.

In the other contest at Warkworth, Cooney Haulage doubled the score on Warkworth, 4-2.

Paul Gagnon scored the other marker for Cooney's.

Utilities Outlasts UIC 11-10

Al Coles blasted four singles for the winners, with Bob Spigle bagging a home run, double, and single. Dave Middleton had a double and two singles, Bulpit a triple, Larry Mason a triple and single, and Ron Waite a double and single. John Banville had a single to round out the hitting.

Foreman Misses News Conference

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Muhammad Ali says he will beat George Forman because he is too experienced, too smart and too fast for the world heavyweight champion.

Ali said this, plus a few thousand other words, at a news conference Wednesday to announce Sept. 24 as the date for the Foreman-Ali 15-round title fight in Kinshasa, capital of the Republic of Zaire in east-central Africa.

When the fight first was announced seven weeks ago, Sept. 30 was set as a tentative date by the promoting organizations, Hemdale Leisure Corp. and Video Techniques Inc.

The fight will start at 10 p.m. EDT, or 3 a.m. Sept. 25, Zaire time.

Foreman and Ali each have been guaranteed $5 million—an all-time record for any sport—plus $500,000 apiece for training expenses.

Foreman was supposed to be at the breakfast-news conference but failed to show up. Video Techniques officials said they knew of no reason for the champion's absence, but speculated he might have encountered transportation difficulties getting here from California.

Houston Leads Final 2-0

McLeod Sparks Aeros To Win Over Cougars

CHICAGO (CP) — Houston goaltender Don McLeod had "things going my way" Wednesday night as the Aeros smothered Chicago Cougars 6-1 for a 2-0 lead in the World Hockey Association playoff final.

That lead is more command, ing when considering the next three games are scheduled for Houston this Friday, Sunday nd, if necessary, Monday.

McLeod faced 27 shots, stopping the first 26 before he fanned on the last shot of the game, a long drive by Frankie Rochon that found its way into the corner of the net.

The Cougars were unable to produce any sustained pressure in the Houston end and, in the few briefs spurts when they did come to life, McLeod was simply too good.

"He was just fantastic", Houston coach Bill Dineen said of the leading netminder in the WHA this season. "He's one of the biggest reasons we're here right now."

Another reason why the Aeros lead is their potent power play and Chicago's lack of one.

"I don't really know what we have to do to get it going." Chicago coach Pat Stapleton said of his power play that hasn't Palement, was not from the scored in 10 opportunities in the point.

Backs to Wall, Bruins Facing A Tough Chore

BOSTON (CP) — No one can blame Boston Bruins if they are found studying the Stanley Cup history of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Although it is Philadelphia Flyers the Bruins have to worry about, Boston players can seek solace in the 1942 record produced by the Leafs.

The Bruins trail 3-1 in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final with the fifth game in Boston Garden tonight. The game, set to start at 7:30 p.m. EDT, will be televised nationally in Canada by CBC.

Not since 1942 has a team rebounded to win the Cup after being down three games. That year Toronto lost the first three games to Detroit Red Wings, but went on to take the next four games.

"You can say it doesn't look good," Harry Sinden, managing director of the Bruins, said Wednesday. "But it's not impossible.

"If any team can do it, we can. We have the ability on this club to win three in a row. That's not the problem though, the problem is can Philadelphia be beaten three times in a row the way they're playing now?"

Boston coach Ben Guidolin said the difference with the Flyers this season "is that they have the best goaltender in hockey in Bernie Parent."

Parent and Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks shared the Vezina Trophy this season as the two top netminders in regular-season play.

Fred Shero, coach of the Flyers, said he and his players realize the magnitude of trying to beat a team like the Bruins four straight.

"If we win the Cup it's because right now we have a pretty good hockey team. I'd like to win, not because we are a better team, but because we deserve to win (for working hard)."

Unlike Shero, 48, who constantly expresses confidence in his bench by inserting some of his lesser-known players into the lineup, the Bruins have made no changes and Guidolin says he doesn't anticipate any.

"We're going with the same 19 guys again Thursday, and if we give as much effort as we did in the game Tuesday and play as well, we could win."

So far, the Bruins' high-powered offence has been smothered by the aggressive Philadelphia checking. In the four games to date Boston has eight goals, a two-a-game average. During the regular season they averaged better than four goals a game.

In Tuesday night's win the Flyers held the Bruins' big line of Phil Esposito, Ken Hodge and Wayne Cashman to five shots on the net, Esposito had four and Hodge one.

If the Flyers win they will become the first NHL expansion team to take the Stanley Cup.

You'll save work with quality Pittsburgh Paints.

Everyone wants to give his home lasting protection...and have a long, long holiday between paint jobs. For this reason, Pittsburgh Paints are formulated from quality ingredients and are fully weather-tested. They stand up to the severe extremes of Canada's climate and look great, year after year.

Most people use more white than colors when painting the outside of their homes. That is why Pittsburgh Paints developed work-saving one-coat exterior whites in both latex and oil base. They give you the hiding and lasting qualities of two-coat paints—with a single application.

Some people re-paint sooner than necessary because the sun dulls many paint colors. So Pittsburgh made a line of exterior paints called "Sun-Proof" that really lives up to its name. With Sun-Proof, you get a choice of 720 fade-resistant colors—in tough oil base or long-life latex. Ask your Pittsburgh Paints dealer about the best type for your home.

SUN-PROOF gives you a long time between painting jobs.

Here's a quality exterior finish in latex or oil base that comes in gleaming white and 720 fade-resistant colors. Your Pittsburgh Paints dealer can tell you which type of Sun-Proof finish is best for the job you have in mind.

5-4 Expo Win Eases the Pain For Ron Hunt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"You learn to live with it," said Ron Hunt. In his case, it's a wonder he hasn't been killed by it.

It's the pitch that gets away and ends up in the rib or the back, on the leg or the arm—somewhere on the batter's body.

"You never get used to it," Hunt said of getting hit by a baseball travelling as fast as 100 miles an hour. And Hunt should know. He owns one of the major league's most dubious records, being hit by 231 pitches in his bruising career to date.

It's got to hurt—but the pain can be eased somewhat . . . like with a victory. That's what Hunt's 231st career "ouch" brought Wednesday night.

The 33-year-old second baseman was plunked on the right knee leading off the ninth inning for Montreal Expos and hobbled down to first base.

"Can you run?" Mauch asked.

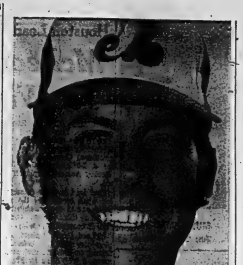
"I'm okay," Hunt said, "I can run. I'll get the run for you."

A few minutes later he did just that, scoring the tie-breaker as Ken Singleton's single that carried the Expos to a 5-4 National League win over Philadelphia Phillies.

In other games, St. Louis Cardinals bombed the New York Mets 10-1; Cincinnati Reds nipped San Francisco Giants 4-3; Pittsburgh Pirates edged Chicago Cubs 3-2 in 14 innings; Atlanta Braves blanked San Diego Padres 3-0 and Los Angeles Dodgers swept a doubleheader from Houston Astros 11-7 and 10-2.

Ted Simmons blasted his way out of a slump by slugging his first two homers of the season, both off previously-beaten Jerry Koosman, and Tom Heintzelman and Reggie Smith added one apiece in a 16-hit barrage that carried the Cards past the Mets.

Roger Nelson came within six outs of pitching a no-hitter for the Reds—and came within one San Francisco run of seeing his effort go down the drain.



The Reds' right-hander got last-out help from reliever Pedro Borbon for a combined two-hit victory. Bobby Bonds wrecked Nelson's no-hit bid in the eighth with a two-run homer and Chris Speier's solo shot in the ninth sent Nelson to the showers.

Richie Zisk came home on Bill Bonham's 14th-inning wild pitch that gave the Pirates their tiebreaking win over the Cubs.

Reed, who suffered a broken bone in the back of his right hand when the Padres' Bobby Tolan sneered the first inning with a sharp single to the mound, will be sidelined a month to six weeks.

Bill Russell drove in six runs and Joe Ferguson knocked in five in Los Angeles' sweep, extending the Dodgers' winning streak to nine games—their longest since a 13-game run in 1965—and widening their West Division lead to 7½ games.

Bahnsen Close But Not Quite

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nobody's perfect. Not even Stan Bahnsen.

Cleveland Indians discovered that last year; Minnesota Twins found it out in an American League baseball game Wednesday night.

For the second time in two years, the Chicago White Sox pitcher came close to a no-hitter but literally let it slip through fingers while beating the Twins 1-0.

The right-hander was one out away against the Indians last season when Walt Williams singled just behind the reach of Bill Melton's glove at third base.

And Wednesday night, he had a perfect game going until Bobby Darwin singled off "a high, inside curve ball" with two out in the eighth. In the ninth, Bahnsen gave up another single, the Twins' only other base runner.

"I don't know if I'm good enough to pitch a no-hitter," said Bahnsen, who had two of them in the minor leagues.

In other games, Detroit Tigers nipped New York Yankees 6-5; Boston Red Sox stopped Cleveland Indians 7-4; Baltimore Orioles beat Milwaukee Brewers 6-5 and Texas Rangers downed the California Angels 6-1.

New York relief ace Sparky Lyle walked Al Kaline with the bases loaded in the eighth inning, giving Detroit its victory.

Aurelio Rodriguez led off Detroit's eighth with a single off Cecil Upshaw. B.2. After two forceouts, Gary Sutherland walked and Lyle came on to relieve New York. Jim Northrup was safe when shortstop Jim Mason fumbled his grounder, then Kaline drew his walk.

The last two pitches to Kaline were disputed by Lyle and catcher Rick Dempsey. After the walk, New York manager Bill Virdon came out to complain and was ejected by home plate umpire Jim Odom.

13 Starters in Richest Preakness

So much so, in fact, that owner Irene Udou has paid $10,000 to make the grey colt a supplementary entry in Saturday's running of the $150,000-added Preakness Stakes.

Thirteen starters were expected to be named today for the 99th running of the 1 3-16-mile race.

Just a couple of moths ago, Silver Florin was following an undistinguished two-year-old campaign in which he won $9,300.

The colt wasn't even nominated for the Kentucky Derby or Belmont Stakes, but when Cannonade won the Kentucky Derby in a slow two minutes and four seconds for 1¼ miles, Silver Florin—won the $50,000 Twin Spires on the same card, Silver Florin was timed in 1:37 3-5 for the mile, or 1 2-5 seconds faster than Cannonade covered the same distance.

Two supplementary entries have won the Preakness. Citation, made eligible for a $3,000 up, next at 9 to 2, followed by Hill Prince was a winner in 1950 After a fee of $1,500 was paid. With 13 starters, the Preakness purse will be a record $200,000, and $155,500 will go to the winner. The next two finishers will earn $30,000 and $15,000.

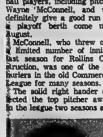
Bardon Supplies Has New Look for 1974

By ALAN TEBWORTH
Sports Staff



THIRD OF A SIX PART SERIES

Coaches Bob Brooks and Doug Murray will have their work cut out for them this season as they try to take their Bardon Supplies team in the Quinte Fastball League from the bottom of the six-team loop they have occupied in the last two seasons. They may have the personnel to do just that.

The blue-clad Supplymen have picked up several key ball players, including pitcher Wayne McConnell, and will definitely give a good run for a playoff berth come next August.

McConnell, who threw only a limited number of innings last season for Rollins Construction, was one of the top hurlers in the old Commercial League for many seasons.

DOUG MURRAY

posting a 14-1 record with Rollins.

He will team with Jamie Hunter and Bob Harrison to give the team the mound support they have been lacking. Hunter, although not flashy in his pitching style, is consistent and can more than hold his own in the tough QFL going.

On the other end of the battery, they will have two dependable receivers to count on. Bernie Coughlin, who joined the team late in the season last year will provide some much needed hitting punch, and Lionel Gorsline the regular catcher last season, is solid behind the plate.

At first base, heavy hitting, both for average and the long ball, is Gary Johnston. The rangy Johnston patrols the first sack with the best of the league.

At second, Sid Davies gives Bardon one of the best at that position. He is also consistent with the bat, and will belt the occasional extra base hit.

The regular shortstop position is still up in the air at this time. with Harrison, and Bob Kerr candidates for the job.

Harrison has a strong throwing arm while Kerr is making a comeback after not playing last season. Two years back he was a member of the Ellis Juniors.

Four outfielders will be at the coaches' disposal for the season, with Bill Dewey, Elmer Daley, Mark Coates, and Bo Sedore all available for service.

Sedore played with the old Point Anne teams of a couple of years back, while Coates needs no introduction to local sporting enthusiasts. He's a member of last season's Meteo Junior B Hockey finalists Belleville Bobcats. The speedy Coates should be a welcome addition to the team.

Coach Brooks is looking for big things from his team this season, with their first game scheduled for the second night of the season, next Tuesday.

They take on the Ellis Juniors in the second game of the twinbill which features Devolin Motors and Rollins Construction in the first game, starting at 7 p.m. The Bardon-Ellis game should get under way about 8:45.

Applying bandages to the front legs of Wee Sister, affectionately known as Old Soul, is her owner, trainer and driver, Andy Anderson. The 14-yearold mare will be coming out of the five hole in the fourth race of Friday's card at Quinte Raceway.

Wee Sister or 'Old Soul' 14-year-old Rolls Along

"Old Soul" may not be an appropriate name for a horse of any description, but for Andy Anderson's Wee Sister, it has stuck as a nickname.

One of the reasons is the fact that the brown mare is 14 years old, and in her last year of racing, under Federal Regulations.

But a lot of respect is still shown to the old mare by its owner who says she probably knows more about racing than he does.

Andy has only been around the racing stables for about two years, although he has always been around horses since the time he was a kid on the farm.

He says as a hobby its good, that the horses make fantastic pets, although working to keep them in shape is not quite so easy.

Putting about four tours a day into his chores, seven days week takes up a lot of time, but likes it.

And it is a hobby that can pay for itself.

After claiming 'Sis' from Henry Sizer of Napanee last May 6 Anderson made about $540 on two wins, two seconds and two thirds while recording a mark of 2:12 at Kingston's Frontenac Downs.

This season, in five starts, the "Old Soul" has picked up two seconds, and about $125.

Andy admits to making a driving error last week in finishing sixth in the seven-horse field instead of at least a third as he had hoped for.

Getting parked out for most of the race, he underestimated the other horses times, losing out in the stretch.

He'll get another chance however this Friday night, coming out of the fifth position behind the starting gate in the fourth event on the nine-race card.

First race on the card gets under way at 8 p.m., with qualifiers beginning at 7 p.m.

Fate of Foresters Hanging in Balance

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — The fate of Brantford Foresters of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series hangs in the balance today, following the announcement Tuesday by Nick Durbano of Hamilton he would had sold Hamilton Forum and two junior hockey teams to three Hamilton businessmen.

"Durbano led the people of Brantford down the garden path," John Czarny, president of the foresters' hockey club, said Wednesday. "He signed an offer to purchase our senior team and also made a verbal commitment to city officials to use the civic centre."

"We plan to make a formal complaint to the OHA," said Czarny.

Durbano had announced at a press conference in Brantford that he planned to switch his Hamilton Red Wings junior A franchise to that city after purchasing the Foresters and plans to ing out the senior team.

However, Durbano said Hamilton Wednesday that there was so much trouble getting approval for transfer of the Hamilton team, "I decided to close out."

Durbano said purchases of the Brantford franchise was contingent upon getting permission from the OHA to move the Red Wings.

Meanwhile, Czarny said: "Our organization will do everything possible to have a good hockey team in Brantford next year."

Czarny said his group, which has operated intermediate and junior hockey in Brantford for the last 12 years, may consider applying for a junior A franchise.

The Foresters' executive plans to meet as soon as possible to consider the club's future, and the OHA senior circuit is expected to meet in two weeks to study plans for the 1974-75 season.

The senior league has received new applications for franchises from Napanee and Georgetown. Orillia and Barrie appear to be the only certain starters at the moment, with Brantford and Cambridge doubtful. Belleville and Welland entries folded during the last season.

Midget Players

Major Junior A Protected List

TORONTO (CP) — The 11 teams in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series Wednesday released their list of protected midget-aged players for today's draft.

Each club has protected the top eight players—18 years old and under—within their area minor system.

Toronto Marlboros, Oshawa Generals, Ottawa 67's and Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds all listed midget-aged players who competed on their A teams last season.

Toronto protected freshmen Mark Napier and John Anderson.

Oshawa listed Brian Drumm.

Ottawa has three players: Tom McDonell, Jean Mark Grandmaitre and Robert Daly.

Peterborough Petes surprised many of the other teams, listing three minor midget players—15-year-olds Scott McKenzie, Brian Seabrooke and Mike McGillis.

Drafting order in the priority midget and over-age midget selections is in reverse order of the teams' final standings of the 1973-74 schedule.

Hamilton Red Wings will draft first followed by Kingston Canadians, Sault Ste. Marie, Toronto, Ottawa, Oshawa, Sudbury Wolves, London Knights, Peterborough, St. Catharines Black Hawks and Kitchener Rangers.

For the first time Cornwall Royals, an Ontario-based team competing in the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League, will be allowed to take part in the draft. Cornwall will pick 12th.

The protection lists are:

Kingston—Carn Botting, Kim Elliot, Ken Linseman, Cameron MacGregor, David Obenhoff, Robert Parent, Rob Plumb, Tim Torrance.

Paper Art Work

Papier-mache may not be the most known form of artwork, but to Florence Watson it's a medium that provides her with many creative and enjoyable moments. Proof of this can be seen at the Corby Library where various works done in papier-mache by Mrs. Watson are on display on the second floor of the library in the hallway gallery. Flowers in bright colors, children in delightful poses and a mid-evilic lion all form part of her display which opened this week and should run for a few weeks, more. Also on display are various works in papier mache done by those taking a course in papier-mache taught by Mrs. Watson at Queen Victoria School.

Chaplin OK Again

LISBON (AP) — Charlie Chaplin is swaggering and saluting as The Great Dictator in a Lisbon movie house.

In Portugal, where the film classic mocking fascism and its leaders had been prohibited since its production in 1940, Wednesday's premiere was a major cultural and political event.

But Portugal is not diving headlong into an era of cultural freedom. The April 25 coup bringing new liberty in speech and thought is being translated into daily life at a typical Portuguese pace: not too fast.

Besides The Great Dictator, Lisbon's cinemas have done little experimenting so far, with the exception of showing Sergei Eisenstein's Soviet silent film classic, Potemkin. The rest of the local movie diet is still for boy scout meetings and prayer breakfasts.

Portuguese television, the great cultural weapon in the country, has not varied its programming much outside the changed content of its news programs. It features American serials such as Mannix, Columbo, Bonanza and McCloud—mostly shooting and chasing.

Showbiz Shorts

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Ioma Luft, daughter of the late Judy Garland, was ordered Wednesday to show cause by May 23 why she should not be required to give a deposition in a theatrical agency's suit against her.

Artists Entertainment Complex, Inc., which represents Miss Luft, said in court the agency advanced nearly $300,200 to the singer from Jan. 1, 1971, to July 24, 1973. And $30,408.98 of it has not been paid back.

The agency seeks the deposition from Miss Luft, who lives in California, as a substitute for a witness-stand appearance.

ATHENS (AP) — Remains of a small 3rd or 4th century B.C. theatre have been uncovered at Trachones, near the Athens airport, the Greek Archeology Service announced. It said the stone stage is decorated with carvings, paintings and two statues of Dionysos, the god of entertainment.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Friday, May 17

Aries (March 21-April 19) This is one of those day's when you and your mate won't see eye-to-eye on family matters. Neither will admit the other has valid points.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Obligations and responsibilities will keep you on a short leash. It's likely you won't have the freedom to move about as you'd like today.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) A friend is cross about something she loaned you. Get it back to her today if you can.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You'll have to be exceptionally tactful over the next few days in furthering personal ambitions. If not, you'll alienate your allies.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone is going to be butting into your plans and throwing up unnecessary roadblocks. Don't let her know she's slowing you down.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be sure you're keeping abreast of obligations you have to friends or business associates. They won't appreciate tardiness.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) A relationship important to you will be under considerable strain today and tomorrow. Do all you can to keep the peace.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Outside pressures are heavier at this time. You'll feel everything needs doing at once. Keep your perspective. Just do what you can the best you can.

Sagittaries (nov. 23-Dec. 21) You could get involved with some undesirable companions over the next few days if you aren't careful. Stick with pals you know well.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It will take a real diplomat to maintain harmonious conditions domestically. Try being the Kissinger in your household.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're apt to have a negative attitude toward your work today. This will make everything you have to do seem twice as tough.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Treat you pennies carefully for awhile or you might-find yourself a bit overextended. Now is the time to save, not spend.

'Nerves' Affect Blood Pressure

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will high blood pressure make you nervous? Will tranquilizers harm you? I can't keep going or sleep if I don't take something so I am taking them one or two times a day.—K.D.

Well, let's see if we can do something about your nerves. The high blood pressure doesn't cause them. It's the other way around; nervous tension adds to your blood pressure.

However, I would suspect that your worries over your blood pressure enter into that endless circle. But although you are worrying, obviously, it is better to know that your blood pressure is under control than to know under control than not to know it. Too many people, not knowing that their pressure is excessive and hence not doing anything about it, pay the price of the illnesses and disasters that can follow later.

So first of all I suggest this: keep in mind that you are getting treatment, so your doctor doubtless wants to keep track of your pressure readings periodically, and when your medication has had time to bring some results a lowering of your pressure should reassure you.

With that reassurance, your nerves will settle down and that in turn will help that much more in controlling your pressure.

Meantime tranquilizers once or twice a day to relax you and help you get a decent night's sleep also will be helping you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like the name of the organization to which one donates organs (liver, kidneys, eyes, heart, etc.) upon death. I would like to donate anything that would be of use to anyone.—M.S.

Write to National Kidney Foundation, 315 Park Ave. South, New York, N.Y. 10010. It is active in finding good use for organs besides kidneys. Be sure to get the name of the group right. There was an unfortunate hassle some time ago between it and another group with a similar name but dissimilar aims.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 18 and very-tongue-tied because I'm too embarrassed to discuss this with my mother and I can't just up and go to a doctor if that's what is needed.

Tonight now and then for six months I've been getting this awful feeling in my vagina and head. I see these little white worms about a quarter inch long start wiggling around. I will do whatever you suggest.—T.Y.

You're going to need help from your doctor. I suggest that you start with your mother. Next time you have an attack of the wigglers, she could help you trap some of them in some plastic tape.

From what you write, the trouble has the earmarks of pinworms which are a much more frequent problem than seems to be generally known. The rests, which can and do get into the vagina, come out at night to lay eggs.

Trapping some on a scrap of tape is helpful because your doctor can examine them and know whether they really are pinworms. Next step, of course, is to have him prescribe medication to get rid of the critters.

Few, if any can afford this unnecessary expenditure. Don't let it happen to you! Buy now!

SHAWANO

SHAWANO'S TOPS FOR INVESTMENT

In today's skyrocketing prices, Shawano is an outstanding investment.

Many lot owners have seen the value of their land increase by 100% or more.

Buying a lot at Shawano is an even better investment than even before, for three reasons.
One — the province is running out of recreational land.
Two — sale of crown land for cottages is halted.
Three — Provincial planning regulations have restricted private developments.

You can still buy a big, ¼ acre lakefront lot at Shawano from $6,900.00 to $14,900.00 with 10% down and excellent financing.

Shawano is the beautiful 1,000 acre wilderness recreational area in the historic Highlands of Hastings, 33 scenic miles north of Madoc via highway 62. Marvellous swimming, boating and fishing.

He Stayed Home

DUNDEE, Scotland (Reuter) — A mother of four was accused in court Wednesday of entombing her unconscious husband in the foundations of their house and leaving him there to die.

The indictment alleges that while her husband was either drunk or drugged, she dropped him into a compartment in the foundations of the house, piled household utensils, a carpet and furniture on top of the trapdoor cover and left him there to die.

CLC Convention Favors Autonomy

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) delegates took decisions Wednesday in favor of more national autonomy for themselves and more power to the Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL).

On the third day of their biennial convention the trade unionists compromised on a proposal that will more teeth into congress standards of minimum autonomy for Canadian sections of international unions.

They also rejected a recommendation from congress leaders that would have set aside a QFL bid for control of political education and labor council programs.

Although neither issue has been finally decided—the autonomy standards need amending to the constitution and the QFL proposal still needs approval—overwhelming majorities on both major questions showed the congress directors have the 2,400 delegates stoon.

The decision on the QFL issue was made just three minutes before the convention was to adjourn its night meeting.

A committee, headed by Joe Morris, who appeared virtually certain today to become the new congress president, called upon delegates to send the QFL resolution to the executive rather than deal with it at the convention.

But Louis Laberge, QFL president, said an identical motion had been made in 1966 when the Quebec group sought more power over education and finance programs. Nothing had been done for six years, he added.

"As far as I am concerned I have no more time to lose," Mr. Laberge said, adding that the Quebec branch of the congress was in danger of losing members in that province to a rival union organization, the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU).

He said thatup proval of the QFL resolution would strengthen the congress rather than weaken it.

After the vote, Mr. Laberge said the decision showed that delegates across Canada supported the QFL view that there are special needs in Quebec.

He added that the QFL would try to have its resolution adopted formally by delegates today. The union members also had elections to contend with today.

Debate on the congress committee's motion of non-concurrence in the QFL resolution began as Jean Gerin-Lajoie, director of the United Steelworkers of America district which includes Quebec, said that the QFL was unable to provide proper services now to workers in the province.

The committee recommendation was a serious threat to the unity of the congress and the QFL, he said.

His position was backed by several union leaders from the other provinces, including Grace Hartman, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Mrs. Hartman said the congress should be leading other sectors of society in the recognition of the needs of Quebec rather than dragging behind.

QFL secretary-treasurer Fernand Daoust said the federation wanted to save the congress in Quebec. "As long as Canada exists in its present political form, we will need Canadian union solidarity."

Lynn Williams, director of the steelworkers' district which includes Ontario and Western Canada, said support for the Quebec resolution would mean the end of the congress presence in Quebec.

Earlier Wednesday, delegates support, after a lengthy debate, a recommendation from a constitutional commission that the congress ensure that Canadian branches of international unions accept minimum standards of national autonomy.

The recommendation, if put into the constitution, would allow the congress to suspend affiliates from the CLC affiliates who fail to comply with the autonomy standards.

The congress adopted, in 1970, standards calling for election of Canadian officers by Canadians, determination of policies "in Canada by Canadian members and the right of leaders in Canadian unions to have authority to speak for their organizations in Canada.

Many international unions have failed to comply with all of these standards.

The recommendation on compliance was strongly opposed by officers and international representatives of some building trades unions. Some said their unions would not accept interference in their internal affairs.

The commission report was adopted after leaders of a reform group of unions said they would be willing to compromise on the national autonomy question.

Stan Little, president of CUPE, the largest reform union, said that there should be more control over finances and rights given to Canadian branches of U.S.-based unions to merge with other affiliates.

"Despite these omissions, we feel we must pass this section of the commission report. We can't deny implementation of these adequate measures, even with the omissions, while we wait for measures we regard as low the congress to suspend

White House Chief of Staff Testifies

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House Chief of Staff Alexander Haig has testified before the Senate Watergate committee after being threatened with a possible contempt-of-Congress citation if he maintained his silence.

Haig testified Wednesday about a $100,000 payment from billionaire Howard Hughes to C. G. (Bebe) Rebozo, President Nixon's friend.

He had refused to answer questions in an earlier appearance, but he said Wednesday Nixon waived executive privilege to let him testify on the subject.

The New York Times and CBS News report that Haig told the committee he was warned a year ago about an investigation of the Hughes contribution by William Simon, then deputy treasury secretary.

The Times says Haig testified Nixon was informed of the matter, and told him several days later to put Rebozo in touch with a tax lawyer.

Simon, former energy chief who last week became treasury secretary, had never previously been connected with any Watergate matters.

The committee decided to postpone its long-availed final report to at least June 30 and to avoid making any conclusions as to the guilt or innocence of Watergate figures, including Nixon.

'Problems' Planned for Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two newspapers say the edited version of a White House tape contains comments by President Nixon not possible during the counter-moves against the Washington Post and lawyer Edward Bennett Williams.

Members of the House of Representatives judiciary committee listened in a closed-door session Wednesday to the tape in question, a Sept. 15, 1972, conversation involving Nixon, former presidential counsel John Dean and former White House aide H. R. Haldeman.

The Post says that sources close to the impeachment inquiry said the omitted remarks show Nixon indicated his approval of plans to retaliate against the newspaper through legal challenges to licences of broadcast stations owned by The Post.

"The main thing [in the Post] is going to have damnable, damaging information of this one," Nixon is reported to have said.

Also, a report in the Boston Globe says an unedited transcript of the same conversation quoted Nixon as discussing strong moves against Williams, who represented the Democratic national committee in a suit following the Watergate break-in, as well as The Post.

At the time of the White House meeting, two television stations owned by the Post-Newsweek Stations Inc. were about to seek renewal of their licences from the Federal Communications Commission.

The Post says Nixon remarked: "They have a television station ... and they're going to have to get it renewed. Haldeman is reported to have added: "They've got a radio station, too."

The judiciary committee obtained its tape of the conversation from special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski. An edited version of it was included in the White House transcripts submitted to the impeachment committee and made public April 30 by Nixon.

The Globe says the version it obtained Wednesday contained no information about the Williams matter than does the public version.

Judiciary members are reported to have heard Nixon say of Williams: "I think we are going to fix the son of a bitch." They would want to be in Edward Bennett Williams's position after the election."

Chapin Sentenced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dwight Chapin, former presidential appointments secretary, was sentenced Wednesday to 10 to 30 months in prison for lying under oath about political dirty tricks in the 1972 U.S. presidential election campaign.

He was the second high-ranking former White House aide of President Nixon to be sent to prison.

The judge allowed Chapin, 33, to remain free without bond until an appeal he plans is disposed of.

Chapin was convicted byt ne jury April 5 of two counts of making false statements to a grand jury about political trickster Donald Segretti. He could have been sentenced to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine on each count.

Try to Save Massey Hall

TORONTO (CP) — City council appointed a special seven-member study group Wednesday to try to save 79-year-old Massey Hall from demolition.

The group will assess the building's physical condition, and cost of renovations. It also will look into possible future uses for the hall after a new facility is built for the Toronto Symphony Orchestra and the Mendelssohn Choir.

A final report will be submitted to city council by Oct. 1.

Ship Released

TORONTO (CP) — A Brazilian freighter was free to leave Toronto harbor Wednesday after a $34,000 claim against it was settled.

The committee voted unanimously to ask the Senate to allow it to extend its mandate, retain its subpoena power and grant it an additional $200,000, sources said.

Mayor Requests Student Tours

Mayor Robin Jeffrey has informally requested the Belleville Utilities Commission to consider providing tours to all of Rotary Club Mayor of the Week participants next year.

Only three of the nine Quinte area high school and college students were given a tour of commission Front St. offices and water purification plant.

Mayor Jeffrey said Tuesday the students who viewed the commission's operation were greatly interested but noted not enough time was spent with the BUC. She said a recommendation was made that next year more time be allotted in the student's itinerary.

The mayor praised the Rotary program, saying it allowed students to gain a better insight into the workings of municipal government.

Labor Reform Group Wins

VANCOUVER (CP) — A stunning victory for a reform group of unions at the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) biennial convention Thursday was greeted by wild cheering as new faces took over three of the four top congress executive jobs.

Although Joe Morris, an incumbent on the four-man permanent executive, was chosen congress president, as expected, two candidates backed by the outgoing CLC executive were defeated by large majorities as the delegates showed displeasure with the labor organization's establishment.

Even Mr. Morris faced unexpected opposition as more than one-third of the 2,500 delegates cast votes for a virtually-unknown challenger, Gilbert MacIntyre from Sydney, N.S. The ballots cast against Mr. Morris reflected a protest vote, Mr. MacIntyre said.

Serving with Mr. Morris on the permanent executive are Donald Montgomery of Toronto, as secretary-treasurer; Shirley Carr of Niagara Falls, Ont., as executive vice-president, and Julien Major of Montreal, also an executive vice-president.

Besides the drama of the election upsets, which were greeted by joyful floor demonstrations by reform group supporters, the delegates approved by an overwhelming majority a bid for more power from the Quebec Federation of Labor.

With only 300 delegates to the convention, the QFL had to lobby long and hard to collect support for their position. When the vote was taken they won by an 80 per cent majority.

The reformers seemed to grow more powerful as the convention went along. They want more mergers among affiliates, tougher standards to provide more independence for Canadian sections of international unions and better services for members.

Camps Bombed Again

Israeli Jets Renew Raids on Terrorists

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Israeli military command said its planes strafed and bombed Arab guerrilla targets in southern Lebanon again today barely 24 hours after its devastating retaliatory attack there. It said all aircraft returned safely after a 20-minute raid.

At the same time, six thunderous explosions shook the Lebanese capital of Beirut in quick succession. One unconfirmed report said anti-aircraft batteries in the port area opened fire on Israeli planes.

But Israel said its jets attacked "terrorist objectives" on the western slopes of Mount Hermon, far south of Beirut.

Lebanon said the Israeli air raids Thursday were "reminiscent of Nazi horrors" and that the casualty toll "is of a horrifying nature."

Israeli jets hit seven areas south of Beirut on Thursday in retaliation for an Arab terrorist raid on an Israeli schoolhouse Wednesday in which more than a score of Israelis were killed.

The Palestinian news agency Wafa said the Israeli raids Thursday "will not pass without punishment. Israel will pay very dearly for the price of our children."

Communiques from the Palestine Liberation Organization promised "violent reaction" to the raids, and one guerrilla leader said retaliation will "come sooner than Israel expects."

The Israeli strikes increased the possibility that U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger will return to Washington soon without an agreement between Israel and Syria for a separation of their forces on the Golan Heights. But Kissinger made another trip to Damascus Thursday and maintained on his return to Jerusalem that "progress was made."

The Lebanese defence ministry said 36 Israeli jets made simultaneous strikes Thursday afternoon on seven targets, and an eight-plane raid followed at dusk.

The Israeli pilots made repeated bombing and strafing runs on three villages near the Israeli-Lebanese border, a Palestinian refugee camp 15 miles southeast of Beirut and three refugee camps on the outskirts of Sidon, the ancient port 25 miles south of Beirut.

Casualty figures were incomplete, but the Lebanese government and the guerrillas reported 48 killed, 184 wounded and many more unaccounted for.

Black Diamond Strike Settled

Black Diamond Cheese production workers ended a 54 day strike this morning when members of Canadian Food and Allied Workers Local P688 voted 86 per cent in favor of accepting the latest company contract offer.

Black Diamond general manager John Rigg said the terms of the new two-year agreement would mean an additional $1.10 hourly to the 190 production workers over a two year contract.

The union's original demand was for a $1.40 an hour increase over two years and the company's original offer called for 91 cents in a contract of equal duration.

Ontario to Cut Dentists' Control Over Denturists

TORONTO (CP) — The government intends to change provincial law to allow denturists to practise without dentists' supervision.

Health Minister Frank Miller introduced a bill in the legislature Thursday which expands the role of denture therapists—denturists—a move he says will anger dentists.

The issue has been controversial since legislation was introduced in 1972 requiring denturists to take exams to qualify as denture therapists who could work only under supervision of a dentist.

The changes introduced Thursday will permit a qualified denturist to work without a dentist's supervision only in instances where there are ten teeth in the upper or lower jaw or both.

"Denture therapists will not be allowed to make partial plates without supervision . . . responsibility for that supervision will remain with the dentist," said Mr. Miller.

"Currently several practitioners have qualified under the 1972 Denture Therapy Act and these denture therapists will be able to qualify to practise independently once the new bill is proclaimed, he said.

Other denturists will have to "pass an exam.

"All future denture therapy applicants will be required to complete a course in denture therapy at a community college or have equivalent qualifications," said the minister.

The government wants to eventually enable the denturists a self-disciplinary group and plans to establish a governing board of denture therapy.

Dentists have bitterly opposed giving denturists the right to work unsupervised.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon said his party will bring in amendments to allow more freedom for dentturists.

Dr. Mel Charendoff, president of the Ontario Dental Association, said the new legislation would mislead the public into believing that denturists are qualified in all aspects of dental procedures.

"The new legislation makes the Ontario government responsible for ensuring that proper safeguards are introduced to protect the public from denturists or dental mechanics who perform services they are unqualified to do," Dr. Charendoff said. "We doubt that the government will be able to do this effectively."

Dr. Charendoff also predicted the cost of dentures provided by denturists will rise.

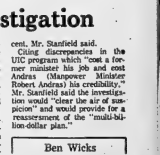
"The public will find that dental mechanics cannot make a living out of providing full dentures only."

Opposes Kissinger

Nayef Hawatmeh, above, leader of the guerrilla group that claimed responsibility for the Maalot massacre, vowed Thursday to "struggle against Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's peace mission until the end." Hawatmeh, head of the Popular Democratic Front, told a news conference in Beirut that Kissinger was "serving mainly Israel and American interests in the Middle East." (AP Photo)

Stanfield Plans UIC Investigation

TORONTO (CP) — An independent investigation of the Unemployment Insurance Commission (UIC) and its policies would be instituted by the Progressive Conservative party if it forms the next federal government, Robert Stanfield said Thursday.



The federal Progressive Conservative leader told a Conservative riding nomination meeting—one of three he attended in Toronto Thursday night—that the UIC is "very important to provide security" for those on short-term unemployment.

Criticizing the Liberal government for refusing to listen to the Conservatives' request for an investigation into the UIC in the last session of Parliament, he said he is not looking for a "witch hunt," but an investigation which would result in some reforms.

He said the UIC plan is costing every man, woman and child in Canada $100 at the present rate of unemployment of 5½ per cent.

The original cost objective was for $20 a person at an unemployment rate of 6½ per cent, Mr. Stanfield said.

Citing discrepancies in the UIC program which "cost a former minister his job and cost Andras (Manpower Minister Robert Andras) his credibility," Mr. Stanfield said the investigation would "clear the air of suspicion" and would provide for a reassessment of the "multi-billion-dollar plan."

Freezers Filled

Meat Price Fall Forecast in June

TORONTO (CP) — When the country's freezing facilities are full of stockpiled beef, there's no place for new production to go but on the market at whatever prices consumers are willing to pay, industry sources said Thursday.

They indicated this situation is likely to continue at least the end of June when freezer space is needed for field produce.

And when all that beef comes on the market, today's rising prices are expected to level, around.

"We see price difficulties," said Charles Gracey, manager of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association. "I suppose from your viewpoint that's good news."

Stocks of frozen meats in Canada rose to 206 million pounds from 130.6 million pounds in April, 1972, as speculators kept buying. Now there's a squeeze on freezer space.

"We've got to eat it, there's no other way," Mr. Gracey said.

Harold Ashley, manager of Federal Cold Storage and Warehouse Ltd., says warehouses are the first to feel buyer resistance and foods in storage have not been moving as well this spring.

Patrick Cassels, general manager at Ayer Storage Ltd., said he thinks there has been speculation in the storage of meat products, "but I couldn't prove it."

"Now meat is coming down a lot at wholesale and the speculators are getting burned but good."

Farmers Hit

OTTAWA (CP) — The prices farmers received for their products dropped slightly between February and March, but still, were 21.8 per cent higher than those received a year earlier.

Statistics Canada said Thursday in a monthly report on farm prices that the index for prices dropped 4.2 from the February total of 215.2. The index is based on 1961 prices equalling 100.

Gatineau River Overflows

Thousands Flee as Hydro Dam Opened

By THE CANADIAN PRESS.

Thousands of persons were evacuated from towns along the surging Gatineau River Thursday after heavy rainfall and melting snow forced Hydro-Quebec authorities to open spillways at the Mercier Dam, releasing water 10 times above normal flow.

In Maniwaki, Que., about 3,000 people, half the population of the logging town 90 miles north of Ottawa, have been evacuated since the Gatineau rose at least 15 feet above normal level.

Flood gates on the dam were opened five times since Tuesday, each time raising the river's level.

Hydro-Quebec officials and Maniwaki municipal police decided published reports that the spillways were opened because excessive pressure from the overflowing Baskinong Reservoir threatened to rupture the dam.

Normal flow from the dam is 10,000 cubic feet a second, but, a spokesman for Quebec Provincial Police said Thursday night, the flow was at 80,000 and expected to be increased today to 100,000 cubic feet a second.

"We haven't seen the worst yet," he said.

A Hydro-Quebec spokesman said Thursday gas and electricity supplies have been cut to 300 homes in the area.

He said the Mercier Dam spillways may have to be opened more by the weekend if rain continues.

"This will cause even further flooding, but it is either that or have the dam burst."

Meanwhile, other low-level towns along the Gatineau were also flooded, forcing evacuation of some residents by boat and truck.

Elsewhere, eight of 16 spillways at the Carillon Dam on the Ottawa River have been opened to prevent overflowing.

Mercier dam spill-offs affected the Montreal region where the Milles Iles River has risen 28 inches since flooding began Monday.

Towns north of Montreal along the river were also hit severely by floods. Lorraine, St. Marthe sur le Lac, northern Laval and Pointe Calumet were the hardest hit where at least 10,000 homes were reported flooded.

Hydro Dam Open

A high school in Maniwaki, Que., about 85 miles north of Ottawa, is surrounded by water and will be closed indefinitely. Flood waters hit this and other communities along the Gatineau River where Hydro-Quebec was forced to open a dam after several weeks of almost-steady rain. (CP Photo)

Heating Fuel Goes Up, Too

Home heating costs are being overlooked with the bulk of consumer attention being paid to gasoline costs — but the realization will come home when you get your oeil bill.

This week the majority of Belleville heating fuel wholesalers have jacked up prices by a standard 3.6 cents a gallon as an answer to the $6.50 cost a barrel cost for western Canada crude oil. The retail increase was authorized by the province to soften the blow to wholesalers who must pay the additional cost before refining operations.

A poll of major Quinte distributors reveals the price increase took effect early in the week and will show up on the next billing.

Not all companies have adopted the increase.

One oil firm representative said his company was not instituting the increase this week but this was not a guarantee the increase would not be soon coming.

"There's always one company that looks off for a day or a week, the same as there's always one company that institutes the increase first," he said.

The consumer may be getting hit twice. Most representatives interviewed suggested there would be cutbacks in free service on furnaces. At the same time, this cutback might soften oil cost increases they say.

John Rollins, sales representative for Gulf in Belleville said, "all the oil companies are going out of the free service deal."

He said he personally knew some dealerships going out of the service deal within a period of three months to a year from now.

Propane consumers will not yet be affected by price increases, according to a local office manager of Superior Propane, Bill Jones. Superior's holdback on price increases is expected to be a temporary one he said. "I imagine we'll be increasing."

Youngsters' Program Planned for Summer

Six graduating Loyalist students have received an Opportunities for Youth grant to run a program this summer for pre-school and primary grade children.

The program will start May 21 and the students are now seeking children for registration, a spokesman said.

Called KIDZ the program's goal is to create a stimulating learning environment in which children with learning problems can be detected at an early stage. A remedial program will be offered each child according to his individual requirements.

The program will be offered from 9 a.m. to noon and the afternoon and 25 children will be enrolled in each session. With six supervisors, the pupil teacher ratio will be about 4 to 1.

Only pre-school children will be accepted for the May and June part of the program. Both pre-school and primary grade children will be accepted in July and August.

Graduating students at Loyalist's early childhood education program will be the supervisors and the clinics will be run under the supervision of members of Loyalist's staff.

The program is seen by organizers as a chance for the hoped-for permanent learning clinic to assist learning disabled children. Such a clinic would also offer a permanent practicum for students at Loyalist.

The aim of the intention is a shortage of operating funds. Transportation cannot be afforded with the federal money and organizers are trying to set up a volunteer driver system to get the children to school.

Volunteers or financial donors are asked to contact Loyalist College's student extension 287, or 962-7149, or 296-2525.

Bay of Quinte Conference Ends Four-day Meeting

Delegates to the 50th Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church in Canada meeting in Kingston this week have voted against a resolution asking the provincial government to restore the legal drinking aged to 21 years.

Instead they called for stricter enforcement of the present drinking age law. The committee resolution maintained that lowering the drinking age to 18 had encouraged more drinking among younger teenagers and had perhaps been responsible for a doubling in the number of teenaged driver accidents.

But reinstating the drinking age to 21 would present too many difficulties, the delegates reasoned.

More than 400 lay and clergy delegates attended the four-day conference which concluded May 16. The conference region covers from Oshawa to Brockville and north to Madoc.

Delegates debated a resolution on abortion requesting the Ontario Medical Association and the Canadian Medical Association provide special certification for doctors trained in the surgical and counselling aspects of abortion and that the matter of abortion be a decision between a woman and two doctors, at least one of whom has been certified.

The conference passed a resolution reaffirming the commitment to the goal of bringing about unity with the Anglican, Church of Canada and the Christian Church.

During the conference the death of six ministers, including that of Rev. G. Lloyd Morgan of the Belleville Presbytery was noted.

Three candidates, Dexter R. Dafoe and Sen-Soi Koo, both of the Kingston Presbytery and Rev. Larry G. Tood from the Lindsay Presbytery were ordained into the ministry, while Miss Janet Lang Parnall, of Havelock was designated into the deaconess order.

Rev. George M. Richardson, minister of St. Paul's United Church, Perth, was installed as president of the conference for the next year.

Although there was a small increase in the number of communicants under pastoral care —146 for the Conference, membership figures for Church and Sunday School continued to decline. In 1973 local church membership was 89,543, a loss of 727 from 1972, reflecting a decrease of 17,812 in the national membership.

There are 96 charges in the presbytery in the Conference to show an increased membership, adding 102. There were 1,189 less members entered in Sunday School than in 1972, but 35,939 less than in 1962, a decrease of more than 50 per cent.

While Christian Education membership figures increased slightly by 689 over last year, they were more than 4,000 less than 1962. Income also in the UCW also showed the trend of decreasing numbers with a loss of over 1,000 in the year, of almost 10,000 since 1962.

Car Rolls In Thurlow

Officers at the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police were called on to investigate an accident in which a car rolled over on the fourth concession in Thurlow last night.

Police say a car driven by Thomas Glembisq.f. 19, of RR2, Marmora, spun out of control on the road, rolling around 8 p.m. yesterday and ended over.

The driver escaped without injury but the car sustained $500 damage.

Different Techniques Effective in Education

Everyone in his place, and in place for everyone was the educational concept argued by a ministry of education official Wednesday night at a meeting of professionals and parents concerned with exceptional children.

Dr. Gordon Bergman said that both integration and segregation are the answers to education of the "retarded", those children who don't fit into the average stream of public education.

Dr. Bergman belongs to the ministry's new branch for special education. His background is special education, beginning with a senior boy's opportunity class and continuing as inspector of Ontario Hospital Schools. He spoke Wednesday night to a joint meeting of the Council for Exceptional Children and the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities.

OFY Makes History Free

PICTON — "By the Thunderation, Boojack, All Around the Haystack" there are free copies of a book on historic Prince Edward now available.

The once-common county saying has been abbreviated to "Boojack" as a title for a collection of legends, recipes and articles.

Authors of this give-away edition are Hugh and Vivian Swain, Debra Hook and John Mason, students working last year through an Opportunities for Youth grant.

Since Boojack is the brainchild of an OFY grant it cannot be offered for sale but must be given away. Copies will be distributed from Prince Edward County museums in June and some are available at Picton Public library.

He believes simultaneously in both integration and segregation.

He reported on his study of self concepts among children who were classified as trainable retarded and those classified as educatable retarded, both being isolated in hospital training schools.

"In an institution setting the trainable were happy, at home, an at peace with themselves. The educatable were not as happy, were more aware of parents, peers and were enough to be dissatisfied with their placement.

"I don't know whether or not we should take the trainable retarded out of their secure institutional environment and make them cope with a society they can't handle."

Dr. Bergman cited results of a study conducted by the University of Illinois on positive and negative reinforcement in the education of the trainable retarded (the children for whom we build schools for the retarded such as William R. Rikely).

Positive reinforcement, in case you are not up with the latest educational jargon, is praise. Negative reinforcement is the old corporal punishment a slap on the hand for the wrong answer.

The trainable retarded learned skills best and fastest under negative reinforcement. Second best achieved results was a policy of rewarding good academic behavior, and punishing poor, and last was continuous praise and ego - building.

Another study, said Dr. Bergman showed that the retarded progressed at the same rate in skill acquisition in either an integrated or segregated setting.

In conclusion, Dr. Bergman said most children fit into the main stream of education. In considering placement, the child's needs should be considered first.

"Look at integration first, never forgetting that for some, segregation is most appropriate," he said.

More Townships Oppose Proposal

PICTON — Two more municipalities in Prince Edward have rejected the proposal for a one-tier county government system.

Bloomfield village ratepayers, at a public meeting Wednesday night, turned down the first to turn thumbs down on the proposal. North Marysburgh ratepayers also rejected the proposal Wednesday.

Last night, about 80 Sophiasburgh township residents voted unanimously against the proposed new scheme. Township clerk Gordon Wey said the basic objection seemed to be the lack of time given for study of the plan.

In South Marysburgh township this week ratepayers at a public meeting voted 2 against the one-tier proposal. Township clerk Rupert Murphy said that ratepayers present did not seem to want to discard the proposal, but agree that more facts should be known. They felt that they were being pushed into a decision prematurely.

In Wellington village last night, 13 residents supported the proposal while 16 abstained from the vote. No one voted against the proposed one-tier system.

At public meetings held recently, the municipalities of Hillier, Hallowell, Athol, Wellington and Picton have supported a one-tier system concept. A public meeting will be held in Ameliasburgh township hall tonight at 8 p.m.

Wet Fields Delay Seeding

TWEED (Special) — Spring seeding operations have suffered another setback this week with two inches of rain falling over the district since Monday.

Natural resources officials at Tweed note that with the ground water level high and the two inches of rain in the past few days, there is just no place for the water to go.

The result is that creeks and rivers in the area are running as high or higher than during the spring breakup and low lying land is still flooded.

New 4-H President

Hastings Kinsmen will council representative Kim Hughes will be meeting with other representatives during the summer to discuss new ideas and report back to the club leaders.

Damage $2,000 in Collision

TWEED — A two-car crash on Highway 7 at Whale's Service Station at Roslin Wednesday resulted in $2,500 damage.

The accident at 11.12 a.m. saw a car driven by Harold Wayne Ramsay, 28, RR 2 Madoc in collision with a car driven by Irene Zinck, 44, Belleville. A passenger in the Zinck car, Vernon Benn, Mississauga, received minor injuries.

Damage to the Ramsay car was estimated at $1,500 and to the Zinck was $1,000.

Stuck On Cops

It's tough to find a spot on an bicycle for a car bumper sticker but where there's a will there's away. Lesli Howard, a member of King George School's Outers' Club found a place on the her cyclist warning flag. Work for Retarded Aids Industry, Nursery School in Picton Area

PICTON — A door-to-door canvass for The Flowers of Hope was held in Picton Wednesday night for first time in the campaign's history here.

The blitz, one of the activities of National Week for the locally mentally retarded, earns funds to support projects such as ARC Industries of Prince Edward and the Little Learners Nursery School.

This year, employees of ARC Industries packaged 8,500 envelopes for county distribution in the Flowers of Hope campaign. Approximately 4,500 packages will be circulated by mail and the remainder taken door-to-door in Picton. This is the first time that envelopes for distribution in the town have not been sent by mail.

The ARC Industries workshop operated in Picton now employs 12 persons who have been trained a variety of hobbies and crafts. Three supervisors and one foreman, Tom Barr, work with the employers, teaching them new skills, including the completion of industrial assignments such as packaging.

The supervisors are available through a Local Initiatives Program grant until July, 1974.

The Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded lends financial support to both the ARC workshop and to the nursery school.

Dr. Benoit Bechard of Picton, president of the Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded, says that the organization has approximately 70 members.

The group raises funds through card parties, campaign participation for The Flowers of Hope and other ventures. He expects that soon the PEAMR will work in co-operation with a local service club in a fund-raising event.

Dr. Bechard commented on progress at ARC Industries but added: "Public support is still needed or we won't get anywhere."

The workshop staff is now adequate, but in mid-July when LIP workers leave, there may be a need for more volunteers.

Dr. Bechard said that there is "a dire need for a volunteer co-ordinator." He pointed out that volunteers are not required to have any particular skills.

"They just have to have some feeling towards our goals and be prepared to give some time," he said.

Application has been made for a grant for the school that would cover 80 per cent of its operating costs. A probation period, necessary before application can be made, has been completed.

ry of natural resources said Thursday.

The Crowe watershed stretches for about 30 miles between Bancroft and Marmora which is about 20 miles north east of Peterborough.

In the last 17 days, there has been 4.32 inches of rain at Bancroft, three times normal.

Because of the long chain of lakes and connecting streams, it will be several weeks before the lakes can be brought to normal levels under average weather conditions, the ministry said.

Religion In School Advocated

BLOOMFIELD — A Bloomfield woman, Mrs. Borden Cleave, has appealed to the Prince Edward County board of education for religion in the schools.

"I would like it very much if you reconsider and teach the Bible in the schools. Christianity should be the most important thing. The Lord created us — we should teach our children to be obedient to Him," she told trustees.

He added that "Christianity" is not found in ministry regulations, just reference to religious instruction.

Trustees have agreed to follow Ontario education regulations outlining steps for religious instruction. It has been stressed, however, that no pupil will be forced to study it.

The committee studying religious instruction in schools includes several ministers of different churches who are attempting to gain opinions from their congregations and their communities.

Constable Heads Legion

PICTON — A Picton police constable, Harry Sisty, has been elected president of Branch 28, Royal Canadian Legion. He succeeds Robert Skuterel, president in 1972.

First vice-president is Woodrow Blakely, second vice-president Jack Jones and secretary-manager William Winter. Directors are Ronald Stone, Douglas Pitt, Laverne Coe, Herbert Fraser, Ernie Taylor, and Oran Greatrix.

President Sisty reported that a top priority project for 1974 is a new building or major renovations to the present building on Main Street. A five-member building committee will be appointed next month to study the planned improvements.

Trenton PUC Protests Hydro Price Increases

TRENTON — Ontario Hydro rates are going up another 15 percent effective Jan 1, "unless we get up on our hind legs and do something," said Charles Hilton, chairman of Trenton's Public Utilities Commission.

Previous rate increases announced by Ontario Hydro will mean a 10 per cent hike. Mr. Hilton expects by next February, consumers will feel the entire 25 per cent increase in bills. In some instances, commissions can soften the blow of escalating Ontario Hydro prices but Mr. Hilton said it was not likely this time.

The utilities sell power based on cost. If the Ontario Hydro rate goes up, this must be passed along to the consumer.

Hydro is conducting a public meeting in Toronto in early June to discuss the rate increase before the Ontario Hydro Board (the 10-man body responsible for hydro management).

Mr. Hilton said "I'd like to know how they arrive at those figures." Initially Ontario Hydro said an annual eight per cent increase could be expected over the next five years. During the oil 'scare' tags, the percentage went to 10 and now Mr. Hilton is confused as to what induced the figure to reach 15 per cent.

He said municipal governments should be more involved in the costening of rate increases and said a PUC draft letter will be sent to Trenton council for its endorsement.

"If we don't get provincewide municipal government co-operation, its going to be a pretty sore situation," he said.

Mr. Hilton believes the local utilities and general public are losing control of Ontario Hydro.

"Ten men are now in control of this body and only one of those is elected," said Mr. Hilton. Referring to Ontario Hydro, "it was the local commissions that built that damn thing and the province comes along and picks the glory.

"The province is kicking like hell about holding the line on western oil prices but only when it comes to something they can control (Ontario Hydro), they don't hesitate about jacking up the prices," said Mr. Hilton.

Hydro says the rate increase are due to escalating costs and capital improvements to the hydro system.

It's Fireworks

SOPHIASBURGH — The annual fireworks display will be held May 19 at Sophiasburgh township park in Northport.

In North Marysburgh a fireworks display will be sponsored at North Marysburgh Centennial School by the township's recreation committee at sunset on Monday, May 20.

Vote Favors One-tier

HALLOWELL — Hallowell township residents have voted three-to-one for proposed one-tier county government at a public meeting.

Township clerk John Mallory described the meeting Monday at Pinecrest School as "very very successful". He said ratepayers asked a number of "very good" questions concerning debentures and the matter of outstanding debentures.

Under the concept of county government, Prince Edward would forfeit its ten municipal councils in favor of a single council with representatives elected from each municipality on the basis of populations.

Red Cross Nets More

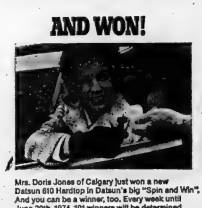
Some 25 men and women helped in the campaign, which went over its goals. Last year's collection netted $711.09.

A budget for the year's work was drawn up. It consists of blood Transfusion Service, $10; individual emergency aid $200; health work $25; sickroom supply loan cupboard $100; water safety $300; administration and campaign expenses and supplies $20 — a total of $655.

Body Identified

PICTON — The badly decomposed body of a woman discovered Tuesday along Lake Ontario at Point Petre, 13 miles south of Picton, has been identified.



Constable James Ramsbottom of the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said the body has been identified as that of Mrs. Kay Andringa, 36, of 109 Grandview Avenue, Oshawa.

Constable Ramsbottom said that Mrs. Andringa was reported missing in he Newcastle area on January 27,1974 after she left through the ice of Lake Ontario while walking with her husband.

Her body was discovered on the shores of Point Petre by two unnamed persons.

P.M. On Ethics

If Prime Minister Trudeau had President Nixon in mind — and it is pretty obvious that he did — in preaching about "ethics" at Duke University in North Carolina, why did he not come out and say so?

But then the conferment of an honorary degree is not supposed to evoke a political response, especially when it takes place in a friendly, neighboring country.

Was it not in bad taste then for Mr. Trudeau to even hint at Watergate and at the predicament of the President? Everybody in the States is playing Brutus these days, with even "friends" political and otherwise deserting him.

Was it necessary for Mr. Trudeau to shaft him too? Really, we should try and shed this self-satisfied image of a nation that has things so good, for the most part, that we flaunt a sort of divine right to counsel all and sundry. Maybe we should leave such privileges, so far as the Americans are concerned, to these very neighbors. They too are speaking with many tongues these days and here is what one of them, special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski had to say in a San Antonio address:

"We have failed to impress upon the very young here the law functions to protect individual rights — how it provides for orderly, democratic change; what the difference is between dissent and violent protest; why individual rights must be balanced with individual responsibility to the total society."

In the case of individual rights, they apply as much to President Nixon as they do to anyone else, especially the concept that a man is innocent until proven otherwise.

Another Atrocity

Another atrocity in the Middle East — and the ejection reaction of the Arab world to the massacre of Israeli high school students will not be lost upon the rest of the world.

An Arab spokesman in New York said the affair reflects the frustration of the Palestinians. Another source blamed the killings on Israeli "trickery."

It is being said too that the action was aimed at torpedoing U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's efforts to bring peace between Israel and Syria. If that is the case it has surely succeeded.

As if this were not enough the attack has caused further dissension inside Israel itself. Weakened by the recent round of fighting with the Arabs, the further lapse in security this latest tragedy represents is causing more fear and confusion.

As in the case of the Olympic Games shootings in Munich, a single shot apparently touched off the gunfire in Maalot.

A Los Angeles Times article of recent days comes to mind. It noted that murder increasingly was being politicized and thereby was gaining a macabre respectability.

Parental Cop-Out

To judge from the number of malicious fires being set in trash cans, in parkland by the waterfront and sundry other locations, it must be asked if more parents are copping out altogether, leaving their offspring to go where they like and do what they like?

We are aware of course that the answer in many cases is yes, but lately there has been this rash of small-time, but potentially dangerous, arson. In one or two cases it has been perpetrated just next to a supermarket.

From Port Colborne meanwhile comes a report of a five-year-old boy being apprehended as he was about to set fire to a car. Police had been on the alert following two previous incidents involving cars. Now they are reported pondering what to do with the youngster since he is too young to be charged.

Perhaps a few good raps on the knuckles, or on the posterior, by the father (if he is concerned enough, that is) will settle the youngster needs. Of course nobody administers that sort of discipline any more. Or do they?

Authority Of President Weakened

Domestic Problems Undermine Influence Of U.S. Abroad

By GEORGE KITCHEN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Watergate scandals, although primarily a domestic affair, may be undermining the influence of the United States in the international field.

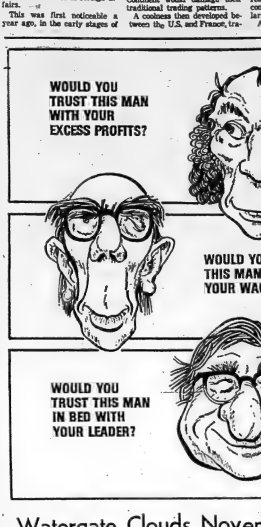
The steady erosion of the power and authority of the presidency has had marked effects on the U.S. domestic scene and some also to be hampering American conduct of foreign affairs.

This was first noticeable a year ago, in the early stages of the Watergate affair, when U.S. Secretary Henry Kissinger sought to strengthen U.S. relations with European allies by proclaiming 1973 as the Year of Europe.

That proclamation, though delivered with considerable state department fanfare, was received coolly in European capitals, particularly in some northern European states, which felt that closer U.S. ties with the Continent would damage their traditional trading patterns.

A coolness then developed between the U.S. and France, traditional friends since the French supported the American struggle for independence. It became pronounced early this year, with French government spokesmen expressing occasional criticism of U.S. initiatives in seeking to promote a Middle East peace settlement.

In the financial sphere, the weakness of the presidency often has been felt within the U.S. itself as one of the basic reasons for the lack of overseas confidence in the American dollar.



At the United Nations a recent special session of new materials has been cited as an example of indecisiveness on the part of the U.S. administration. It seemed apparent that Washington was unable to define clearly its aims at that session.

The assembly had been called to consider demands by the developing countries for higher prices for the raw materials they ship to industrialized countries and for a larger share of the world's wealth.

In marked contrast to the leading role it has assumed in other UN activities the U.S. played a relatively minor part in that session. It was not until the dying days of the three-week meeting that it came up with a proposal for a $4 billion UN emergency fund to help poorer countries cushioned of immediate assistance.

The U.S. proposal came so late that it was literally shunted aside. The assembly went on to endorse, with great reluctance on the part of most western states, a declaration calling for a new world economic order and quick aid for developing countries in economic trouble because of high prices for food, fertilizer and fuel.

One saving grace for the U.S. is that it has in Henry Kissinger a strong state secretary with a clear mandate from the president in the conduct of foreign affairs. A state secretary of lesser stature would find himself hampered if he had to consult at every twist and turn of foreign policy with a president too preoccupied with Watergate problems to give full attention to foreign affairs.

Watergate Clouds November Vote

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — The heavy jockeying and campaigning has begun for November elections in the United States, with more nuttiness than usual clouding the experts' forecasts.

Everyone agrees there are likely to be substantial turnovers both in Congress and in the state capitals.

Everyone, including the Republicans, agrees that Republican candidates face an uphill fight because of the accumulated drag of the Watergate scandals, the energy crisis and unchecked inflation—all issues linked to the Republican president, Richard Nixon.

But beyond that, agreement ends apart. The political pictures in the U.S. has shown a dramatic capacity for change in recent years and the six months remaining until the elections provide ample time for another major change in voter opinions.

Primary elections Tuesday in four states were the first concentrated burst of pre-election activity, giving supporters of the Democratic and Republican parties in those states a chance to select candidates for the actual elections.

Other primaries will be held throughout the summer, following the whims of individual state laws.

Some Democrats in Washington speak of a possible veto-proof Congress—where two-thirds of the members in both House and Senate may be counted on to push Democratic-supported legislation over the despite a veto by President Nixon during his last two years in the White House.

Republicans generally hold back on forecasts. They feel their numbers in the House of Representatives may be sharply cut, but think they can hold on for the Senate. Besides, they say, it's far too early to make meaningful predictions.

Under the crazy-quilt pattern of American elections, voters in November will elect 34 senators—one-third of the total—to six-year terms, all 435 representatives to two-year terms and 33 of the 50 state governors to terms of varying length, plus a host of state and local officials.

Forecasts of a substantial turnover among incumbents from both parties are based on the numbers of sitting members who have decided not to seek re-election.

In the House of Representatives, 17 Republicans and 10 Democrats have already announced their retirement. Others are expected to make the same decision later. Therefore additional representatives are leaving their places to seek a higher seat or state office.

The most notable example is in Arkansas, where veteran Senator J. William Fulbright is the state's popular young governor, Dale Bumpers.

Republicans hope to hold their losses in the Senate to four or five seats, or about one half what Democrats need to give them their cherished veto-proof Senate.

Continuing a trend of the last five years, Republicans seem destined to lose more of the 18 state governorships they now hold. Their most important losses may come in the two biggest states, New York and California.

In the House of Representatives, the impact of personality and local politics may play a role with Democratic predictions of a gain of more than 30 seats, on top of the 246 seats they now hold.

A senior official of the AFL-CIO, which backs many Democrats, warned recently that voter confusion with the Republicans has not increased the ranks of registered Democrats. Most of the Republican defectors now list themselves as independents.

Edward Jenner, the English physician who originated vaccination, was born 225 years ago today—in 1749—at Berkeley, Gloucestershire. Although he never passed a medical examination, which was not compulsory at that time, his life work led to protection from the scourge of smallpox. He was started down the belief of the people of Gloucestershire that a person who had suffered through cow pox was immune to smallpox. By 1800 vaccination of cow pox into humans was a fairly practised thing throughout England.

Success of Canada's Sixth Victory Loan was assured on Friday when it passed the minimum of one billion, two hundred million by over eleven million dollars. Saturday's sales brought the total up to $1,211,000,000 which was about five and a half millions above the total recorded at the end of the last day of the Fifth Victory Loan.

It is thought that when all sales are counted, the total may reach nearly $1,400,000,000 millions of dollars are yet to be counted. The loan has set a record.

Ottawa Journal

A "discussion paper" of the solicitor-general's department recently flirted with the idea of reducing crime by decriminalizing some of it out of existence. It's an interesting subject.

Offences against morality include many that have no victims or, at least, have willing victims. Gambling, prostitution, the use of soft drugs and pornography are examples of particular interest to a large market that exists in society.

Some law reform advocates argue that crime rates for such illegal activities have an artificial quality about them unfamiliar to the public. The more police hired to catch crooks, the more "victimless crimes" the higher the official crime rate would go. Such a claim could be used as an argument to have even more police to hand over to people into court, ad infinitum.

Besides diluting the law's impression of a sudden increase in illegal behaviour, such an effect would bring many otherwise law-abiding people into the court and jail system where they meet real criminals and learn to commit crimes that have victims—or so the argument goes. It is not entirely unfounded.

Many serious crimes of the past, however, balk at going to the other extreme and re-defining victimless crimes out of existence. Minimal police activity supported by public opinion keeps the "moral offences" at least partially illegal, though practically if not numerically. Who is to say that gambling, drinking, for instance, would lead to an increase in gambling?

The counter-argument is economic—the state is losing millions, or billions of dollars annually, by not ensuring that controlled gambling, prostitution, soft drug use and so forth produce tax revenue for the whole people instead of for organized crime. A lot of good could be done with that money.

It is certain some crimes will be "reduced" by legislative means in the context of society. The problem for the lawmakers is how to ensure that society really wants such changes. It is clearly by silly to imagine that something later all the "victimless crimes" will be wiped off the statute books, just as it is silly to think jay-walking should result in an offence simply because it's so popular.

What-is more likely is that more and more victimless crimes will be put into the category of less serious offences to distinguishing the offenders from the real criminal element in society.

Saharan Drought Brings Further Appeal For Aid To The Starving

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Perhaps both you and your readers are weary of hearing about it, but OXFAM must once again direct your attention to the terrible drought in sub-Saharan Africa.

A catastrophe such as these past seven years of drought—threatening the lives of many people year after year—is enough to the shocking power of even the most generous Canadian. The need seems never to end, and the frustrations we are tempted to block it from our minds.

This year, the United Nations co-ordinated relief efforts in the African drought zone are well organized. Consequently, we expect that the last lots of life over the coming dry season will be lower. But men, women and children are still dying daily. Most of these unfortunates are among nomadic groups trapped at isolated oases in the desert and not yet within reach of existing relief operations.

An estimated 15,000 Tuareg nomads are in this situation within Algeria alone. They have fled north from Mali and halted, exhausted, at the only wells or oases just across the Algerian frontier. Once a proud people, they are now destitute, hungry and dying at the rate of 25 per day.

OXFAM and the Algerian Red Crescent have launched a rescue effort which is bringing 400 tons of food and medicines across the desert by camel-train to Tamanrasset. Oasis where 3,000 Tuareg are cramped in indescribable misery. From Tamanrasset, most of the supplies will be transhipped by truck and to three posts on the Mali frontier where most of the remainder of the Tuareg are located. A mobile medical team of two doctors, four nurses and three assistants accompanying the convoy is also supported by OXFAM fund.

A thousand miles to the Southeast in Chad, the farmers are in slightly better shape. They have relief supplies, but they must sow their staple crop of millet by the end of this month to get any harvest this year—and there is no seed for them to sow. OXFAM and the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the United Nations have agreed to buy 400 tons of millet seed in Nigeria and get it distributed in Chad by the end of May.

OXFAM-Canada has pledged $21,00 to support the Tuareg rescue operation for four months, and additional money if needed to carry it beyond that time. We have sent $20,000 to purchase millet seed for Chad. But our efforts need the continued support of Canadians. Donations may be sent to OXFAM, Box 10,000, Toronto.

Quinte Labor Council's Proposal

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Apropos the article "Labor Motion Will Bolster Police Council" in the issue of Saturday, May 11.

Quinte District Labor Council representative Ian Reilly's notion of motion calling for "organized labor to boycott this year's United Way appeal if the YMCA continues to receive funding from two sources has caused a furore.

As Mr. Reilly has not yet spoken to the motion it seems premature that he should be accused of "blackmail" which clearly indicates this is his intent.

On the subject of blackmail, in the same context implied by Mr. Scrimer, surely the threats of "loss of services to the community" if grants should be cut off by the YMCA, the UCS and Chamber of Commerce this year can be construed as "blackmail."

What about all those citizens who do not give to the appeal every year? Isn't this form for the very reason that is being advanced by Mr. Reilly? Often they all "blackmailing" city council?

If warning city council to discontinue a grant is "blackmail" then warning council of the consequences of not continuing a grant, is the same thing.

It is a strange thing, in Belleville, the "Friendly City", that as soon as any labor organization has something to say, the wheels are soon set in motion to discredit it.

In this city the average worker's voice is supposed to have his place, his mouth shut and his eyes and ears closed.

It is time that we started to change. Let's keep it that way.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY.

The United Community Services

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It is comforting to read that the United Community Services of Belleville and District, in a letter by its president, has placed itself firmly behind the constructive sentiments expressed in Neil Isbell's editorial of 9 April 1974.

Thank God that at least the UCS has managed to show off the inroads of radicalism to maintain the democratic right of its social activities! For only from an elevated, independent vantage of view can such a worthy organization be able to assess social services objectively and enforce its findings.

Fortunately, the letters Patient of the UCS grant it the power to evaluate health, welfare and recreation services maintained in Belleville and district, and to encourage by continuing review and revision the standards, etc., of such services. The Letters Patent of the UCS also give it the courage and promote liaison with, and interpretation of, federal, provincial, municipal and voluntary health, welfare, and recreation services.

We may now look forward that the UCS may, in due course, congratulate by a, and the continual rip-off of the Underprivileged, through its commission by active intervention, to encourage, by example, Canada Manpower to take a more accountable role in the term "suitable employment" for those on its active files, to evaluate Ontario's Family and Social Services with a view of increasing accountability and efficiency, d, do the same as under the Ontario Committee on Social Services, etc., etc., e, glance at the affairs of the Ontario Hydro and Telephone Services, where not the sheep, eat, but the shepherds are known.

Does this seem like a tall order? No, not at all: armed with the UCS' letters patent, paragraphs (a) to (k), the new executive director will soon bring the federal, provincial, municipal and voluntary services to heel to achieve high standards, economy, and efficiency in all of them.

Grey Areas of 'Crime' Are Probed

Australia News

The minister for the environment and conservation, Dr. Moss Cass, opposed the start of nuclear power at the present stage of technology. He said,

"If Australia goes nuclear before the advent of cleaner reactors, we run the terrible risk of bequeathing a radio-active wasteland to future generations." He was referring to reservations articulated by the chairman of the Australian Atomic Energy Commission, Sir Philip Baxter.

Nuclear Power Is Not For Australia

Dr. Cass said promotion of nuclear power as safe, clean and nonpolluting was an example of the "blackmail" which no one in a position of responsibility could afford to follow. Australia was lucky to have alternate energy sources to nuclear power for indefinite future. "The world is in grave irony, 'after our vigorous protests to nuclear testing, to voluntarily expose Australians to possible contact with lethal radioactivity," he said.

Uncertainty Over Mortgages Creates Housing Confusion

OTTAWA (CP) — Growing uncertainty about the mortgage money market is creating confusion in housing across the country.

A survey by The Canadian Press this week indicates mortgage money is scarce everywhere as mortgage lenders and investors cautiously watch mortgage rates. Some lenders are in cities, which has climbed to 11 and ½ per cent, show no signs of peaking.

Opinions differ about how the mortgage problem is affecting house prices. Some real estate experts say prices are levelling off in high-priced markets such as Toronto and Vancouver. Yet builders question this view.

In some cities, such as Edmonton and Halifax, the general view is that prices are continuing upward. In others, such as Fredericton and Charlottetown, realtors say higher mortgage rates are dampening sales. One agent said this may force more people to rely on apartment living, driving up rents.

Joe Ottawa lender said a current shortage of mortgage funds for new construction may create another housing shortage when mortgage rates ease next year.

Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford and Ernest Assly, president of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada (HUDAC), say they are investigating separate surveys to find out what the mortgage lending situation is across Canada.

Mr. Basford has promised he will make an announcement soon about mortgages. This would include proposals to mortgage lenders to reduce down-payment requirements for low-and medium-priced housing—a suggestion mentioned in the recent federal budget.

Down payment levels now range up to about 40 per cent of the total house price.

Mr. Assaly said his organization is checking with HUDAC membags in Canada before approaching the government next week on the mortgage situation.

The housing picture started changing rapidly in some cities about a month ago when the Bank of Canada increased its lending rate to 8¼ per cent from 7¾ per cent. The lending rate also was increased another half a percentage point last weekend to 8¾ per cent.

Mortgage and other interest rates charged by chartered banks also have been rising, reflecting the increased cost to the chartered banks of borrowing from the Bank of Canada. Other mortgage lenders have followed suit.

Until recent weeks, house prices were rising steadily despite increasing mortgage rates.

Ontario Housing Minister Sidney Handleman and Maurice Park, president of the Toronto Real Estate Board, both said last week Toronto house prices have stabilized.

However, the real estate board issued figures this week showing that Toronto prices in the first part of May rose 8.3 per cent over April. Mr. Park said this was mainly due to sales of expensive homes where buyers can easily get mortgage money.

Mr. Assaly said he doubts Mr. Handleman can back up statements that Ontario house prices will decline by the end of June.

Vancouver real estate agent Hugh Cleo says housing prices are levelling off in that city, another tight housing market. This may be due to a greater supply of housing for sale, he said.

Two-price Drug Firms Assailed

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Drug Manufacturers Association said Thursday it has filed a submission with Ontario's minister of consumer and corporate affairs criticizing the "two-price pricing system" of some multinational drug firms.

The association, which represents Canadian-owned drug manufacturers, said that in such cases the manufacturer offers for sale a high-priced brand name drug and the low-priced generic drug.

"The two-level pricing of an essential commodity such as a pharmaceutical inevitably will arouse the attention of government agencies and various consumer associations," it said in a statement.

"After all, how can an ideal cal product have two prices, far apart, and both prices be correct? Something ought to be wrong somewhere in the pricing structure."

Davis Bombarded With Gas Queries

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Premier William Davis was bombarded with questions about increased gasoline prices Thursday when he toured this eastern Ontario industrial city.

In meetings with businessmen, high school students and at news conferences, the premier steadfastly maintained that the solution to the increases, which came into effect Wednesday, rests with the federal government and not the province.

He said Ottawa was trying to push this responsibility on to Ontario because of the July 8 federal election campaign.

"Quite obviously, there's an election," he said in an interview. "They are a little sensitive that, as a matter of government policy, they've done very little about it."

He repeated the theme in hearpt-style sessions with 300 students in Kenner Collegiate auditorium and at a combined luncheon of three service clubs where he also answered questions from the audience.

One student asked why Peterborough gasoline prices had gone up 15 cents a gallon in some cases.

Mr. Davis said this kind of increase would also be due to expenses of the service station proprietor and would not necessarily be a gain for the oil companies.

The premier's wife, Kathy, accompanied him but followed her own schedule which included a visit to the Curve Lake Indian reserve and a school for the mentally retarded, lunch with wives of municipal officials and an appearance on local television.

Mr. Davis started his day with a brief speech to delegates attending the annual meeting of the Ontario Association for the Mentally Retarded at Trent University.

Canadian Economist Opposes Zero Growth

MONTREAL (CP)—A leading Canadian economist plans to challenge the economic thinking of the prestigious Club of Rome at a major international conference opening May 20 in Hamburg.

Arthur Lermer of Sir George Williams University will speak against new ideas which he says tend to "trade economic growth for the quality of life."

Prof. Lermer contends that "zero growth" would lead to an impoverishment of society and inability to deal with problems brought about by growth at too fast a pace.

Zero growth is widely interpreted as the gist of statements made by the Club of Rome and others, he said.

The idea is that social inplotitation and poverty are brought about by the exile which aims at endless economic expansion.

Prof. Lermer will join John Kenneth Galbraith, noted Harvard economist, and others in delivering speeches at the official opening of the International Congress of Public and Co-operative Economy.

In an interview Thursday, Prof. Lermer said he agrees that the concept of economic growth as a prime goal of economic policy has to be re-examined. But he is seeking to harmonize growth with human values.

"Most economists claim that zero growth means a retreat," he said. "But a retreat will not only limit the means by which you can clean up the environment and improve the quality of life, but could create a state of mind of stagnation that could lead to rapid decline."

It is important to guard against a complete dismissal of the concern for limits to growth, he said. "We must not be indifferent to warnings from the Club of Rome. Where I do differ, really, is in the solutions."

"It is necessary to synchronize the quality of life with the best possible level of growth. But if society completely gave up the growth idea, the repercussions might be worse."

Jessiman Defends Chartering Planes

TORONTO (CP) — James Jessiman (PC—Port William) defended today his chartering of aircraft on three occasions as the only way to get to important meetings of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission (ONTC).

Mr. Jessiman, chairman, also defended his charging of expenses involved in flying over Florida to Toronto and back.

Provincial auditor F. N. Scott had questioned the charters.

But Mr. Jessiman said today the flights were the only way he could get from Toronto to ONTC meetings in Timmins.

"I have no authority to charter a flight," Mr. Jessiman said, adding that approval had to come from the resources ministry of Leo Bernier.

"I have been going to Florida in January for 20 or 25 years and paying my own expenses," he said.

Officials also defended the use of two business cars for entertainment purposes. The cars are equipped to serve drinks and lunches.

The cars, also used by senior management officials cost $6,730 to stock last year, including food and linen.

Energy Board Asked to Set Crude Oil Imports Quota

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Energy Board was asked Thursday to set a quota for imports of foreign crude oil to be used by Montreal refineries.

David Waldon, president of Interprovincial Pipe Line Ltd., said in testimony before the board that such an "order would formalize" the Trudeau government's policy that Western Canada crude should flow into Montreal at a rate of 250,000 barrels a day.

Interprovincial, at the request of the federal government, has applied for permission to extend its Edmonton-to-Sarnia, Ont., pipeline to Montreal.

Several months ago the government declared such an extension in the public interest since it would relieve Eastern Canada of its reliance on higher-priced imported oil.

Mr. Waldon said the $140-million extension is a high business risk since it relies on a statement of government policy. There also was the chance of large amounts of oil being found of the East Coast.

"But governments change," Mr. Waldon told the board.

"We are going to have an election and we may have the same government and we may not," he declared.

His company would feel "a lot more comfortable" if the energy board felt it had the authority to declare a quota on foreign crude.

Replying to Peter Lewington, one of hundreds of southern Ontario farmers whose land will be crossed by the pipeline, Mr. Waldon said the company would do all it could to lessen the environmental impact of the project.

But if the line is to be built by the heating season of 1975-76, as the government wishes, "environmental repercussions will have to be waived," Mr. Waldon said.

Extra $10,000 Paid for Firm

TORONTO (CP) — The legislature's public accounts committee wants to know who authorized an extra $10,000 in the purchase of the Owen Sound Transportation Co.

"Someone has very seriously overstepped his authority in this matter," said chairman Pat Reid (L—Lab-Rainy River) at a committee meeting Thursday.

The report from the auditor said that under an agreement signed in April, 1973, the ONTC purchased the Owen Sound company, which operates a ferry service between Tobermory and Manitoulin Island, for $385,000.

However, a government order-in-council stipulated the cost was not to exceed $375,000.

ONTC officials denied Thursday that they made the deal to buy the company and authorized the extra $10,000.

Mining Firm Withholds Payment to Railroad

TORONTO (CP) — A mining firm said to owe the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission (ONTC) nearly $500,000 apparently is withholding payment while negotiations on freight rates and track rental are continuing, members of a legislative committee were told Thursday.

"They just refuse to pay the bill while negotiations are going on with the government," P. S. Clifford, Ontario Northland Railway (ONR) general manager, said.

A report from provincial auditor Norman Scott given Thursday to the legislature's public accounts committee shows that as of Dec. 31, 1973, Ecstall Mining Ltd., a subsidiary of Texas Gulf Inc., owes the ONTC a total of $490,000.

ONTC is refusing to reduce the standard rate it charges to haul ore from the mine to the concentrator, but the company was given some sort of commitment by former justice minister Allan Lawrence that some sort of arrangement would be made, Mr. Clifford said.

The all new Toyota Corona. Now big car owners have something to turn to.

CORONA 4-DOOR SEDAN

In a test conducted by an independent testing organization,* 39 big car owners were given Toyota Coronas to drive for a few weeks.

They drove them in town and out of town. Exactly the way they drove their big cars.

The results? An overwhelming majority of the drivers gave the Corona an extremely favorable review, with many of them remarking especially on the Corona's "big car feel."

The test drivers may have been surprised, but we weren't.

The Toyota Corona was designed to bridge the gap between the big car and the small car from the drawing board on up.

Everything about it was specifically engineered to meet the big car owner's standards:

Unit body construction is utilized for strength and stability. You ride in a solid steel cage, with steel reinforcing the roof over your head and the door panels at your sides.

The front and rear are specially designed to crumple at a pre-determined rate to absorb impact before it reaches the passenger compartment.

The end result is something you can actually feel. Gripping the wheel, the Corona feels firm, solid, stable. Steering response and overall handling are excellent. (Radial ply tires are standard equipment on four of the five models.)

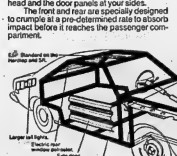
Deeply cushioned reclining bucket seats are specially contoured to the shape of your back. A six foot driver has plenty of knee and headroom. There's more hip and shoulder room, too.

And power is there when you need it. (With our economical 4 cylinder, 2 liter overhead cam engine.)

What's more, the end result of our engineers' labours is something you can also see. And when they were satisfied that they'd turned out an automotive that was exactly right for the times, our engineers designed a few touches that put it way ahead of them.

Like ESP. An electronic warning panel (Hardtop models only) that monitors 11 of the car's vital functions and actually lets you know, automatically, when something needs attention.

A new handless 3-speed automatic transmission (optional) with a smoother shift and less maintenance than any other type.



And a gas saving 5-speed transmission. The console mounted 5-speed stickshift is standard (Hardtop with ESP) on the Corona SR Hardtop.

There's even an easy-to-remove instrument panel and simplified front end alignment system to hold maintenance costs down.

All in all, it's enough to convince even the most dyed-in-the-wool big car owner that he can't give up his big car without giving up most of the things he buys a big car for.

Big car people, now it's your turn.

Skipping Rhymes

Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Sailor, Rich Man, Poor Man, Thief, Doctor, Lawyer....

Photos and Story by Isabel Huggan

The sounds of spring are different from any other season.

The scented air carries the thunk-thunkety-thunk of balls bouncing against brick building, the thwack of baseball bats, the clatter of roller skates . . . and the constant whap-whap-whap of skipping ropes.

The ropes are always accompanied in their rhythmic spinning by the ritual chanting of skipping rhymes to keep the beat, to name the game, to give everyone a turn.

Keep the kettle boiling,
Miss a beat you're out.

Remember that one? No matter how old you are or which sex you are, you have in your head hundreds of these songs you've heard during school recesses.

Even boys who eventually drift to the far reaches of the playground to scuffle dispute playing tag or soccer, can chime in for verse after verse on the rare occasions when they rejoin the girls skipping.

But it is in the mother and daughters of our country that the rhymes really reside. Passed on from generation to generation, the skipping songs are changeless over the years. Many of the ones being sung today in Belleville are a century old and are the same as those being skipped to in Edmonton and Halifax.

Little girls grow up learning the intricate skills of Double Dutch and Dolly Dutch, the skipping done between two ropes. Prestige comes with the ability to jump "Pepper" (very fast) demanded by the verse which ends

My mother sent me to the store
And this is what she sent me for:
Salt, vinegar, mustard, pepper!

Some verses call for group participation, such as this one

All in together girls!
This is the weather girls!
I spy the teacher,
Kissing the preacher!
Biff! Bang! The fire's all OUT!

And what a disgrace when you don't get "OUT" in time, or step on the rope and have to be an Ender! Turning the rope for others to jump is one of the most joyless, thankless tasks of childhood, a necessity made bearable only by the waiting for someone else to miss a hop.

Teddy bear, teddy bear, turn around.
Teddy bear, teddy bear, touch the ground.
Teddy bear, teddy bear, show your shoe.
Teddy bear, teddy bear, 21 skidoo!

Others demand physical agility and quick thinking at the same time that the verse is being recited.

Girl Guide, Girl Guide dressed in blue
These are the motions you must do.
Stand at attention,
stand at ease,
Bend your elbows, bend your knees,
Salute to the captain, bow to the queen,
Turn your back on the washing machine!

(Subtle variations in the rhymes do occur, as "washing machine" has changed to "dirty submarine" in some Belleville skipping circles!)

Even harder is the rhyme called "Donald Duck is a One-Legged Duck", in which the skipper must progress from jumping on one foot to eventually touching the ground with both feet, both hands, and her forehead while jumping the rope. Try that if you need a little afternoon pick-me-up!

Many verses involve counting the number of times a girl can keep jumping. Remember this one?

Cinderella, dressed in yella
Went upstairs to kiss her fella.
How many kisses did she get?
One, two, three, four.

Some counting rhymes tell elaborate stories and are often quite bizarre, such as this chant heard on a public school ground this week.

Fudge, fudge, tell the judge
Suzy is having a baby.
Curl, curl, it's a girl.
Joy, joy, it's a boy.
Sam's going crazy.
Wrap it up in tissue paper
Throw it down the elevator
How many pounds does it weigh?
One, two, three . . .

Other tales arise out of the brother-sister rivalry common during these early years, such as this rather malicious little sont.

Down by the river,
down by the sea
Johnny broke a bottle and blamed it on me.
I told Ma, Ma told Pa,
Johnny got a lickin'
Ha, ha, ha!

Some verses are arranged to keep an even progression of skippers going through the ropes, but songs like this next one often bog down in quarrels and recriminations if only the "favorites" are picked to jump in.

Vote, vote, vote for dear old Suzy.
Who's that knocking on the door?
If it's (Suzy picks her friend here),
We'll let her in.
And we'll sock her on the chin.
And we won't vote for Suzy any more.
Shut the door. (Suzy jumps out, and her friend continues.)

Had you really forgotten "Jumpsies, goulash, wiggle-waggle and the splits"?

There words and strange syllables, some of which have no real meaning outside the skipping world, are enough to bring on a bout of rhymes, in even the most sensible-shoed matron.

Say "Andy, Pandy, sugar and candy," or "Ickabacker, Ickabacker, Soda cracker, Boo!" or "One, two three, alery," and you can conjure up a day in May when the girls are giggling and singing between the twirling ropes. Magic words bringing back the magic times of childhood.

White lilies, white lilies,
Growing in the sun.
We are all young ladies,
Yessir, every one.
All except for Suzy,
She's the only one!
Fie, fie, fie for shame.
Turn around once,
And say a boy's name.
That's who you'll marry,
Yes, No, Yes, No, Yes.

New Regulations Govern Car Seats

OTTAWA: — Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Herb Gray announced Wednesday new regulations under the Hazardous Products Act which greatly strengthen safety standards for children's car seats and harnessers.

"On March 4 I announced proposals to strengthen the regulations in two stages", Mr. Gray said, "At that time,

Who's Who?

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — George and Jan Jarvie are your typical couple. He's husky, 6-foot-4, 230, a professional boat builder. She's slim, a housewife, working girl.

She's George. He's Jan.

In the five years they have been married, the confusion has been endless. Jan Jarvie still refuses to call his wife by her given name, which actually is spelled Jorj.

"He'll call me frog, hey you, bear, anything but George," she says.

Jarvie was named for Finnish ancestors. His wife believes jokingly that her name was "made up by a very odd mother, who couldn't think of anything."

School was a nightmare of mixups. Everytime Jorj was asked her name, it was written down as George . . . and boys' gym was one of her required courses.

School authorities insisted she "take that course and Jorj recalls:

"I kept telling them, 'but wait, wait.' Actually, I thought it was OK but the freshmen boys were terrified.

"To this day, we fight to get Jan listed as the husband on applications and me as the wife. The nieces and nephews have a terrible time with Uncle Jan and Aunt George, but they're finally getting it."

I invited comments, which I have since received from consumer groups, industry, and all interested persons. While there has been some suggestion that parts of the proposed regulations are in advance of current technology, I believe they are required because experimental testing has shown that seats meeting the new requirements would result in greatly improved protection for our children under vehicle crash conditions.

I have therefore proceeded to have the government issue the regulations required to implement these revisions. They will provide, as I originally proposed, that the new requirements will be phased in over 18 months. This is needed so that industry will have sufficient time to develop and put on the market seats meeting the new requirements."

Any seat manufactured after July 31, 1974 and any seat sold after October 31, 1974 regardless of when manufactured, must comply with the first stage of the new regulations. This stage is directed toward further reducing the likelihood of abdominal or other internal injuries and provides better protection under frontal vehicle crash conditions at the earliest possible date by reducing permissible movement of the test body used in the static test from 12 inches to 6 inches.

Any seat sold after October 31, 1975 will be subject to additional standards required by the second stage of the new regulations. These include requirements based on dynamic tests to simulate vehicle crash conditions under frontal, rear and side impacts.

"This is most important because of the popular trend toward compact cars with smaller interior dimensions and the fact that, in these cases, the danger of head injuries occurring to children using car seats would be even greater than in the case of larger vehicles", Mr. Gray said. "The requirements will further reduce the likelihood of head injury under frontal impact because I am including in the regulations a limit of only 18 inches on a child's head movement in a test that simulates head on crash conditions at 30 mph. In addition, they will provide a new dimension of protection in the event of side or rear impact accidents."

Mr. Gray pointed out that regulations require seats presently on the market to be accompanied by installation instructions. The regulations announced today will require the display of more extensive instructions on both the seat and carton to allow consumers access to all facts before purchasing a purchase.

Additionally, a new requirement in the regulations is that seats must be labelled as complying with safety standards required by the Children's Car Seats and Harnesses Regulations, effective November 1, 1974.

The Minister added that parents could ensure the best protection for their children by locating a child car seat in the centre position of the vehicle seat, preferably in a rear seat of the car whenever possible.

Verses Tell About Life

Skipping rhymes may tell you more about your childhood than you think.

According to Francelia Butler, a University of Connecticut, English professor who specializes in children's literature, you can tell a great deal about the psychology of children and about the culture of nations.

Dr. Butler, who has collected more than 1,000 rhymes from her travels throughout the world, is now touring Asia to study seven skipping races. With the help of an interpreter she'll visit villages, give children the ropes to jump with, and listen to their rhymes.

Dr. Butler says that most of our skipping songs are scraps of ballads dating back to Roman times, the Middle Ages and the Renaissance.

There are many recurrent themes running through the rhymes which reflect young children's frustration with their families, and their matter-of-fact acceptance of death.

Dr. Butler says that the verses show that children don't like to be children.

"They want to be like adults. In their fantasy world, they can work out various family and life situations they become involved in. And rope skipping is a rehearsal for life."

SOME SHOW-CASE STORIES

By Viva Richmond Graham

A country's cultural heritage is the gift of His people. — Anon.

* * * *

One of Belleville's well-known stores on Front Street, was the McFee Jewelry Store.

The business was founded in 1860 by Mr. Angus McFee, then later taken over by his nephew, John McFee, upon whose retirement in 1963, was closed.

Today at the Hastings County Museum, "Glengmoe House", curator Marten Lewis points out:

"The show-cases in this room are from the Angus McFee Store; a gift to the museum by Angus McFee, son of the late John McFee. Also, here is an excellent photograph of the store's interior, which shows the arrangement of the cases in which the merchandise of jewelry was displayed."

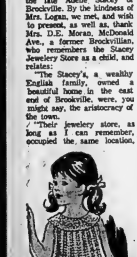
Angus McFee Foster Ave., son of the late John McFee, who presented the cases from his family's store to the museum recalls:

"Though they are not antique, they are beautifully designed mahogany cases which were custom-made at the Jones Firm of Deseronto, Ontario, in 1913, without benefit of nail or screw.

"The entire wall-cases which are alternate bay (round-shaped) and flat, as well as the horse-shoe floor cases are bolted together, thus allowing, by law, their removal, at the time my father retired. The case would be extremely expensive to duplicate today."

"I shall always remember what a beautiful jewellery store was McFee' when it came to Belleville as a bride, in 1929," reminisces Mrs. Edson Logan whose late husband was the well-known manager of the store.

"My husband, whose father at one time operated a hotel in Belleville was born, however, in Hastings. As a boy of 14 years old, he wanted to be a watch-maker. Later he went to Toronto where he found an opening at Kents Jewellery store on Yonge Street.



"One day he heard a manager for a jewelery store was needed in Belleville, through a traveller in the business; applied, was accepted and thus began our married life, here, where Mr. Logan remained with Mr. McFee until his retirement in 1953.

"The following year, my husband went into business for himself, on Bridge St. East, and so remained until his passing in 1972-twenty years later. Our son-in-law, Mr. Lynch is now in charge of the business on Front Street.

A friend and business associate of Mr. Logan's was the late Adelle Stacey of Brockville. By the kindness of Mrs. Logan, we met, and wish to present, as well to her son, Mrs. D.S. Moran, McDonald Ave., a former Brockvillian, who remembers the Stacey Jewelery Store as a child, and relates:

"The Stacey's, a wealthy English family, owned a beautiful home in the south end of Brockville, were, you might say, the aristocracy of the town.

"Their jewelery store, as long as I can remember, occupied the same location, and was the same shade of green. It's interior was and still is beautifully adorned by the same exquisitely handcarved mahogany showcases. Cases such as are never seen anymore; so rare, so beautiful. Installed in 1863, when the business was founded.

"I have an uncle, now 90 years old, who started as a junior clerk there and never worked elsewhere, until he retired. Others, too, were employed. I do not remember ever seeing a woman as a clerk there. The men wore dark suits and whenever I went there I felt I was in church; the atmosphere was so formal and dignified.

"Should another customer enter the store while one clerk was engaged, the would never leave his customer to call another clerk at the back of the store. Instead, he used a little stick-pin kept in his pocket. It's click summoned help at once.

"And if a lady never married, maintained his own apartment. Maybe on the when he took over the business upon his father's passing. Then, as the years passed on, he lived, until his death, in the family residence which is now turned into apartments.

"Of his will, Adele stipulated that the clerks (there were four) would inherit the store and the name Stacey be removed.

"The name of the senior clerk was chosen. Today the Jewellery store, its showcases as beautiful as ever, is no longer known as Stacey's but ...Winfield's."

CLEARING IN THE WEST THE STREAM RUNS FAST

By NELLIE McCLUNG

On the day Nellie McClung won her elder brother Will kissed their mother affectionately and said he was sorry it was a girl but she must not be too disappointed because it wasn't her fault.

As though these words set the tenor for her life, Nellie Mooney never learned first in Ontario and later Manitoba as a young girl who continually had to be reminded about "woman's place".

Nellie never took the admonitions - from her mother and older sisters - too seriously; and she became a leading suffragette in Manitoba, making that province the first to grant women the vote.

In the two volumes of this autobiography, Nellie skillfully blends anecdote and description to bring readers a fascinating portrait of the times and the people, whether they were farm wives gathered for quilting or the premier of Manitoba refusing to take suffrage seriously.

In the first volume, the story of her life until her marriage to Wes McClung, Nellie describes life as a pioneer in the West, her career as a student and as a teacher and the first stirrings of the two driving forces of her life: temperance and suffrage.

In The Stream Runs Fast, Nellie talks about her feelings on pregnancy, her children, and most of all, her life as a political creature.

Both volumes of this interesting autobiography are characterized by Nellie McClung's highly personal style...her wit and charm and make good reading.

These books are available at Corby Library.

A Toast To Service

Long-time staff members at Belleville General Hospital were given toast and Tuesday night at annual banquet given by hospital administration. Among 23 workers receiving pins for lengthy service were Peggy Barrett, (left) nursing department project co-ordinator, with 28 years, and Shirley Kelleher, chief medical records librarian, on staff 25 years.

French School Retrains Housewives

PARIS (AP) — "After 25 years, I'm on my second honeymoon," one woman said. "At last I have somebody to tell my husband at night."

How do you find a job after 10, 15 or 20 years of being a wife and mother? By applying for one. What is the fastest way to lose a job? By getting the wrong one, says Evelyne Sullerot, a sociologist who specializes in the problems of women.

L'Institut National pour la Promotion Feminine, a brand new "school" under the auspices of the ministry of education, is dedicated to helping women get out of the rut where marriage put them.

"After years in the home, women don't want to do the same work as before their marriage," said Mrs. Sullerot, director of the institute.

They've changed. Meanwhile, business methods have progressed. It's impossible for the older generation of women that stopped working to cooperate with young college graduates.

The frail-looking blonde herself took time off from work between 1949 and 1957 to raise her four children. She emerged from her pots and pans to found the French Family Planning Association.

"During those years I didn't work 'outside,' but I never worked harder in my life," Mrs. Sullerot said.

Today she supervises women going through an agitude reactivation and vocational guidance course in the institute's classrooms. Each hours a day, for a four-week period, four groups of 30 women go through the course.

What they learn is not to type or keep books but simply to diagnose their aptitudes, flush out the corners of their minds and discover new fields of endeavor.

"Many businesses seek mature women who are more stable than the young," Mrs. Sullerot explained.

"After the Second World War women who stayed at home were highly respected. Today the opposite is true. A woman who stays at home is less than nothing. She feels a loss of prestige and self respect. Her friends work and so do her daughters."

Students at the institute fall into two groups, those who need to work for financial reasons and those who have a psychological need.

"Many women are divorced, widowed or brutally abandoned. These are our SOS cases. Others have grown-up children and think that they don't exist any more."

Students learn through audio-visual and spatial exercises to reawaken aptitudes of memory and attention. They review logic for resolving problems. They renew communications methods. They also learn vocabulary lists relating to economy and technology.

In short, the course is a giant step toward what Mrs. Sullerot calls "precision."

"Women must learn objectivity and mental rapidity. This is the direct opposite of Gallic charm and North American liberal arts education."

Students not only grade themselves on their results but learn to accept the harsher grades of other students, a useful training for business. They also play roles of boss and employee or secretary, which teaches them how to take orders.

"In the business world, women must learn to leave their personal problems at home," Mrs. Sullerot said. "How many women cry when their boss yells at them? They feel, 'He doesn't like me'."

During the month of intensive training, students receive lectures from businessmen in various fields and make field trips to several companies. At the end, they are advised individually on which areas suit them best.

"At 20 years old, you can afford to make a mistake. At 40, no."

Ann Landers

Psychiatrist Might Have Problems, But He Can Still Help You

Dear Ann Landers: I'll come straight to the point and skip the polite talk. I'm trying to raise two teen-age daughters alone. My husband walked out on us three years ago.

Last night I came home early and "surprised" my 17-year-old daughter and her steady boyfriend. I caught them right in the act on the living room couch. They were horribly embarrassed and I had all I could do to keep from going to pieces. The boy (age 18) left at once and my daughter and I had a talk. She says they are in love, and this has been going on for a long time. She sees nothing wrong with "sharing love" in a physical way. Neither of them goes with anyone else.

If I forbid her to see the boy again it will create a serious problem because they are crazy about each other. He is really a fine chap, good student, outstanding athlete and the All-American boy—or so I thought. To say I was shocked is putting it mildly. It never crossed my mind they were so "advanced."

What should I do? I need a better head than mine.—Numb

Dear Numb: Once teen-agers begin to have sexual intercourse, they rarely quit—no matter what they promise or how honest their intentions. It's futile to talk to your daughter about the beauty of virginity and the hazards of going too far. Now you must deal with the realities.

Take her to a doctor who will advise her on the best birth control method. Millions of mothers are going to be appalled at this advice, but an amount of preaching or threatening is going to keep this girl away from her boyfriend. I'm not suggesting that you condone the situation or abandon your duty to, provide guidance and discipline, but until you can help her see the light (and the odds are against it), the important thing is to keep your daughter from getting pregnant.

Too bad you didn't start talking to her about premarital sex when she was 11 years old. That was the time to tell her about the beauty of virginity and the hazards of going too far.

Dear Ann Landers: It is common knowledge that a great many people have the foggiest notion of what their husbands own, so please direct this advice to both husbands and wives:

The key to Broke in Brooklyn's problem became quite clear when she referred to his property, his insurance policies, his securities, etc. Had this man been smart enough to put all his assets in joint tenancy, the properties, securities, bank accounts, etc., would have passed to the wife without becoming part of his estate, and therefore they would not have been taxed.

I am a legal secretary and every day I see these sad mistakes born out of ignorance. It's tragic when people work all their lives to accumulate a little nest egg and then the government steps in and takes half of it away when the husband dies. Both husbands and wives should consult with estate planners and the "experts" at their bank.—LaSalle Street Legal Secretary

Dear Sallc: I was amazed at how many letters wrote to thank me for praising that advice and ended up saying, "Even though it's too late for me I'm sure it will help someone else." My thanks to all who wrote.

Club For Lonely

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have recently joined a mixed club entitled, "You Are Alone Club". I wonder if you could come up with some suggestions as to what form of entertainment (games, novel ideas, etc.) which would be of interest to people of all ages?

Secretary.

Dear Secretary: Anything that will help lonely people to mix with other lonely people is good. Games and skits may seem corny, but for my money they get people involved and they are fun.

For discussion nights, speaker on public health could tell you a lot about keeping fit; a probation or parole officer would give you an earful; there are experts on local history and a member from your government to talk about how your community is run.

I'm sending you my 25-cent list of available skits and games. Even rehearsing for the skits will help your members mix and build togetherness. And that's what you want, isn't it?

* * *

Dear Doris: My daughter is going with a boy who is nice. He has a record, but she can't see that anything is wrong. He is in a good job and going now.

He says he loves her and she loves him. How do you tell her that he is not for her? She doesn't want to listen to our pastor or us.

Worried.

Dear Worried: Since in your previous letter you indicated she is enough to marry without your consent, you can't stop her.

Apparently you have all talked to her. She may be carried away with pity for this boy, may feel very noble about her loyalty to him.

She may indeed bring out the best in him. If she does go against your wishes, do not reject her. If the marriage turns out well, you will have a daughter and son-in-law to enjoy; perhaps, later, lovely grandchildren.

If the marriage turns out poorly, she is going to need all the moral support that you can give her. Stand by and be ready to provide a shoulder.

Honor Declined

QUEBEC (CP) — Luc-Andre Godbout, a 41-year-old "voluntary chimney-sweeper" well-known to the working class in the Lower Town, does not want to become a member of the Order of Canada "because misery is not solved with holy water, nice words and medals."

Mr. Godbout says he has refused a letter from Governor General Jules Leger informing him that the advisory committee of the Order of Canada had recommended his nomination as member of the order.

"I refuse this eventual nomination," he said in a statement, "because you and the one you represent are a symbol of Quebec's colonization by Canada.

"I refuse this decoration because it would be dishonest to receive something which would have been decided by people who don't know the problem of cold, hunger and who have never known what it is to be poor."

Mr. Godbout, who receives about $150 a month from social welfare, has for many years walked through the city's working-class district to repair, free of charge, oil heaters and oil stoves for needy families.

Farmers Income Lower in March

WASHINGTON (AP) — Incomes received by United States farmers dropped 12 per cent in April, the fourth straight month of decline, the commerce department reported today.

Farm income in April was at an annual rate of $25.2 billion, down from $28.6 billion in March and $29.1 billion in February.

Big Tax Faced

MONTREAL (CP) — Alcan Aluminium Ltd. may seek international arbitration of a Jamaican government proposal which would increase a production tax on bauxite mining by 800 per cent a ton, the company said Thursday.

The increase, sought by Jamaica to reduce a substantial trade deficit, would raise Alcan's bauxite mining taxes to about $30 million in 1974 from an annual level of $7 million, the spokesmen said.

Income Up

MONTREAL (CP)—Bell Canada reports net income for the first three months of 1974 of $56,340,000 compared with $47,884,000 for the corresponding period last year.

Net income after provision for preferred share dividends was $52,118,000 or $1.61 a common share compared with $44,614,000 or $1.21 a common share.

Dymond to Quit

PORT PERRY, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Matthew Dymond, who has held three cabinet portfolios in five terms, said Thursday he will not seek re-election as Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Ontario riding.

Dr. Dymond, 62, has served as minister of health, minister of reform institutions and minister of transport. He now is a back-bencher.

Labor Scarce

TORONTO (CP) — Canada faces a severe shortage of skilled labor which eventually could affect the homemaker, Ontario Energy Minister Darcy McKeough said Thursday.

Mr. McKeough said that as skilled labor shortages become more acute, the homeowner will have to compete for his maintenance needs with large corporations planning billion-dollar projects.

Hamilton Shootings Involved Neighbors

HAMILTON (CP) — A shooting spree Thursday that left three persons dead and another severely wounded on a city street has resulted in charges of multiple murder against a neighbor.

Constantino Chicchieri, 43, is to appear in provincial court today on three charges of noncapital murder and one of attempted murder.

Anna and Pasquale Pirraini and their daughter Candida Furgiuele died in the shooting. Mrs. Furgiuele's husband, Alfonso, is in hospital.

Joseph Hepps, who witnessed the shooting, said the man fired six shots at the Furgiueles.

The wounded couple ran to another house where they were met by Mr. and Mrs. Pirraini. The gunman opened fire on all four and ran after they all fell to the ground.

Another neighbor, Sophie Storozianski, said she opened her door after hearing shots and saw Candida Furgiuele with blood streaming from her chest.

Mrs. Storozianski said Mrs. Furgiuele took her Wednesday night that she was afraid because she had been having problems with neighbors.

Kingston Man Awarded Award for His Book

OTTAWA (CP) — Six books have won their authors the Governor General's literary awards for 1973, the Canada Council announced today.

The award-winning books were chosen by an 18-member committee from among 400 books published by Canadians in 1973.

They are: Painters in a New Land, a history of 18th and 19th century painters by Michael Bell, Kingston; Lions at Her Face, a collection of poetry by Miriam Mandel, Edmonton; The Temptations of Big Bear, a novel by Rudy Wiebe, Edmonton; L'Hiver de Force, a novel by Rejean Ducharme, Montreal; Quebec en Amerique au temps Laviie, an economic history by Albert Faucher, Quebec City; and La Main au Feu, a collection of poems by Roland Giguere, Montreal.

Alberta to Fight New Sarnia Plant

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta has served notice it will vigorously fight a massive petrochemical development planned for Sarnia, Ont., that Premier Peter Lougheed says will damage his province's attempt to set up its own petrochemical industry.

In a policy statement delivered in the legislature Thursday, Mr. Lougheed opposed the proposed $250-million Petrosar Ltd. plant in Sarnia on the grounds that it would hurt Alberta.

"It will jeopardize the possibility of new jobs in Alberta from petrochemical development as it will absorb a significant portion of the limited available Canadian market and render Alberta-based plants less feasible."

Alberta's position might set off another round of federal-provincial feuding since the Petrosar consortium is controlled by Polysar Ltd., a federal Crown corporation.

The petrochemical industry, using the natural resources of Alberta, has been centred in Sarnia and Montreal. Premier Lougheed said he doesn't want to cripple existing plants in the east depends on Alberta for raw materials.

"Our policies contemplate a continued viable Ontario petrochemical industry based on maintaining existing facilities and normal growth using Alberta resources."

But the province wants to make a start on getting the thousands of jobs possible through processing petrochemicals and using them to make numerous plastic-based products ranging from garbage bags to toys. The premier emphasized that Alberta must have the opportunity to diversify its economy.

Otherwise, "we accept the risk that creation of new jobs will decline as the conventional petroleum industry headquartered in Alberta and its related service industries begin to level off."

While opposing the Sarnia operation, Premier Lougheed gave full support to a proposal by Alberta Gas Trunk Line and Canadian Industries Ltd., processing full production and processing of petrochemicals at plants throughout Alberta. Up to 16,000 jobs might be created.

The premier also threatened to withdraw the province's approval for a petrochemical plant planned in Alberta by Dow Chemical and Dome Petroleum Ltd., if too much of the production is shipped to Eastern Canada for processing into plastics.

The premier admitted that although he is opposed to Petrosar, it would be difficult to stop it if the federal government decided to forge ahead. The plant will depend on Alberta crude oil for the manufacturing of petrochemicals and the province has little say over exactly where the oil goes once it is shipped out of Alberta.

Ontario Did Not Understand Oil Deal Declares McKeough

TORONTO (CP) — Energy Minister Darcy McKeough said Thursday that Ontario agreed to a new price for oil at the national energy conference last March without fully understanding its ramifications.

A wild desk-thumping debate burst out when opposition parties peppered the government with questions about rising gasoline prices.

Mr. McKeough blamed the high prices on Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney saying that if it were not for the western New Democratic Party premier the conference would have settled on a 56-a-barrel wellhead price for oil rather than the current $6.50.

He said Saskatchewan premier was bent on destroying the country and Mr. Blakeney was less than honest at the Ottawa conference.

Mr. McKeough said only the Saskatchewan premier and Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed, a Progressive Conservative, were conversant with the terms "city gate" and "wellhead" prices.

City gate is the price paid at the refinery in Edmonton where the pipeline starts and the wellhead price is the price paid at the oilfield.

Mr. McKeough said he believed that only the two western premiers knew the difference between the two terms and suggested that because of this an extra 20 cents was added to each barrel of oil.

After the Ottawa meeting, Ontario Premier William Davis said he expected the new oil price would mean Ontario consumers would pay about seven cents more for each gallon of gasoline.

Gas prices jumped by nine to 14 cents Wednesday with the start of th temporary freeze on the price for petroleum products.

Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) said that since Premier Davis did not understand all the information at the conference, Ontario should suggest a renegotiation of the wellhead price.

Mr. McKeough replied that Premier Blakeney "was there and he was aware and he might have been honest enough to say a few things at that meeting."

Treasurer John White said it was "a socialist ripoff."

Steven Caupor, 34, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of manslaughter in the death of Victor Kenneth Martin, 27, of Tilbury. He originally had been charged with non-capital murder.

Budget Deadline Missed

United Community Services, the co-ordinating body for the annual United Way campaign, is one of six agencies that has not met its own May 15 filing deadline for budget estimates, it was revealed at a board meeting Thursday.

Budgets, outlining operating costs agencies expect in 1975, were to be in UCS hands Wednesday. Only six of 13 United Way agencies had submitted budgets by that time.

The deadline had already been extended by a UCS board decision from the original May 1st date. No penalty for late submission exists.

Reporting to the board Thursday, agency review committee chairman Ted Kelly took UCS treasurer Harold Mason to task for missing the deadline. "We are the culprit, too," he said.

However, Mr. Mason said he felt strongly a budget should not be submitted until the new administrator, Gordon Mullin, assumes his duties next week.

Mr. Mullin would thus be aware of the money the agency could have available next year, Mr. Mason said.

Both UCS president Virginia O'Rourke and budget review committee chairman Wayne Miller have previously stressed the importance of early submissions. Each felt this would permit adequate budget review and result in the formation of a realistic and believable goal for the annual United Way drive.

Agencies that have not submitted their preliminary figures are: United Community Services, Belleville Minor Sports Association, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Navy League of Canada, St. John Ambulance, and the Victorian Order of Nurses.

In all, seven budgets have been requested by UCS.

The Quinte District Labor Council has filed a budget on behalf of the Citizens Bureau thereby asking for bureau inclusion in the 1975 campaign.

Currently, the bureau is funded in Trenton under a Local Initiatives Program (LIP) grant sponsored by the Labor council. However, federal funds are expected to run out in mid-summer, thus leaving the bureau without funds to carry on operations.

After the board meeting Mr. Kelly said he expects the remaining UCS budgets will be in no later than next week. "If they're not, I'll be on the phone," he said.

Shoplifting Charged At Mall

A total of four persons were arrested at the Quinte Mall yesterday and charged with theft after they were allegedly caught shoplifting at two of the Mall's stores.

Police, who have not released the names of the arrested persons, said the four adults will all appear in provincial court here Monday.

Campaign Chairman Honored

United Way 1973 campaign chairman Jack Sinson was formally recognized for her work during the October fund drive with the presentation of a plaque during the United Community Services board of directors meeting Thursday.

In making the presentation, president Virginia O'Rourke said she hoped Mrs. Sinson would continue to provide the UCS with her services.

At present, Mrs. Sinson, a member of the UCS board for the past five years, is chairman of the United Way advisory board. The board is composed of representatives of each of the 12 United Way participating agencies.

In 1973, the United Way campaign collected $116,000, short of their $140,000 goal.

Accident Handy To Hospital

A two-car accident at the entrance to the Belleville General Hospital caused an estimated $600 damage and slightly injured a Belleville man around 6:40 p.m. yesterday.

Police say that Gordon Charles Post, 47, of 259 Farley Ave., received minor cuts and bruises when the car he was driving went along Dundas Street East, collided with an eastbound auto driven by James A. Middleton, of Kingston.

Sounds of Spring

Sounds of spring meant hammers on wood in Belleville harbor. New Harbor Commission docks, drilled in place during winter, were covered with planking this week by work crew that included Bob Holway Jr.

Parking Is Concern Of Bancroft Merchants

BANCROFT — Significant increase in off-street parking appears to be a starting point for further improvement of this village's commercial core.

The decision was made Thursday by a group of local businessmen to proceed with plans for a parking lot on the east side of the village's main street.

Business people were meeting with a committee recently organized by the Chamber of Commerce to deal with the problems of the downtown area.

One of the immediate problems the village faces is a severe lack of parking facilities in the commercial area. It is estimated that 400 additional parking spaces would bring facilities up to an acceptable standard.

Both the chamber committee and the village council have been working on the parking situation for several months. Council has purchased two lots on the east side of Hastings Street and is upgrading them for parking. Several businessmen with land adjoining these lots are willing to allow their land to be used for parking.

The committee met last night to deal with the problems of gaining access to the parking areas. Several alternatives were discussed but the group agreed to cooperatively purchase a 37 by 165 foot strip of land for that purpose.

This parking step will mean an additional 175 spaces for customers in the downtown area. Using statistical data available in official plan surveys, downtown merchants will pay on a square foot basis for parking arrangements. It is expected that the initial capital costs will be dissolved in five years and a lease-a-lease levy for lot maintenance will be applied.

Bancroft Plaza Zoning Requested

BANCROFT — Plans for the construction of a $1 million shopping centre here have taken another step forward. Businessmen were told Thursday.

According to village reeve Jack Hattin, application for rezoning has been made by the development company for the property it intends using for the project.

The Montreal-based company plans were revealed here in a public meeting in January.

The proposal has met with a great deal of opposition from the business community. Most merchants feel a plaza of this size will destroy the village's commercial core.

A committee has been organized by the Bancroft and District Chamber of Commerce to deal with the problems of the downtown. So far the committee has been successful in creating off-street parking for about 175 cars. In the future the group plans to look into a revitalization program.

Northern Goes To Newfie

Northern Electric Company Limited of Montreal, which since 1948 has operated a plant in this city, will extend its manufacturing capability to Canada's newest and most easterly province.

The company, from its Montreal headquarters today announced that it would establish a pilot plant in St. John's Newfoundland. The announcement was made jointly with the Newfoundland Department of Industrial Development.

The pilot plant initially will employ some 20 people in the production of spark suppressor networks, a component used in telephone switching systems.

Something to Smile About

Here are three people with something to smile about. No, it's not because their favorite team is ahead in the Stanley Cup finals. The reason is that these three belong to the Canadian Cancer Society for Belleville and District and the campaign for the month of April went well over the top. While president of the local branch Cancer Society, Shirley Woodcox, middle, fingers the cheques that helped form part of the total to date of $30,000, she is joined by Myke Fraser, (left) campaign chairman in Tweed and Belleville campaign chairman, Brian Knudsen. The original target was set at $27,500.00.

UCS Will Invite Labor To Meet about YMCA

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

United Community Services will invite labor representatives to a joint YMCA-UCS information sharing session next week in the hope of forestalling a threatened organized labor boycott of the annual United Way campaign.

The move, approved unanimously by the UCS board Thursday, comes as a United District Labor Council (QDLC) vote to stay an anti-United Way campaign drawn nearer.

A notice of motion tendered by QDLC vice-president Ian Reilly calls for an extensive publicity drive to discourage union members from contributing in October. A motion to that effect is expected to put to the test June 4.

Behind any such campaign is Mr. Reilly's objection to the practice of "double dipping" by the Belleville YMCA. When he criticized the Y earlier this month, he said he was opposed to the YMCA dipping into the taxpayer's pockets twice—once through the United Way campaign and again, through a city grant in lieu of taxes.

If QDLC members come out in favor of the motion, once made, a boycott will be called for only if Belleville city council approves a grant to the YMCA.

The YMCA is one of 12 agencies under the United Way fund-raising umbrella. It will be expected to attend next Thursday's meeting.

Both Mr. Reilly, and QDLC president Douglas Sagert will be invited to the session.

President Virginia O'Rourke, instigator of the joint UCS-YMCA meeting, said Thursday it will be for informational purposes only. The question whether Mr. Reilly is fully aware of the facts, she said.

Originally, the meeting was proposed as a means to acquaint UCS director Jim Wiseman and YMCA director Jim Campbell with background information on the United Way fund drive to take before the labor council prior to its vote.

Inflation Seen Biggest Problem

The government wants to control everything except that which is out of control — inflation.

"The government cannot continue to take more and more from producers and give to non-producers." That was the message from the president of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce J. T. C. Wilson in an address Thursday to members of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Wilson was speaking during the Chamber's annual noon luncheon for new members at Club Canada.

Mr. Wilson started his address by telling the new members as well as the established chamber members and guests the imbalance of change in the world today.

Referring to his own job in the computer field, he noted that people are just now beginning to appreciate what the computer can do - for them.

The audience included such guests as Mayor Robin Jeffrey, reeve Lorne Kingston Chamber of Commerce Nancy Lucas and president of the Trenton Chamber Jack Wilson.

The Ontario president went on to say that business and the chamber throughout the country, acting as an organization of business, must learn to accept change. "They must learn how to manage change," he said.

He said the government has made changes and therefore the Ontario Chamber of Commerce is required to make changes. He added that if the government and the Ontario Chamber have common goals we must and we are learning together.

INFLATION take 2 ma indent

"We can all guess, but we don't know what is and we must use change as an opportunity.

"Chambers must become catalysts of the community," said Mr. Wilson. He suggested this could happen in areas such as computer centres for small business, lending organizations and central purchases and warehouses for the area.

"The chambers won't be just Santa Clause parades in December or retail promoters," said Mr. Wilson.

He likened the role of the chamber to an umbrella over community organizations and activities.

Turning to another area, that of government and inflation, Mr. Wilson asked his audience to examine how the government handles inflation internally.

"In Ontario, there are 200,000 civil servants. One out of every four unionized employee in the province works for the government at some level. No other sector of the economy can match this growth," said Mr. Wilson.

He went on to say that the government brought in regional government in 1969 to solve the problem of supposed inefficiency in local governments.

"So this new efficiency measure was brought in and since then the cost of local government in Ontario has gone from $700 million a year to over $2-billion a year.

Directing his question to the businessmen in the audience he asked what would happen to them or their industry if they suggested an efficiency measure that resulted in driving up costs over 300 per cent.

"While all this has been happening, corporate profits have been getting a decreasingly smaller share of the economy — somebody has to pay for it," he said.

He then added that last November the total budget for federal government spending for 1973-74 was up roughly 13.5 per cent over the same periods in 1972-73 through the addition of supplementary estimates to the 1973 -74 spending.

"To give a simple illustration of what this means in the affairs of governments, one third or all officer space in Metropolitan Toronto is occupied by the various governments. To the businessman, this is a lot of fixed overhead filled with a lot of fixed costs.

"In short, we have built one of the most expensive and expansive bureaucracies in the world.

"There is no doubt that these efforts to improve the human lot have succeeded to quite a remarkable degree and that Canada has achieved outstanding success — at a price," he said.

He went on to say: "As of today we have several thousand elected officials in Canada backed up by 800,000 government employees spending and distributing an estimated $15 billion. "Their revenues display a growth which would be the envy of any business.

"In Ontario alone there are now 80,000 federal employees as of 65,000 provincial employees plus a vast number of municipal wage earners.

"The federal civil service alone employs over 220,000 in Canada. Finally all is not completed bad, except for inflation. The government wants to control everything except that which is out of control — inflation."

"Mr. Wilson mentioned that substantial continued inflation is likely "Now large cloud on the economic horizon is the likelihood of increased labor contract disputes and strikes as a result of this substantial inflation.

"The current high rate of inflation is being facilitated by a high rate of growth in the money supply and a cutback in the growth of the money supply will not have appreciable effect before 1975," said Mr. Wilson.

"So you see that 1975 could well take off again. He told the audience that maybe 1974 and 1975 is the time frame in which we all should meet the changing world and change with it — let's manage change and not let change manage us," concluded Mr. Wilson.

Friday Budget Day

Belleville ratepayers will learn next Friday just how much additional money they will be expected to pay into city tax coffers this year.

Friday, May 24, is the date Mayor Robin Jeffrey has set for a special city council meeting to give final approval to the year's budget.

The special meeting will get under way at 9 a.m. and follows a long series of committee meetings and deliberations with senior department heads.

Reception Planned

Approximately 225 people can be expected to attend next week's United Community Services reception for newly hired administrator Gordon Mullin, it was revealed at a board of directors meeting Thursday.

Reception co-ordinating chairman Fred Deacon told directors all invitations have been sent. Preparations are well under way for the reception to be held at the YMCA Wednesday, May 29.

Naming a few groups, he said invitations have gone out to members of Belleville city council, United Way participating agencies, Salvation Army, and the Hastings County children's aid society.

Basically, said Mr. Deacon, Mr. Mullin will be meeting people he will be coming into contact with in the performance of his duties.

Driver Charged

A Belleville man has been charged with impaired driving after the car he was driving spun out of control and knocked down a hydro pole at the intersection of Station Street and Pinnacle Street late yesterday.

Gerald L. Turner, of 161 Orchard Dr., was charged with impaired driving after the car he was driving went along Station Street spun out of control and knocked down a hydro pole on the south side of the street.

Mr. Turner was not injured in the accident, which occurred at 9:23 p.m.

Bobbymen wear two hats. Both are QDLC members and sit on their respective United Way agency boards as board representatives.

"The meeting is intended to give our labor representatives as much information as possible so they can make a responsible decision," Mrs. O'Rourke said. "However, I would not expect anyone to be bound by what comes out of it."

Board reconsideration of the original motion produced an amendment providing for direct QDLC representation at next week's Thursday meeting.

If Mr. Sword and Mr. Reilly are not receptive to the possible plight of the United Way, Mrs. O'Rourke has the board's okay to request an appearance before the full QDLC council June 4. The need for a formal deputation has been left to the discretion of the UCS panel.

Directors are concerned that a boycott could not only hurt the YMCA, but the other 11 United Way participating agencies. Members fear a substantial drop in revenue could be expected.

If "double dipping" is at issue, said Mrs. O'Rourke, "the UCS would have to eliminate nearly all its agencies." In previous years, the Navy League, Belleville Minor Sports Association and the Central Volunteer Bureau have received grants.

In the past three years, the United Way has not reached its goal. In 1973, the last year the campaign went over the top, contributions exceeded the $130,000 goal by $1,267.

In 1972, union and non-union labor contributed close to $25,000 toward the $140,000 goal, 18 per cent of the $116,000 collected.

Rapist Gets Five Years

Arnold Edward Stone, 20, of Belleville, was sentenced to five years in penitentiary at the conclusion of a two-day rape trial in County Court here.

Stone, who had just been released from provincial reformatory Feb. 21, after serving 11 months of a 15-month sentence on a series of five convictions, was convicted of four counts of a 23-year-old Belleville woman, who had given him and three friends a ride to Kingston during the early morning hours of Feb. 23.

In the course of the trial, the court was told that Stone had managed to get the woman to drive him from a party in Kingston to Highway 401.

While driving along the highway, Stone slipped the belt from his trousers, slipped it around the woman's neck and forced her to stop the car along the roadway on different occasions, where he raped her twice and performed other sexual acts.

In passing sentence, County Court Judge W. S. Lane said that he believed rape was one of the most heinous crimes contemplated in the criminal code and added that the Stone case was one of the most distressing he had encountered in 29 years on the bench.

However, in light of the fact that Stone was only 20, and that a series of psychiatric reports presented to the court had set the hope of reformation, the judge said he was prepared to sentence Stone to a five-year penitentiary term and would recommend that psychiatric treatment be an essential element of that sentence.

Car Deck, Tapes Stolen

Belleville police are investigating the theft of approximately 15 stereo eight-track tapes and a stereo tape player from a car that was parked in the Brewer's Retail parking lot on Dundas East early this morning.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, said that the tapes were stolen from a car belonging to Ray Baker, of 63 Byron Street, around 12:15 a.m. today, after thieves forced open an air vent on the right hand side of the car.

The tapes and the tape player were valued at approximately $150.

Guidolin Looks For an Encore In Sunday Game

BOSTON (CP) — Coach Bep Guidolin wasn't impressed by efforts of Philadelphia Flyers to knock his Boston Bruins out of the rink Friday night.

"They tried to intimidate us, but it didn't work" Guidolin said after the Bruins defeated Philadelphia 5-1 in the fifth game of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final.

"We got 60 minutes of hockey from everyone tonight," the Boston coach said. "We out-hustled them, out-muscled them, played them all night.

"We had our backs against the wall and had to win."

"They still think of them as an expansion team. That's no expansion team we've got. They wouldn't have come this far if they were."

The Boston coach said he is sure now the Bruins will win the cup.

"All we've got to do is play a game like this one Sunday in Philly, because there's no way they're going to win back here," he added.

Boston defenceman Bobby Orr, who scored two second-period goals and added an assist on the Bruins' first goal by Gregg Sheppard—a short-handed effort at 8:14 of the first period—said he felt a lot of chippiness displayed by both sides was unnecessary.

"The chippiness could carry over," Orr said. "But if we play as well or better than we did tonight we'll be all right.

"You expect to get the bumps and bruises in any game, but I don't think there was a lot of foolish pushing and shoving on both sides that led to foolish penalties. It would have been a better hockey game without all the chippiness."

Centre Phil Esposito denied the Bruins had given up in the earlier going.

"You don't give up when you're facing elimination," Esposito said. "You put out a little more—tonight we just kept shooting.

"We just fired Shero of the Flyers said the foes probably was his club's worst performance in the playoffs "as far as execution is concerned."

"When you're two men short it gives Orr too much skating room," Shero said.

Shero said his club took too many penalties early in the game.

"That hurt us because many of our penalty killers tired early. Maybe we were just ready for a bad game, but Boston played well."

Four-game Sweep Is Houston's Aim

HOUSTON (CP) — With a 2-0 lead and the series shifted to their home ice, Houston Aeros are thinking of a four-game sweep in the best-of-seven World Hockey Association final.

Houston won the first two games in Chicago 3-2 and 6-1 and now has home advantage for games tonight at 8 p.m. EDT, Sunday and, if necessary, Monday.

"They've got a tough road ahead of them now," said goalie Don McLeod, one of the major reasons for Houston's success this season.

"It's not only that the next three games are on our ice, and it's not a question of Chicago playing well or not against us.

"We just have the better personnel, the more experienced players."

McLeod, who lost his shutout Wednesday with 16 seconds remaining, said the only way Chicago can beat his club is "if we have a letdown, or if their goalie happens to have a hot game and stop everything in sight.

"We can wrap this up in four straight, that's the type of team we are."

The Cougars are determined, however.

"We've been a fighting team all year and have been down two games in a series before," veteran forward Ralph Backstrom said. "But, for sure this weekend will be Cougars' supreme test. All we can assure you is that we'll be in there working."

The Cougars have never won in Houston, but coach Pat Stapleton says that "maybe with a little luck we can change things around."

"Don't forget New England had us down 2-0 and we came back," the Chicago playing coach said, referring to the quarter-finals when the Cougars fought back to beat the defending champions in seven games.

Stapleton says the initial goals have determined the tempo so far and that will remain the case.

"If we can get one or two goals up, instead of being down and having to fight back, it'll be a different story. When you're down, you have to open up and that's usually when teams get into trouble."

Despite being the oldest and most-experienced team in the WHA, Houston has shown no signs of tiring, and coach Bill Dineen credits an 11-day layoff before the final.

Forward Murray Hall, who opened the scoring Wednesday said the Aeros tired in the third period of the first game, "but that was to be expected. Last night (Wednesday) it was different. We've got our legs again and don't forget, we don't waste too much energy."

Dineen said his players, especially those over 30, have learned to control the play and use the younger legs, such as Mark and Marty Howe, Jim Sherrill, and Frank Hughes, to do the heavy skating.

"The guys know how to save themselves without hurting their performances."

Chicago goalie Cam Newton, who played the final half of the third period Wednesday, said Houston is "playing a cagey game."

"They're not over-exerting themselves, sort of like how Gordie Howe plays. They don't try to slap the puck through us. They take the easy passes and set things up beautifully."

Bruins Stall Flyers' Drive In Boring Brawl at Boston

BOSTON (CP) — Bobby Orr and Boston Bruins shrugged off reports of dissension among the players Thursday night by slashing to a 5-1 victory over Philadelphia Flyers.

"That's a lot of expletive deleted," the Bruins' all-star defenceman said after leading his club with two goals and an assist. He was the best player on the ice for either team.

The reports followed the Bruins' 4-2 loss Tuesday at Philadelphia that left them in the position of having to win three straight games to capture their third Stanley Cup in five years.

They trail 3-2 in the best-of-seven National Hockey League final with the next contest set for Sunday in the Philadelphia Spectrum starting at 2 p.m. EDT.

The game will be carried nationally in Canada by the CBC on television and radio.

"All we did after the game Tuesday was go back to our hotel and have a little meeting," said Orr. "Then we had a roast beef dinner, a little wine and beer and then we went to bed.

"Gawd, I don't know where these stories come from."

What was said at the meeting?

"All we did was tell ourselves that we haven't been skating and we were going to win this thing we'd have to put a little more effort into it," Orr said.

The Bruins put a lot more "effort" into the game than they had in any of the previous four outings and, for the first time in the playoffs this year, flexed their muscles.

The result was a 3½-hour game in which referee Dave Newell called 29 minor penalties, 12 major fighting penalties and a game misconduct to Boston's Bobby Schmautz at 18:59 minute misconduct to Dave Schultz of Philadelphia.

Schultz led the penalty parade with 22 minutes, including two for fighting and a misconduct.

The game set a record for most penalties by both teams (43) and by one team (Philadelphia) for a total of 138 minutes.

Schultz and Wayne Cashman came to blows behind the Philadelphia net after Schultz had given the Boston winger an elbow in the mouth.

Showing a big welt on his forehead when he was crashed into the glass prior to his fight with the Flyer policeman, Cashman said Schultz is "nothing but an animal."

Schultz was the guy any day of the week, even on Sunday, if he's up to it."

Schultz denied he was trying to provoke the Bruins. On the contrary, he said it was Boston that was doing the intimidating.

They gave us a lot of cheap shots and didn't get called," Schultz said. "We got called on all of them."

The Flyers bounced back with a goal by Bill Clement at 6:36 of the second period. But, unlike earlier games, the Bruins didn't fold.

In fact, they pressed harder and continued to play aggressive hockey.

It marked the first time in the series the Bruins have scored in the second period. Ken Hodge and Don Marcotte added third-period goals.

The penalty records broken were set during a Toronto Maple Leaf-Boston game at Boson Garden in April, 1969, team (Boston).

Bobby Clarke who, along with goalie Bernie Parent, has meant so much to the Flyers in this series, couldn't explain the reason Flyers started slowly.

"At the start we were really tense or really flat—I don't know which," Clarke said, adding: "If we don't win Sunday we're in for a lot of trouble."

The Bruins face the Flyers and their unofficial mascot, Kate Smith, at the Spectrum where the singer's recording of God Bless America often is substituted for the U.S. national anthem.

The Flyers are 36-3-1 at home (7-0 this season) with Miss Smith's record. Sunday she'll be there in person.

Joly to Washington ?

REGINA (CP) — The Leader-Post says Greg Joly, 18-year-old defenceman for Regina Pats of the Western Canada Hockey League has agreed to a lucrative contract with Washington Capitals, an expansion team scheduled to begin play in the National Hockey League next season.

The newspaper said Thursday that Joly met Milt Schmidt, Washington general manager, in Calgary last week during the Pats' successful drive to the Canadian junior hockey championship.

Joly apparently accepted Schmidt's offer of a contract that will pay the St. Paul, Alta., native $100,000 over five years, the newspaper's report.

"He hasn't signed a contract yet," the newspaper quoted an unnamed source as saying. "But he has agreed to its terms. He can't sign until after the NHL draft is held."

Pirate Left-hander Poses Double Threat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hitting against Ken Brett may not be as tough as pitching against him.

Pittsburgh Pirates' left-hander can throw a baseball as hard as most pitchers, but he also hits as hard as most hitters.

"Hitting has helped me get where I am," Brett said after collecting two singles and knocking in two runs. "I'm not the kind of pitcher that's going to have a 1.59 earned run average. I've got to help myself anyway I can and hitting does it for me. I take pride in my hitting."

Brett, who didn't stick around to pitch a complete game, stayed around long enough to get the victory—his third in six decisions.

His performance at the plate gave him seven hits in 15 at bats so far this year. He has hit two home runs and collected five RBI.

In other National League games, New York Mets stopped St. Louis Cardinals 6-4, Philadelphia Phillies trimmed Montreal Expos 6-3, and Atlanta Braves bombed San Diego Padres 11-1.

In the American League, Kansas City Royals defeated Texas Rangers 3-2 and Chicago White Sox nipped Oakland A's 4-3.

Shortstop Mario Mendoza collected the first three hits of his major league career, combining with Brett to lead the Pirates to their New York past St. Louis.

Tommy Hutton drove in five runs with two homers and a single, leading Philadelphia past Montreal.

Hutton gave the Phillies their first run with a single following Del Unser's double in the first inning. The first baseman then hit a three-run homer in the third and a bases-empty shot in the fifth.

Hutton's performance helped Steve Carlton win his fourth game in seven decisions. He gave up seven hits while belting Mike Torrez, 3-3.

Marty Perez drove in six runs with a single, double and home run and Carl Morton pitched a six-hitter, leading Atlanta past San Diego. The Braves shelled Rich Troedson and three other San Diego pitchers for 16 hits.

John Mayberry hit a two-run homer and Hal McRae slammed a bases-empty shot, powering Kansas City past Texas.

The defeat was the third in a row for the Rangers' Ferguson Jenkins, 6-4, who was relieved for the first time this season after Mayberry's 440-foot blast in the sixth inning.

Home runs by Buddy Bradford and Ken Henderson carried Chicago over Oakland in a game shortened to seven innings by rain.

The remaining post positions include: Little Current, Rube the Great, Al Game and Buck's Bid from the second through the fifth spots, Kin Run at No. 7 and Neapolitan Way, No. 11.

Hudson County, the Derby runner-up after breaking from the No. 18 gate and the No. 2 Preakness choice, drew the No. 19 spot for Saturday's race at 6:40 p.m. EDT. Television coverage by CBS is scheduled for 5 p.m.-6 p.m. EDT.

J. R.'s Pet, the early third pick, will break from the eighth hole, with Heir to the Throne, the fourth choice, from the 12th gate.

"I can't seem to get inside for some reason," said trainer Monk Sims, after his Destroyer wound up with the outside post position. The colt broke from No. 15 in the Derby.

Stephens said he expected Destroyer and Hudson County to offer early speed along with Silver Florin, who will break from Don Hahn hit a two-run homer and Teddy Martinez pounded a two-run double, rallying New York past St. Louis.

Indianapolis Speedway

Calls for More Changes

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Roger Ward says some more changes are going to have to be made at Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

"Stock block engines are the answer," the two-time winner of the 500-mile auto race said this week.

"Get rid of the wings and the turbochargers and you automatically take some of the danger out of Indianapolis racing. Sure, there might be a loss of speed, but I don't think the fans would even notice it."

Ward, now a tire dealer, quit the Speedway after finishing 15th in the 1966 race. But he still has one of the best records ever compiled at the 58-year-old oval—two victories, two second spots, a third and a fourth-place finish from 1959 through 1964.

He was at the speedway on a day when there was little activity on the track.

"You know why they aren't out there running?

"It's because what they are driving is too expensive, an engine break out there in practice still costs $35,000. That's why cheaper stock blocks are the answer to the cost problem."

Bold Ruler's Offspring Are Well Represented

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bold Ruler has been dead almost three years, but the great sire remains a dominant figure in the Preakness Stakes, a race he won at Pimlico in 1957.

Six entries in Saturday's 99th Preakness, which will gross a record $699,000 if all start as expected, are grandsons of Bold Ruler—which also sired Secretariat, the Triple Crown champion of 1973.

They include Cannonade, the Kentucky Derby winner and the favorite in the 1-3/16 mile Preakness, and three of the 12 horses who trailed him at Churchill Downs—Destroyer, Buck's Bid and Rube the Great.

Cannonade and Buck's Bid both were sired by Bold Bidder, Destroyer by Vitrisio, and Rube the Great by Bold Lad.

Bold Lad also sired Preakness starter Neapolitan Way, a gelding which has won two consecutive grass races at Pimlico including a division of the Woodlawn Stakes. Heir to the Line, winner of last Saturday's Preakness Prep, is by the Bold Ruler mare Borderline.

Bold Ruler was the nation's champion sire eight times from 1963 to 1972. Through last year, his direct offspring earned a record $15,725,232 in purses.

In addition to the starters with Bold Ruler connections, other Preakness entries include Jolly John, by Hail to All; Cleveland County; J. R.'s Pet, No. 4 finisher at Churchill Downs, and Little Current, the fifth-place finisher.

Rounding out the 13-horse field, which was two shy of the maximum that could be handled at Pimlico without running two divisions, are Jolly John, All Game, to be ridden by Sandy Hawley of Toronto, Kin Run, and Silver Florin, which was made a supplementary entry for $10,000 after failing to be nominated for $100 by his owners.

After the owners put up the $1,000 entry fees Thursday, Cannonade drew the No. 5 post and trainer Woody Stephens said: "Perfect. Just what I wanted."

We asked fishermen what they wanted in an outboard motor.

Here's their answer.

We knew it would take an exceptional new motor to replace our classic 9½ hp Sportwin. So, before we designed our new 9.9, we asked fishermen, both sport and commercial, what changes we should make.

We did what we were told.

We kept all the good features of our old Sportwin. The reliability. The fuel economy. The planing power. The steady power at dead slow trolling speeds. And the 8 quick-tilt positions.

We made the new 9.9 leaner and cleaner, and smaller. And we added a lot more to our 9.9. A new water-cooled mid-section. Evinrude prop-hub exhaust. More precise idle speed control. A new Quick-Rev ignition system. And a pre-set shallow water drive.

On top of all this, we came up with a few neat answers of our own. We developed an electric start model with the starting motor under the hood where it ought to be. One remote fishing trips you just disconnect the battery and you've got a lightweight manual start outboard.

So if you're a fisherman who knows what he wants in an outboard motor, see the new Evinrude 9.9 and also the new 15 hp Fastwin (manual & electric).

See Evinrude's complete fishing fleet — 2, 4, 6, 9.9 & 15 hp at your dealer's now.

Every Evinrude for '74 is designed to conserve energy by recycling unburnt fuel into additional power. And because every Evinrude is driniless, we're keeping our waters clean too!

Ellis Juniors Blend Of Talented Youth

By ALAN TEBWORTH
Sports Staff

(Fourth in a six part series).

With a turnover rate much higher than most other in the Quinte Fastball League, the Ellis Printing Juniors have an annual rebuilding job on their hands.

Coming up with enough good ball players under the age of 20 becomes more of a search, but the coaching staff of the Ellis crew seem to have put together another competitive squad for the upcoming QFL season.

With eight holdovers from last year signed, along with about five others, the team appears ready to more than hold their own in the six team loop, and according to manager and assistant coach Don Wood, should make the top four of the league to get them into the playoffs.

Russ Soule, manager of the Bobcat hockey club, has joined Wood and will assist with coaching duties. "Russ should be a real plus for us," says Wood, "we're happy to have him aboard."

Positions on the team are not as solidly established as with most other senior teams in the league simply because most players are unsure of their best abilities as yet, with everyone getting a good shot at trailing down a spot.

About the only players thus far signed assured of one position only are pitchers John Sprackett and Gary McMurray. Sprackett, who joined the team last season in time for their OASA playoffs, looks like a fine acquisition.

He guided the team to a 2-0 win in the second game of the all-Ontario Junior A senior finals last season, while dropping the third and deciding game in a 13 inning affair by a 1-0 count.

McMurray has seem limited action in the Commercial League, as well as some tournament play.

John Romano and Pete Stalkovich will share the catching duties, as well as taking spots in the outfield. Romano and Stalkovich can both crank the long ball for the Juniors.

Dave Dolan may be the starting first baseman, back for his second season in the league. He will also get some work at third base.

Brian Gariepy holds down probably the only definite position on the team at second base. The steady second sacker is one of the best in the league at the spot, back for his third season with the club. Gariepy hit well over .300 in his first year in the league two seasons ago, with the team also counting on his bat again this campaign.

Jim Richardson, a member of the Belleville Bobcats of the Metro Junior B hockey league for the past two seasons, is back for his sophomore year with the Printers. He seems to have the bead on the shortstop position.

Dave Horwood is the other returnee from last season signed for this year. Horwood, who hit for a .340 average in 1973 can play in the infield, outfield, and can pitch as well.

Five players out for their first time have signed with the Juniors for the new season.

Ken Vos, a third baseman and outfielder, will provide the team with a good eye at the plate and should see lots of action in his rookie year.

Grant McKenna and Bob Moore, both known in local sporting fans although in different lights, will give good backup strength at any position.

McKenna is well known from his basketball experience with Quinte Saints teams of the past, while Moore was also a goalie with Belleville Bobcats.

Campbell is third member of the family to come up through the Ellis baseball league, following brothers John and Steve. John has moved on to Howard and Robert Printing while Steve played with the Printers the past two years.

Pepe is also following the family line. At the age of 15, with six years of junior eligibility, he follows brother Terry, who has graduated to Howard and Robert Printing as well.

The Juniors open their schedule with a game Monday night facing Howard and Robert, in the first game of the doubleheaders, starting at the Alemite at 7 p.m. Junior Men's Wear meets Rollins Construction in the second game at about 8:45.

PLAYED FOR CARDS

SHELTON, Conn. (AP) — Louis A. North, a major league pitcher played with St. Louis Cardinals, Milwaukee and Boston from 1929 to 1934, died Thursday at a convalescent home at the age of 84.

Henry Sonneveld was a two-goal man in Trenton Whitley Insurance 3-0 win over Brighton Thursday but he was beaten on this play by goalie Shawn Hamilton.

Golden Mile Wins 1-0

Belleville Golden Mile Restaurant Olympics made it two wins in as many starts in Bay of Quinte Soccer Association play as Whitley Insurance of Trenton evened its record at 1-1, on Thursday games.

Golden Mile recorded shutout No. 2, slipping past Farsen's Cleaners, 1-0 while Whitley's blanked Brighton 3-0 at Trenton's Bain Memorial Park.

Playing at Zwicki's Island, Golden Mile and Farsens settled into a stubborn defensive battle which was not decided until late in the match.

In spite of the poor field conditions, the teams came up with a well-played contest.

Golden Mile makes its next league start Thursday, May 23, at Zwick's Island, meeting another city team, United.

At Trenton, Whitley's took its win on a pair of goals by centre forward Henry Sonneveld and one by Jim McDonald.

Sonneveld connected twice in the first half, heading the ball past Brighton goalie Shawn Hamilton on the opening scoring play after outside right Eddie Mullins delivered a well-placed pass from the wing. Halfback Len Taft got the ball to Mullins.

On the second goal, the ball came down in a scramble of players in front of Hamilton and he had no chance when Sonneveld coolly took control and slammed it home from close range.

The speedy Mullins arranged the final goal of the match, putting McDonald in the clear.

"Don't take anything away from the Brighton team," advised a Trenton player. "We're used to playing in conditions like this, they aren't."

Both Thursday games were played in the rain.

Minor Baseball Teams Swing into Action

Belleville Minor Baseball Association opens its regular schedule of house league games on the weekend and three of the representative all star clubs will also open their home schedules for the 1974 season.

Sunday, at Parkdale, the tyke all stars take on Oshawa at 1 p.m. At the same time, at Centennial Park (northwest of Centennial Secondary School off Bridge Street West) the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund Midgets meet Whitby and at 3:30 at Centennial Belleville Bantam Legion 99 plays Trenton State Farm.

Monday, at 1 p.m. the official opening ceremonies of Belleville Minor Baseball Association are scheduled.

Included in the ceremonies will be the presentation of BMBA jackets to the top salesmen in the recent chocolate drive to raise funds for all star uniforms. There will also be a BMBA crest for any of the salesmen in the drive.

Immediately following the presentations, Belleville Confectons will meet Legion House Dart League in the first game of tadpole schedule.

Olympics, Spartans In Exhibition Games

Belleville Olympics of the Premier Soccer League get a stiff test this weekend and at the same time, followers of the sport will have the chance to watch what should be an entertaining exhibition doubleheader.

Olympics will stretch their skills against Toronto Spartans in the Saturday-Sunday twin bill at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Players, Fans Create Problem

According to a spokesman for the Belleville Industrial Softball League, players and fans have been creating a problem at Sir Mackenzie Bowell Public School.

The rain combined with league participants and spectators who insist on driving their cars as close as possible to the softball diamond, have raised havoc with the grounds.

Persons who drive to the game or practices are requested to leave their cars in the parking lot.

Spartans are entered in the Toronto and District First Division Central League.

The president of the Toronto Club, Vaughan Cameron, is now a resident of Belleville. Employed at AECO, Mr. Cameron was instrumental in making the plans to bring Spartans to the city for the games.

Officials of the Belleville club feel the two weekend games will prove very beneficial to Olympics as the team prepares for its first start in the Premier League.

Olympics will play their league games at Cobb with their first match of the season set for Saturday, May 26, when Kingston Portuguese will be the visitors.

Spartans and Olympics go at it Saturday, 6 p.m. and again Sunday, at 2 p.m.

Lifters Head West

A group of the city's most consistent champions will be at it again in Edmonton, Alberta, this weekend.

Four members of the Apollo Barbell Club will be winging their way West today with two of the athletes competing in the Canadian National Weightlifting Championships.

Ron Hayes and Paul Barrett will be the two competing. They earned the right after coming up with impressive showings at the Ontario Championships in Woodstock, April 3.

Ron set two Canadian Teenage records and Paul who was also an Ontario Champ, set a provincial record for a high total.

The other two members of the team will be Gary and Bob Walt. Neither of the two will be lifting, since they are recovering from injuries.

Gary, who suffered a knee injury in February, figures that he won't start Olympic lifting until August giving the knee time to heal fully.

"It's coming along slow but sure," says Gary.

He will be going along as an official and to help Bob with the coaching of their teammates, both of whom have good chances of qualifying for the World Championships in Brazil later in the year.

Gary hopes to make one of the two teams that Canada will have entered, one team will be going to Brazil and the other to Moscow.

Each man has a certain standard or total weight that he must lift. The man who lifts the most above his standard will be picked for the nine-man team. This means that all the lifters will be competing against each other, regardless of which weight category they are in.

Lifters Try Hand at Coaching

Surgeons Use Staples

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 50 per cent of the medical teaching institutions in the United States are teaching the use of stapling as a medical procedure, says United States Surgical Corp., which markets surgical staplers. In addition, the U.S. Navy is teaching this technique in its surgical training program at Oakland Naval Hospital.

Dozen Women at Work On Breakwater Project

VANCOUVER (CP) — Danielle Trudi wanted to work outdoors so she gave up her job selling diamonds and jewelry to spend the days splitting rocks with a jackhammer.

She is one of a dozen young women who work with about 400 men at the city's False Creek breakwater project. Superintendent of works Jim MacArthur said they are the first women laborers the city has ever hired.

"Girls applied on the site. They said they could work alongside the men and do as much. These days, who'd argue?"

Mrs. Trudi, 26, said she wanted to work outside "and this is sort of a challenge."

She has no intention of returning to her former job because the benefits of outdoor work are so appealing. She is paid $4.25 an hour and there is no need to "dress up for the job."

The women supply their own work clothes, but the city provides leather gloves, hard hats and all safety equipment.

BEST JOB EVER

Jackie Carter, 24, whose husband also works on the project, said her brickmarking job is the best-paying job she has ever had.

"It's a lot better than working in factories or as a waitress."

Deborah Koerker, 24, also cited higher earnings as a major attraction in addition to the appeal of outdoor work. She said former earnings in he 360-to-380 a week range compared with $10 here.

Brickmaker Lucille Pica Jollouver, 21, said her job is "really different and not that hard, but you get your clothes full of cement."

Bernice Goff, 22, who used to work in a bank, also finds the work rewarding.

"This is a change and there's a certain satisfaction from physical labor. You are physically exhausted at night, but not mentally tired."

Fauna Featured

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba Museum of Man and Nature has published a book highlighting the wildlife of the province. Animals of Manitoba, illustrated by wildlife artist James L. Charron, contains 123 articles on mammals, birds, reptiles, amphibians, fish, insects and miscellaneous invertebrates found throughout the province.

'Twinning' Proposal Dropped

Hastings councillors are not interested in the proposal from its municipal reform committee that the county be "twinned" with Jefferson county in northern New York State.

Objection to the idea came Tuesday from the county's ARDA committee, which in its report to council said it failed to see the merits of such a proposal in as much as legislation governing American counties is not in common with that in relation to county systems in this county.

Reeve Carl Tinney of Faraday township, chairman of the ARDA committee, said if twinning with any municipality was to be considered it should be with an Ontario municipality where interests were more in common.

The suggestion by the Municipal Reform Committee was that the "twinning" with Jefferson county should be promoted and possibly include an interchange of visits.

Municipal Reform Committee chairman Barbara Allen said she had visited Jefferson county in April to explore the principle of twinning.

She said there were many similarities between the two county systems and felt an interchange of ideas would be beneficial.

Thurlow Reeve Horace Casey went along with the twinning idea and also with the bus trip which, even if it did not gain conviction anything, at least there would be the opportunity to have some fun.

But Madoc Reeve T.C. Barton disagreed claiming if the bus trip was taken it should be at the councillors' own expense.

Huntingdon deputy-reeve Harold Thompson said he would rather visit some Ontario county which had gone through the regionalization Procedure. With the possibility of regional government in this area such a visit would be more beneficial, he said.

The ARDA committee in its report did not concur with the "twinning" suggestion and said so in its concluding paragraph.

With the motion for acceptance of the report, Reeve Allen moved an amendment, asking that the final paragraph be deleted.

But the amendment was defeated and the report was adopted by a heavy majority.

County Official Plan Possible Next Month

The official plan for Hastings county will hopefully be ready for third reading and final approval at the June session, but from discussion at this week's session there is a lot of work to be done before that time.

The next session is called for June 25 at which time also the report of the consultants doing the joint waste study will be presented.

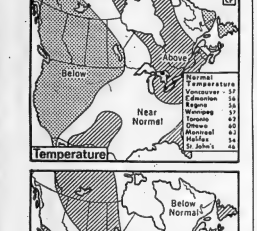
The presentation will be in the large court room at the county administration building with Belleville and Trenton councils also attending.

In the report of the county planning board given Tuesday afternoon, Dungannon Reeve Calvin White said the board was currently reviewing the text of the official plan in light of meetings held throughout the county.

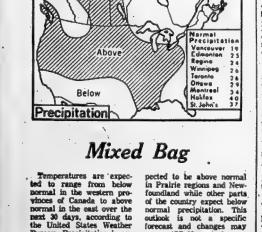
The board is now reviewing some 85 amendments suggested as the result of public response, most of these involving map changes only.

County Warden Jack McKenzie told council members that the planning board was doing a good job and were doing everything in their power to bring in plan amendments that residents could live with.

But one clause in the official plan requiring owners of rural property seeking land severance to apply for frontages to the municipality, brought criticism.



The result, it was claimed, would make for sawtooth property lines with the local municipalities becoming owners of right-of-way property for which they had no use in the foreseeable future.



Following a prolonged discussion, council voted to have the clause deleted from the official plan.

AND THEN CAME TV

Satellite to Be Featured

MONTREAL — A live demonstration of Canada's satellite telecommunications system will be a special feature of the 1974 Canadian Cable Television Association Convention, to be held at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal May 26 to 31.

A mobile "earth station", will be situated in the heart of downtown Montreal to receive color television signals directly from Telesat Canada's satellite, ANIK1, now in geostationary orbit 22,300 miles above the earth. A standard co-axial cable facility will connect the earth station to television monitors located in the hotel.

The CBC programme, which will be available on the CCTA — Telesat closed-circuit television network, are the same as those presently received by thousands of Canadians who live in the remote and northern regions of the country, and depend on satellite telecommunications.

Simultaneous translation facilities will be in operation for all major speeches during the four-day convention.

Robert G. Short, CCTA President,stated recently that cable television should be allowed to develop its potential as an independent communication system, with no more government control than is exercised over the press.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Saturday, May 18

Aries (March 21-April 19) You do not have much patience at present dealing with domestic problems. Things that normally wouldn't anger you will bug you today.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) If you do something for another, do it out of the goodness of your heart. If you listen for applause you'll be disappointed.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Someone will come on rather strong today about something she has that you don't. Pretend as though it doesn't faze you.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Keep your assertiveness under control. Try not to be too obvious regarding your aims. You will have a better chance of succeeding.

Leo (May 23-Aug. 22) Try not to make decisions based upon anger or the desire to get even. Nothing will be gained if you do.

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) You'll be asking for trouble from your special loved one if you behave overly attentive toward a third party. Stay in bounds.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) It's best to avoid the company of aggressive people. Anyone trying to dictate to you today will get a response they didn't count on.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Desire your attention on your work today. Don't daydream about something else. You'd be mad as a hornet if you had to do it all over again.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You will be overly demanding of one you love. This doesn't do much for the stability of the relationship. Ease up.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Bear in mind that your mate is still apt to be a bit temperamental today. If you don't respond, he'll have no one to fuss with.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't try to draft unwilling assistants to help you with your needs. You'll be better off without them in the long run.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You still don't have an firm a handle on management of your material affairs as you should. Minimize spending again today.

'Stitch in Side' Is Likely Spasm

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a girl 14, and in running activities I get a sharp pain in my side. Some of my friends have the same problem. What would cause this? I had a physical exam a month ago.—S.W.

Dear Doctor: I am 20 and can't jog for more than a couple of minutes without getting a terrible side ache. I've got them when I go horseback riding, when I dance, in almost any way to alleviate them?—S.P.

It's the familiar "stitch in the side" from running and some other types of exercise. Why? Formerly there was a belief that it was due to congestion of the liver or spleen—an idea since abandoned because of total lack of any supporting evidence.

It's probably more prevalent among girls than boys because girls are believed to be more physically active. This part of the thing doesn't seem to happen to boys when I observe boys out in training for some sport or other. It's also likely—this is base on my own observation and not scientific findings—that tension plays a part in it.

A recent report on this curious little mystery suggests that the "stitch" is due to a spasm of the colon. (large bowel) becoming tense enough to be painful. It is always possible, too, that a spasm of muscles of the back or trunk could be involved, and not only "stitches" need be exactly alike. I suppose.

In any event, there's always relief from it. How does it do a matter of a minute or two or three.

A recent article in the journal Sports Medicine suggests that if someone is usually troubled, taking an antispasmodic medication before your activities can prevent it. Quite possibly in some cases something as simple as some aspirin or its equivalent taken before you exercise or dance might relieve tension enough to prevent a S.P.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the best oral treatment for diabetes other types of insulin? Formerly there was a belief that it was due to congestion of the liver or spleen—an idea since abandoned because of total lack of any supporting evidence.

—M.K.J. . .

While switching to an oral medication would be convenient, the fact is that the vast majority who have been on insulin for 30 years cannot do so. The diabetes gets out of control.

The oral medications very often are effective with newly-diagnosed adult diabetics, older patients—over 50. But they are not effective in the "juvenile type" of diabetes, and in that case "juvenile" applies up to age 20.

Hence a patient in the 6th who has been on insulin for 30 years obviously developed the diabetes somewhere around age 30, and I have grave doubts about switching to oral medication would work. Anyway, after 30 years of controlling the disease successfully with insulin, why not stick with a program that has proved itself?

Opening lead—♦ Q

By Oswald and James Jacoby

West's queen of diamonds held the first trick. South made the continuation; drew trumps with three leads; ruffed dummy's last diamond played out all the clubs, making sure to win the last one in dummy; led a spade, stuck in his nine spot and showed his hand.

West had been end-played thoroughly. A club or diamond lead would allow a ruff and discard; a spade lead would establish South's king as a winner.

"Nicely played," said East. "You know I could have beaten the contract if I had been wide awake."

East was quite right. At trick one East should have put his king of diamonds on his partner's queen. If South ducked East could lead a spade. West could win; play any other suit, and wait for two more spade tricks.

Here is where the real alertness would be required. East would have to go right up with his 10 spot so as to be able to win the trick and lead a spade before South had had a chance to strip the hand.

Ulster Defence Association Trains Protestants for War

BELFAST (CP) — In the rolling hills outside Belfast, a squad of 50 men snakes through the heather toward a row of quivering targets. Their small-calibre rifles glinting in the late afternoon sun.

At a snap command from a hooded young leader, all 50 weapons suddenly shatter the silence in near-perfect unison. "Not bad," he tells them after a quick inspection of the targets, "not bad at all. Five bull's-eyes and no misses."

The exercise, carried out with the greatest of military precision and discipline, is one of many performed regularly all across embattled Ulster by units of the Protestant Ulster Defence Association.

It is extremely difficult to determine the exact size of the force but virtually nobody here doubts that its strength is formidable.

UDA leaders say they are training with the greatest reluctance but in the certainty that a full-scale civil war now has become inevitable between the Protestant majority and the Roman Catholic minority in Northern Ireland.

Sammy Smyth, a leading UDA spokesman, not connected with the military exercise, said: "Nobody really knows how to put to this point but we do know there will be a civil war and we'd rather get it over with quick.

"When the war comes," he said in an interview, "neither side will be able to give any quarter. We must be ready for it once and for all or else we won't solve anything for the next generation."

Smyth said there is a real possibility of the British Army withdrawing entirely from Ulster soon. "Otherwise they'd find themselves in the position of defending the IRA provisionals against us."

But he sees no prospect whatever of a United Nations force ever being considered acceptable by the Protestants of the North. He also thinks the Irish Republic will send in its army to help the Catholics if war comes.

"We have made provision for this and we have no doubt we can beat any force thrown against us as long as Britain will patrol the seas around Ireland to prevent arms coming in once the real fighting starts."

Intelligence analysts with the British forces do not dispute Smyth's estimation of UDA strength but they remain convinced they can prevent a civil war as long as some progress is made on the political front.

Smyth was reluctant to discuss how much help his organization has received from Canada except to say "we have had a lot of aid from many outside sources."

He added, however, that large numbers of ex-servicemen from countries such as Canada, Australia and New Zealand have offered their service and support. "And we expect in a civil war to get 15,000 to 20,000 men from outside coming in to assist us."

On the extreme Catholic side, Maire Drumm, vice-president of the newly-legalized Sinn Fein party, said in an interview that a civil war can still be averted if the British troops either withdraw to their barracks from the streets or leave altogether.

"What we would then need," she said, "is a UN force to patrol the area until some form of political solution can be worked out."

Sinn Fein is the political arm of the provisional IRA and the solution it proposes is an Irish federation composed of a somewhat-enlarged Ulster and the three other traditional regions of all Ireland — Connaught, Munster and Leinster.

"Then the Protestants would still have a majority in their regional Parliament in Ulster but over-all power would rest in Dublin and the kind of abuses we have now would be prevented."

William Craig, another leading loyalist leader and a former Home affairs minister, said the only possible solution to the problems now is the formation of a federal union with Ulster, Wales and Scotland forming distinct provinces within the United Kingdom.

There will never, he says, be a place for a UN presence in the North. "It would use force against any attempt to bring them in."

The loyalist community generally now bears some striking resemblances to the white society of Rhodesia, unlikely as the comparison seems. Both give the unmistakable impression of feeling themselves as embattled, isolated groups, fearing abandonment by Britain or the rest of the international community.

They talk endlessly of the "good old days" and even their frequent formal evenings at fashionable hotels are filled with dance music from 15 or 20 years ago and the old-time waltz, the quickstep or jive are far more popular than more up-to-date dance forms.

Drinking is usually heavy, and there is a distinct impression that it is done more to dull the painful realities of everyday life than for simple, social purposes.

Meanwhile, Merlyn Rees, Britain's secretary for Ulster, and such moderate leaders as Gerry Fitt, head of the Catholic Social Democratic and Labor Party or Brian Faulkner, chief of a middle-of-the-road Protestant grouping and leader of the Northern Ireland executive, still believe they can rally the opinion of the majority behind them.

But everywhere you go in Ulster, people of all shades of opinion return to the inescapable fact that even the moderates now are dependent on the extremists.

One middle-aged Protestant matron explained: "Many of us just want to get back to normal and learn to live with our neighbors. But we need the extremists on our side to protect us from the IRA—the army can't really do that—and the Catholics need their own protection against our terrorists."

Rees said in an interview that the executive set up in Ulster, providing a power-sharing arrangement for both the Catholic minority and the Protestant majority, is the only possible peaceful solution to Northern Ireland's troubles. He said by legalizing Sinn Fein and the Protestant Ulster Volunteer Force—and extreme militant group—he hopes to draw them into a political arrangement.

But extremists on all sides reject his proposals and while a civil war still may be avoided, a stable political arrangement in the near future seems as remote as ever.

Prisoners Switched

This is a file photo that shows Wallace L. Rhodes Jr., (right) talking with another prisoner, James M. Shields, when they were sentenced in Montana last July to hang for murder and kidnapping. Rhodes along with Richard Larry Rusk pulled off a biarre identity switch that went undetected until Rusk was released on 19 years on a imposter last weekend by Marion federal prison officials in Marion, Ill. The result is that Rhodes is now at large. Prison officials believe the switch occurred when the two were waiting to be taken to Marion. (AP Photo)

No Moves Made in Britain To Force Interest Disclosure

LONDON (CP) — The current furore in Britain over allegations of involvement of political figures in questionable business dealings is the latest of several this century—none of which has resulted in any concrete move to put MPs' financial interests on the record.

As the so-called Poulson Affair unfolds, with the deadlines of jailed architect John Poulson spreading out to touch senior politicians on both sides of the House of Commons, demands are growing for a register of some kind on which ministers and MPs would be invited or compelled to list all sources of income.

Unlike Canada, there never has been any bar here to MPs sitting on the boards of companies and it is accepted that some Labor MPs are "sponsored" by trade unions to represent their interests in Parliament. A Westminster MP's basic salary, about $10,350, falls far short of the remuneration of his North American counterparts.

Up to now, Conservative MPs in particular have resisted the call for a register of business interests. Ironically, one of the idea's strongest proponents has been Edward Short, deputy leader of the Labor party and leader of the House, who is currently under fire from his own backbenches for accepting payments totalling $15,000 from a civic official recently jailed for corruption.

Short maintained in a personal statement last week that the £250 payment made by T. Dan Smith, former Newcastle city boss, was to defray expenses over a long period. But... The Sunday Times published an old letter from Smith to Short indicating a connection between the payment and a controversial building contract. Labor party stalwarts associated with Poulson, now are calling for Short's resignation.

Also in the spotlight over Poulson is Reginald Maudling, former Conservative cabinet minister and once tipped as a future leader of the Tory party. A commercial TV program dealing with another aspect of Poulson's building contracts featured allegations of improper conduct against Maudling.

The former minister, who resigned as home secretary in Edward Heath's administration when his name first came up in the Poulson affair, denies the allegations. Lord Beaverbrook, the historian disclosed that the Canadian-born press lord paid tax-free incomes to three prominent political figures to save them from going bankrupt.

Among them was Andrew Bonar Law, Britain's only Canadian-born prime minister who received about £10,000 a year in this fashion while in the cabinet.

Another Beaverbrook beneficiary, the brilliant lawyer Lord Birkenhead, was carpeted by Conservative Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin in the 1920s for writing a lurid newspaper series on famous murder trials while holding the office of lord chancellor.

The year led to Baldwin formulating a code of ministerial conduct, but years later it was discovered that the prime minister had diverted £5,000 of Tory party funds to qualify Birkenhead.

More sensational at the time was the Marconi scandal of 1913, in which it was alleged that David Lloyd George and some ministerial colleagues had profited from shares in the Marconi company on the eve of a fat post office contract.

The investigating select committee was divided in its verdict but Lloyd George—later Liberal prime minister—was badly bruised.

Ramsay MacDonald, the first Labor prime minister, was pilloried by the press for accepting a car from a Scottish-born Canadian shipowner in 1920s. J. H. Thomas, a Labor minister in Baldwin's coalition government of 1931, was drummed out of Parliament for leaking budget secrets to friends who subsequently made a killing on the stock market.

After the Second Word War, the activities of some junior ministers in Clement Atlee's Labor government was severely tarnished by the Lynskey inquiry into acceptance of gifts and other governmental irregularities.

Lynskey writes Margach, was such an "unbelievably harrowing experience" that Westminster remained free of corruption gossip for almost 15 years.

Pair Jailed

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Ontario public accounts were sentenced to reformatory terms Thursday for accepting $25,000 in unlawful gifts.

Kenneth Ingham, 40, and Zoltan Orbok, 40, both employees of the provincial transport department, were convicted earlier of unlawfully accepting five yearly instalments of $5,000 from Dominion Crankshaft Co. of Ottawa for locating a limestone quarry for them. Ingham was sentenced to 12 months and Orbok received nine months.

Anethetic Eye Drops Control Asked by Doctors

TORONTO (CP) — A ban on the use of anesthetic eye drops or other drugs by optometrists in Ontario was urged Thursday by spokesmen for two groups of ophthalmologists, medical doctors who specialize in eye conditions.

The request was contained in briefs submitted to the legislature committee studying the proposed Health Disciplines Act which has received second reading.

J. D. Valberg, chairman of the ophthalmology section of the Ottawa Academy of Medicine, said the concern is about adverse affects of the, drugs which may be experienced by some patients.

Optometrists, who are licensed to measure and assess vision and prescribe glasses, have no medical training in treat those who may suffer drug reaction, he said.

Mexico Buy Beef

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba agriculture department has announced the sale to Mexico of 173 bulls, at average prices ranging from $800 to $1,900 a head. The deal was negotiated by the department in cooperation with the Manitoba Beef Growers Association and various breed associations in the province. The cattle were sold for Durango or Chihuahua, two of the largest beef-producing provinces in Mexico.

Raging River Evicts Hundreds

By DAVE AGNEW
The Canadian Press

The Grand River raged uncontrolled through southwestern Ontario Friday cutting a twisting swath of destruction that left hundreds temporarily homeless and officials assessing the ruins.

Torrential rains Thursday night swelled the river and brimmed its banks in a zig-zagging course from Kitchener to its Lake Erie mouth at Port Maitland.

By the time the flooding crested at Paris, in Brant County, the water level had swept up to 17 feet, about 15 feet above normal for this time of year. It was about the same at Brantford, about eight miles downriver, and there were two other centres for the river to pass through before it reached its mouth.

However, officials expected that the intensity of the flow would decrease through Cayuga and Dunnville, widening points of the river.

Although reminiscent of the havoc wrought by Hurricane Hazel 20 years ago, the storm caused only one death. The freak storm in 1954 covered much of the same ground, but left 82 dead and damage estimated at more than $24 million in the Toronto area.

Coincidentally, the only recorded death in the latest storm also occurred in Toronto. The body of smelt fisherman Salvatore Galliano, 29, was found in Toronto harbor Friday.

Hardest hit was the city of Cambridge where most of the downtown area was flooded. Helicopters, boats and construction vehicles were pressed into service to take scores of people to safety.

Emergency shelters were set up for those forced from their homes, but at the same time onlookers choked Cambridge streets in attempts to see the flooded areas.

The flood disrupted telephone services in many areas, and during the height of it firemen waded into an area to battle a fire that broke out in a flooded car-repair shop.

Bridgeport, just north of Kitchener, was the worst hit earlier Friday. Before the Grand started to recede, about 50 homes had been inundated there.

But police also were kept busy with boats rescuing stranded residents in West Montrose, Conestogo and Hawkesville, also in the Kitchener area.

About two inches of rain had been recorded in Kitchener and nearly three inches at Paris bridge.

In Cambridge, the flooding swept through what had been the downtown city of Galt, a name that disappeared with the advent of regional government in the area.

Storefront windows were smashed and water poured in, causing damage that Cambridge Fire Chief Douglas Pellington said might reach millions of dollars.

There also, the city hired three helicopters and roped off a parking lot beside city hall to remove people stranded on downtown rooftops.

The weather office said today should be generally sunny, although showers are expected Sunday.

That was a far cry from the rainfall in the Toronto area in the 12 hours ended Friday morning which was recorded at 4.2 inches at Erindale and 1.6 inches at Woodbridge. Nearly two inches were recorded at Kitchener while Cambridge had up to three inches.

Life Jackets Save Three

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — A helicopter crew today rescued a man trapped for 10 hours in the flood-swollen Grand River.

Norman Taylor, 45, of Cambridge, and a member of the Cross-Channel Radio Club asking residents in this flood-stricken community, was caught in a tree on a flooded island about three miles downstream from where his boat capsized.

Hundreds of people were evacuated from homes in the Kitchener area after almost two inches of rain Thursday night caused some of the worst flooding since Hurricane Hazel in 1954.

Maniwaki Crest Swells by Hour

By THE CANADIAN PRESS.

Only roofs poked through flood-swirled waters Friday as parts of Maniwaki, Que., 80 miles north of Ottawa, and civic authorities said Friday night the water level was rising one inch an hour.

Maniwaki mayor Louis Philippe Larocque said that despite statements from Hydro-Quebec that water levels had stabilized at the Mercier dam, upriver from Maniwaki, the flood waters were not receding.

No fatalities were reported in the city of 10,000, but Mr. Larocque said almost 2,000 people have left their homes for higher ground.

Levels at the Riviere Desert, which runs through the town, have risen 15 feet since Tuesday, and as much as a third of the city has been flooded.

Mr. Larocque said seven committees had been formed and were working closely with Quebec Provincial Police (QPP) and municipal police to provide flood victims with housing, fresh water, medical services and transportation.

The mayor and police spokesmen declined to make any estimate of the damage but it has been reported it will run into the millions.

Further downriver at Pointe Gatineau, Que., just north of Ottawa, municipal police reported one quarter of the town was flooded as waters from the Ottawa and Gatineau rivers overflowed their banks.

No injuries have been reported in the area but as many as 1,000 persons from communities between Pointe Gatineau and Maniwaki have been evacuated.

Hydro-Quebec spokesmen said the spill-off rate at the Mercier dam was holding steady at a volume of about 63,000 cubic feet per second, and added if there was no rain, the levels would hold.

Health authorities said there is a possibility of a disease outbreak because of the floods.

Boat crews work feverishly in Maniwaki, Que., about 85 miles north of Ottawa, to remove some articles from flooded homes and cut flood losses. The Gatineau river overflowed when Hydro-Quebec were forced to open the spill gates at the Mercier Dam, threatened by weeks of rain. Communities all along the Gatineau are suffering from the flooding.

Blasts Shatter Dublin

DUBLIN (Reuter) — At least 28 people died and more than 100 others were seriously injured Friday night in bombings which shattered central Dublin and the border town of Monaghan.

Early today more than 20 bodies, including two baby girls, lay unidentified and unclaimed in city morgues and police sources said many of the seriously injured were not expected to survive.

As rescue workers cleared the carnage—bodies mutilated beyond recognition and streets littered with the debris of mangled cars and wrecked shops—police warned there might be more bombs in every town.

The three Dublin bombs, which killed at least 23 people, went off in cars parked in the bustling city centre at the height of the evening rush hour. Two of the cars had been hijacked from predominantly-Protestant areas of Belfast, it was later discovered.

Leadership PM's Plank

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau kicked off his July 8 election campaign Friday night by declaring leadership the overriding issue facing the country.

"The issue is what group of men and what party can give the leadership the country to solve its problems," he told about 400 cheering Liberal workers and supporters in York South, the riding won in 1972 by David Lewis, federal New Democratic Party leader.

It is up to the government to propose solutions and the voters must choose the party most capable of taking effective action, he said.

He attacked both the Progressive Conservatives and NDP for defeating the federal budget in Parliament and struck out at their main campaign policies.

Wage and price controls, proposed by Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, would be unfair to low income earners, he said. The government has followed a policy of "selective intervention," taking action only when prices get out of line in individual cases.

He questioned the credibility of the NDP for forcing an election while increased corporate tax proposals were awaiting passage in Parliament. The NDP has long advocated a tougher stand against big business.

They defeated a budget that was increasing corporation taxes $800 million — 37 per cent more than all corporate taxes paid in 1973, the prime minister said.

He said the Liberal party is willing and eager to tackle all problems in the country, to devise solutions such as the national oil agreement which was negotiated with provincial premiers.

"We bring in solutions! . . . We know we're not popular with everybody . . . but our party is not denying that there are problems."

His 40-minute off-the-cuff speech in York South supporters followed a visit to St. Paul's, a riding won, narrowly in 1972 by Conservative Ron Atkey.

Big Spender Tries Again

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Roman, chairman of Denison Mines Ltd. and top-spending candidate in the 1972 federal election, said Friday he will again seek the Progressive Conservative nomination in the federal York North riding.

Mr. Roman, defeated in the riding by Liberal incumbent Barrett Dawson in 1972, spent $82,102 on his campaign, about $40,000 more than the next highest spender.

Hearst Girl Feared Slain

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police were trying today to identify the charred bodies of five persons removed from a suspected hideout of the Symbionese Army (SLA) hideout following a blazing hour-long gun battle between officers and its occupants.

A spokesman for newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst said the FBI told Hearst one of the dead was SLA leader Donald DeFreeze. But the FBI in both Los Angeles and San Francisco denied that agents had identified DeFreeze—alias SLA general Field Marshal Cinque. It also denied telling Hearst any such thing.

The SLA claims It kidnapped Hearst's daughter, Patricia, in Berkeley last Feb. 4. She since has renounced her family and said she had joined the terrorist organization, although authorities say her statements may have been made under coercion.

John Lester, the Hearst spokesman, told reporters of DeFreeze's reported death late Friday outside the Hearst mansion in Hillsborough, south of San Francisco. But police drove away without a word as reporters shouted, "What about Pat?"

It was feared that Miss Hearst and eight have been in three while women reported to have been in the frame house, which burned to the ground after catching fire in the gun battle. Three of the bodies were found underneath the house near air vents to the outside.

Authorities said they were unable to identify the bodies immediately because they were so badly disfigured.

The Los Angeles County coroner's office said that as a "matter of routine," it was requested Miss Hearst's dental records for use in efforts to identify the bodies. A coroner's official said the dead were apparently two men and three women but that race or age couldn't be immediately determined.

Police attacked the house, firing volley after volley of tear gas shotgun and M-16 rifle rounds. They were met by heavy return fire, some from beneath the house where three bodies were found and some of it was thought by officials to be from .50 calibre machine-guns. The gas grenades apparently sparked the fire that burned the house. Police never got inside.

Kettles Increase Lead Count

TORONTO (CP) — Boiling water in electric kettles greatly increases lead concentration in water, Toronto's medical health officer said Friday.

Dr. G. W. O. Moss told a board of health meeting that tests made by his staff show that water boiled in this type of kettle contains up to 9,000 parts per billion of suspended lead particles.

Dr. Moss said the discovery was made after recent surveys by the ministry showed increased lead levels in the blood of a seven-month-old infant.

Aw, Shucks!

Donna Lynn Ray of Trenton's Stella Crescent got an inkling Friday of what spring fever was all about. Dandelions happened to be the handiest bloom around for a secret sulker known only as Douglas. At first Donna wasn't sure about the flowers but after a little prompting took them home to find a jar of water.

Dragging Feet On Fire Safety

By COLIN BRUCE

Trenton Town Councillor Ron Price suggested Monday night, "maybe we'd be better off giving the fire chief the three men?"

This came as a response to the news that a survey was being taken of the town's fire protection machinery.

Fifteen years ago the Canadian Underwriters Association suggested six men serve on each fire department shift. Currently three serve in the daytime and one at night. Thel Ontario Fire Masha in 1970 also made recommendations to enlarge Trenton Fire Department's staff.

As each of the recommendations were made, collective council hands were thrown up in disbelief, with the consistent response: "We can't afford it."

In the words of Councillor John Born, "we have to tailor the ideal to what we can afford." He was referring to Councillor Ron Price who suggested only two men of three more men before the underwriters come back and recommend twice that number.

Year after year the fire chief has requested more men. Year after year council has said no, leaving the chief with what he must consider too small a force to protect Trenton's 15,000 people. He wouldn't be asking for more men if he had enough.

It's interesting to note council's vigor in trying to find a way of securing a multi-million dollar marina for the two dozen Trenton boaters plus tourists who would need permanent slips.

Councillor Ron Price is perplexed over the "boiling situation" he sees coming once the underwriters finish their survey. He says a lot of people are going to be "upset" when they learn how understaffed the department is.

"They're going to tell us we need more men," he said, "prophesying the survey outcome.

Perhaps as a consolation to the underwriters' recommendations or maybe to get the chief to stop writing for more men, council this year relaxed its stand. One man can be hired only if he works at night, said council.

There's only one man working at night now and the second man could keep him company praying" no fires break out because the rest of the staff is home in bed.

According to Councillor Price, the chief didn't want anything to do with that arrangement and said he'll hold his ground until the current "underwriters survey is completed.

He and the councillor know what at least one of the recommendations will be and that one man offered by council will look a little embarrassing.

Council is going to all lengths to cut spending. Election year might have something to do with that. Even Councillor Price is not being entirely unselfish. He figures three men voluntarily delivered will halt bigger demands once the survey is finished.

Fire is a brutal, devastating thing. It ravages all that it touches. Sheer, brute force in terms of strength and numbers —mixed with a liberal dose of talent — bring a fire to its knees.

When a fire breaks in Trenton, no community could ask for a finer force of men who act as promptly and effectively.

While the number of firefighters has remained static since last year, the number of Trenton calls has increased by more than 25 per cent.

In addition to that, calls to Murray Township nearly doubled in the same period.

According to fire department statistics, property loss in the last year was $87,903 and contents loss was $82,625. the Canadian Underwriters' Association — must sound the alarm before council heeds the call.

If more men can't fit into the budget, make some cuts elsewhere.

The fire department should be treated like rent or groceries. Pay for the necessities and then fit the rest in.

Commenting on the chief's management ability, Councillor Price said, "We don't tell the police chief what to do. The fire chief knows what he's doing."

Museums Preserve the Past Throughout Prince Edward

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — The heritage of a county has been preserved through Prince Edward's five museums where the password is "yesterday."

Wellington Historical Museum, opened in 1967, features room vignettes and displays of unusual collections. A former Society of Friends meeting house, the museum has subtly introduced the Quaker touch in several exhibits.

This year, the building has been re-decorated and windows opened to permit more natural light. Curator Ruth Armstrong reports that museum hours have been changed to accommodate morning visitors.

The season's grand opening was scheduled for today, with a sale of plant slips as a special feature. The museum will remain open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each weekend until July 1 when hours will change to 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. Closing date is Labor Day weekend.

The Marysburgh Museum, or "Rose House," located about 10 miles east of Picton uses imaginative displays to tell the story of the settlement and development of Marysburgh.

The pioneer house offers a room-by-room tour of the past and features a genealogical section.

Curator Mrs. Carolyn Love says that this year the "Rose House" will open on June 1 but there will be no group tours planned until July. This is primarily due to the fact that the county road fronting the museum is now under construction.

A staff of three will spend the month of June at the museum catalouging; visitors may stop throughout the day.

In July and August the museum will remain open daily from 2 p.m. to 5.30 p.m. Labor Day will mark the close of the season.

Mrs. Love notes that displays in the Rose House will remain essentially the same as in other seasons.

Mariners' Park Museum, Prince Edward's only out-of-doors showcase of the past, is always "open" to the public.

The park displays the engine from the river steamer Riverside, a lifeboat from the Greek freighter Prionstatis and other marine artifacts salvaged from county waters.

A concrete-block building to house smaller marine artifacts has been built and should be opened later this summer.

Highlight of the season at this park is the annual Mariners' Service held in a small church bordering the grounds.

Ameliasburgh museum, built in 1800 as a Methodist Church, will open Sunday, May 19 with a wide variety of displays to attract visitors and county residents.

The museum features a chapel, a schoolroom, blacksmith shop and several room vignettes. Children enjoy the mini zoo behind the building where ducks and geese are penned.

The museum will open weekends from 10.30 a.m. to 5 p.m. — except Mondays.

The Prince Edward County Museum, newest tribute to the old days was officially opened last summer and this year plans extended. Apart.

This museum will open its doors to the public on Sunday, June 9, and hours will run from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. in July and August and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. in June, September and October.

This year the museum features a stained glass window in its chancel, a gift from Picton's late mayor, Harvey J. McFarland.

The county museum was formerly the Old Church of St. Mary Magdalene and is adjoined by the old Anglican rectory, recently purchased by the county for development.

This attractive museum property, located near the Macaulay Mountain Conservation area, is in the town of Picton.

Public Apathy, Public Shame

By MARGARET HAYLOCK.

Is commnity interest dead in Prince Edward County or just temporarily anesthetized by televised National Hockey League playoffs and Spring cleaning?

Apathy in "sleepy Prince Edward" has been underlined this week by low attendance at public meetings to discuss the one-tier government system proposed by the county.

In Picton on Wednesday night, a total of 20 ratepayers voted on the proposal with 18 in favor and four opposed.

Athol Township recorded similar low attendance with a vote of 16 to 3 in favor of a one-tier system.

Hillier and Hallowell Townships boasted approximately 35 persons in attendance at their open meetings to discuss the restructuring of local government.

This excellent attendance was achieved through a campaign by village council "to put it right on the line to the people," according to reeve Allan Anderson.

To insure community interest in discussion of the one-tier concept, town clerk Charles Fraleigh was directed to write letters to all residents of the municipality.

This advance publicity, in addition to a notice in the local paper, prompted 80 persons to attend the meeting where the proposal was voted down 62 to 15.

In a position paper warded by the ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs, the importance of public input regarding the proposal is emphasized clearly.

Prince Edward County residents, invited to study and discus some-tier proposal, generally appear too busy with other things to attend public meetings.

A brief on local government restructuring was submitted through county council to the provincial government in 1972. In 1973 council forwarded a resolution to the province calling for immediate legislation for restructuring of the county.

Council has protected the interests of its electors but there is little evidence now that ratepayers are heeding council with full attention to the one-tier proposal.

In a public advertisement of the meeting held in Bloomfield to discuss the proposal it was observed "If you don't vote, you can't holler."

Hopefully, stay at- home ratepayers in all municipalities will recall this sage, advice should developments disappoint them.

Public input is a privilege of democracy, but Prince Edward residents this week generally have reacted as if it were a nuisance duty to be shirked.

If present attendance trends continue, approximately 400 persons in a county of 20,000 souls have taken time to contribute their opinions on the one-tier system.

Young Wildlife Best Left Alone

It's spring. Leave wildlife alone.

That's the message from provincial government conservation officers in the Quinte area.

It's the time of year when there's much young, dependent wildlife around. Fields and woods conceal nests and litters.

Often it's a matter of good — but misguided — intentions.

A fox pup or young rabbit may appear abandoned and in need of protection. So humans have a tendency to bring them home — then phone the ministry for advice on what to do.

The best thing to do is leave them alone in the first place, says Hans Van Rosen, wildlife supervisor for the ministry's Napanee district.

Rarely have such animals been abandoned. The adults are usually out seeking food for their young. When they return and find the offspring gone they probably conclude the young have fallen victim to predators and leave the area.

"Nature rarely abandons its own," says Mr. Van Rosen. "The best thing is to leave these animals where they were found."

Most recent incident involved a Deseronto woman who found a young fox — then later phoned the ministry.

Such incidents not only are inhibiting to conservation but also against the law — although the ministry doesn't particularly relish prosecuting people who phone for advice, says the supervisor.

"Nonetheless such an act is just as illegal as shooting a deer out of season. But it keeps happening time and time again."

Maximum penalty under wildlife protection regulations is $1,000.

Nobody Helped

A few years ago there was a public outcry in New York over the murder of a young woman whose screams for help were ignored by people in nearby apartment buildings. It was one of those cases of the public not wanting to get involved which, unhappily, is a mark of our look-after-yourself and impersonal urban civilization.

Now there is word of an almost identical tragedy, only this time it is closer to home — the murder of a 24-year-old nurse in a Kitchener apartment building. At least five of the tenants were awakened by the young woman's screams but only one called police.

Perhaps there was some reason for this; the screams were heard at 4.30 a.m., when even the most insomniac of people are asleep. One man awakened by his wife said the noise sounded like a dog howling . . . or was this simply what he wanted to believe? In any event it says something about our conditioned, wary society that only one tenant got on the phone to police.

Observations of the apartment superintendent, Mrs. Anne Nicholson, also say something about public behavior today, as well as about the limitations imposed on police investigations where there is a risk they may impinge on civil rights.

Admitting the building was a "noisy one" and tenants were used to having their sleep disturbed, she said: ". . . the way it is today you call police and they can't do anything about noise. The laws have to be changed . . . anything can happen without police being able to take action as long as it happens inside an apartment. I'm not surprised people did not call police."

It is acute too that this was apparently not an attack on a nurse coming off night duty — a circumstance hospital authorities try to guard against, especially since the murder of a Vancouver nurse two or three years ago. But it raises once again the whole question of public safety in places where people come together and are lulled into what can be a false sense of security.

Taxi Fares

The prospect of Belleville taxis being equipped with meters has an air of inevitability about it, having to do with the increase in the cost of gas and a predicted rise in the minimum wage.

Some rides will be a little cheaper, in consequence, but not by much, according to figures released. In fact, for the most part, it will mean sharply increased fares.

At least we shall know where we stand, for there are times, in the case of a ride from some rural area or other into town, when the driver himself is not sure what the fare is and will ask his passenger. Surely not the most satisfactory situation.

Inflation is hitting the pocketbook in a variety of ways. Higher taxi fares are part of the same trend.

Happy Occasion

In an era in which the news has perhaps more to do with the latest mischief of mankind and politics, an event held earlier this month in Stirling leaves a legacy of encouragement and affirmation of the essential uprightness of this world.

We refer to the Stirling Festival of Sacred Praise, one of only two in Canada, and a creative happening which attracted more than a thousand entrants from schools round about.

In Belleville we have the Rotary Musical Festival which for the past few years has attracted a goodly number of entrants. But the Stirling event seems to have outdrawn Belleville's and next year will celebrate its 25th anniversary into the bargain.

Those who help organize such a worthwhile cultural program, and those whose artistic labors as competitors give it momentum, are deserving of society's admiration and support.

Aura of Gloom in House

P.M. And Cabinet Looked Like Losers On That Final Day

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Have you ever watched a government go to pieces before your very eyes?

To break up, right out there in the open, on the floor of the House of Commons, and not behind the closed doors of the party caucus or cabinet?

Other governments, in failing, have gone down kicking and clawing.

But not Pierre Trudeau's. Perhaps it had to be something to the Prime Minister himself.

It could have been that air of superiority he always has worn as a sort of political crown; that aura of infallibility; that arrogant assumption that he was the best possible of all prime ministers; that aristocratic attitude of intellectual elitism.

Whatever it was, it had to be a quality that prevented the Prime Minister — and his followers — from facing up to the inevitable, and accepting with quiet grace the impending destruction of their government.

They could not even keep up a brave front to save falling face.

They could not even shrug — for six years the characteristic gesture of contempt their leader so skilfully used to signify his distaste for those who dared oppose him.

So there they sat, deep in gloom.

And they sulked.

The Prime Minister set the fashion for the fall from the heights of power and glory.

He did not skip gaily out of the Commons when the Daily Question Period ended, kid with the Liberal troops in the corridors, lobby, brush off the press, embrace the adoring kids out in the corridors, and then go to his office to plot the impending destruction of his opponents.

He could not even keep up a brave front to save falling face.

They could not even shrug — for six years the characteristic gesture of contempt their leader so skilfully used to signify his distaste for those who dared oppose him.

So there they sat, deep in gloom.

And they sulked.

He did not skip gaily out of the Commons when the Daily Question Period ended, kid with the Liberal troops in the corridors, lobby, brush off the press, embrace the adoring kids out in the corridors, and then go to his office to plot the impending destruction of his opponents.

No, he did what he so unusually does — he sat there and listened — as the Opposition, Marcel Lambert, the Conservative House critic, and David Lewis, cannonaded him.

Sure, he put up something of a front, but because it was such a strange new role for him, it was almost embarrassingly unconvincing.

He, fussed with the documents on his desk, shuffling papers and peering professorily through the spectacles he so seldom wears.

The men around him, his cabinet colleagues, sensing his discomfort, leave him alone, but in leaving him to himself, make him appear all the more lonely.

Sharp, in his continuing situations to the Prime Minister, appears routinely almost to fawn on the man for whom he stepped aside in the 1968 Liberal leadership race.

Sharp laughs in ridiculous at the Opposition — except at Tories Conservative Prime Minister John Diefenbaker who holds a secret share his cynical head and chuckling draws Pierre Trudeau's attention to the same remarks he so obviously thinks the Tories or the NDP make of themselves.

But not on this doomsday.

Sharp, head downcast, just sits there. Silent.

No jokes. No laughs. Nothing.

And down the front bench of the cabinet there Energy Minister Macdonald is usually so explosive with vigor and so quick to harrass an Opposition MP with the tenacity to question his wisdom, there is more gloomy silence.

But the party is over. The game has been lost. And the Liberals, so accustomed to for 32 of the last 40 years — just do not know how to look like losers.

Canadian Twin Otter Aircraft Serve The Communities of Nepal's Himalayan Kingdom

By PETER TONGE
In The Christian Science Monitor
Courchevelle, France

It looked, for all the world, as if the plane was flying straight into the side of a mountain.

And it was.

In fact, the postage-size airport here is just that — a jutting mountainside 6,000 feet up among the craggy peaks of the French Alps.

Hair raising? Not at all. It was as smooth as any landing I have experienced, but it also was unusual enough for the 20 passengers to applaud.

Every day the pilots of Air Alpes bring planes into "airports" like this one here in the Alps. In 12 years of flying they have honed the techniques of uphill landing and set the standards for others to follow.

In fact, their methods now are being exported, to open up a whole new spectrum of possibilities for air travel in mountainous area.

The Kingdom of Nepal, for instance, has an airways corporation its own — something undreamed of until the experties of Air Alpes came along.

Nepal's two Canadian-built Twin Otters fly in and out of Himalayan stations where either no only expensive to operate helicopters and also pack animals could make it.

Madagascar and Peru are two other mountainous states currently negotiating with Air Alpes, and the Swiss and Austrian Governments have made a study of their unusual system.

Air Alpes' airport plan calls for uphill runways, simply chiseled out of existing mountainsides. Little earth moving needs to be done. Planes land uphill using gravity for quick slowdowns. They take off downhill — using gravity to get rapidly airborne.

At Courchevelle all aircraft I watched were off the ground well before the end of the 300 meter (330 yard) runway. A level runway would have to be twice as long, according to an Air Alpes spokesman, in fact it would require the blasting away of almost an entire mountainside — a technically unfeasible and financially impossible task.

Michele Ziegler, the man who got the idea, began Air Alpes because of his love of skiing. The overnight train from Paris to the mountainside resorts was too long; the flight into Geneva and two or more hours of bus ride thereafter too tedious.

Now this spotty air service is helping overseas visitors, too, as well as local skiers. In March this year a group of Americans were strapping on their skis in Courchevelle's exactly eight hours after leaving New York.

Little wonder the company is succeeding. In 1973 it began with a staff of three — one pilot Ziegler himself, one mechanic, and a secretary cum booking clerk. Now the staff numbers 185, of which 64 are pilots. That's 29 pilots and four mechanics up on last year's total. There was some experimenting before the company set maximum runway standards: no more than a 20 percent slope.

Landing, of course, requires maneuvers that differ from the conventional. Watching a plane come in at Courchevelle is quite an experience. It circles into the valley, flies out of sight before rising into view like some giant Condor just as it is about to land.

"We're the only people who fly up to land," says an Air Alpes pilot, adding that he wouldn't switch to conventional airline flying under any circumstances.

At present the company uses mostly Twin Otters — 20 passenger planes. But soon it hopes to add the four-engined 50-senter DHC-7, which de Havilland currently is developing.

This aircraft will provide mountain airlines with "big plane" capacity. "Its short-take-off-and-landing ability as well within the capacity of the allports to handle," says an Air Alpes spokesman.

All airport flying services one day be fairly widespread around the world? Very definitely, says the company, especially areas where rugged terrain makes major highway construction a very costly undertaking.

Student Tours Spark Unforeseen Problems

Kitchener Waterloo Record

Student tours, which started as relatively healthy outlets for growing academic curiosity about what lies beyond the borders of their own country, are beginning to present some unforeseen difficulties concerning which the Waterloo county board of education is right to be concerned.

The problems showing up have been neatly summarized by Ross Dunford, principal of Forest Heights collegiate. He notes competition developing among teachers to organize the tours for students financially able to go; the pressuring of principals to postpone or waive examinations for the tourist students; preferential treatment for students and teachers when they are late returning, and the giving of attendance credit to the tourists while those remaining at home are penalized for missing school.

As well, the board has been supplying teachers to replace those participating in the tours; people on trips and accepting money from tour organizers to cover the costs of the supply teachers needed when tours are delayed. Board solicitors suggest that could make the board legally responsible for the well-being of the tour students.

Many parents apparently assume that because the tours are arranged through the schools and the teachers, the board officially supports them. Such has not been the case.

The ingredients to make trouble for the board. If not for the whole educational system, are unquestionably present. And they are being aggravated by those teachers who seek concessions for students who have been in their care throughout a tour.

Some teachers are understandably interested in promoting tours because, aside from office advantages, they mean free trips for them, although just how "free" they really are, considering the work and responsibility involved, remains a moot question.

It is doubtful many people would want to see the board discourage teachers or students from the trips, in spite of the resentments bound to be felt by those students unable to participate. Many students are probably going to make the trips anyway, one way or another, and teachers would seem to make the best possible chaperones, if not take a few exceptions.

The board can help by making sure that preferential treatment is not given the students who go on the tours, and by making sure that preferential treatment is not given the tourists for any other than the most imperative of reasons. It ought also make sure it is free of liability in case of mishaps.

If this can be accomplished and parents made to understand clearly the board's position, there would seem to be no reason why the teacher-organized tours should not continue. The travel is bound in do some students and teachers some good.

County Government Costs

Editor
The Intelligencer

At a meeting held in Hillier Township Hall, Tuesday May 14, those present were advised by members of the Committee on restructuring to One Tier Government of the cost to administer it would be negligible — BUNK.

If we were attempting to note that 95 per cent of those in attendance (22) were members of Hillier Council, Committee, Depart, myself included.

Basically our tier government is good and possibly the county should have this type of government , but what about the alternatives, other than just hearsay? What are the real alternatives?

When asked what the official base formula for Tax purposes would be this was neatly glossed over. Hillier Township being heavily agriculturally oriented, the cost would be presented with a tax bill never dreamed of.

Where other communities have been restructured regardless one or two tier, it is a fact there has been an escalation of costs for services to be rendered on a regional basis. Why would Prince Edward County under one tier government be left different from the rest of the province.

I do believe that the aspirant wishing to change the tier system of government should openly acquaint him, or herself with the commitment to be made and justify that extra cost of administration.

There is no great need to rush into this form of government with a few days notice. The Minister has given his assurances that if a decision is to be made for one tier, the electorate should be fully cognizant of the ramifications. They not make the decision and inform the electorate the true facts and gain their respect!

Thurlow and Land Property

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Bouquets to Thurlow township and Alderman George Zegouras. Their stand in the matter of the purchase of the Pofler property is commendable.

With escalating costs of real estate and land the city of Belleville should to be setting an example by not encouraging the trend.

The cost of this particular piece of real estate exclusive of the cost sharing involved still means a great deal of money to the taxpayers whether it be from the Ontario chest or the city chest.

Any trailer park that costs in the region of $70,000 is not a meaningful place in this area.

Those living it would only do so in the summertime and for any revenue generated by this usage would be outweighed by the cost of upkeep, etc.

There are many more pressing needs in the community than a window dressing along the bay shore that is likely to rest heavily on the backs of the taxpayers.

As is advocated by Alderman Zegouras, the money could be better used on behalf of our citizens by spending some in the Hillcrest area.

If there is any left over, it should be applied to the so-called centennial project by renovating some of the disgusting hovels that are owned and rented out to some of Belleville's pillars of respectability.

Until there are still houses with dirt floors, without running water, without adequate toilet facilities, I feel we don't need to be spending $70,000 on a trailer park that will not benefit Belleville.

All those on city council and the Moira River Conservation authority who support this should be asked to resign from office.

Look out for pressure to be brought now for the taxpayers of Belleville to pick up the tab for Thurlow.

Potter Property One Offer We Can't Refuse

By MAURICE SWITZER
Managing Editor

With an asking price of just over $2,100 per acre, Belleville would be foolish to pass up the chance to develop the prime land parcel known as "the Potter property."

Conversion of the scenic Highway 2 site into the setting for trailer park and greenbelt usage sounds expensive. But, white 20th century affluence hasn't yet reached the point where one sneezes at $770,000, the Moira River Conservation Authority's option to purchase the land is actually quite a bargain.

Consider the fact that the average serviced lot for a prospective city homeowner was last seen heading into orbit at 10,000, and we don't mean feet.

(A reliable source has it that land in the Potter neighborhood recently sold at $11,000 an acre).

Also bear in mind that Belleville's share of the Potter purchase is estimated at around $65,000 a year for three years, including legal costs and other extras. The provincial government's Ministry of Natural Resources announced that it would pick up the gourmet's share of the tab.

Those citizens concerned about cities becoming concrete jungles should know that Belleville budgets about $80,000 a year (the 1973 figure) toward that end — sidewalk construction.

By comparison, 60 per cent of that figure for the next three years is a small price to pay for the potential offered by "the Potter property: acres of picnic facilities without having to pile the family into a car and drive 30 miles to the provincial park.

And while Mayor Robin Jeffrey has found herself the object of some criticism for referring to the development as "visionary", she recognizes the variety of uses to which the property could be put.

The way some opponents of the plan are talking tight purse strings, one would assume that no plans were being considered for making the park a paying proposition. Campers and trailer owners will be charged for the services provided, and there is no reason why day and season permits — similar to, but cheaper than those for provincial parks — cannot be instituted.

A golf course, horseback riding trails, a pioneer village? Why not? That's the sort of plans the speculators who were also hot on the Potter property trail would have put into effect to get some return on their investment.

Those developers — speculators, whatever they should be called represent another reason why Belleville's support was needed for the Moira Conservation Authority's purchase as soon as possible.

That is undoubtedly one reason why the purchase option was taken without all the usual on-paper signs of specific project for the site. In supporting the proposed purchase with fairly great haste, Province has indicated its approval of the wisdom of the action at the earliest possible opportunity.

Not that the Potter purchase is a hasty-concocted transaction. Exploratory talks were held over a year ago when a city council committee was seeking a suitable trailer park site as a tourist attraction.

Unfortunately, the most vociferous opponents of the Potter development have objected purely on financial grounds. They have not made any comment about the esthetics, potential community value, or need of the project.

They have simply said: "It costs too much money."

But the three city aldermen who voted against spending $170,000 of Belleville ratepayers' money over three years to purchase 340 acres of prime property didn't object to such items appropriated in the 1973 budget as $85,000 to clean streets.

Some of the economic arguments are nothing short of naive. "Take that $170,000 and spend it in the city," they say.

Well, much more than that $170,000 WILL be spent in the city. But this particular $170,000, like a great many other of them, has been earmarked for a specific purpose and council has voted on the expenditure for that purpose alone.

Council doesn't say "We'll take the $10,000 we were going to spend on that new pickup truck and put up a new tennis court with it."

If both projects are considered vital enough, they are both authorized.

It's not a question of irresponsible spending. It's a case of allotting funds where they are deemed necessary.

And, if necessity is the mother of invention, its early recognition is the grandaddy of thrift.

Was it true he operated 20 animal control contracts in the Quinte area?

"About 20 or so contracts," he said. These include Picton, Trenton, Sidney and Thurlow Townships, Marmora and Madoc.

Asked if he sold dogs and cats to Queen's University, he said "a university won't buy dogs unless they're from a licensed operator. Look it up in Bill 194."

"I don't want a story," said Mr. Tucker.

"The operation is inspected by government inspectors."

How much does Queen's pay," he was asked.

"Why don't you ask Queen's?" He replied.

So we did.

Beagle Owners Beware!

If you want to be sure your family pet will never be sold to the physiology department of a university, choose its breed with care.

Avoid any male weighing between 35 and 45 pounds at maturity. That's the sex and weight preference of universities that use dogs for medical research. Beagles are said to answer the description perfectly.

Queen's University buys 500 dogs and 500 a year from licensed private pound operators.

"The Animals for Research act allow us to requisition dogs the municipal pounds after a waiting period of 72 hours," said Dr. Ronald Greenwood, head of Queen's animal care service, in a telephone interview.

"Our major supplier is Pembroke. Napanee has a new canine control and we buy from a central pound in Sirling."

"Under the act," he said, "a municipality can authorize the pound officer to collect — cheques are made out to the pound keeper if there is a covering letter authorizing it. The arrangement of disposal of money is between municipality and pound officer."

"In Ontario we can buy only from a licensed pound or from a registered supplier," said Dr. Greenwood. "Outside the province we can buy from whomever we want."

The cat supply is seasonal, he indicated. In the fall, when all the spring kittens are abandoned, the supply is high. In winter, cats take cover, and the supply slowly increases with the advent of warm weather from spring until the fall peak.

"Out-of season we use a supplier in Quebec, but the cats from there are of poor quality, disease-ridden and with a mortality of 30 per cent," said Dr. Greenwood.

Cost of a weanling mouse, four weeks old, varies from 25 to $10 according to genetic strain.

Queen's pays $6 for a dog and additional boarding costs of $2 a day. Cost of a cat, said Dr. Greenwood, is $2 or $3 and $1 a day boarding fee.

Of the 500 cats and 500 dogs Queen's buys annually, the university uses 300 of each. The rest it conditions and supplies to other institutions and to the government.

It doesn't get animals from Humane Societies.

"Humane Societies are classified as shelters, not pounds," said Dr. Greenwood.

Unclaimed Pets Die by Thousands

No one knows how many dogs and cats in Ontario have no owners, are foot-loose strays abandoned by careless breeders who allow their domestic pets to reproduce beyond reason.

Dr. Ronald Urquhart, supervisor of the Animals for Research Act with the Ontario Ministry of agriculture, says that a vague 1969 figure places the number of homeless dogs and cats at 400,000 each. His department is trying to figure out a foolproof way of gathering the statistics."

Ken Hughes, general manager of the Ontario Humane Society says "nobody knows".

A spokesman for Queen's University said one quarter of a million stray cats and dogs are destroyed in Ontario every year. Other sources could not confirm his figures.

One set of statistics is closely examined. The ministry of agriculture released the following figures on the number of animals used by registered research facilities (universities and the government) nationally since 1971.

In 1971, over a nine-month period, 2,691 dogs and 1,694 cats were used. In 1972, 2,696 dogs and 1,862 cats were used.

In 1973, the figures were 2,658 dogs and 1,289 cats.

Is an Election Necessary?

Mike Anderson is a 15-year-old Grade 9 student at Quinte Secondary School. "I don't think it's right that there should be an election called. I think the NDP and the Conservatives are unfair in the way they are treating the Liberal government."

Emily Carswell: "I don't think the government should get in until it's really due. An election is too expensive."

Jack McBride is an insurance adjustor on Front Street: "There will be an election because the NDP is trying to improve its lot. The NDP is using the budget as an excuse. It's the only way they can break off the relationship they've been having with the Liberal party."

"It (an election) provides the NDP with the only way they can break off supporting the Liberal party and still save face."

Municipal Problem

Assortment of Fates May Befall Stray Fidos

LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Pet owners live with a constant anxiety — what could happen to Fido if he slipped his leash and got picked up by the "dog catcher"?

The homeowner, watching the escapee canvas among his shrubs and flowers, couldn't care less. He just wants the danged thing out of there and doesn't quibble about the means, as long as its cost is only a cent or two on his tax bill.

Other members of the community have a cursory interest: in Fido and his feline housemate, Municipal councillors and people with a concern for animals know that the public annually permits the breeding of more cats and dogs than it wants to care for. Universities and other licensed research facilities have an interest in ownerless strays — they become the pool from which the laboratories draw animals for research.

The Ontario government has a direct interest — it is charged with enforcing the Animals for Research Act. Bill 194, proclaimed in May, 1971, that sets out the terms under which your errant Fido may meet his ultimate solution.

Finally, the Ontario Humane Society and its outspoken general manager, Tom Hughes, are very interested indeed.

The Humane Society is a public organization with three functions: to enforce animal welfare legislation (set up the Animals for Research Act) to educate the public in the humane treatment of animals and to collect money for the first two purposes.

When Fido goes on the lam all these interested parties may play a part in his future. It all depends on the way the municipality he lives in chooses to enforce its animal control bylaws.

Fido's owner probably favors the most costly of the three available choices. The municipality can, as Belleville has, contract with the Humane Society to handle its animal control. The society uses its officers to patrol the city and pick up strays. They are placed in a shelter and every method possible is used to find their owners. Healthy animals that remain unclaimed are placed for adoption and held. A local veterinarian now gives protective distemper shots to adopted dogs before their release from the Quinte Humane Society.

Belleville pays the Humane Society a per capita fee of 68 cents for animal control, or about $25,000 a year. The society says it is losing money at this rate and had asked for an increase to $3 cents per capita this year.

Unclaimed animals are eventually disposed of in an electrocution chamber. Those who criticize the society for not "using a needle to put them to sleep" don't realize that only a veterinarian is legally entitled to use drugs for euthanasia.

Many Humane Society members want to see the society's municipal contract to run a spaying and neutering clinic.

If all animals were spayed or neutered before adoption, the flow of unwanted animals bred each year would decrease, they say.

The homeowner whose garden Fido altered during his spree regards talk of shelters and adoption as sentimental slush, and think death under the knife in some physiology lab a just fate for the dog.

His municipality can choose one of two cheaper ways out. It can hire a dog catcher and operate its own municipal pound. Or it can contract its animal control out to a licensed private pound operator.

Napanee has just set up a municipal pound, and has hired private pound operators to pick up its strays. Belleville once had its own dog catcher and a pound at the fairgrounds, until the Humane Society, exercising its powers under animal welfare legislation, closed it down because of inhumane conditions.

The cheapest and most convenient system for a municipality is a contract with a private pound operator. This is the option chosen by most municipalities in the Quinte district. Don Tucker of Sirling has contracts with about 20 municipalities in the area to enforce their bylaws.

Picton, for instance, pays Tucker $2,000 a year for his services.

If you trace your Fido to his pound, his contract with the town allow him to charge you a fine of $15 and boarding fee. He keeps the money. He can dispose of unclaimed animals any way he sees fit. If he sells Fido to Queen's University, he keeps the money. The town gets no money from dogs he sells, says Picton clerk Andrew Jarvis.

Picton residents have complained to council that animal control bylaws are presently enforced and stray dogs are taking over the town. Pet owners have complained about the inconvenience of travelling to the Sirling pound and of never finding it open.

Most people prefer to ignore the subject, but some wonder just where those animals their medical student friends talk about come from.

The Intelligencer talked to the people concerned in an attempt to answer the question: How safe is your Fido? And for that matter, your neighbor's flower beds?

Humane Society Research Bill Created Dealers

Tom Hughes, general manager of the Ontario Humane Society is a man who never hesitates to tell it as he sees it.

He is a man at the top of an organization sometimes wallowing in sentimentality. He has also, though, he says, as long as "they're black and Lab's." He used to own Labrador retrievers and handled them in field trials. His wife is the driving force of the family who has made inroads in converting her husband.

As the enforcement of animal control bylaws, he holds an unflinching position.

"The laws should be enforced by public agencies — either municipalities or the Humane Society," he says, "rather than private, underemployed businessmen. It didn't work when policing was contracted out or when firefighting was contracted out. It's the same with animal control."

Because it often had to use its powers of seizure to stop the operation of inhumanely run animal dealerships, the Humane Society opposed such dealers. With the Animals for Research Act, Mr. Hughes hoped dealerships were ended forever.

"Instead the act produced a new breed of animal dealers — recreated the dog dealer."

Mr. Hughes says the Humane Society is "in conflict" with the provincial ministry of agriculture and foods which administers the Animals for Research Act.

"The ministry is interested in farmers, not animals. We have been in constant friction with the ministry since we forced meat inspection in Ontario by calling for humane slaughter laws and since we revealed the horrors of the pregnant mare farms."

Mr. Hughes says the Animals for Research Act is "the best of its kind in the world" going to have seizure laws and if they were enforced."

Mr. Hughes point-by point charges are:

"A record of every animal must be kept. They are identified in terms like 'a black and white cross-bred Collie" a description impossible to trace.

"Pound keepers must notify the Humane Society of every identifiable animal. They don't.

"Animals must be kept at least five days before sale to a university. They aren't.

"Pounds must be open part of every day, seven days a week. They aren't.

"The ministry of agriculture inspectors are paying unusual attention to the Humane Society shelters and some private pounds are visited infrequently."

The law states that an impounded animal must be held for three days, excluding the day of seizure and all interstitial weekends.

Mr. Hughes denies that the society has ever supplied animals to universities.

"We've never had the power to seize any animal after the waiting period, provided it has not been put up for adoption, or traced to its owner. The Humane Society has never been subject to seizure demands."

To clinch his point that pound keeping is a lucrative business, Mr. Hughes cited the newspaper advertisement of an Owen Sound pound keeper. In advertising his business for sale, he said the revenue from animals for research was good and could be built up.

Last fall, Mr. Hughes and the board of directors of the Ontario Humane Society met with minister of agriculture William Stewart to air the list of servants in his department.

"We left after meeting with the minister, that he is not prepared to firmly enforce certain sections of act," said Mr. Hughes.

On one point he is in firm agreement with the ministry and the universities. If 20th century medical technology is to continue to train doctors and vets and make inroads against human disease, animals will be necessary for research.

He just wants guarantees that they will be treated humanely and lawfully all the way along the line.

Province Scrutinizes Pound Operations

Dr. Ronald Urquhart is the provincial civil servant responsible for the supervision of the Animals for Research Act.

Cordial and unflappable, he has had frequent queries on the operation of his department.

He says he heard complaints from Tom Hughes of the Humane Society's board of directors, but was the power to seize his evidence was shot down at the meeting as "not requirements of the act."

The regulations were designed to eliminate abuse, Dr. Urquhart says.

Records are extensive, every licensed pound keeper is aware of them and they are checked by Ontario Provincial Constables.

Asked if pound keepers could "cook the records" and whether or not adequate supervision could be maintained with the day-to-day observation, Dr. Urquhart said, "this is true."

But, he said, his inspectors run regular dog tracers of animals to trace ownership to determine whether or not they have been adequately described.

"We have run into situations where Hughes complained that the keeper picks up animals with tags and could identify the Humane Society."

"He has notified the owner instead and in cases like that we don't see the sense of also involving the Humane Society. We have not prosecuted."

Dr. Urquhart said that the act specifies that a municipality can appoint an agent to receive funds from the sale of animals.

"This complies with the regulations," he said. "In a few cases, the wife of the pound keeper has been appointed by a municipality to handle funds."

Dr. Urquhart denied that a pound keeper could realize profits on animal control.

"The maximum price on a dog is $6 with a minimum of three full days of board a day over the redemption period," he said.

"Our latest figures from research facilities, excluding the cost of overhead, puts the daily boarding rate at $1.62. With overhead, a pound keeper charging $2 a day cannot make a profit."

Canterbury's New Archbishop Is Outspoken and Scholarly

By PATRICK CORY

LONDON (Reuter) — Dr. Donald Coggan, named this week as the next Archbishop of Canterbury is an outspoken preacher in the evangelical tradition with impeccable credentials as a biblical scholar.

He will take over from Dr. Michael Ramsey next November the leadership of the Church of England—and become titular head of the worldwide Anglican community—with the reputation of being more direct than his ayuncular predecessor.

As Archbishop of York since 1961 he has attacked pornography, violence on television, nuclear weapons and the prevailing moral climate in Britain, which he says hinders the building of a strong christian character.

While not neglecting the cause of Christian unity—so doggedly pursued by Dr. Ramsey in consultations with other churches—Dr. Coggan is likely to give priority to closer relations and understanding within his own church.

He is said to be concerned with the gap between the man-in-the-pew and church forms and languages, race relations, unity among the various branches of the church, and pastoral work.

Interested in gardening, music and motoring, Dr. Coggan, 64, married in 1935 and has two daughters, one a teacher and the other a doctor.

The archbishop began his ministry as a curate in London in 1934 but did not become widely known outside the Church of England until he was appointed Bishop of Bradford, northern England, in 1956.

"A clergyman's job is to go out and meet the people," he said when he took over the bishopric at Bradford. This direct approach went down well with businessmen and others he encountered and should stand him in good stead as Archbishop of Canterbury.

He combines the roles of theologian, preacher and scholar with that of pastoral worker.

He has held several academic posts, including professor of New Testament studies at Wycliffe College in Toronto from 1937 to 1944. He also visited Canada for the Anglican conference in Toronto in 1973.

He believes that loneliness, the mystery of death and lack of purpose are three of the biggest problems facing modern man, brought on by the decay of community life.

Lutherans Get Choice Of Styles

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — A Lancaster pastor is challenging the re-election bid of the president of the Lutheran Church in America, the largest Lutheran denomination in the United States. The election fight is the first since the church organization was founded in 1962.

Rev. Dr. Wallace Fisher, 56, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church, says he intends to offer a choice "between two styles of ministry, each equally honorable," in his fight to unseat Rev. Dr. Robert Marshall, president of the three-million-member body.

Dr. Fisher announced his candidacy Monday after mailing a 14-page statement to fellow clergymen informing them of the issues.

He said what politics there are in the church are often "hidden and camouflaged."

"There are no declared candidates, no platforms, no open discussion of issues, and supposedly no electioneering," he said.

He also urged larger salaries and improved housing and pensions for clergymen.

Fr. Fisher will oppose Dr. Marshall for the presidency at the church's convention which opens July 3 in Baltimore.

Salvation Army Selects Canadian as Its Leader

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — Commissioner Clarence Wiseman will become the first Canadian leader of the worldwide Salvation Army organization in July—and he plans to put the accent on youth.

Wiseman, territorial commander of the Salvation Army in Canada and Bermuda since 1967, was chosen Monday as its next global leader.

"I'm very anxious that the wonderful young people of the Salvation Army should be encouraged," Wiseman said in an interview.

He said that, under his leadership, the London based movement—which has 2.5 million members in more than 80 countries—will try to persuade the world youth that turning to Christ will resolve their worries and problems.

Wiseman, 67, is only the third non Englishman to be chosen as the head of the Salvation Army and therefore its sole active general.

After his selection, the New-foundland-born Wiseman was described in an official statement as an experienced broadcaster, writer, evangelist and leader possessing "the energy and enthusiasm, the dedication and skill that will enable him to inspire and lead this great international movement."

A veteran of 40 years with the renowned evangelical and social-service movement, he was the Salvation Army's high commander in Britain until 1942. Then he administered Salvation Army work for military servicemen in Europe, the Middle East, India and Ceylon, returning to Canada.

His international reputation among Army members was further enhanced when he was made territorial commander for East Africa in 1960.

Two years later, he was named principal of the Army's international training college in London.

Wiseman is married and has two children.

He described his new position as "a great opportunity to be a witness for Jesus Christ, therefore its sole active purpose."

As a Second World War chaplain, Wiseman was stationed in Many Troubles Are Imaginary

By DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

"Ah your days, so shall your strength be." These words are found in Deuteronomy 33:25. They have found their way down the centuries because they have validated themselves by experience.

Sir William Osler was born in Canada, he went on to earn international fame as a physician and professor of medicine. Still as a young man he was a chronic worrier about his future.

One day while in medical school with an examination looming on the morrow, he worried himself sick, when he chanced on a sentence from Carlyle, "Our main business is not to see what lies dimly at a distance but to do what lies clearly at hand."

Applying this to himself, Osler saw that his chief business was to make final preparation for the examination and then get a good night's sleep. This he did. Indeed, on that basis he lived his greatly serviceable life. "The load of tomorrow, added to that of today," he would write, "makes even the strongest falter."

It is a platitude to say that much of our worrying is unnecessary because most of the difficulties we worry over never arise. But, true though it be, we need to remind ourselves of it. Many of our troubles are imaginary.

Some are all too real. Could you have foreseen all you have had to go through, you'd likely have been crushed. But with the trouble came strength to meet it. Then, like a hard-headed attitude toward the problems of life, if by your worry you can contribute to their solution, by all means worry. Otherwise, why exhaust yourself?

Even the young need to adopt this philosophy. They cannot plan their future with any degree of certainty as I would, in a generation when a settled life, a settled home, a settled mode of life were taken for granted.

Each day at 4 a little life, observed Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, "Each night a tiny death when we are lost in the mystery of sleep. Yesterday is gone. Tomorrow is unborn." All we can count on is today.

Our fathers, who talked less about psychology but used it more, spoke of "pillow talk". A pillow text is a phrase or sentence from the Bible. You drop it into your subconscious just before going to sleep. You do this on the promise that the last thought at night is likely to be the first thought in the morning.

What better pillow text than that "As your days, so shall your strength be."

Cabinet Halts Hanging

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet has commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence of Gary John McNamara for the murder of a prison guard June 2, 1972 at Alexis Creek, B.C., it was announced Friday.

The cabinet commutation has been expected. The last hanging in Canada was in 1962 when two convicted murderers were executed in Toronto's Don jail.

Remanded

HAMILTON (CP) — Constantino Chiacchieri, 43, charged in the shooting deaths of three persons on a residential city street Thursday, was remanded to May 23 for a preliminary psychiatric report when he appeared in provincial court Friday.

New College

AYLMER, Ont. (CP) — A new police college with training facilities for 600 recruits will be built on the same site as the existing one here, George Kerr, provincial solicitor-general, said Friday.

Aluminum Prices Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Three of the largest United States aluminum companies announced price increases Friday.

The increases will ultimately affect the prices of such consumer products as aluminum siding and remodelling materials for homes, automobiles, trucks, cans and aluminum foil.

Aluminum Co. of America (Alcoa) will boost its aluminum ingot price to 33½ cents from 31½ cents Monday to be followed June 3 by an average 3.2-per-cent increase in the price of milled products.

Team Buys Hangar

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. (AP) — A former airplane hangar once used by Republic Aircraft has been bought by New York Islanders of the National Hockey League. It now contains two regulation ice rinks, two double-tennis courts and five practice courts.

Claims Mines Unsafe

TORONTO (CP) — Elie Martel (NDP—Sudbury East) said in legislature committee meeting Friday that he wants legal action over what he said was the unsafe conditions in the province's mines.

Mr. Martel, in an exchange with Leo Bernier, provincial minister of natural resources, at the meeting to debate the ministry's estimates, said mine inspectors are not to blame for the "abuse of workers so prevalent and so obvious" in mines. He said authorization for legal action must come from Mr. Bernier.

"There is a total lack of supervision of the mining industry," Mr. Martel said, and the ministry is in "collusion" with the companies who always know when safety inspections are scheduled and clean up areas before the inspector arrives.

Mr. Bernier said Mr. Martel was making "emotional, wild claims" and said laying charges against the companies is not the answer.

Hospital Workers Continue Walkout

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 2,000 non-professional workers at Notre Dame Hospital Friday continued rotating work stoppages for the second day while administrators of the 850-bed institution sent home all patients except 225 who require around-the-clock care.

A hospital spokesman said the out-patient clinic has been closed and only severe cases are being admitted to the emergency ward.

He said the dispute's main affect on patients during the day was late meals, and patients dependent on employees to move them about were all seeing up late for hospital appointments.

A union spokesman said the workers would continue work stoppages despite a warning from administrators that mass suspensions would result if workers persisted in having one quarter of the personnel on each shift refusing to work.

Meanwhile, about 800 nurses at the institution are to decide during the weekend whether to join the work stoppage by the non-professional staff.

The union says its principal demand is that the hospital rehire six inhalation therapists it claims have been fired and replaced by junior college-trained technicians. It says the six had been trained on the job.

The hospital maintains no therapists have been fired but that some left on their own and were replaced by the technicians.

The hospital board of governors Friday issued a statement saying "this incident is merely one of many like it. For several months now an absolutely incredible climate has existed at Notre Dame Hospital.

Fuel Forces Higher Fares

MONTREAL (CP) — CP Rail notified the Canadian transport commission Friday that it will introduce passenger fare increases on May 23 to cover the increasing cost of diesel fuel.

A spokesman for the railway said it is paying 50 per cent more for diesel fuel this year than it did in 1973.

A Canadian National spokesman said the railway has no plans to introduce a similar increase, although fuel is costing "an awful lot more than before."

Food Studies Withheld?

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Association of Social Workers (CASW) Friday charged the federal food prices review board with withholding reports that could benefit the country's low income and poor.

"It would appear that this is an attempt by Mrs. Plumptre's board to 'play politics' and not release information which could be of benefit to Canada's low income and poor . . . ," Anthony J. Gray, CASW executive director, said in a release.

Mr. Gray said that the board had compiled seven reports dealing with food supplements and distribution, the impact of inflation and the cost of food on the poor, turkeys, broilers, sugar, fruit and vegetables.

He called on the board to release the reports.

"What d'you mean — your husband gives at the office ..?"

You are about to be enumerated!

If you live in an urban area...

Sometime next week, two nice people are going to call at your home. They're official federal enumerators. They'll show you proper identification. And they'll ask you a few simple things about the people, 18 and over, who live in your home...if they're Canadian citizens, their names, occupations and the address. In this way they'll find out who's qualified to vote in the July 8th federal election. For those qualified, the enumerators will fill out a NOTICE OF ENUMERATION card and leave it with you. This means their names go on the list of electors and they'll be eligible to vote.

If you're not home the first time the enumerators call, they'll leave you a card telling you when they'll be back.

If you live in a rural area...

One enumerator, probably a friend or neighbour, prepares the list of electors. That person doesn't have to call at your home personally since he can get the information needed from other sources.

Make sure you see the list of electors...

The list of electors, prepared shortly after the enumeration is completed, is posted in both urban and rural polling divisions. In urban polling divisions only, the printed list of electors is mailed to every household on the list by the returning officer of your electoral district.

When you see the list or receive your copy, check it. If your name is not on the list or if there are any mistakes in names or other particulars, call your local telephone company directory assistance operator to find out the telephone number of your returning officer. Then phone your returning officer. In that way you will be sure the necessary corrections are made so that you will be eligible to vote.

Remember...you can't vote in an urban polling division unless your name is on the list.

This handy pamphlet gives you all the details

For complete election procedure details, consult the Guide for Electors which will be delivered to your home.

The Consumer Sharon Airhart

Don't Be Fooled By 'Free' Label

How free is something that's "free"? Exactly what does it mean when someone says "I can get it for you wholesale?"

The Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations of the provincial government defines some misused words in the consumer vocabulary.

"Free" is one of the most misused, the ministry says. For example, a car dealer recently advertised 200 gallons of "free" gasoline with a new car purchase. One buyer didn't want the gasoline since she lived too far from town to make it worth while. The salesman dropped the price of the car by $150 more than enough to cover the cost of the gasoline. It really wasn't free gas at all.

"Wholesale" refers to the price of a retailer from either the manufacturer or a middle-man. The ministry adds that it is most unlikely that you will be able to buy goods "wholesale" unless you own a business or are somebody's son-in-law. If a product is advertised at a "wholesale" price, be suspicious. Before making a major purchase, shop around and compare prices.

"Discount" is another overworked word and one that is frequently meaningless. Again, comparison shopping is your protection when advertising tells you a product is "discounted" or that you're shopping in a "discount" store.

"Suggested list price" often leads you to believe you're getting a real bargain...Here's what the provincial government says about it: Sometimes a manufacturer puts an inflated price on his product which the retailer does not expect to get.

The suggested list price simply provides a talking point from which salesman can appear to be giving you a special deal if you buy right away.

Don't be pressured. The wise consumer compares prices, shops for quality and avoids impulse buying.

Two phrases all consumers should add to their vocabulary are "referral selling" and "bait and switch".

Referral selling involves a scheme in which the salesman offers you a low price on an item if you can refer him to three or four friends who buy. The Consumer Protection Act says that contracts entered into under such circumstances are not binding.

Bait and switch is a gambit used by shady merchants to sell high-price merchandise. He'll advertise a particular article at an unusually low price — but just try to buy it from him. He'll degrade the item, point out its defects and try to switch you to a more expensive product at an inflated price (Don't confuse bait and switch with the legitimate efforts of a salesman to make more money by "selling you up" to a better product. In that case, he'll point out the advantages of both products.)

For more information, contact the Consumer Protection Bureau at 555 Yonge Street, Toronto, Ontario M4Y 1Y7.

Tweed Day Care Centre Now Definite Reality

An executive was elected consisting of Marcella Sargent, Jean Treacy, Barbara Johnston, Kathy Bancrofts, Sharon Spratt and Corley Hughes.

Their immediate objective is to obtain a charter from the Provincial Government which would entitle the Day-Care Centre to government grants.

The Day-Care Centre was established less than one year ago by Charmaine Flieler and many friends.

It has been operating on a LIP grant (which expires on June 30th) plus modest fees. During its short life, it has been established that there is indeed a demand for a child care centre in Tweed.

The committee hopes to stabilize the operation on a firm financial basis. As their first step, they plan to incorporate the group.

Junior Gardening Tips For Green Thumbs

BY SHARON AIRHART

You can spend the summer pulling your three-year-old out of the mud and your six-year-old out of the carrots or you can give them their own garden to play in, eat from and just plain enjoy.

Even the youngest child can appreciate a little plot of ground to grow vegetables and flowers and a toddler with just a bit of patience could learn from and enjoy a handful of lentils sprouting in a plate or some other indoor garden.

Whether you're a gardener or not, your children would benefit from the chance to produce food for the family table.

Older children might begin their summer's project by spending a pleasant hour with parents and a seed catalogue, planning their garden. Let the kids pick their own vegetables with some recommendations from the more experienced gardeners in the family. Talk over how radishes will be ready to eat in three weeks, you might point out.

Decide on a size — three feet by five to eight feet is probably enough for most children to manage — and draw the garden out on paper. Plan the rows carefully.

It might be wise to discourage difficult or long term plants like head lettuce or cabbage the first year. And, of course, squash and other members of that family just take too much room. Leaf lettuce, radishes, carrots, spinach, bush beans, tomatoes and green peppers and onions are all suitable.

If your child wants flowers, too, suggest dwarf marigolds and zinnias. Both varieties grow and bloom fairly quickly and last until frost.

You ought to be willing to invest a few dollars in tools for your young gardeners. Wrestling a big hoe or rake would discourage any fourfooter. You can buy child-size garden tools (not toys) at Bishop's Seeds.

If you're an experienced gardener, it might be a temptation to just tell your child how to garden and then expect him to follow your orders, correcting if things aren't done your way. That might turn the whole project into just another chore for both of you.

The First Book of Gardening by Virginia Kirkus, for example, is an excellent book for a nine or 10 year old. Complete with excellent sketches of vegetables and very useful illustration, the book takes a child through the whole process of planning, planting, cultivating and harvesting.

There are equally excellent books for other age groups.

For the smaller child who couldn't sustain interest long enough for an entire garden or for the city child without a plot of ground, a windowsill garden can be the answer.

It can even add something to the family dinner table.

You can, for example, grow cress or peppergrass on a sponge.

Take a clean new sponge and soak it in water. Place it on a saucer and sprinkle with cress or peppergrass seed. Press seeds into sponge slightly so they will become dampened. Place in warm place. Just keep the sponge damp and when seeds have started to grow, place on a window sill. When the plants are an inch high and have their second leaves, harvest with scissors.

A non-edible but interesting garden for the young child can be quickly made from a "basket" of ordinary lentils in a saucer. Keep water in the dish at all times, but do not allow seeds to float. Within a couple of days, inch high plants will make a centerpiece your child has grown.

Kids Gardening, by Aileen Paul, and Fun Time Window Garden, by Emogene Cooke, are two books available from Corby Library on indoor gardens for children.

Gardening can be interesting and educational for even the smallest tykes.

Here kindergarten students at Queen Elizabeth School talk about the flower seeds they planted with their teacher, Rita Mennings. They're looking after the plants themselves.

Ann Landers

Won't Lend, Friends Mad

Dear Ann Landers: Call me petty, ungracious, whatever—but I must get this off my mind.

Two years I trusted with crummy luggage. Finally I decided to do without a few other things and buy myself some really classy travelling cases; a matched set, even if it took me two years. Which it did.

In the past three months four relatives have asked if they could borrow my luggage. I said yes, like a darned fool, to the first person. Although she took only one piece (around the world), I looked on it as had been kicked at least halfway. Her only comment was, "You know how careless the airlines are."

After that, I decided to say no to everyone who asked. So now they are mad at me. The last scorched is going on a trip that will cost her $1,500. Wouldn't you think she could afford to buy some decent luggage instead of trying to borrow mine?—The Target

Dear Tar: I know of very few people who lend things and keep their friends intact. Better to say "no" and let somebody else be mad than to say "yes" and be the one who is.

Dear Ann Landers: I don't trust my own judgment any more. Please put your brains in my head for three minutes.

I went with Brad for four years. When I say "went with" I mean five evenings a week and sometimes the "evening" lasted till the next morning. If you get what I mean. We are both in our late 20s and have talked about marriage.

Three months ago, Brad began to have headaches. His doctor said he needed a change. He announced bluntly, "I think I need another girl." Mary died of the shock. Within three weeks he married a blonde from the steno pool at his office. It nearly killed me.

They weren't back from their honeymoon 10 days when Brad started to call me, begging me to see him. Yesterday he came to my apartment, cried his eyes out, said he had made a terrible mistake, was getting a divorce and could we pick up where we left off. I asked him if he wanted to marry me. He said, "No. I think we should get reacquainted." Is he crazy? What should I do?—Lady Oldsta

Dear Undy: Yes, he's crazy. And if you take up with him again you are crazy, too.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has a wonderful sense of humor. He doesn't care what he says as long as it gets a laugh. Frequently, he hands me the paper and says, "Well, here's your letter in Ann Landers' column." Today really did it. The letter was from a woman who needed a facelift.

I am three years older than Vic and have always been sensitive about it. I have a good figure, have kept my hair dark (with a little help from the beautician), and my skin has held fairly well. About six months ago, I noticed my neck was getting a little crepey and the pouches under my eyes more noticeable. I had myself wearing sunglasses even when there's no sun.

We're a little strapped for money but I want a facelift. Is it expensive? Any advice?—Fifty and Feel It.

Dear 50: Don't hunt for bargains. Consult a reputable plastic surgeon whose work you have seen. Get his opinion of what needs to be done and how much it will cost. Then if you can afford it go ahead—if he believes he can achieve the desired results.

Successful Living

Challenge for Aged

By DORIS CLARK

One of the things that happens to aging persons, and especially to those feeling the burden of years through some declining faculty, or through sheer and constant fatigue, is a tendency to give up. To allow even good muscles and brain cells to fold up entirely through disuse.

It is a happy thought that some of this inertia can be reversed - if somebody cares enough!

Listen to this - from a nurse who works with aged residents in a nursing home:

"It is interesting and effective to introduce some recreational item into the group and be able to witness the reaction - e.g., a cat, a dog, budgie, children at play, someone who can perform on an instrument, etc.

Conversations that develop about the item introduced can provide a normal social education for these people, draw individuals out of their own reveries to become part of the group, and may sometimes help the worker make an assessment of a particular individual."

It brought to mind an incident related to me by the retired principal of a university, himself a resident in a nursing home.

His roommate, he says, had pretty well settled down to doing just about nothing. And yet, my friend had learned that this contemporary of his - a man 89 years of age - had in his youth played a violin.

When they learned at the nursing home that he was familiar with the instrument, this roommate was urged to join a music group. He flatly refused; he showed all evidences of being in his shell and planning to stay there.

But my friend - an educationist, remember - said to him:

"You studied and worked for years to learn how to handle a violin. You enjoyed it for years. Now here is a chance for you to share the pleasure of it with all these people, who need what you have to give."

He challenged him like this, even scolded him a little; told him he had an obligation here.

Now he reports that for the past six months the self-isolating roommate has been quietly playing a bow across the strings of his instrument, picking out easy tunes; and has now joined the musically inclined residents who get together regularly, playing old tunes, singing old familiar and beloved songs.

Mary Judd's book is full of ideas for people who are working with elderly, and sometimes confused, individuals. You don't have to be an expert; just somebody who cares and is willing to try things. Write to me for details about how to obtain a copy.

(Human relations can hurt - or bring happiness. Get Doris, a trained counsellor, to help you handle yours, sending your letter in care of this newspaper.)

Changing, Too

LONDON (CP) — The innovative and decorative qualities of wedding rings today are bringing new dimensions to the traditional marital bands. While gold remains popular for wedding ring design, the old-style band has yielded to new styles. A zig-zag ring has a rough finish; in another design massed tendrills of gold wire are intricately woven together, while sections of matt and polished gold create a honeycomb effect on yet another. Gold engraving is popular too. (CP Photo)

Joan Frank of London's Jewelry Information Centre claims that innovative and decorative qualities of wedding rings today are bringing new dimensions to the traditional marital bands. While gold remains popular

Miss Frank says gold engraving remains popular for wedding ring design. A current favorite has the engraved words "I Love You" spaced between delicate sprays of orange blossoms.

Others with a Victorian image are engraved with ferns, scrolls, tulips, daisies and tiny sprigs of blooms.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Edgar Kaplan and Norman Kay have many of the best pairs in the world for many years. They have never won a world's championship, but name anything else and they've won it. They have several world's championship seconds to their credit.

Their style reflects smooth bidding plus careful, accurate play. Everyone should reach the heart slam with their cards, but their bidding is just about the nicest way to get there. Edgar won the diamond lead and noted that the slam would be a cinch unless all four trumps abroad up in one hand. He couldn't do anything if East held all four. Therefore, he laid down his king of trumps at trick two and found out that West held all four trumps.

He could pick up West's trumps, but if he did that he had to find a way to get rid of his small diamond. He could not afford to ruff it.

He found a way. His next play was the deuce of spades. West did not look like a man who would duck with the ace so Edgar played dummy's jack. It didn't matter. East held all the high spades, won with the queen and led a second diamond.

Edgar won and led a trump. West's 10 lost to dummy's queen. Edgar ruffed a spade, led another trump through poor West and ruffed a third spade with his last trump.

Then he entered dummy with a high club; pulled the last trump while discarding his small diamond and made the last three tricks with his remaining clubs.

Instead of bidding two hearts your partner has passed your double. East also passes. What do you lead?

Hormone Offsets Rare Disease

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A year and a half ago it was discovered that our son, then 8, had diabetes insipidus. We understand is is rare; we had never heard of it, and we have found very little literature on it.

No physical cause was found but the neurologist indicated a minute growth of a convulsion in the brain was smaller may have caused it. But none of the tests could pinpoint anything.

He's on daily injections of pitressin.

Excessive thirst and urination, erratic behavior and lack of growth were the symptoms. Puberty is coming along, so what can we expect then and later?—S.S.M.

Diabetes comes from a word meaning "to siphon," and both diabetes insipidus and diabetes mellitus or "sugar diabetes" are marked by great thirst and frequent urination, but that is the only thing they have in common.

Diabetes insipidus is caused by a deficiency in the amount of hormone from the pituitary gland) that controls water balance in the body. Hence the excessive urination, the thirst and dry mouth. The hormone is vasopressin, which regulates absorption of water by the kidneys.

It is not surprising that the exact cause has not been pinpointed. That is usually the way it is with this strange and uncommon disease, but any disorder or injury involving the pituitary could be involved.

Treatment with pitressin (its substitute for vasopressin) is effective, and in general, with this treatment, patients are able to lead normal lives.

I would not be concerned over impending puberty, because growth hormone and other hormones produced by the pituitary should not be affected in diabetes insipidus. Just continue his medication and treat him like any normal boy other than that.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After a recent Pap test I was told that because of a dryness in the uterus I should take estrogen. I am 56 and otherwise in good health. The thought of taking that drug has me so upset that I am unable to be the same person I once was. How do you feel about taking this drug?—I.L.

What is it about estrogen that upsets you so much? It is used with excellent effect with countless women. Rather than calling it a drug, I'd refer to it as female hormone, and the purpose in taking it is to replace some of the hormone that, since menopause, your own glands (the ovaries) are not producing.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Recently I had colon x-rays. I was told the colon was normal but a shadow showed in the x-ray indicating calcification of the uterus. Would this cause constipation? Also abdominal discomfort at times?—W.W.

Calcification (calcium depos-

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 63 and eat three-quarters of a cup of raisins a day, part in my morning oatmeal and part in my cooked rice at noon. Will that harm me in any way? I also eat a dish of cooked prunes for supper. Am I getting too much iron?—J.O. ... ...

No. In the absence of anemia, the amount of iron you absorb is quite constant, and what is not absorbed is discarded by the body.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We planted potatoes. Patches of green came out on the skin. People tell me they are not good to eat, they are poison.

Would like to know if it is true.—A.M.B.

The green portion contains a chemical you should not eat. So cut off that part of the potato.

Yes, you were told the truth. The rest is all right.

Look Under Rockies

DENVER (AP) — Explorers for energy fuels are trying to tap new sources under a 2,000-mile stretch of Burlington Northern's railway right-of-way through the Rocky Mountains. The $3.5-million project, begun this year, makes use of four million acres of BN property in Montana and North Dakota. It is one of the largest gas and oil exploration ventures ever undertaken in the Rockies and is expected to last one year.

Wolves Recorded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fish and wildlife service is using tape recorded wolf calls to flush wolves out of the woods in the Shoshone National Forest east of Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming. The method is used to gather information on the northern Rocky Mountain wolf, once thought to be extinct in the U.S. Recent sightings have been made, however, in Wyoming and Montana.

Potter Property Said Ideal Site, a Bargain

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Proposed purchase of the 240-acre Ernie Potter farm on the western outskirts of Belleville as a trailer park and conservation area, together with the $700,000 option price agreed on, was defended Friday by Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey and officials of the Moira River Conservation Authority.

The $700,000 purchase price, together with other incidental expenses, would bring the total cost to an estimated $770,000, depending on interest rates.

The province of Ontario, through the Ministry of Natural Resources, has agreed to a minimum grant of $287,500 toward the purchase price with the city of Belleville, Sidney township and the Moira Authority picking up all but about $100,000 of the balance, in three annual payments.

Originally, it was expected Thurlow would pay a share including that of Sidney and the Authority, but Township Council has voted against paying up the money.

But the other principals involved are anxious to see the purchase completed and Nature Conservancy of Canada has been invited to participate.

Friday, Mayor Jeffrey, along with authority chairman Guy Hughes of Tweed, and city officials met with Conservancy director Charles Sauriol at city hall to discuss how the needed additional $20,000 could be raised.

The authority option on the Potter property has been extended from the 15th to the end of May, which Mayor Jeffrey feels will be ample time to work out needed details.

The authority has long-term plans for the development of the Potter property which lies immediately to the west of the Wallbridge Loyalist Road and runs north from the Bay of Quinte to the CN double track.

But there has been criticism of the proposed purchase by people who claim the authority has agreed to pay too much for the property.

Friday, however, Mayor Jeffrey and Mr. Hughes claimed the option price is fully justified and actually represents something less than market value.

A Peterborough firm of Rishor, Barnes and Dietrich Ltd. did an appraisal on the 240-acre tract of land and gave a value of $708,500.

"The $700,000 option price was just not pulled out of thin air," Mayor Jeffrey stressed.

The Mayor added that Leighton Thompson provincial regional assessment commissioner at Trenton had appraised the property at an even higher figure.

In defence of the agreed on option price, he was quoted that other similar land in the immediate area has been sold at a considerably higher price.

The 55-acre tract immediately across the Wallbridge-Loyalist road sold in 1969 for $1,000 an acre more than is being paid for the Potter land.

And the smaller section was sold recently at $11,000 an acre.

"We are paying just over $12,000 an acre," Mayor Jeffrey noted.

Jones Creek flows north to south through the eastern portion of the property and is one of the few areas in the district in which the natural beauty has been retained.

To say that the creek is picturesque is an understatement.

Long range plans of the authority call for the area north of the highway to be developed as a trailer park.

But Mayor Jeffrey emphasized the 11 acres south of the highway would be reserved for public use, for picnics and other activities.

Much of the picturesque creek area to the north would be left as it is with nature trails provided so people could appreciate the natural beauty.

For appraisal purposes the Potter farm was divided into three distinct sections.

The 11.53 acre tract south of Highway 2 with approximately 900 feet of frontage on the Bay of Quinte was appraised at $250,000.

The second section, comprised of 31.6 acres lying between Highway 2 and the CPR tracks was valued at $133,000 while the balance of close to 300 acres north of the CPR was appraised at $271,300.

The total parcel includes a one-storey brick two-storey farmhouse with outbuildings, along with a second two-storey frame house and barn.

South of Highway 2 are two frame dwellings and over 20 cottages fronting on the bay. Initially the present cottage area south of the highway was a camping area for people with tents.

But over the past half century Mr. Potter constructed the cabins and cottages, developing it into what possibly was one of the first tourist areas in the immediate Belleville area.

Authority officials said the province was encouraging reserving of larger tracts of natural land near built-up areas for recreational use.

Purchase of the Potter property would provide ideal public recreation area in a rapidly expanding urban area.

City parks director Lloyd Syer said it would be like bringing the country into the city area.

Mayor Jeffrey said there was no thought of selling any of the Potter land. Before this could be done, all interested parties, both local and provincial, would have to agree.

"We are not in the land speculation business" he emphasized.

Jones Creek, which winds its way to the southeastern part of the Potter property, got its name from the family who owned the farm before it was purchased 70 years ago by the Potter family.

According to Mrs. Potter, the Jones Creek area is steeped in early Quinte district history.

At one time there was a sizable settlement near the mouth of the creek and a dam just north of what is now Highway 2 provided water power for a grist mill.

The dam itself was swept away even before Mr. Potter's time and the old mill building has completely disappeared. All that remains of the dam is the raised earthen embankments on either side of the creek.

And according to Stephen Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Potter, the Jones Creek area had an early Indian history.

The middle mouth of the creek provided a natural mooring spot for Iroquois who camped there overnight on trips up and down the bay.

Over the years, artifacts from their encampments have been dug up and are now part of museum exhibits depicting early Indian life in the Quinte area.

The city of Belleville and the Moira Authority became interested in the Potter property nearly two years ago during a search for a site to establish a trailer park.

When no suitable area was found inside the city limits, the council committee looked at the surrounding area and decided the Potter property would be an ideal site.

Then realizing the potential of the land as a recreational area, it was felt that it should be preserved in its natural state for future use.

The idea was taken up with the Moira Authority and the rest is history.

Two NDP Candidates Selected

The New Democratic Party elected their candidates to represent the ridings of Prince Edward-Hastings and Hastings in the July 8 federal election during a convention meeting last night. The two were unopposed in their nominations for the party.

Chosen as the NDP candidate in the Prince Edward-Hastings riding was Harvey Gottfried, of Picton, a teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate in Picton. He was nominated by Dick Sutton.

Representing the NDP in Hastings will be medical social worker Bob Sanders. He was nominated by a student from Centre Hastings Secondary School, Nell MacLean. Elmer Buchanan, a second nominee for this riding withdrew from the race in favor of Bob Sanders, who lives in Shannonville.

In accepting his nomination as Prince Edward-Hastings NDP candidate, Mr. Gottfried termed the Liberal statement that the NDP party forced an election as "nonsense" and referred to the Liberal and Conservative parties as Tweedledee and Tweedledum.

Mr. Sanders outlined his party's platform as one that represents the underdog. A native of Gode, Holland, Mr. Sanders said that in Canada about 90 per cent of the population has become the underdog. "This (the underdog) is what we are fighting for," he told the convention meeting at the Kiwanis Centre.

Keynote speaker for the night was MPP for Scarborough West, John Harney.

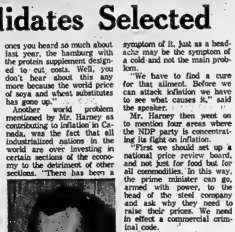
Mr. Harney, referring to his party as "marching socialists" as opposed to creeping and crawling socialists concentrated his talk on the problem of inflation and what his party is doing about it.

"Inflation is the main single concern today ... the problem of making ends meet. In a land that is so rich, there are many people behind the 8-Ball because of inflation," he said.

"Our savings are being gobbled up. We can't go into a supermarket without getting a heart attack after looking at the prices. Inflation is a major attack on the pocket book and it affects almost everyone," Mr. Harney said.

"We should tell the government of Canada that under the present situation it seems many are suffering while a few are profiteering and extremely so."

Mr. Harney went on to mention the proposed federal bill on profiteering, an anti-gouging bill.



"We (the NDP) voted against this bill because it was a sham, a delusion. The machinery to put it in working order was cumbersome and so we voted against it," he said.

Mr. Harney told his audience that inflation is an international problem and is caused by many things.

He said there was definitely an international element rather than just a Canadian one in the situation. "We have to look at international prices and imports," he said, mentioning the increasing price of sugar as an example.

"And even soybeangers, the once you heard so much about last year, the hamburg with the protein supplement designed to cut costs. Well, you don't hear about this any more because the world price of soya and wheat substitutes has gone up."

Another world problem mentioned by Mr. Harney as contributing to inflation in Canada, was the fact that all industrialized nations in the world are over investing in certain sections of the economy to the detriment of other sections. "There has been a symptom of it, just as a headache may be the result of a cold and not the main problem.

"We have to find a cure for that ailment. Before we can attack inflation we have to see what causes it," said the speaker.

Mr. Harney then went on to mention four areas where the NDP party is concentrating its fight on inflation.

"First we should set up a national price review board, and not just for food but for all commodities. In this way, the prime minister can go armed with power, to the head of the steel company and tell them they need to raise their prices. We need to effect a commercial criminal code.

"Second, we need a tax on excess profits the same for the large companies as for the individual who makes excess profits in a year.

"Third we should have lower interest rates, especially on mortgages.

"And fourth we should continue establishing the two-price system especially on lumber and oil," said Mr. Harney.

Motorcyclist Injured

George Conway was travelling on Highway 2 and lost control of his motorcycle while attempting to turn onto 62RD Road. The motorcycle skidded over in the accident, which occurred about 6 p.m. yesterday.

About $200 damage was done to the motorcycle, said a spokesman for the OPP Belleville detachment who investigated the accident.

No Mail Monday

With Monday being Victoria Day, there will be no delivery of city or rural mail. Street box collections will be made as per Sunday schedules.

No wicket services will be provided although the lock box lobby will continue to be open for 24-hour service. Special delivery service will be available and all mails will be received and dispatched as usual.

Besides no mail delivery Monday, banks and city hall will be closed as well. Most stores and the Brewers' Retail and Liquor Control Board of Ontario outlets will also be closed.

City hotels will be open Monday.

Labor Representatives' Won't Attend Meeting

The meeting proposed by the United Community Services for labor representatives to attend a local YMCA-UCS information sharing session next week will have to go on without the two labor representatives.

Doug Sword, president of the Quinte District Labor Council and Jim Lee, head of the group's vice-president, stated last night that they would not attend such a meeting.

Mr. Sword indicated he would be out of town by the time of the meeting, scheduled for Tuesday, attending a three-day training course in Toronto associated with his job. Mr. Reilly said he would be at work that day and wouldn't be able to take time off for a meeting.

The situation arose during a meeting of the QDLC on May 7 in Trenton in which Mr. Reilly tendered a motion calling for organized labor to boycott Belleville's United Appeal campaign this fall if the community's YMCA receives any form of grant from city council.

He objected to the "double-dipping" by the taxpayer's pockets" by the YMCA, which he said received a grant once by the United Appeal campaign and then again through a municipal grant instead of taxes.

Speaking for himself — the labor council will vote on the issue at its next meeting June 4 — Mr. Reilly said he doesn't intend to withdraw his motion.

"I will withdraw my motion only if the YMCA decides to withdraw its request for money from city council and add the request to the UCS budget, or if city council turns down their (YMCA) request for more funds," said Mr. Reilly.

Mr. Reilly added that he was not opposed to the Y or giving them money. "I just don't like to see them getting money from all sources. They should really get it from just one source.

"This issue is killing the United Appeal and such action is starting to push throughout the country now," said Mr. Reilly who together with Doug Sword, acts on the United Appeal board as labor representative.

Ameliasburgh Vetoes One-tier

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

AMELIASBURGH — Ameliasburgh ratepayers have supported a resolution to instruct the township reeve and deputy-reeve to vote against the one-tier county government at the upcoming county council meeting, May 21.

Carried by the majority of the some 250 present at last night's meeting, with only five against, it was decided to put the proposal in a referendum at the next municipal election in November.

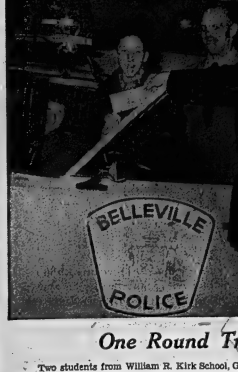
Reason for the decision was lack of sufficient information and time to study that which was available.

"What we have available to us is a mere skeleton," commented one ratepayer.

Township council member, Arnold Wetherall, who is "definitely against it" wondered how many people present, prior to three weeks ago, were familiar with the proposed one-tier system. A show of hands indicated only a half dozen were aware of the proposal.

Ratepayers complained that copies of the proposal should have been made available sooner and more generously distributed. It was felt that the township was being pressured and shoved into regional government, before everyone had an opportunity to digest the proposals.

Gardiner Clugch, representative from the Ontario intergovernmental Affairs Ministry stressed that no-one was being pressured. He noted that because of legal necessities, if it was going to make this session of legislature, the proposal should be introduced this month. Mr. Church went on to say that this should not be a deciding factor and that Ameliasburgh Township should not feel as though they are being bribed into something prematurely.



One concerned ratepayer felt that in a one-tier system the sense of closeness would be lost. Amidst spontaneous applause, he observed, "The bigger the bureaucracy the harder it get for the common man to get into it!"

Ameliasburgh reeve and chairman of the county council's County Government Committee, Russell Thompson, however, felt that the one-tier system was "a good thing for the township".

James Taylor, MPP for Prince Edward-Lennox expressed concern that the whole proposal has had so little time to be absorbed by the local people. "My interest is that whatever you want is implemented at Queen's Park the best way and to your advantage".

When queried repeatedly as to whether he was for or against the one-tier system, Mr. Taylor emphasized that he was not in a position to give an answer.

"I need more facts and, would like to see some financial figures," he stated.

One Round Trip

Cashman — Has Flyers Upset

Teams Prepare For Round Six

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — With no chance to renew their feud on the ice Friday, Dave Schultz of Philadelphia Flyers and Wayne Cashman of Boston Bruins had to settle for long-distance name-calling.

Cashman, who fought with Schultz during Thursday's Stanley Cup hockey game in Boston, called him a "disgrace to the game."

Schultz said here that the Boston player was trying to stick his thumb in his eye instead of fighting in Thursday's confrontation.

The two teams meet here again Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m. EDT in a game that will be televised nationally in Canada by the CBC.

Philadelphia has a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven National Hockey League final.

"He likes to run at guys from behind then sucker them," said Cashman Friday. He had a large lump over his left eye, a souvenir of Thursday's fight.

"I'll be in Philadelphia Sunday and watching him (Schultz). If he wants to fight, I'm more than willing."

Schultz said he had been waiting for two years to face Cashman in a stand-up fight.

"I waited 15 seconds for him to get his glove off, but he wasn't trying to fight me," he said. "All he was trying to do was stick his thumb in my eye.

"I don't know if he's trying to intimidate me or what. I guess I'm at a disadvantage because I never use my stick or try to poke anybody's eye out."

Other Flyers alleged that Cashman had tried to use his stick in an earlier confrontation with defenceman Ed Van Impe.

Cashman drew a penalty for spearing Schultz in the third period. The Philadelphia left winger said he would appeal to the league if the infraction secured again.

There was amusement in the Philadelphia dressing-room at the image the Bruins, once one of the most-penalized teams in hockey, have acquired as the good guys in the current series.

"Boston probably couldn't do to any other team in the league what they get away with against us," said Schultz. "If they did, they'd be gone (penalized)."

In 16 playoff games this season, the Flyers have picked up 562 minutes in penalties, while the Bruins have drawn 333 minutes.

Schultz, who drew a record 348 minutes in regular-season play, has set another record by drawing 177 minutes in the playoffs. Cashman is the most penalized Bruin with 46 minutes.

Coach Fred Shero said his Flyers, who escaped 90-degree weather with their workout at University of Pennsylvania arena, said Cashman won't scare his club in Sunday's game.

"If he tries to intimidate, we'll do something about it," he said. "I think it will be a physical first period. Then it will settle down into hockey."

Shero attributed the mediocre play of centre Rick MacLeish in the last two games to the absence of right winger Gary Dornhoefer, who suffered a separated shoulder here last Sunday and is through for the season.

"Dornhoefer is the key that makes MacLeish go," said the Philadelphia coach. "MacLeish can play better, but you have to realize he's still young—young enough to change. But I think team play is more important than the individual."

Shero said he told his players at Friday's practice session that leaving them to go back to law school, whether or not the Flyers win the series.

A week ago he said if the Flyers won, he would go back to law school in Manitoba.

He said his wife Mariette had not taken kindly to the idea of another move. He said Mrs. Shero suggested he take a correspondent course.

Houston Closing In On the Championship

HOUSTON (CP) — The Houston line of Larry Lund, Frank Hughes and Andre Hinse showed a seldom crowd why they were the top-scoring unit in the World Hockey Association this season as they paced Houston Aeros to a 7-4 win over Chicago Cougars Friday night.

The victory, before 9,874 nearly hysterical fans, gave Houston a 3-0 lead in the best-of seven final. They have a chance to complete a sweep and win the World Trophy Sunday night.

"Andre played probably the best game any Aero has played in two years," Hughes said of his 175-pound linemate.

Hinse took a beating from the Cougar defencemen, but he has been taking punishment for years in order to make a play.

Defenceman Dick Provecial ran Hinse hard into the boards behind the Cougars' goal but the little winger—three inches shy of six feet—bounced off the glass, picked up the puck and fed it to Hughes who scored 10 seconds in the first period for a 7-4 lead.

"I've learned how to slip away," Hinse said afterwards.

Hughes and Hinse scored two goals each for the Aeros while Hinse also had two assists, the same as Lund. Lund's points gave him 40 for the playoffs and the lead in that department.

"I'm playing with that line," Houston coach Bill Dineen said, "is that if they give up the puck in their end, Lund, Hughes and Hinse get it moving their way in a hurry."

Houston led 3-1 after a penalty-stuffed first period that saw Aeros' goaltender Don McLeod make only two difficult saves.

He got a pad on Don Gordon's hard slapshot on a power-play—the only tough shot Chicago had despite having a man advantage twice—and then got in front of Duke Harris' screened shot.

The only time the Aeros were in trouble was the last half of the second period when Chicago scored on them 3-1 but still were trailing 6-4 going into the third period.

"We have a tendency to get that way when we have those kinds of leads," Dineen said of the 5-1 margin. "We got very sluggish."

Forward Murray Hall, who opened the scoring for Houston with his seventh goal of the playoffs, said Chicago "opened things up and we opened up with them instead of playing it tight."

Dineen said the second period was "probably the worst period we've had in the playoffs."

Chicago coach Pat Stapleton tried a variety of things to get his club on top.

He went with four lines for the first time in the series to try and wear down the older and more experienced Aeros, he replaced starting goaltender Andre Gill with Cam Newton to start the third period, and he shuffled his lines.

"I honestly believe that our four lines were wearing down their three," Stapleton said.

"I asked Andre at the end of the second and he said maybe if we put Cam in it would get the guys going. But then they got that quick goal."

"But we had our chances. We had two guys in cold but they didn't score."

Referee Bill Friday handed out nine minor penalties in the first period. Four for high sticking. But things calmed down in the last two periods, but the heavy hitting continued.

Practice Rained Out, Foyt Has Advantage

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Veteran A. J. Foyt looks like a good bet to hang on to the pole position for the Indianapolis 500.

The 1973 winner, Gordon Johncock, admitted as much after a vital practice session was rained out Friday.

The speed to beat was the 191.632 miles an hour average the Texan posted in last Saturday's qualifying runs.

"If we could have run Friday, we would have had a good shot at the pole," Johncock said. "But there was just too much work that we didn't get to do before qualifying."

Heavy rain hit the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Friday only seven minutes after the beginning of what would have been a key practice session.

Johncock's car, sporting the controversial big turbocharger used by team-mate Wall Dallenbach in qualifying last Saturday, was not able to get out of his garage.

Never thought we'd see the day when we'd welcome the sad fact that another commitment will keep us from watching Sunday's Stanley Cup game.

It's the outdoors' assignments this weekend.

Plenty of fresh air.

And man, after that sickening mess which passed itself off for pro hockey, Thursday, fresh air is exactly what the doctor ordered.

Who needs the kind of malarkey dished up by Flyers and Bruins?

There's no doubt some viewers enjoy that kind of thing.

One of those who does was brash enough to tell us about it.

We agreed on one point.

Bobby Orr kept the NHL's version of the sport from sliding all the way down the drain. And he had some help from a few of the other members of the masquerade.

The goaltenders are fortunate: The brilliant Bernie Parent and his talented counterpart Glenn Hall have found their masks come in handy. And not for protection from physical damage alone. Who can blame them if they're blushing behind those masks?

This cup final has already qualified for a berth alongside such other entertainment spectacles as Roller Derby and pro wrestling.

Stanley Cup Champions?

Of their show-biz so far, with the exception of some individuals, neither of these teams is worthy of the title.

SLICES — Dave Jeffs, a product of the Stirling Minor Hockey Association, keys this area from being shut out in the draft of midget age players by Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A teams, and Cornwall Royals of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League.

Jeffs, a defenceman, was a member of Stirling's Midget DD Ontario Minor Hockey Association finalists last season. Ron Hadley, coach, and Gary Mason, manager, guided the team to the finals.

Selected by London Knights, Jeffs is described by the OMHAs Doug Patterson of Stirling as being "a big, clever player with plenty of drive".

Cobourg Cougars, junior C champions, had three players drafted, and two Gananoque midgets were chosen. Three were selected from Kingston.

There were 208 players drafted.

Now all the officials of the junior teams have to do is hope the players they chose will turn up at training camp.

Most drivers will tell you they don't take part in league play in order to be a member of a winning team. It's a good night or two out a week and if trophies come their way, it's an unexpected bonus.

Two Belleville five-pinners recently added to their sport bonus.

Competing in the annual Brunswick Bowl Your Way to Bermuda event at Toronto, Donna Lee and Jack Hughes each won a trip for two to the vacation island.

Donna came through with a 274 in her first game while Jack chalked up a 338 in Game 2, as the keglers rolled for the day's top single scores.

Printers Aim For Top Rung

By ALAN TESWORTH

Fifth in a six part series.

Looking for second, but shopping for first could sum up Howard and Robert Printing's outlook for the upcoming Quinte Fastball League schedule.

That's about how coach Ray Lucas put it when questioned on his team's chances for the new season. He says the team is about 25 per cent improved over last season.

The main reason — the acquisition of Scott Reid from Auger's Metal Weir.

Reid, although he had a bad start last year, finishing with a not-so-impressive record, is generally regarded as one of the top hurlers in the six-team league, and certainly one of the hardest throwers.

Combined with Rob "Shod" Ethier, rated by many as the top chucker in the league, they make an imposing mound tandem for any opposing batting lineup.

Ethier has a habit of coming on strong when the chips are down, producing some stellar performances in tough situations.

Larry Potter will do the majority of the catching for the Printers, and will provide many opportunities for hitters coming up behind him to drive in a run. Potter could be considered the Ron Hunt of the OFL, getting on base more than the average player, be it by walk, hit-by-pitch or whatever.

At first base, it will be either Bob Parsons or Pug Kellar. Both are good at covering the position and can swing the bat.

Second base will be the territory of Wayne Woods this season with the red haired second sacker bringing with him many years of infield experience from Devolin Motors where he played last season.

Shortstop is one opposition where Lucas will make no substitution short of injury or similar emergency. Dwight Rathwell will handle the chores at that spot, with a strong throwing arm and great range. "Ratsy" should also be near the top of the hit parade.

At third base, Ken Genereaux has made the switch from shortstop, where he played many seasons. The speedy Genereaux will provide better than average coverage of the hot corner.

Howard and Robert Pringing Preview Take 2

One hole appears in the Printers' outfield, where the outstanding play of John Campbell has been temporarily halted by a bout with hepatitis.

The lanky Campbell, one of the league's best men at the plate as well as a welcome addition to any team in the field, will be out of the lineup for upwards of two months.

Keller and Rusty Garvin, along with newcomers Dave Skelton and Terry Pope should do the job adequately.

Skelton, with good speed, and Pope, just out of Junior ball, will make the backbone of the Printers' deep men. Pope will also provide some long ball hitting for the team. He cranked four home runs last season, one of the best totals in the league.

The Printers get their first chance against the Ellis Juniors in the opening game of the season in the backhoe. The game will be the first part of the doubleheader Monday evening, at 7 p.m.

Auger Mens' West takes on Rollins Construction in the nightcap, beginning at about 8:45.

Quinte Secondary School ran their record to four wins against no losses in Bay of Quinte High School lacrosse action Thursday night, defeating Centennial Chargers for the second time in as many starts, 6-3.

The win clinched first spot in the Western division for the as yet undefeated Saints.

Geoff Male paced Quinte to the win in the rain-soaked game with four goals, while Jim Hannah and Kerry Reid each collected one to round out the scoring.

Dan Hoxford, Ken Jackett, and Wally Inwood each scored once for the Chargers, whose record dropped to two wins against two losses.

UIC Wins 10-3

Meads' Comeback Sinks Utilities

Off early indications, it would appear teams in the Belleville Industrial Softball League will be dishing up some entertaining diamond action this season.

The weather has kept league play to a minimum so far but of the four games played, two have been decided by one run.

In the first game of the twin bill, UIC erupted for 10 runs in the first inning en the way to a 13-3 decision over Black Diamond while in the nightcap, Meads turned impending defeat into victory with a five-run burst in the seventh and final inning to nose out Public Utilities 10-9.

UICs 13-hit attack was sparked by Bill Healy and Ron Embury who each collected four safeties. Joe Clark checked in with three base hits and Pete Lloyd had a pair. Dale Ducarme and Joe Scanlan rounded out the winners' potent attack.

Scanlan fired a tidy two-hitter to get the win, allowing only Hughie Hall and Black Diamond's Ron Bateman and Ross Empey. He walked four and struck out two.

The losers' pitching was handled by Jack Francis and Ron Bateman.

Leading Meads to the come from behind victory were D'Connell, Reg Bennett, Larry Hamilton and Jim Wood. A home run and a pair of singles made Woods the leader of the hit parade with the others supplied a pair of hits each.

Utilities did not take a back seat in the hitting department. Ron Waite had four safeties while J. Bowen collected three. J. Bastille, Wilson Bulpit and Larry Mason each found the range for a triple and a single.

Larry Waite went all the way for the win. Ron Waite worked the first six innings plus for the losers with Bulpit taking over in the seventh.

Reds' Pitcher Comes Through For Ailing Dad

By THE CANADIAN PRESS ...

In a hospital hundreds of miles from the Houston Astrodome, a 78-year-old father of eight listened to ball game on his transistor radio.

At the ballpark, Fred Norman tried to ease his father's pain with a well-pitched game Friday night, pitching Cincinnati Reds to a 4-2 win over Houston Astros in a National League baseball game.

"When I was born, he was 47 years old," Norman said of his father. "He always comes to see me pitch. I wish he had been here tonight, but he just couldn't make it."

The crowd-pleasing Norman, however, nearly did make it. He pitched 8 1/3 innings of eight-hit baseball, striking out five and walking only three, to win his victory.

Whether watching or listening, the senior Norman—hospitalized by a kidney ailment—must be impressed by his son's success.

Over 45 1/3 innings, he has surrendered just 34 hits and nine runs while striking out 45 and walking only 18. The victory raised his won-lost record to 3-2 and lowered his earned run average to 1.59.

Houston Manager Preston Gomez didn't seem especially impressed after his team's seventh consecutive loss. "We got no hitting, that's all," Gomez said.

But the Astros didn't get much fielding, either, as errors brought home three of Cincinnati's runs. Two scored on Houston pitcher Claude Osteen's wild throw to the plate in the fourth.

In Friday's other National League games, St. Louis Cardinals trimmed Chicago Cubs 9-8, New York Mets blanked Montreal Expos 3-0, San Diego Padres downed San Francisco Giants 7-3, Atlanta Braves topped Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3 in 11 innings and Philadelphia Phillies edged Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4 in 10 innings.

Ted Simmons drove in three runs with a first-inning homer, then broke an 8-8 tie with a sacrifice fly in the seventh inning to carry the Cardinals past Chicago.

Billy Williams had four runs batted in for the Cubs—two of them on his fifth-inning home run. Don Kessinger contributed four hits for Chicago and drove in two runs.

"It's a start," said New York right-hander Tom Seaver after his 13-strikeout four-hitter against Montreal.

Seaver, last season's Cy Young Award winner, had slumped to a 1-4 record and a 3.3 earned run average. Rusty Staub stroked a two-run homer off loser Balor Moore in the third inning to nail the win for Seaver needed.

Nate Colbert's fifth career grand slam home run helped San Diego defeat San Francisco and end a nine-game losing streak. The blast capped a five-run Padres first inning.

Pinch-hitter Mike Lum, given his nickname "Iron Cey dropped his foul fly in the 11th inning and drove a run double to centre fielder Dusty Baker, scoring runs for Atlanta.

Today's schedule has the Phillies at Pittsburgh, the Expos at New York, the Padres at San Francisco, the Braves at Los Angeles, the Cubs at St. Louis and the Reds at Houston.

Those pairings are repeated Sunday, with doubleheaders at New York and San Francisco.

Hitter Guesses Right, Twins Shade Angels

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Larry Hisle won a game of wits with Frank Tanana Friday night, giving Minnesota Twins a 2-1 win over California Angels in an American League base ball game.

The plan, Tanana figured, was for Hisle to put the ball a few feet in front of the plate. He figured about 400 feet too short.

Hisle was batting in the bottom of the eighth inning for Minnesota. Ahead and on, Joe Lis had singled. And behind him was the meat of the Twins' batting order.

Tanana and the rest of the California Angels owned a 1-0 lead. It figured Hisle would be bunting...which is what he did on the first pitch. He missed foul.

"I thought he was going to bunt again," Tanana said. "I threw him a sixty-seven fastball that didn't have much on it."

But Hisle put everything he had into it, driving the ball 421 feet into the right field stands for a two-run homer that carried the Twins to a 2-1 victory over the Angels.

"I was expecting a fastball because he was only trying to get me out, what with Rod Carew and Tony Oliva following me," Hisle said of Tanana.

"And he threw me the fastball, apparently thinking I was gonna bunt again. I got the homer in a hit-and-run situation."

But why the switch? "It was a bit of a gamble," admitted Twins' manager Frank Quilici. "But it sure worked, didn't it?"

In other American League games, Baltimore Orioles blanked Boston Red Sox 6-0 in a rain-shortened six-inning contest, Oakland A's mauled Chicago White Sox 10-4, Kansas City Royals topped Texas Rangers 5-4, Detroit Tigers downed Cleveland Indians 4-3 and New York Yankees edged Milwaukee Brewers 3-2.

Mike Cuellar checked Boston six, aided by a double play and Tommy Davis clubbed two homers, driving in four runs in a game enlivened by the appearance of the first streaker at a Baltimore game.

Ray Fosse's three-run triple on which the White Sox' Buddy Bradford broke his collarbone trying for the catch—highlighted a four-run first-inning rally by the As.

Joe Rudi's two-run single and Bill Melton's run-scoring double were the big plays for the As in the second inning.

Fred Stanley's two-run triple capped a four-run second-inning blast sent the Royals past Jim Bibby and the Rangers, overcoming Texas' 3-0 lead. George Brett drove in the other Kansas City runs with doubles in the fourth and sixth innings.

Al Kaline's run-scoring single triggered a three-run sixth inning that led Detroit over the Indians, who hit into four double plays. Lerrin LaGrow picked up the victory with late relief help.

Bill Sudakis' run-scoring single capped a two-run first inning and Jim Nelson hit a decisive sacrifice fly in the seventh in the Yankees' victory over Milwaukee which snapped New York's five-game losing streak.

Doyle Alexander has the Tigers at Cleveland, the Red Sox at Baltimore, the Angels at Minnesota, the Yankees at Milwaukee, the Rangers at Kansas City and the As at Chicago.

Those pairings are repeated today, with doubleheaders at Baltimore, Cleveland, Milwaukee and Minnesota.

Cannonade Seeking Elusive Triple Crown

BALTIMORE (AP) — Cannonade, seeking to become the 10th Triple Crown champion in racing history, continues his quest for the elusive title today when he takes on 12 rivals in the 99th running of the $150,000 added Preakness Stakes.

The son of Bold Bidder won the first leg of the series two weeks ago in the Kentucky Derby, but he has elicited none of the confident support given Secretariat last year when that colt became the first Triple Crown winner in 25 years.

Cannonade captured the 23-horse stampede to win the 1¼-mile Kentucky Derby, but his time of 2:04 failed to impress many observers.

In addition, it was his only stakes victory of 1974—a year which the top three-year-olds have taken turns beating one another.

Among his Preakness rivals, for instance, Little Current won the Everglades, Hudson County took the Bay Shore, Destroyer won the Santa Anita Handicap, and Rube The Great was the winner in the Santa Catalina and divisions of the Wood and Swift.

Flaming-o-winner Bushongo failed to train back to norm in time for the Preakness after pulling up lame in the Blue Grass.

Judger, the stablemate of Cannonade who won the Florida Derby, was kept out of the Preakness by trainer Woody Stephens, but he is expected to be a big factor in the 1¾-mile Belmont Stakes, the last of the Triple Crown series on June 9.

Post time for the Preakness was 5:40 p.m. EDT. Television coverage, by CBC, was scheduled to start at 6 p.m., and last for one hour.

The presence of jockey Sandy Hawley of Mississauga, Ont., who will ride All Game for Mrs. Ben Cohen, wife of Pimlico's secretary-treasurer, gives Canadians a special rooting interest in the race.

All Game was rated at 15 to 1 in the morning line and leaves from the No. 4 position.

"He certainly won't be the favorite, but he won't be the longest shot on the board either," said Hawley. "He has a shot."

"He likes to come off the pace," Hawley said of the colt, which he has ridden once, finishing second in a maiden race at Bowie Feb. 28.

Of 13 starters, the 13-16 mile Preakness would have a record purse of $250,000, with a record $156,500 going to the winner.

Cannonade, who defeated six of the Preakness starters while winning the 12-horse derby, was expected to be the favorite by a crowd which could exceed last year's record turnout of 61,657.

Other Derby horses seeking to block Cannonade's Triple Crown bid included J.R.'s Pet, Little Current, Destroyer and Buck's Bid, who finished fourth through seventh—at Churchill Downs, and Rube The Great, No. 10 in the Derby.

THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE

PROCLAMATION

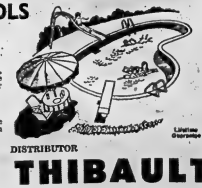
WHEREAS motorcycles have rapidly become not only a form of recreation, but an economical and energy saving form of transportation for many Canadians, and

WHEREAS the very nature of these vehicles lend themselves to accident situations that four wheeled vehicles do not, and

WHEREAS motorcycle associations such as the Ontario Safe Motorcycle Association, the Pirton Pushers Motorcycle Club Inc. and others, along with Police Departments and Governments are increasingly concerned with educating the Motorcycle Rider to the dangers of the environment they are in, and also in educating the AUTOMOBILE DRIVER as to their responsibility toward motorcyclists,

THEREFORE, I ROBIN JEFFREY, Mayor of the City of Belleville do hereby proclaim the week of May 19 to 25th, 1974 as MOTORCYCLE SAFETY WEEK and hereby urge all citizens to make an extra effort to become cognizant of Motorcycles on our streets and thereby help to eliminate motorcycle accidents.

ROBIN JEFFREY,
MAYOR.



DATED AT THE MAYOR'S OFFICE THIS 18th day of MAY, 1974.

IN MEMORIAM

MUIR — In loving memory of my dear parents Bernice who passed away May 21, 1971, and Ernest who passed away May 18, 1972.
No one knows how much we miss.
No one knows but sister Janet.
We have suffered, since we lost you,
The pain of a broken heart.
In our hearts your memory lingers
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day, dear mother and dad,
That we do not think of you.
Sadly sleepy missed, always loved, Nancy, Eldon, Rodney and Daniel.

WANAMAKER — In loving memory of our dear mother Mary Ellen Wanamaker who passed away May 21, 1958.
If we had all the world to give,
We'd give it, yes, and more,
To have you here with us once more.
And greet her at the door.
But all we can do, our brother,
Is go and visit your grave,
And there in silence, speak of love,
To the best mother God ever made.
Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Mary, family and friends.

SCHWAGER — In loving memory of a dear father William Joseph, who passed away May 22, 1971.
In my home your picture lingers
In my heart your memory lingers
There's a day, dear Father,
I do not think of you.
—Never forgotten by wife Margaret, son Joe, John and Jerry.

SCHWAGER — In very loving memory of a dear great grandfather, William Joseph, who passed away May 22, 1971.
Your footsteps are not missed,
Your memory is dear,
Because it always the one we love,
And the one we fear.
Lovingly remembered by Kim, Kerby and Dawn.

SCHWAGER — In loving memory of a dear grandson, William Joseph, who passed away May 22nd, 1971.
God knew he was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He took our darling Billy
And whispered, "Peace be thine."
Away in the beautiful hills of God
By the waters of no sin or pain,
Some time, some day, we know not when,
We will meet again.
—Fondly missed by Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Rollings, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Schwager, Marty, Susan, John and Sean.

BRADSHAW — In loving memory of a dear husband and grandfather, Alvah F. Bradshaw, who passed away May 7, 1972.
Deep in our hearts you will always stay,
Loved and remembered every day.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by daughter Nancy Wilcox and son-in-law Bud and children Michele Burns and Greg.

MUIR — In loving memory of our dear son Ernest Eldon Muir, who passed away May 18, 1972.
No smile was on his lips that day,
No kind hand entered the door,
And silently, unseen, unheard,
Death claimed our darling boy.
We was too sure for this cold earth,
Too beautiful to stay,
And so God's holy angel bore
Our darling boy away.
Sadly missed and always remembered by Mommy, Daddy, Janet and Rodney.

MUIR — In loving memory of our dear grandfather Ernest Muir, who passed away May 18th, 1972.
God saw you getting tired,
When a cure was not to be,
So He put His arms around you
And whispered, "Come home with me."
You didn't deserve what you went through,
Dear Grandpa,
But we know you are now at peace,
And pain must be beautiful.
For He only takes the best.
—Always remembered by Bud, Jimmy, Rebecca and Trevor.

MUIR — In loving memory of a dear father Ernest J. Muir who passed away May 18th, 1972.
Memories are golden
Memories are dear
Memories linger
Year after year
The troubled nights are past
And in our sadly hearts
We know he has found sweet rest at last.
—Lovingly remembered by son Edgar and daughter-in-law Norma.

LONGMIRE — In loving memory of our dear father Ernest Muir who passed away May 18th, 1971.
A little tribute small and tender,
Just to tell we still remember
—Lovingly remembered by wife Leola.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Sunday, May 29

Aries (March 21-April 19) You will find more enjoyment in less-active pursuits than you will in doing something that requires a lot of moving around.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Some time should be taken to clear up a serious matter that calls for discussion. Talk now with the other concerned party.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) There's something that you need assistance with at this time. Your best bet for getting this help is from someone older.

Cancer (June 21-May 22) Be sure the course you set the next few days is practical and within reach. A reliable acquaintance will aid you.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You're in a cycle where a little extra push is all you need to put yourself out front. Have clearcut goals. Be persistant.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your present outlook regarding something you've been mulling over is on target. Follow through in the way you now view this situation.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Involvements where you share material interests should be given full attention. Worthwhile gains will come of it.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Remember a not-too-distant experience and how it finally worked out when you are asked to make a decision today.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If that old wistfilse is getting a little larger than you'd like, this is a good time to begin a sensible exercise program.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keep a watchful eye and a firm grip on youngsters in your charge today. It is for their own good.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There are certain things that need your touch around the house. You won't be at ease until you get them done.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be a duty-shirker. You should make today to someone older. If you can't visit personally, at least give her a call.

Monday, May 30

Aries (March 21-April 19) Don't be too surprised if you get profit materially from two different sources today. Keep all avenues for gain wide open.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20) Stimulating news will revive hope for something you've recently laid aside. This time, see it through to the finish.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) This is not the time to bury yourself with your smaller interests. The best chances of success will come from your major projects.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Have faith in yourself and what you seek to attain. You're going to be getting a few breaks that will make things easier.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is a good day to get that cooperation you need to further your interests. Team efforts work to your advantage.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You should do quite well in business dealings. Don't be hesitant about doing a little horse-trading if it sweetens the pot.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are under very good aspects where legal matters are concerned. Agreements worked out at this time will benefit both parties.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Over the next few days you will have opportunities to strengthen your position in a situation that has an influence on your work.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You will "lock out" today and intervene through friends and contacts you know on a social basis. Don't turn down invitations.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Conditions that contribute to your well-being look very solid at this time. Build upon these foundations.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You will be lucky today in situations that deal in the realm of ideas. Concentrate on matters that require either verbal or written communication.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) New projects undertaken now are likely to move ahead more speedily than normal. Get moving if you have something ready to go.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll find yourself more in demand socially during the next few weeks than you have been for some time. Get your party hat ready.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Soon you'll begin noticing improving conditions that affect the family as a whole. Basic time will also be strengthened.

Seven-Year Study

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — A seven-year study of the effects of forest harvesting practices on fish and wildlife populations has begun in the Tsitsutl Lake area about 55 miles southeast of here. Five lakes in the area have been closed to fishermen for the duration of the study, which is being conducted jointly by the federal government and North wood Pulp and Timber Ltd., which holds the forest harvest-ing rights in the area.

Police Under Fire
Belfast Area Strike-bound

BELFAST (AP) — Protestant strikers opened fire Tuesday with automatic weapons on police who tried to dismantle barricades blocking traffic into the paralyzed city.

A jeering mob of militants, meanwhile, punched and screamed abuse at Britain's top trade unionist, Lionel Murray, as he led a peace-making backto-work march into the giant Harland and Wolff shipyards.

Only about 150 workers joined the march, too few to get the shipyard back into operation.

No casualties were reported in the shooting incident in East Belfast and Murray, secretary-general of the powerful Trades Union Congress, did not appear to have been badly hurt.

Meanwhile, police in the Irish republic rounded up 10 men in a series of raids during the night. They were being questioned about four bomb explosions Monday in Dublin and Monaghan that killed 28 at the scene. A woman died from injuries Monday and a 20-year-old woman died in hospital early today to bring the toll to 30. Scores were injured in the explosions.

In London, Prime Minister Harold Wilson called a special cabinet meeting to discuss the deteriorating situation in Northern Ireland, virtually crippled by the week-old strike.

But shortly before the ministers assembled at No. 10 Downing Street without explanation, Murray was meeting was canceled. In Belfast, a police spokesman warned:

"The situation is very sensitive and could erupt at any moment."

Protestant workers are striking to protest measures by the British government which they see as leading to eventual union between Northern Ireland and the predominantly Roman Catholic Irish republic.

Public transportation was almost at a standstill, much of Ulster was without power, and shops, offices and factories were closed.

Strikers threw up fresh barricades almost as fast as police tore them down. A group of women formed a human barrier across the city's Queen Elizabeth II bridge, one of the main routes into the downtown area.

Hundreds of troops stood by in a bid to keep roads clear for two back-to-work marches.

Murray's supporters were pelted with rotten eggs and lumps of old iron as fewer than 100 men and women took part in the second march to an industrial estate in East Belfast area of Castlereagh.

Up to a dozen new barricades—made up of hijacked trucks and automobiles—appeared in Belfast and its suburbs this morning. There were others in the nearby towns of Carrickfergus, Newtownards and Bangor.

Gangs of Protestants roamed the streets swinging cudgels and turning back anyone who looked as if he was on his way to work.

The militant Vanguard unionists said claims by trade union leaders that 95 per cent of workers in Northern Ireland wanted to resume work were a myths.

Farmers dumped thousands of gallons of milk today for want of transport. The few bread stores open in the capital limited buyers to one small loaf. Fruits and vegetables lay rotting in closed grocery stores.

Policeman on Watch

Davis Views Flood Toll

By The Canadian Press

Premier William Davis will make a helicopter tour today of southwestern Ontario cities ravaged by weekend flooding of the Grand River that cut a 130-mile swath of devastation.

He will be accompanied by officials of the Emergency Measures Organization (EMO) to assess damage that has been estimated up to $10 million.

Flooding began Friday in the wake of heavy rains that swelled the river 18 feet above normal levels, leaving homes clogged with mud and sewage systems in chaos.

Cambridge, Brantford and Elmira were the most seriously affected, with widespread property damage, but no deaths or serious injuries.

Residents of Cambridge were instructed to boil their drinking water and officials expect the measure to be in effect for another day. In Brantford, residents were told Monday night that the water supply was again safe to drink.

About 250,000 residents along the waterway took hope Sunday as the river crest emptied into Lake Erie at Port Maitland. But the job of cleaning up was just beginning.

At the height of the flood, a number of persons had to be rescued from flooded buildings, and one man was plucked by helicopter from a tree-top protruding from the muddy water.

The downtown area of Galt, one of the municipalities in the city of Cambridge, was hard hit. Merchants face ruinous bills for damaged stock and mud-caked streets are still closed to traffic.

As the river returned to its bed Monday, volunteers from the Salvation Army, the St. John Ambulance and the Mennonite Disaster Service worked to clear buildings, homes and farms.

Damage was intense to farmland along the river. The hardy Mennonite communities rallied for mutual aid.

Mennonites from as far away as Virginia set out to help their stricken brethren here. The cities of London and Hamilton sent men and equipment to the Cambridge area.

In Brantford, further downstream, Mayor Gordon Brown said the province will provide relief for the local victims of the disaster. No details of the aid program were announced.

Cambridge Mayor Claudette Millar said Monday the city council has requested provincial aid and hopes for a reply from Premier Davis today.

In the wake of the floods came sharp criticism of the Grand River Conservation Authority. Angry flood victims complained that the authority's dams should be done more to control rising waters.

Police Intensify Hunt For Members of SLA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The distraught parents of Patricia Hearst and William and Emily Harris pleaded on their children Monday to surrender as police intensified their hunt for the suspected members of the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA).

With the memory of last Friday's flaming deaths of six SLA members vivid in her mind, Mrs. Betty Bunnell, Harris' mother, said: "All of us just can't bear the thought of seeing another shootout on film like we saw this past weekend, and to think that it might happen to my son is almost unbearable and I do wish he would give himself up."

Mrs. Harris' father, Frederic Schwartz, flew to Los Angeles from Chicago Monday night to plead with his daughter to surrender to him.

And in Hillsborough, Calif., Patricia Hearst's mother, the 20-year-old co-ed whose kidnapping on Feb. 4 set off this case, said, "I hope she will give herself up and come home."

But there was no sign that Miss Hearst or the Harrises were about to voluntarily give up. More than 100 local, state and federal law officers remained on full-time duty in search of the three, who are described as "armed and extremely dangerous," and possibly the last remnants of the SLA band of terrorists.

The three are wanted on FBI complaints, filed Monday, for investigation of illegal use and possession of automatic weapons.

Talk of 'Betrayal'
India's A-blast Dismays Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada, a friendly if unwitting neighbor eager to share its nuclear technology with its friends of the day, sowed the seeds for India's entry into the club of nuclear-weapon states.

Saturday, India touched off an underground nuclear plutonium device equivalent to 10,000-12,000 tons of TNT, becoming the sixth country in the world to have exploded a nuclear bomb.

Indian spokesmen claim the explosion was for peaceful purposes, but the Canadian position, reiterated on the weekend by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, is that nuclear explosions for so-called peaceful purposes cannot be distinguished from explosions for military purposes.

Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., (AECL)the Crown corporation which got India the reactor and later supplied experts and techniques for commercial reactors, believes it has been betrayed.

"We feel the same as the government about the situation," said R. C. Hayden of AECL, referring to Mr. Sharp's statement that the test was of special concern because of Canada's role- in assisting India's nuclear energy development.

There were exchanges of Canadian and Indian nuclear scientists leading up to 1964 when Canada helped launch India's nuclear power industry by cooperating in the construction of a two-unit, 200 ...megawatt Canda-type station.

The agreement required that the reactor be used for peaceful purposes only. No monitoring provisions were included.

Canada made attempts during the 1960s to renegotiate the bilateral nuclear treaties with India, hoping to impose more restrictions on what India could do in the nuclear field.

Last year, it was announced that continued policy differences between Canada and India on the application of international safeguards have ended co-operative exchanges of nuclear technology and the exchange of supplies for nuclear power production facilities in India.

But once India had become initially involved with nuclear technology, it developed the capability to proceed on its own.

But the first Canadian built station has not been in operation long enough to used in the Indian bomb.

India's first nuclear station, a U.S.-built $75 million plant on the Arabian Sea, began operation in 1970 as a result of a program of U.S. nuclear assistance to India.

Quebec Flood Fight Still On

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The battle of wills between man and nature continued today as municipalities throughout Quebec fight to prevent further damage from rising flood waters.

There appeared some hope the situation would improve for communities near Ottawa, the most severely affected during the past week, while areas around Montreal continued to experience heavy flooding.

At Maniwaki, 90 miles north of Ottawa, flood waters from the Gatineau River continued to abate and a Hydro-Quebec spokesman said the water level dropped about a foot Monday although it still remains 12 feet above normal.

Some of the Maniwaki residents evacuated from 425 flooded homes were cautiously returning to their homes Monday but the spokesman said it might take several weeks before everyone was back.

Hydro officials reduced the spill-off flow through the Mercier Dam by 10,000 cubic feet, bringing the flow to 45,000 feet a second. At the height of the flooding, the flow was 65,000 cubic feet a second.

Meanwhile, municipal officials of four communities near Montreal were pooling their resources in an effort to combat flooding of the Riviere des Prairies which flows out of Lake of Two Mountains.

The river was reported to have risen seven feet above normal level Monday and was expected to rise 4 to 5 inches more by today.

Energy Board Officer Quits Over Conflict of Interest

OTTAWA (CP) — Donald J. Morgan, former head of the domestic policy branch of the National Energy Board, has resigned, accused of a conflict of interest by board chairman Marshall A. Crowe.

Mr. Morgan, after four years with the board, became acting director of supply for the federal energy allocations board when it was established in January by Parliament.

In both jogs, he was one of the most responsible government officials connected with maintaining and allocating national petroleum supplies.

His resignation and the circumstances surrounding it were made public Monday night on the regional CBC television program This Day after a three-week investigation by CBC staff.

The CBC information was presented to Mr. Crowe and the board May 3. Mr. Morgan was called in to discuss the matter May 7, at which time he verbally resigned. His formal written resignation was submitted May 10.

Through it all, while admitting he formed a private company called Trident Trading and Transportation in 1972 and sold a cargo lot of Caribbean petroleum to a United States buyer that same year, Mr. Morgan maintained his action did not constitute conflict of interest.

And, although CBC documentation indicates an attempt to sell another load of crude oil to a Montreal refinery last March at the height of the international oil crisis, Mr. Morgan told the board he was called in to discuss the matter May 7, at which time he verbally resigned. His formal written resignation was submitted May 10.

Pakistan Sees Threat to Peace

WASHINGTON (CP) — Foreign Minister Aziz Ahmed of Pakistan said Monday that India has shaken confidence in a durable peace for South Asia and destroyed the nuclear nonproliferation treaty by exploding a nuclear device last Saturday.

Ahmed said Pakistan will seek assurances "collectively or individually," from the permanent members of the Security Council—the United States, Britain, the Soviet Union, France and China—that they would come to the aid of a state that might be threatened by nuclear attack.

Israel Resumes Raids On Guerrilla Centres

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli warplanes crossed the Lebanese border today, bombing and strafing "Arab terrorist targets" less than 24 hours after Premier Golda Meir declared a systematic new "war against guerrillas," the military command announced.

A command communique said the Israeli jets made a half-hour raid on guerrilla centres in the Nabatiye area, southeastern corner of Lebanon near Mount Hermon that is often a staging area for guerrilla operations.

Israeli planes have repeatedly attacked the "Fatahland" area, so far recently, with the military command claiming that guerrillas were aiding the Syrian assault against Israeli ground forces atop Mount Hermon.

Giscard d'Estaing Elected President of France

PARIS (Reuter) — Valery Giscard d'Estaing, 48, chosen Sunday as the youngest president of France to be elected by universal suffrage," is expected to bring a touch of informality to the office.

"I intend to walk in the streets," Giscard d'Estaing said soon after his narrow victory over Socialist Francis Mitterand was made official. "On Sundays I intend to walk in the country like any other Frenchman."

Election of the tall, scholarly moderate conservative, finance minister of France for all but three of the last 12 years, was greeted with enthusiasm by other European leaders and in Washington. One of the first telephone calls of congratulation he received was from President Nixon.

But Giscard d'Estaing faces a difficult task in uniting France under his leadership. He scraped into power by only 1.4 per cent of the vote in a turnout of 27 million electors. He polled 50.7 per cent to 49.3 per cent for Mitterrand, the candidate of the united left.

Giscard d'Estaing has pledged to carry out a program of social progress he believes will appeal to a much broader segment of the population than the bare majority that voted for him. Although he said little during his election campaign to court the far-left voters, he did in his election acceptance speech urge Mitterrand, to continue playing a leading role in French politics.

Giscard d'Estaing's strength in the French parliament will be far more solid than his electoral victory indicated.

He has the support of the Gaullists, his own Independent Republicans and the Centrists, representing about 300 seats in the 490-seat National Assembly.

REAL ESTATE:

BUYING vs. RENTING

Ed. McKinney
Manager
Realty Ltd.

To buy or rent — that is the question. Both have their place. First, renting can be the answer for families who know they'll only be in the area for a short time or who prefer not to contend with maintenance. It's also the only solution for anyone with insufficient funds for the down payment on a home.

The main disadvantage of renting is a financial one. As living costs rise — so do rents. A lease may protect you temporarily, but when it expires, the landlord is free to increase the rent.

Your best better against inflation is to own your own home. You'll also be pleasantly surprised to find it also is one of the best financial investments you ever made. Your payments will remain level while your resale value — especially in the area — will continue to rise.

Circus Here Tomorrow

Roaring lions trumpeting elephants, blaring music, pretty lady acrobats, daring boys in spangled tights and cotton candy in gaudy colors are all a part of Circus Day, that annual unpopularized holiday that comes to each city once a year.

Circus Day for Belleville will be Wednesday, May 22 when the Jaycees bring Canada's own Garden Bros. Circus to town for performances at 4:15 and 8 p.m.

Throughout the night before as youngsters stir in restless anticipation in their sleep, the more than forty vehicles required to move a modern circus will begin to cluster around Memorial Arena. At dawn a crew of technicians will begin to turn the building into the maze of ropes and cables, lights and cages, rests boxes and properties necessary to present the twenty displays, or acts, that make the circus a two hour adventure for children of all ages.

It is during this two hours that we see what circus producer Ian Garden has collected all winter. This is the 37th annual tour of Garden Bros. Circus, the only circus produced in Canada and touring throughout the Country. Each year the next edition must be a little bit bigger, a little bit better and a whole lot different than the preceding one. This year Garden has assembled a lion and tiger trainer from Hungary, acrobats from Finland, unicyclists and wire walkers from Czechoslovakia, jugglers from France, an elephant trainer from Italy and even a French Canadian balancing act. Added to this are many more performers from the U.S. and Canada to present the thrills and chills, spectacle and glamour that make the circus the funnest family entertainment.

Garden Bros. Circus was first presented by Ian Garden's father Bill, at the CNE Coliseum in Toronto in 1937 and it has made an annual Canadian tour ever since. This year Canadians from Alberta to Newfoundland will see the show in some 100 cities as the show travels its route of over 30,000 miles.

Here in Belleville the show is sponsored by the Jaycees, who are raising funds for their many community activities.

And it's all so much fun. It's difficult to choose one thing in particular for an example. But, let's take producing clown, Hap Davis. He is the one in charge of the corps of funny men you'll see a lot of on circus day. With his cronies Jumbo, Rumpy and Jay-Jay, Hap has several spots in the circus where Belly-laughs are the order of business. At one time, they have only a short time to paint the entire circus a riot of wild colors. But, of course, you know where most of the paint goes. And, having had enough of that, Hap decides to leave and climbs into his limousine, a pretzel model Rolls Rotten. Hold your ears while he displays his mechanical aptitudes.

And on goes the circus, prancing Albino Horse Troupe, a death-defying leap from the height of the arena, juggling seals, rare pretty girls high above your head, and, through it all, the guy with the tray of red snowballs, yelling "Strawberry."

It is a tradition as old as man that hasn't changed, won't be changed and won't end as long as there is a new generation for the preceding generation to pass the tradition on to.

Belleville Man Believed Drowned

A 35-year-old Belleville man is missing and presumed drowned after a weekend search by city police, OPP and a local rescue unit failed to recover any sign of him.

Arthur Donald Peterson of Charles Street is believed to have fallen into the Moira River while taking a shortcut over the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge by the harbor about 3:30 p.m. Saturday with a female companion.

The first ones on the scene were the city police department and LaSalle Rescue Unit who searched the waters from 3:30 a.m. until about 8:30 a.m. Saturday morning.

About 11 that morning, Belleville police sent in a scuba diving team to search for the body. The team that day consisted of Constables Merle Foster, Ed Cox, Don Corbett, Dave Leaver, John Walker and Sgt. Bob Hall.

They were aided in their search for the missing man by the Belleville detachment of the OPP, as well as the RCMP. Detective Sam Morgan of the city police department conducted the investigation.

The search for the body by city divers continued until about noon Saturday before it was given up.

City police first arrived on the scene about 2:30 a.m. Saturday after a patrol car was flagged down by the female companion of Peterson's. She sought aid after she heard Peterson's cries for help after he had fallen into the water.

At first, she flagged down a car on Dundas Street carrying four people. She left with one of the occupants to seek help and at the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets, the two managed to flag down a police cruiser.

They all went to the scene of the drowning but were unable to see any sign of Peterson.

Vultures Like Bullheads

DEMORESTVILLE — Turkey vultures have discovered the garbage pickup boxes at Demorestville.

Ronald Robinson, RR 2, Picton, spotted a pair of the birds near the boxes last week. Strictly carrion eaters the vultures are attracted to the site by the abundance of bullheads, deposited in the boxes by commercial fishermen.

Turkey vultures are relatively uncommon in this part of the province, but have been extending their range into Prince Edward County a recent years.

Rape Charged

MARMORA — Clarence Lorne Nobes, 18, and Dean Malcolm Fails, 18, both of Marmora, were charged with rape in connection with an incident Saturday involving an 18-year-old Ottawa-area woman. They are to appear in court today in Belleville.

Teachers Willing To Resume Talks

More than 5,000 Ontario community college teachers — without a contract since last September — say they are willing to resume contract negotiations with the province's Council of Regents, but on an exploratory basis.

Last May, four months before contract expiration, negotiations began between the teachers and the council. Negotiations failed and the issues were taken to mediation and finally to conciliation. None of the settlement methods were effective and arbitration was scheduled.

Last March teachers balked at arbitration proceedings, calling them "lopsided." The arbitration board is composed of two government appointees and one union representative.

Paul Wall, president of Loyalist College's 170-plus teachers, branded the system as being "unfair and wrong," this morning after hearing negotiations are to be resumed.

He said "teachers would willingly enter into arbitration proceedings if teachers had an equal say in the choice of the board's third member." One arbitration board member would automatically represent the union and one the province.

According to Mr. Wall, the post of board chairman is currently a full-time government post. It is this position teachers want equal say in.

The union executive indicates teachers feel the only acceptable method would be direct talks with the council of regents.

This procedure was the one first tried but proved unsuccessful and finally led to mediation and conciliation. Teachers subsequently voted to reject compulsory arbitration.

Mr. Wall said "the whole problem is in the Crown Employees Collective Bargaining Act." Figures quoted by Mr. Wall indicate a heavy percentage of board members who look into province labor disputes are chosen by the province. "In all the boards that adjudicate claims, we are outnumbered 27 to 2," he said.

Teachers are looking for a two-year contract that will provide 18 per cent in the first year and seven per cent in the second.

Teachers also wanted access to information in personnel files used by college administrators to evaluate staff performance.

Black Diamond Workers Back

Workers at Black Diamond Cheese returned to their jobs this morning ending one of the longest strikes in Belleville's history.

The 180 production workers began their strike March 25 demanding better salaries, and improvements in vacation pay and cost of living benefits.

The workers agreed on Friday night, weeks later, to return to their jobs today, accepting a company offer of 40 cents over a two-year contract.

The union, Local 1988 Canadian Food and Allied Workers, had originally asked for a 75 cent increase over two years.

Another of the city's longest strikes, that at Northern Electric last year, lasted ten weeks starting May 7 and ending July 15.

Meanwhile at Stewart-Warner, 140 hourly workers Wednesday that 140 workers began their strike. The union is seeking an hourly increase of 95 cents an hour over a two-year contract, plus fringe and group insurance benefits.

The latest company offer allowed for total hour increases of 27 cents over a year — 18 cent effective June 1 mediately, and three cents an hour effective June 1, Sept. 1 and Dec. 1.

Same Old Line

With the election only about a week old we are wondering if the CBC is up to its old left-wing bias so far as the reporting of election news is concerned.

Once again the voice of NDP leader David Lewis seems to predominate over the air waves. We are hearing the sequel to the "corporate welfare bum" charge he levelled at the big corporations the last time around.

Profits being made these days by the oil people and others are "unfair and immoral," he says, and all delivered with that Welsh-accented sense of outrage with which we are all familiar.

The NDP, he says, would lower interest rates and establish a prices control board But he is careful not to say what he would like to do with those corporation profits.

For example, would he take the big companies for a pretty penny, in a sort of Robin Hood robbing-of-the -rich-to-pay-the-poor scenario? At the same time striking at the personal and corporate initiative that gives people and nations momentum, and adding to the ranks of the real welfare bums — those who downgrade the work ethic and live as parasites of the working population.

We are not saying that some of those corporation profits should not be used for betterment of the whole population where this may be usefully achieved. But let's not forget that this is indeed the policy of many corporations through profit-sharing and the fostering of further personal and corporate initiative ,not to mention the provision of educational and welfare facilities for workers at home and abroad.

If we must have the NDP philosophy thrust at us (and two months is a long time) on an almost daily basis, let's hope Mr. Lewis and his colleagues do more than merely rant at the evils of capitalism. After all, without capitalism, and without the efforts of countless men and women who have worked to make this country what it is, we would be little more than a North American banana republic.

Boost For Sport

It is good to see area municipalities talking about prospects for more recreational facilities, perhaps on a Quinte regional basis.

There is talk of an area arena, but we would hope that any such plan includes all seasonal sports. A great deal is being made these days of the need for the country for example — with the benefits that that can mean for young people growing up — but there is still little or nothing in the way of sports programs in the rural areas.

A recent article in The Christian Science Monitor spoke in general of the good life in Britain, for all its recent economic difficulties, and in particular about the many sports facilities (from soccer to tennis) that most communities can muster Much of this is available on the initiative of various clubs, rather than on funding to depend on the efforts of the municipality.

We could do with more of that kind of initiative in the sports sphere in this country. Thus we welcome this regional idea, involving various townships, and hope it bears fruit.

Second Deadline

Today's the day — for the second time around — for cleaning up that income tax chore. In case it has slipped the mind, returns should be mailed today for sure. It's a shame this falls on the holiday weekend and all we have not sensed any of the usual deadline tension usually associated with the earlier and traditional April 30th cut-off point. Still, as one professional in the field of tax preparation said the other day, "they are still coming out of the woodwork." Today though it will be all over, with mixed feelings on the part of the taxpayer. Some say they have few problems compiling their return. For most however it seems to be a bigger burden than ever, and consequently good business for professionals.

Cossitt Still Gets 'Hate Mail'

Leeds Member Flays PM for Use of Government Planes

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Of all the Conservatives, none can be, so deeply detested by Prime Minister Trudeau as Tom Cossitt, the MP for Eastern Ontario's riding of Leeds.

And the feeling of detestation is even of loathing and perhaps of hatred — obviously is mutual.

Tom Cossitt, for 20 years or more the Liberal boss in his riding, constituency president, chairman and top fund collector — is in a rage denounced the Prime Minister as a "traitor." turned Tory, was the insensative commission and election.

And over the past 21 months he has pursued the Prime Minister in he Commons as relentlessly that outraged Liberals have taken to inspiring, some even writing, hate mail villifying him.

It is hate mail because the word "hate" appears so frequently in it, much of it employing the same venomous phrase "merchant of hatred" in an overdone attempt to insult him.

So what has Tom Cossitt been doing to provoke these Liberal temper tantrums?

Just about everything he could think of, politically, from open verbal attack through motions in the Commons to sustained written assaults in the House of Commons Paper to insentively steaming Prime Minister.

Using both methods of parliamentary indictment. he has been getting to the Prime Minister — and the sensitive Liberals who react with howls of political anguish and frustrated fury — on the use of government aircraft, and of course public funds, in trial flights out across the campaign trail.

The Liberals were worried enough about public reaction to the P.M. flying at public expense with his wife Margaret and sons Justin and Sacha to the beaches of Barbados for holidays when others remained at their parliamentary posts.

Then didn't the Prime Minister raid the public purse again by commandeering government aircraft to flip around Ontario on a purely political excursion.

Tom Cossitt was there to rains at him.

First in a series of questions addressed directly to the Prime Minister, he established that Mr. Trudeau was indeed flying "Air Taxpayer," as he called it.

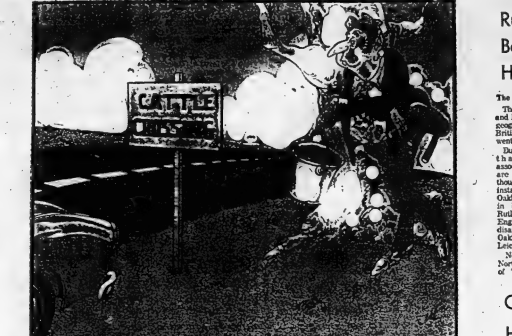
And he termed it an "act of arrogance and an affront to Parliament and the people."

Flippantly, the Prime Minister brushed that one off with the crack that in flying "Air Taxpayer" instead of Air Canada, CP Air, or any other of the commercial carriers for which he would have had to pay, he was doing no more, he said, "than the Tories who flew back to their ridings for the weekend on Defence Department aircraft."

He neglected to mention that the government had provided the parliamentarians with Defence Department transport because the striking civilian airport firefighters had shut down commercial air services.

Not to be shaken off so casually, Tom Cossitt a few days later was up with a motion that the Commons direct the government "to bill the Liberal Party of Canada for the political portion of the costs of the Prime Minister's use of federally-owned aircraft for such trips."

The Liberal majority, of course, beat that one down.



Undeterred, Tom Cossitt took still anther try at it, asking MP John Reid, "who is the charge of such things, when the government would answer his questions, on the Commons Order Paper for months, about the cost to the taxpayers of the Prime Minister's habitual use of government aircraft for private and political purposes since the election of October 1972.

There was no reply from the Liberals, with the Prime Minister, and the cabinet flanking him, sitting in glowering silence.

They are politically damaging questions whether answered or left them. Ignored, on the Order Paper — for they seek all the fine print details of the Prime Minister's many excursions on "Air Taxpayer."

But far from content with the sustained attack, Tom Cossitt is warring on the Prime Minister along a dozen different fronts.

At last count he had nearly 100 questions on the Order Paper, a goodly number of them requiring detailed answering of the Prime Minister's spending, from the public purse, on his Harrington Lake lodge, the Sussex Drive residence, and his two Parliament Hill offices, all redone in lavish high-style.

Watergate Flounders On

Americans Favor the Constitutional Road

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — Emotional cries for President Nixon to resign—they reached a crescendo following publication of his Watergate transcripts—are dying down.

Growing in their place seems to be a demand that due constitutional process be permitted to continue on its plodding course, even if that course should end in Senate trial.

Democrats and Republicans increasingly appear to find themselves on the same side in the controversy. Both argue that the president—who has vowed never to resign anyway—should have his day in court that can come about only through the impeachment procedure.

Without an orderly airing of the situation, questions would remain unanswered, they argue, and the spectacle of a president hounded from office could set a dangerous precedent for future unpopular chief executives.

Privately, there appear to be other considerations.

Observers believe that many Republicans are not calling for Nixon's resignation because they don't want to appear disloyal, especially with mid-term elections on the horizon.

They don't want to take a turncoat image to the polls with them at a time when the president not be conclusive evidence against the man they abandoned.

Democrats seem to be staying aloof, in many cases, to avoid the appearance of leading a lynch mob. Besides, more than one Democrat believes that the longer the Republicans stick with Richard Nixon, the tougher time the Republicans will have during the November elections.

In addition, the phenomenon of resignation would be unique in that it would give the president the chance to survive in office.

Also, the feeling is that while the House of Representatives may vote for impeachment, chances are good, at least on the basis of what's known so far, for Nixon to survive the subsequent Senate trial.

Whereas Nixon has been vocal and firm on resignation he won't even consider it — the White House has been silent on the impeachment issue.

And while the White House is standing firm on its refusal to provide additional Watergate material to investigators, it remains silent on whether the president will comply with new subpoenas.

Influential political figures have been saying that there will be a grave mistake for President Nixon to resign—that Nixon is entitled to a full hearing, and that the country is entitled to hear all the facts.

Such is the political climate, however, that many believe that should the house fail to indict or the Senate to convict, the roar for resignation would start building again.

Bible Digest
by H. B. DEAN

"Let him know that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins." James 5:20

When we see what wickedness will do, it is surprising we don't do more of it. On their way to "storm" to the brag - causing an epileptic seizure. The type of seizure produced depends on the area of the brain affected.

Research Into an Ancient Malady

Ontario Epilepsy Association

The Ontario Epilepsy Association's top professional advisor, Dr. J. S. Prichard, believes that the medical fight against Epilepsy is still behind the times. Dr. Prichard adds, though, that we will never be able to eradicate epilepsy completely as a medical problem: "Brains will always suffer injuries, birth defects will always occur. We can be most instrumental in improving signosis, treatment, rehabilitation, and in getting jobs for people with 'epilepsy'."

Still, research into new anticonvulsant medications which will provide greater seizure control with fewer side effects is urgently needed, as well as those which will provide significant relief for many epileptics who cannot be helped at the present time. One of the most frequently used drugs presently given to patients, for example, often produces such side effects as dizziness, drowsiness and confusion.

Some patients are not helped at all by drugs, and must resort to surgery - another area where research is beginning to pay dramatic dividends. One interesting technique, for example, makes use of radio waves to destroy malfunctioning tissue with great precision. Another device is the extraordinarily slim probe, which can kill tissue by delivering extremes of heat or cold.

While the research battle against epilepsy continues, a second battle against social discrimination, misinformation aimed at the epileptic goes on as well. In the forefront of that effort is the Ontario Epilepsy Association and its chapters.

Through public and professional education, counselling, job placement, and patient service programs, they are bringing new hope to the victims of this disorder in every part of the county.

One of the reasons progress against epilepsy has been slow is that it is an extremely elusive disorder. Instead of being a single, easily identifiable disease entity, like chicken pox, epilepsy is actually a family of disorders, which can stem from a variety of causes. Epilepsy can be brought about by falls or other injuries - particularly those to the head - brain damage inflicted at birth, infection, tumors, or circulatory problems. While heredity undoubtedly does play a role in some cases, doctors believe that certain inherited chemical abnormalities may make some individuals extra susceptible to epilepsy), many scientists contend that epilepsy is usually caused by factors that have nothing whatever to do with heredity.

Epileptic seizures occur when the electrical currents which pass through the brain "muddy" for some reason. Normally, these currents permit the brain to carry out its task of organizing the body's functions, including thought. But a sudden surge in the electrical discharge can cause an electrical "storm" in the brain - causing an epileptic seizure. The type of seizure produced depends on the area of the brain affected.

Rutland Is No More as UK Boundary Changes Absorb Historic Regional Entities

The Christian Science Monitor

There must have been good and logical reasons for all those geographical changes in the British county boundaries that went into force a month ago.

But still it's a job to find that towns you always associated with a certain county are no longer where you thought they were. Take, for instance, the market town of Oakham, which once took pride in being the chief town of Rutland, the smallest county in England. Rutland has now disappeared from the map, and Oakham has been absorbed by Leicestershire.

Newcastle upon-Tyne has left Northumberland to become part of Tyne and Wear, and Birmingham and Coventry have switched from Warwickshire to the prosaic West Midlands.

True, new-old county names, like Avon and Cumbria, are pleasant and evocative. But most of us will have trouble remembering and pronouncing some of the new counties in Wales: Clwyd, Powys, Dyfed, Gwynedd.

Until July 1, 1975, the British Post Office will operate a dual sorting system for both the old and the new names. But at the end of that time, we are warned, letters may be delayed unless the new name is included.

So whatever our nostalgia for the past, we had better get down to learning the new British map.

Combatants in Middle East Hit Their Own Aircraft

Peterborough Examiner.

One of the most remarkable aspects of the last Middle East war was revealed by a U.S. military study this week.

Egypt, Israel and Syria all shot down large numbers of their own planes during the fighting last October. They were using a new element of air warfare—surface-to-air and air-to air missiles.

Malcolm Currie, director of defence research and engineering said the main problems were the failure of the new kind of missiles and interceptor aircraft. Despite the early confidence about the use of missiles, it seems to have backfired. The necessary discipline had been lacking.

Syria excelled at the game of kill-your-own-pilots. In one day alone, it shot down more than 20 of the Soviet-built MiG fighters supplied by Iraq.

Although they supplied no fi gures on other national successes, intelligence sources are assurance that Israel and Egypt also participated in the decimation of their own air forces.

Mr. Currie also made a rather obvious suggestion to the United States. The U.S., he said, will not be confident it would operate its own missiles much better than the Middle East combatants. Builders of tactical missiles must be confidence research is the problem as a first order of consideration, he said.

The U.S. report is pathetic in a way, but it does seem to capture the essential nature of the lingering war in the Middle East.

It was a dismal war, fought for dismal purposes with dismal goals and aims. Somehow it seems only fitting that the best efforts of all three combatants should be directed at themselves.

LETTERS

Convention Bureau Costs

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The observation by Her Worship Mayor Robin Jeffrey regarding the Chamber of Commerce and the so called "fee for service" is enlightening.

In their latest request, for money from the taxpayer the Chamber makes no reference to "fees for service". Their letter in respect to the Belleville and District Convention Bureau ends and the words "We have appealed to the County of Hastings for $500 towards this cost and are now appealing to the City of Belleville for the sum of $2,000.00 to enable us to continue this very important work". There is no question but that this is an appeal in which they are begging - no mention of a fee for service.

Their second letter in regard to the promotion of tourism is more to the point, but there is no bones in saying "we will require as a minimum payment from the City of Belleville towards the costs of tourist promotion for 1974, the sum of $10,000.00. We must see what this meets with your approval".

The gloves are off and fly and fix taxpayers are being told, not asked. There is no indication from the city that a contract requiring specifics to be met will be drawn up and no suggestion from the Chamber that they would like one.

So, members of the public, just how much of our money could one get for the promotion of tourism and how much of it pays salaries and other incidental? We are never likely to know because it is beyond the Chamberlain's capabilities to come up with an itemized statement of accounts. Appropriately "fees" — "for things that way", - which is all very, very convenient.

UCS Welcomes Director

Editor,
The Intelligencer

On 22nd May a reception will be held at the Belleville YMCA to welcome Mr. C. Mullen the new director of the UCS.

Invitations have gone out to selected individuals and organizations. The method in choosing those to attend has not been made clear. However, there does appear to be an element of discrimination.

The UCS, by virtue of its own by-laws allows any person who is interested in its ideas and who contributes either directly or indirectly, to become a member of that organization.

This being so, all the taxpayers of Belleville are in this category by reason of the annual taxpayers grant to the UCS for its operation.

I am at a loss to understand why this organization declines to extend an invitation to Mr. Clarence Young and yet issues one to Mr. William C. Hockley. Both are well known as critics of some aspects of the UCS operation. May I take pleasure in extending to Mr.

Woman Abducted, Held at Gunpoint

Mrs. Karen Sinclair was in her 49½ Bridge Street East apartment with a 12-year-old baby sitter, three children and a male companion, when a man entered carrying a revolver.

He tied up the baby sitter and the other man in the apartment leaving the children untouched, before taking away Mrs. Sinclair in a car.

It was around 3:30 p.m. when police received a call from the mother of the baby sitter.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Sinclair and her abductor drove around the area all Sunday morning and afternoon before the man decided to stop at Point Ame Lane about 6 p.m. Sunday.

When they stopped there, Mrs. Sinclair managed to escape, but the man pursued her brandishing a revolver.

After catching up to her, he put the revolver to her head but was noticed by a fisherman in the area. The fisherman, whose identity remains unknown, kicked the revolver out of the man's hand and drove Mrs. Sinclair to the police station. Mrs. Sinclair was unhurt during the ordeal.

A man was later found about 11 p.m. at 424 Highland Avenue residence lying on the front seat of a car. Const. David Thomas of the Belleville police department discovered him there. A loaded revolver was found in the glove apartment of the car.

David John Sinclair, 23, of Roslin, the woman's estranged husband, has been remanded to a bail hearing on Thursday morning. He is charged with four counts: abduction, pointing a firearm, break and enter with intent and breach of recognizance.

Purse Snatched

Belleville police are looking for a youth who knocked a Belleville woman down and stole her purse around 9.44 p.m. on Catharine Street yesterday.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said that an unidentified woman was walking west along Catharine Street last night when she heard someone running up the street behind her. A youth, who has been described as being approximately five feet eight inches tall, white, with shoulder length brown hair, wearing a jacket and work boots, knocked the woman to the ground and fled with her purse.

The purse is reported to have contained $20 in cash and an unsigned baby bonus cheque.

Police say that the male attacker was wearing a nylon stocking over his face, but that he pulled this off as he fled toward Octavia Street.

Anyone who may have seen the incident or who has some information that may help the police in their investigation is asked to call the police department.

Why $500 worth of stripes in front of your eyes beats $500 worth of spots.

The next time you turn on your colour TV, go up to the screen with the magnifying glass, and take a close look at what's really making up that colour picture you're looking at. Dots. Red, blue and green dots.

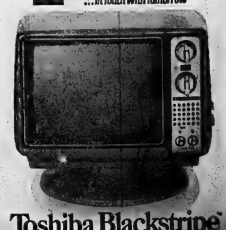
If the dots are kind of blurry, they're coming at you through a white matrix. And we can tell you right now that your set is at least 5 years old. Because the black matrix improvement has been around about that long. Colours against a black background will always stand out much better than colours against a white background. So maybe it's time for a new colour TV.

When you do decide to go shopping take the magnifying glass with you.

When the salesman turns a set on, go through the same procedure.

Examine the screen up close with the glass. The dots look much clearer now, because they're coming through a black matrix. Now stand back and look at the picture. You may be so impressed with the brilliance (as compared with what you've been seeing at home), that you'll start getting out your chequebook right then and there.

Don't do it.



Drop in to any Toshiba dealer.

And don't forget the magnifying glass. Go right up to the screen with the glass, as soon as the salesman turns on the 14" screen C-335. While he's talking about 100% solid state dependability, plug-in modules for easy servicing, Automatic Fine Tuning and Automatic Balance Control, you study what's happened inside the colour. Black background for definition, you've seen that already. But, the dots aren't dots any longer. They're stripes of colour. And it doesn't take a lot of thought to realize there's more colour area in a stripe than in a dot.

It's these colour stripes against the black background that give you the most brilliant colour picture in the industry.

Now stand back and look. That's called Toshiba Blackstripe™ colour television. It's $500 worth of colour if ever you saw it. And for only $479.95 (suggested retail).

Five Still Ethiopian Prisoners

NAIROBI (AP) — Five men — two Canadians and three Americans — completed Monday eight weeks in the wilderness as captives of anti-government Ethiopian forces.

They apparently are no nearer release than when rebel gunmen cut short their oil-exploration mission in northern Ethiopia.

"We are giving it 100-per-cent effort," said an American involved in delicate negotiations with the Eritrean Liberation Front (E.L.F.) guerrillas. "But it is a very frustrating business."

Reliable sources in Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital, and in Asmara, capital of Eritrea province, said they are puzzled by the delay in the captives' release. Authorities had at first expected the five to be set free within a few days after guerrillas spirited the men away, presumably to obtain publicity for the 10-year-old rebel fight for an autonomous Eritrea.

Sources said the five are "in good health, as far as we know," although the last reported sighting of the 15-man guerrilla band and the hostages was eight to 10 days ago.

The captives are Americans John Rogers, a geologist on loan by Texaco to the Tenneco Oil Co.; William Cayce, a Tenneco geologist; and Motia Pauela, a U.S. geochemist with the Ethiopian ministry of mines.

The Canadians are Cliff James of Walkerton, Ont., a Tenneco geologist, and Don Werdefort of Calgary, president of Canwest Aviation Ltd., a charter helicopter firm.

English To Stay In Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — The English language will not disappear from Quebec even if proposed legislation to make French the province's only official language is adopted, Environment Minister Victor Goldbloom said Monday.

The language legislation, expected to be presented in the Quebec national assembly today, does not mean "washing out English," Mr. Goldbloom said.

He criticized the attitude of some English-speaking Quebecers, however, because "many are asking for isolation, are asking never to speak French, and this is wrong."

Mr. Goldbloom said opinion on the forthcoming legislation "is not uniform inside the government but you have to recognize that a government functions as a unit and one cannot take the luxury of expressing himself individually."

Lalonde Urges Druggists To Help Educate Public

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde called on pharmacists Monday to play an educational role in their dealings with the public.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association, he said recent studies have shown "some alarming facts" about the tendency of patients to ignore doctors' orders about medicine and therapy.

"Non-compliance rates of between 25 and 50 per cent have been reported for psychiatric patients who have discontinued their medication.

"Half of the patients returning to hospitals have stopped taking their prescribed therapy.

"Studies on antacids and antibiotics indicate that only half of the prescribed drugs are actually taken.

"Even in the treatment of heart disease and diabetes, where a high rate of patient compliance would normally be expected, we find that 10 to 25 per cent of patients do not follow their drug regimes.

"When people reject prescribed medications in this way, they obviously create a serious risk to their health."

General Guy Simonds Is Buried at Toronto

Gen. Simonds, who commanded the 2nd Canadian Corps during its drive through north-western Europe at the close of the Second World War, died Wednesday at the age of 71.

Lt.-Gov. Pauline McGibbon and Gen. Jacques Dextraze, chief of the defence staff, led the mourners in the traditional Anglican funeral service at Grace Church-on-the-Hill.

A lowered gun carriage carried the coffin, draped with the flag and bearing the general's sword and decorations, through sun-lit streets along the eight-block route to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Gen. Dextraze, 20 other generals and scores of lower-ranking officers led a 400-man honor guard behind the coffin.

Quinte Cuisine

Widely-known news gatherer Rachael Spencer says this is just the right time of year for her "heavenly jam." This one doesn't need commercial pectin or expensive ingredients, Mrs. Spencer points out, but it does call for nice fresh rhubarb from the garden. Mrs. Spencer is a long-time Tweed resident, who enjoys both gardening and cooking as hobbies.

Heavenly Jam

five cups rhubarb
five cups white sugar
20-ounce can crushed pineapple
two pkgs. strawberry gelatin dessert

Cut rhubarb finely. Combine rhubarb, sugar and pineapple and bring to a rapid boil. Boil for 20 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in gelatin.

Pour into jars which have been washed and sterilized. Seal with a thin layer of melted paraffin, or store in refrigerator or freezer.

Sarah Thompson inspects the colorful tulips she keeps blooming all spring.

Tulips Bloom For Blind Gardener

Sarah Thompson has loved flowers for as long as she can remember.

"My father had a greenhouse in Picton," she recalls.

"I think growing things must be in my blood."

Mrs. Thompson is very good at "growing things" and has won four trillium awards for her gardening, from the Belleville Garden Club, of which she is an active member.

What makes Mrs. Thompson a unique gardener — apart from the glory of her tulip beds this spring — is that she is partially blind, with very limited sight.

"I weed my flower beds by touch," she says. "I know by feeling the leaves of plants whether they're flowers or weeds. Being blind really doesn't present any problem in the garden at all."

Proof of her success is his year's showing of scarlet and golden tulips bordering the hedge at the front of her home. The display of flowers is very attractive, perhaps too attractive, according to Mrs. Thompson.

"Children come by and pick the flowers during the day, and sometimes adults steal them at night."

In spite of annoyances like this, Mrs. Thompson has tulips blooming for several weeks in the spring. She plants different varieties which have slightly overlapping seasons, so that the tulips make a continu ous row of color.

"During the cold spell I covered them with a thick layer of peat moss during the night, which I'd remove in the morning, and that protected them nicely.

"I really enjoy taking care of my garden," Mrs. Thompson says.

Ann Landers

Pregnant Smoker Harms Her Baby

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I were married five years ago. We practised birth control for the first three years because we weren't ready for a family. Two years ago we decided to try. Last week we learned the great news. Barbara is pregnant.

This morning we got into a terrible hassle. It was about her smoking. I know I read somewhere that smoking is bad for the baby. Barbara says her doctor never mentioned it. Please tell me what you know about this. — Worried Husband

Dear Worried: Yes, I have printed information on this subject. Please, Ann, give me the facts so Barbara will come to her senses.—Looking Ahead

Dear Looking: Actually, it's not the pregnant woman who is harmed by smoking—it's the unborn child. Dr. Nevil Butler, professor of child health at the University of Bristol in England, did a 16-year study. It was the most massive experiment of its kind, involving 17,400 births. Even the women who smoked only two or three cigarettes a day gave birth to a higher percentage of defective babies. The most startling figures were a 25-percent increase in newborn deaths and the doubled risk of congenital heart disease.

If those facts aren't enough to make a pregnant woman throw away those filthy weeds she'll get rocks in her head.

Dear Ann Landers: I agree with almost every word you write. Now, will you give me a hand, please? It's important. Every hour, 3,500 cats and dogs are born in the U.S. Many humane societies kill about 3,500 animals a month. There is little time or money left for improving the situation. Thousands of animals are abandoned to suffer horribly before being scooped up by the highway department.

The owners responsible for these atrocities give as their main reason for producing unwanted litters, "I wanted to show my kids the facts of life." Couldn't they just buy a book? They might also show them the facts of death at any animal shelter.

Why are no campaigns being waged against the ever increasing pet explosion? How about promoting the slogan, For Pet's Sake, Don't Litter.—Concerned

Dear Concerned: I'm for it. Here's your letter and I hope readers who love animals will take it from there.

Dear Ann Landers: I resent it when I make a phone call and am asked, "May I tell her who is calling?" I own an understand such procedure in a business office, but in a home?

Whose business is it except the party to whom I wish to speak? I get the impression that the person who asks is screening the call. When I'm asked to identify myself I am forced to be rude.

When someone says, "Would you like to leave your name and number?" I can either do or say, "No, thank you." But I appreciate the choice.—Monterey, Cal.

Dear M.: Apparently you think everyone who has a phone also has the God-given right to intrude on the privacy of others whenever he pleases. Sorry, I don't agree.

The polite way is to identify yourself without being asked. You then give the other party an alternative. They can either accept the call, return it later, or not return it at all if they don't care to.

Great-Great-Grandma of Women's Lib

TORONTO (CP) — Ethel Cruise may be considered the great-great-grandmother of women's liberation.

However, she was not active in the movement. She was much too busy raising her family and running her own trucking firm.

She did it during the 1920s and 1930s, days when most women hovered about a stove and not a fleet of trucks which carried coal and paved roads.

She now is 89, wears pink dresses and pearls and looks very much the genteel lady. But there is no doubt she is very much in command as a respected matriarch.

A recent birthday party was attended by a selection of her four living children, five grandchildren, six great-grandchildren, one great-great-grandchild and admiring in-laws.

If Mrs. Cruise thinks she did anything special in her day, she protests not to dwell on it. It was something she had to do. She did it and that was that.

Mrs. Cruise was born Ethel Hindman in Owen Sound. Her work career began at age 14 when she left school to work in a furniture factory. At 17 she was married to William Cruise, a laborer who could neither read nor write.

When the family moved to Toronto she bought her husband's uncle's cartage firm, starting off first with teams of draft horses for delivery wagons, converting later to trucks when progress demanded it.

Not only did she manage the firm, R. Cruise, Cartage Contractor, and the drivers, she also fed the men lunch each day and put in hours that went from 8 a.m. to midnight most days.

One thing Mrs. Cruise likes to emphasize is the fact that during all those years as a working mother, she was lucky she was able to lend her family from an office at home or else take them with her.

Pro-feminae Aims To Correct Discrimination

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — A special program to break down barriers to equal employment opportunities for women has been initiated by the Atlantic region of the federal manpower department.

Operating under the department's Outreach program, the project hopes to provide women an opportunity to qualify for and obtain all types of employment.

It is expected to take two years to complete the program.

The program, called Pro-feminae, is being run by a group of seven women. They are contacting the first phase, a province-to-province survey of existing and possible employment opportunities.

Phase two will consist of trying to match the list of jobs with qualified female candidates. Phase three will be a report on the success of the program followed by a drive to get the same information on women entering or re-entering the labor force.

The program was organized by Kay Warren, chief of special projects with the Dartmouth manpower office, and Ann Paterson, the department's regional women's employment coordinator.

Mr. Warren said the project is an attempt to make women more aware of what resources are available for them in the region.

"We hope to correct the discrimination that exists throughout the work world against women and at the same time let society in general see what a female can do."

Many of the problems arise in the attitude of employers who see women in a fixed perspective, he said. Employers tend to treat women first as females and last as potential employees.

"We are not trying to establish or dictate to the business world that all jobs should or could be held by women. We are simply trying to create in the minds of employers an awareness that qualified women should have an equal chance to compete for jobs."

Among the program's early successes are six female crew members of a federal research ship, a young woman working in an auto body repair shop and another who is working as a carpenter.

Successful Living

You Are What You Eat

By DORIS CLARK

Time was when the counsellors who worked with husbands and wives would practically move heaven and earth to keep a family together. The general idea was that at all costs the marriage must be made to survive.

There was some reasonable thinking behind this, because we know that children are greatly in need of two parents, working together and creating a happy atmosphere. The trouble was, the atmosphere created was all too often the opposite to home-like.

In the past thirty years, we have recognized a good many things: one of them being that two people who join each other in the bonds of matrimony may not know their own minds well enough. Often, because they are physically attracted, they decide that there is nothing in life without each other.

A few years later, those two youthful idealists discover that they have given up a little more, their ideas have changed, and they no longer find fulfilment with the person to whom they have committed themselves.

So who gets the short end of the stick? The children, who sense all too well a hostile atmosphere in the house that they call home. And where a good sporting effort has been made by both parties to "make a go of it", without success, there are now times that they separate.

There are times when the social worker himself sees that offspring of such a union can have more peace, more security to help them grow in, if their parents live apart.

"In the past, divorce has been looked on as a disaster. It is being made respectable."

This is a statement of a social worker who now sees divorced people as normal people who need support, rather than considering divorce as the ruin of two lives.

Separation and divorce may even be the one way to help these people to see themselves better; and to help them to become responsible and secure.

Dear Doris: I felt in love with a man 59. I am 56. We want to get married but I have some uncertainties.

For instance, he owns a small cottage; my house and furniture are far superior. He welcomes me to move in with him but would be pleased to move in with me, selling his cottage and using the money to supplement other income and have some left over for travel.

I know men are moving in with women these days but it gives me a queer feeling. The financial part doesn't match up at all, and sometimes I wonder if my having more is a drawing card.

My daughter is not impressed. She says, "I wish he had more for me", and this really bothers me too. She says, "Marry him if that's what you want!" But she never said if I'm looking at the blank walls. I know he cares for me.

Your Version, Please.

Dear Version: If you really need love, and not just somebody to occupy one of those blank walls, the question of who finances what should have no bearing on the matter.

If what your daughter thinks about material things is influencing you unduly, get off by yourself for a while and decide what your own values are.

I cannot make this decision for you.

Trudeau Campaigns In Two Provinces

MONTAGUE, P.E.I. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau carried his condemnation of the Conservatives and New Democrats to two Atlantic provinces Monday, tearing into the opposition for "selling the pup" on a productive session of Parliament.

It wasn't a new note in the fledgling campaign for the July 8 federal election, but Mr. Trudeau's attacks on the opposition took on a more aggressive tone, especially in this Prince Edward Island farming community near Charlottetown.

"The two opposition parties . . . pulled the plug because they were thinking of their parties, not the country," he told about 1,000 Liberals who attended Veterans Affairs Minister Dan MacDonald's nominating convention in the riding of Cardigan.

His well-received speech at a local high school was the final event in a 14-hour day that began and ended in Ottawa. The 2,400-mile trip, aboard an Air Canada jet chartered for the campaign, also took in St. John's, Nfld., where Mr. Trudeau addressed about 150 party workers and toured a fish-processing and packing plant saved from extinction by grants from the federal government.

He was accompanied on the trip by his wife Margaret, who was enthusiastically applauded everywhere she went, and by their youngest son, five-month-old Sacha. Their other son, 3½-year-old Justin, was left at home with his babysitter.

The crowd that met the Trudeaus at St. John's was about 150 persons, including Regional Expansion Minister Don Jamieson and his wife and a group of young people with signs protesting Ottawa's treatment of Newfoundland since it joined Confederation in 1949.

"Twenty-five years is long enough," read one.

The reception at the hotel where Mr. Trudeau met the party workers was predictably warm and Margaret's presence was even noted officially by the hotel. The sign outside read:

"Welcome Mrs. Pierre Trudeau and husband."

Raring to Go

Power-to-people Theme of Lewis

WINNIPEG (CP) — New Democrat Leader David Lewis pushes his power-to-the-people election campaign into Saskatchewan today following leisurely Victoria Day stops in his rain-soaked provincial capital.

The 64-year-old NDP leader touched a number of bases Monday, suggesting the country should reconsider nuclear aid policies to India in the wake of that country's recent underground nuclear explosion, arguing against national controls on wages and agreeing that the decentralization of industries such as Air Canada benefitted both regions and the country.

But the day that began with a low-keyed news conference and ended with a house party in the posh ex-bedroom residence of provincial NDP president Murdoch MacKay stood in sharp contrast to a battle-call Sunday appearance in Toronto officially opening the party's campaign for the July 8 election.

There, he set the tenor of his 50-day fight by posing the question: "Who runs Canada?" The answer, he said, was corporations under Liberal or Conservative governments.

The time had come to replace that system with a new one based on a government of the people—an NDP government.

At his news conference here, he elaborated on a number of familiar themes set out by the party during the minority Parliament and subsequent pre-election tours.

Among them was a call for a national prices review board, which would have power to hold or roll back unwarranted price increases.

But, he added, similar controls are unnecessary for wage increases to either urban workers or farmers. Wage levels were not pushed up, "the reason for demanding excess wages disappears."

Despite a more than 80 per-cent increase in net farm incomes last year, Mr. Lewis said price increases should go unchecked. Farmers had to cash up for low prices in the fall, and good years were easily countered by poor ones.

Waldheim Declares Violence Doesn't Hamper Peace Moves

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Peacekeeping efforts in the Middle East have not been interfered from last week's outbreak of violence, Kurt Waldheim, secretary-general of the United Nations, said Sunday.

Mr. Waldheim, on a one-day visit to receive an honorary doctor of laws degree from Wilfrid Laurier University, told a news conference:

"I am confident these acts of violence, whether they come from one side or the other, will not influence negatively the peace efforts that are now under way.

"I would consider it regrettable if that kind of violence could harm peace efforts," the former diplomat said in an apparent reference to a recent guerrilla attack on an Israeli school and ensuing Israeli air strikes on Palestinian refugee camps in Lebanon.

Mr. Waldheim said it is more difficult to be confident of a lasting political settlement, but he congratulated U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger on having made "positive steps" in his search for a settlement in the area.

Mr. Waldheim, who served as Austrian ambassador to Canada in the 1960s, flew to Toronto with his wife and youngest daughter, Christa, and then travelled by car for his first visit to Kitchener and Waterloo.

He attended a dinner with university and community representatives at a Waterloo hotel before the afternoon graduation ceremonies.

About 200 graduates shared the platform with the secretary-general to receive degrees from Senator Paul Martin, chancellor of the university and a personal friend of Mr. Waldheim.

Mr. Waldheim said he was sorry to learn of the request to withdraw Irish troops from the UN Middle East peacekeeping force. They are to return home to strengthen border patrols there.

"But I fully understand of course the difficulties and the government has need for the troops in their own country," he said.

Mr. Waldheim also told the news conference the recent nuclear test by India, like all other atomic testing in any country, is contrary to UN efforts to establish a nuclear arms ban.

Jaworski Says Nixon Tries To Make Farce of His Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski says President Nixon is trying to "make a farce" of the charter guaranteeing the prosecutor's independence and his right to subpoena Watergate evidence from White House files.

Jaworski's challenge to the president's attempt to control the prosecutor's independence was disclosed Monday shortly after U.S. District Judge John Sirica ordered Nixon to obey a subpoena from the special prosecutor's office demanding tapes of 64 conversations sought as evidence in the Watergate cover-up trial.

After the order, Vice-President Gerald Ford said the White House should "turn over any tapes "relevant to a criminal proceeding," but Nixon counsel James St. Clair said the White House would appeal Sirica's decision.

Meanwhile, U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell began hearing requests from defendants in the White House plumbers case for access to files that might support their contention they were working on a legitimate national security matter.

And the House of Representatives judiciary committee scheduled another day of hearing evidence in closed session. Members were expected to listen to the tape of a March 13, 1973, presidential conversation with John Dean and H. R. Haldeman.

Jaworski disclosed details of his latest clash with the White House in a strongly worded letter to Senator James Eastland (Dem., Miss.), chairman of the Senate judiciary committee.

Eastland scheduled an executive session of the committee for today and asked St. Clair and Jaworski to stand by if called to testify.

Jaworski told Eastland that in opposing the cover-up trial subpoena, St. Clair had said "it is the president's contention that he has ultimate authority to determine when to prosecute, whom to prosecute, and will not allow evidence to prosecute."

"The crucial point is that the president, through his counsel, is challenging my right to bring an action against him to obtain evidence, or differently stated, he contends that I cannot take the president to court," the prosecutor said.

That position, said Jaworski, would make "a farce" of his charter and would render its guarantee of the right to take the president to court "an idle and empty one."

In his order directing the president to give him the subpoenaed materials to determine whether it is relevant to the cover-up trial, Sirica rejected what he called the president's attempt to abridge the special prosecutor's independence."

Sirica said the need for evidence for the trial was "if anything, more compelling . . . since the matter has developed into a criminal trial" than in the case last Aug. 29, when he ordered Nixon to turn over tapes for evidence for the Watergate grand jury.

In the earlier case, the U.S. Court of Appeals upheld Sirica's order and Nixon eventually turned over the tapes.

Seven former administration and campaign aides are charged with conspiring to try to block the investigation of the Watergate break-in. They are Haldeman, John Ehrlichman, Charles Colson, John Mitchell, Robert Mardian, Gordon Strachan and Kenneth Parkinson.

Another former administration insider, Jeb Stuart Magruder, who has admitted his own involvement and then accused others in the Watergate break-in and cover-up, faces sentencing today.

Magruder, 39, pleaded guilty Aug. 16 to one count of conspiring to eavesdrop, obstruct justice and defraud the United States. He could be sentenced to a maximum of five years in prison and fined $10,000 by Sirica.

Judge Gesell released Monday a letter from the president in which Nixon denied any prior knowledge of the September, 1971, break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis Fielding. The alleged purpose of the incision was to obtain Ellsberg's psychiatric case file.

Communists Will Run Total of 55 Candidates

TORONTO (CP) — The Communist Party of Canada began campaigning Saturday for a minority government as it presented 44 candidates for the July 8 federal election at the party's 22nd national congress.

William Kashtan, party chairman, told about 150 delegates from across Canada that the party intends to field about 55 candidates in an attempt to produce another minority government.

The 65-year-old Montreal native, who has worked full time for the Communist cause since he was 18, outlined election strategy and party policy in a 15,000-word, two-hour speech at the opening session of the congress.

No Follow-up Arranged On Children Taking LSD

TORONTO (CP) — A record of the experiences of seven Lon- don, Ont., children who swal- lowed the hallucinogenic chem- ical LSD last Tuesday might be invaluable "to guide the rest of us", says a Toronto psy- chiatrist.

Dr. Lionel Sohrab, who spe- cializes in the study of drug use, said in an interview Satur- day the experiences of the chil- dren in the next few weeks pro- vide a "perfect opportunity for study" and possibly even for therapy.

The seven children found the pills in a plastic bag. After they swallowed them, the youngsters were taken to hospital. All have been discharged.

A spokesman for the child counselling department of Vic- toria Hospital said "there's been no follow-up on them at all."

The parents said the children "seem fine" and said they have not arranged for any further consultations.

Union Sued

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — Dow Chemical Co. filed an $872,000 suit Monday against United Steelworkers Local 13075 for damages alleged to have been caused by strikers during their nine-week walkout.

The bulk of the suit—a claim of $550,000—centres on alleged damage to Dow property in the Midland area, including brine wells. The suit also asked for money to cover damage to autos and trucks, and losses due to delays in shipments.

Suspect Arson

MONTREAL (CP) — Police in suburban Longueuil suspect arson in a fire which destroyed half of an elementary school early Monday. Police said that when firemen arrived at the Ste. Louise de Marillac school, they found all doors open, the 24-room school looted and burning.

GM Prices Up

OSHAWA (CP) — An increase in the suggested list price of 1974 passenger cars, trucks and options averaging 332 or 1.9 per cent has been announced by General Motors of Canada Ltd.

"This price increase only partially recovers some of the unprecedented cost increases experienced in recent months and does not cover the substantial increases anticipated for the 1975 models," said a company spokesman.

Hangs Self

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A 23-year-old Sudbury man was found hanging in his cell at police headquarters Sunday morning during a routine check of the cells.

Universities Fearful Of Provincial Control

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Association of University Teachers (CAUT) has agreed to accept most clauses in a brief which it says will be used as a base for lobbying federal and provincial governments in the reorganization of federal financing for universities and colleges.

The association said at its convention Saturday it was on guarding now to ensure that they will have a voice in the renewal of federal-provincial discussions in 1976.

A major part of the brief urges that the federal contribution to the operating expenses of universities be increased so that its amount and distribution will not depend on provincial decisions.

The association fears that provincial control of universities might have negative consequences and the brief indicates that such a move could lead to an increase in the existing inequalities in education in different parts of Canada, and a serious restriction on the universities' freedom in program planning and research.

At present, the federal contribution to the operating expenses of universities is about 50 per cent, the provinces' about 30 per cent, and student fees about 20 per cent.

Richard Spencer, professor of civil engineering at the University of British Columbia, was elected president of the associ-

Small Sunday Schools 'Not Necessarily' Bad

TORONTO (CP) — Rt. Rev. N. Bruce McLeod, moderator of the United Church of Canada, says the substantial decrease in Sunday school attendance in Canada during the last 10 years is "not necessarily" a bad thing.

He said in a weekend interview the decline merely proves that "the way we did it in the past is not relevant now."

The moderator said that sending children off to attend Sunday school in a church basement while their parents worship elsewhere might have done more harm than good.

"Would Jesus have kicked the children out?" he asked.

He said the church is encouraging "children more and more to come with their parents and stay through church with them."

He believed it is the job of the church to help parents train their children in the home and take on the responsibility for passing on their faith and values to their children.

In 1962, there were 648,354 children on United Church Sunday school rolls in Canada. In 1972, the figure had dropped to 293,900. Attendance also declined in Anglican and Presbyterian Sunday schools during the 10-year period.

Rt. Rev. L. S. Garnsworthy, Anglican bishop of Toronto, has also said that Christian parents must start teaching their children themselves or "Christianity will not be transmitted to another generation."

"Sunday schools, as we have known them, are withering away . . ."

But the Peoples Church in Toronto has the largest Sunday school in Canada, with more than 2,000 enrolled and average attendance of more than 1,500. Buses pick up children from outlying communities and more than 100 teachers are used.

Canadian Arabs Approve Of Struggle

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The present struggle and methods of the Palestinian liberation movement must be continued, delegates attending the seventh annual convention of the Canadian Arab Federation were told Sunday.

"There is no option," said Ibrahim Abu-Lubhud, a political science professor at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill. "The Palestinians have to continue the struggle."

He told more than 400 delegates that U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger is using the "carrot and stick" method in his Middle East negotiations.

Ted Waite Handcuffs Auger's

A new name for the league and a brand new season didn't produce any change in the outcome of the opening doubleheader of the Quinte Fastball League Monday night.

The Ellis Junior lost and Rollins Construction won in respective contests at Zwicks Park.

Ward and Robert Printing was the victor in the first game, defeating the Juniors 1-0. Ron Behan belabled the one-hit pitching of Ted Waite, downed by Dan Ward's Wear 5-0. Waite was given though Waite came up with a no-hit, shutout his efforts were only a little above those of John Sprackett and Scott Reid.

Reid, on the mound for the Howard and Robert win, gave up a mere two hits, walked only two batters and struck out 11.

Sprackett was almost as stingy on the Junior rubber turning one batter and allowing just four hits. Unfortunately he gave up two consecutive hits in the bottom of the seventh inning and Howard and Robert scored.

John famed.a pair.

The two pitchers faced 24 batters each over the distance.

Dave Skelton was tops at the plate for the Printers as he collected a pair of singles. His seventh inning hit was followed by a triple from Terry Poce. Poce's blast drove in Skelton for the win.

The only other Howard and Robert batter to reach base safely was Wayne Woods.

Bob Campbell and Sprackett were the two Juniors to get on base. They both had singles.

Waite's pitching performance told the story in the second half of the doubleheader. Ted gave up five free bases on balls, and that was almost as far as any Auger runners got. They were two who made it to second base-the other died at first. In the strikeout department Ted fanned 16 men.

Waite's performance wasn't all that was watched though. big stick for Rollins as he Glenn Carleton carried a went three for four at the plate with a single, a double and a triple.

Together Rollin's collected 11 hits, five of those in the fifth inning producing a three run surge. Both Carleton and Paul Goodfellow banged out triples in the fifth with Ralph and Carl Boomhower and Wayne McTaggart adding singles.

Rollins other two runs came in the second inning when Ralph Boomhower rapped out a double and Doug Adams and Dale Duval collected singles.

Bob Richardson took the loss for Auger's.

Tonight at the Alemite Devolin Motors take on Rollins at 7 p.m. and "the Junior meet Bardon Supplies in the second game.

BYBF and Cooper Hit Win Column

Cooper Purinastetz, a late replacement for Medcor Esso Twins, joined Belleville Vardmen Benefit Fund in the win column as the Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League opened Monday.

Playing at the Ontario School for the Deaf diamond, the Cooper team outscored Belleville Broadloom,.17-3.

The Antenna team's pitching was shared by Nora Fleiger, Brenda Whyte and Lin Reid.

Stock Cars Back in Action

By CECIL S. PAUL

The 1974 Stock Car racing season got rolling Saturday night at the big one-third mile dirt track at Brighton.

Forty-one cars were in the pits with several more machines still in the growing stage and they may be ready for next meet.

The opening event on the program was the judging of the best appearing cars with top prize of $25.

Barry Jones of Picton took top honors for his car No. 11 You will remember that Barry is the boy who got the name of "the lucky wheeled wonder" last year by finishing a race after his car lost a wheel.

Brighton Speedway is running two distinct classes of racing this season. The stock class is for men who want to get into racing but do not want to build a big expensive machine. The super is straight stock but the car itself must be built to the same rigid specifications as the Modified class. Seven cars were registered in this class with several more promised for next week. Bob Rutian and Bob Matthews took the wins in the two events held in this class.

Several familiar names finished in the winning circle as the evening rolled along.

The big man in the sixes was Sonny Kimmerly and his car 31 as he finished fourth in his qualifier but came in with a luck break in the feature to earn himself 60 points. He is in top spot in the sixes.

Ron Herrington of Brighton was running well in front in third one and it looked like Sonny would have to settle for second but Ron ran into trouble and dropped out, leaving it all to car 31.

Doug Davies of Brighton was at the wheel of his familiar No. 5 which is sponsored by Fredericton TV this season and he chalked up a good night's work and he never picked up a checkered flag.

Doug earned a fourth in his qualifier, ran a close second in the six feature and picked up a third place finish in the super to give him 50 points for the night.

Like the five exceptions, the drivers managed to stay on the track throughout the night. Earl Keller, a rookie driver was the first man to try a short cut on the bottom of the track but his car was not damaged as he only drove it off the track and managed to stay on four wheels. Barry Jones of Picton was the only other driver to miss that misstep entirely and he too suffered no damage to his car.

"Ace" Campbell, the man behind the flags had a very easy night as the drivers were concentrating on racing and it made for a quiet night in the black flag department with only one driver getting a disqualification.

Howard Moore of Campbellcroft is running true to form and defending his eight cylinder championship in fine style. Howard managed a fourth place finish in his qualifier but came back to take the eight feature and tally 60 points for the night.

He may have done better in the super if he had got in the line-up at the start. Howard was well behind the field when the starter dropped the flag but he still came in fourth when it was all over.

Danny Reid of Campbellford earned a third place finish in his qualifier and ran a close second in the eight feature. The super feature was all his as he took the lead early in the 15 lap event and never looked back as he came in for the big one.

Danny is only five points in back of Moore after the first race meet with a total of 55 for the night.

Action will get rolling on Saturday night at 7.30 p.m. and more drivers are expected to be ready to compete.

Weekend EOBA Results

Eastern Ontario Baseball Association action got into full swing on the weekend with games in Belleville, Trenton and Trenton.

Belleville was the busiest community with tyke, bantam and midget games played.

The Elliot Motors Tykes were the lone city squad to come up with a win, downing Oshawa 5-3 at Park-dale. At Centennial Park, visiting teams posted wins over the Yardmen Midgets and Branch 99 Bantams.

Whitby Canadian Tire turned back Yardmen 9-4 while Trenton State Farm came on strong in the late innings to defeat the Quinte Realtor Midgets got by Orono 9-8 and Cobourg Peewees tripped Cobourg Peewees 6-1.

In Trenton, Sunday, visiting Oshawa Peewees counted all its runs in the first inning while posting a 7-4 decision over the host team. Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 110.

Devolin's Balance Should Pay Off

By ALAN TEWORTH
Sports Staff
LAST OF A SIX PART SERIES

With a solid defence, top notch pitching, and adequate hitting, Devolin Motors should like a good bet to make the Senior Fastball League play-offs at the end of their 25 game schedule this season.

The team, which finished second in the six team loop, formerly known as the Commercial Softball League, last season, has basically the same personnel as last year and have added a second string to give their front-line some much needed rest. He pitched in 21 of the team's 25 regular season games, as well as all the squad's playoff contests.

Holoway will provide the backbone of the team, though, with lefty Ron Hill helping out with the pitching chores. The Motormen are counting on the young chucker will come up with some good games. He has two years of junior ball under his belt.

At the other end of the pitcher's mound has a pair of receivers ready for duty. Returnee Lyle Thompson is a steady veteran while newcomer Ray Lumsden will get some of the chores. He has seen limited action with the Quinte calibre teams.

The teams' infield has four able men, although their positions are not solid yet. All four can play anywhere in the infield.

Rick Rosebush heads the list, and will probably be back at his shortstop position. With the best throwing arm of the four, he seems certain to nail down the job, and will help the team at the plate as well, hitting for the average, and contributing many extra-base hits.

Dale Maher will be valuable in the Devolin lineup with his aggressiveness at the plate, and on the baseballs. With a good arm, he fits in well at third base, and can fill in at first base.

Bruce Sickle, one of the most knowledgable infielders in the league, gives a good glove hand to the lineup. Although his regular spot is second base, he saw some action at first as well last season.

The fourth of the crew, although certainly not the least, is Terry Meagher, who played junior ball last season. Most likely to be at second or third base, the speedy Meagher should help at the plate as well.

In the outfield, coaches Phil Lott and Glen Lynn have two players back from last season, as well as two newcomers.

Tom MacDonald and Jim Harwood are back from last year, and give the Motormen a good start on filling the outfield spots. Both possess good range and good arms. MacDonald will probably see duty in the left side of the outfield, while Harwood will patrol the centre.

Darrel Kramp and Randy Lambert are the newcomers. Kramp, from Madoc, will get the call for the right side, and should supply some power at the plate. He will be available for pitching duties later in the season.

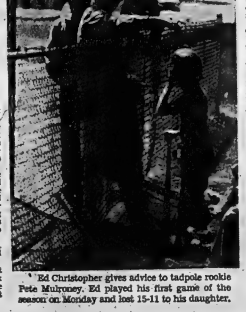
Lambert will fill in where needed, and should be a help at the plate as well.

Devolin's their season tonight, with a contest against defending champion Rollins Construction, in the first half of the QFL twin bill, starting at 7 p.m. In the second contest, the Ellis Juniors take on Bardon Supplies, with game time for that one about 8:45.

Hockey Loses Lorne Cook

Lorne Cook is dead. The former president of the Ontario Hockey Association suffered a heart attack and died yesterday at the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association meetings, being held in Winnipeg. He was in his 73rd year.

He held the position of president of the OHA in 1952 and 1953, and was a life member of the Association.



He received a Golden Sick Award, a rare presentation of the OHA in 1963, for his outstanding contribution to the game of hockey.

Belleville hockey enthusiast Jim "Snipe" Matthews commented that "the hockey world has lost a great man in Cook. "He was respected and well liked by everyone in the game."

He retired from his work as the Kingston Penitentiary as Industrial Superintendent in 1968, but was called back for a special assignment in 1970, compiling a listing of inmate job descriptions for all institutions in Canada.

Lee Elder Will Play In the Canadian Open

TORONTO — It has often seemed that when Lee Elder finished second or third in a golf tournament the emphasis was on the fact that he had lost, rather than that someone else had won.

There is a reason for that, of course — Lee Elder, by winning at the Tucson event, would automatically become the first black golfer to go to the Masters.

Well, finally, it happened. Elder won at Tucson last month, was notified he'd be invited to Augusta National next year — and could settle down again to do what he does best, play golf.

Lee is in Toronto for the Labatt Canadian Open, to be conducted by the Royal Canadian Golf Association at Mississaugua Golf Club July 25-28 for a $40,000 first prize and the Peter Jackson Trophy.

When Lee achieved what everyone knew he eventually would that Sunday in Monsanto, it was one of those great moments in sport when the victor weeps unashamedly and the ovation is wild and highly emotional.

There was no luck involved. Elder, who has been able to ride to Englland's steep Peter Osterhaus. He had to sink a 15-foot putt to win and birdie again before it was over for Elder to claim victory.

Elder, who joins defending champion Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf, and Lee Trevino in early entrants in the 1974 Canadian Open, has been a force on the PGA Tour since 1968 and has won over $350,000 in that time.

He's been a professional golfer since 1956, however, going back to the days of the old United Golf Association when where he won 21 out of 23 events in one stretch.

BMBA Coaching A Family Affair

Baseball season has officially opened in Belleville.

Monday afternoon Belleville Minor Baseball Association (BMBA) held its opening day ceremonies at Parkdale Diamond.

The results of the recent Chocolate Chip Derby held by BMBA were announced and the first baseball game of the season game of the season was played.

Five boys were awarded jackets as top salesmen during the drive. Brian Christopher and Jim Croachman Jr. were the boys in the Novice division selling $420 worth of the chocolate each. In tyke, Jim Gibbs was first with $210; Tom in peewee with $200 and Willieaware with $216 while Bruce Stewart finished first in bantam with $240.

All participating boys were awarded merit badges and because of the success of the drive the association was able to outfit its four all star teams in identical uniforms and the coaches were awarded an electric pitch back machine by World's Finest Chocolates.

While the chocolate drive started minor baseball off on the right foot for the season, it turned out that before the afternoon was over, Women's Liberation had taken a step forward.

The tadpole game, between Belleville Coulders and Legion House Dart League, proved to be the most unconventional start baseball has ever had in the city.

Legion won the contest 15-11, but the coaching strategy for the game came from the same family. There was a Christopher manning the helm of both teams.

Perhaps manning the helm is not the correct word. Ed Christopher, a long time coach in BMBA was the boss, but the winning team was guided by his daughter, Debbie.

"I'm glad it was close," commented Debbie after the win, "it started the whole season off right."

Ed Christopher is the first female coach in the history of the sport in Belleville. On hand to help Debbie coach at her younger sister, Cathy.

"The team was a bit apprehensive at first," said Debbie, "but after they found out I knew a little about the game they decided I was acceptable as a coach."

From excessive positions right down to playing, the Christopher family has done it all in BMBA.

The only thing they haven't done is have one of their girls register to play the sport. But, with their foot in the door, who's to say the girls won't break another long standing tradition again.

20-year-old Debbie Christopher and her younger sister Cathy have become the first female coaching duo in the history of Belleville Minor Baseball. The two coached their tadpole team to victory Monday afternoon defeating their father's team 15-11.

Wins Draw

Jim (Snipe) Matthews, general manager of the Belleville Bobcats Junior B hockey club announced the signing of the team's Stanley Cup Draw, Monday morning.

The winner is Judy Scanlan, 75 Catherine St., Belleville.

"It was a successful project," said Matthews. "We raised $600 for Al Carrison and the winner of the draw will get $300."

Garrison, a member of the Bobcats, suffered an eye injury early in the hockey season.

Sheridan's 2-hitter Gives Lenders Win

Behind the two hit pitching of Mark Sheridan, the Quinte Hotel Lenders took a 5-0 win from Stewart-Warner in one of two games Monday night in Industrial Softball League play. In the other game, Public Utilities took a 12-9 decision over the Independents.

The chunky right hander fired third strikes past 12 batters enroute to the Lenders' win, giving up only one base on balls.

Jim Henn took the loss on the Warner mound, giving up four hits, fanning one and walking the same total.

Henry VanDellen, Terry Murphy, Gary Robinson, and Bob Sroh each stroked single for the Lenders.

Pete Rollins banged a triple for the losers, with Hesa collecting the other hit, a single.

Public Utilities banged out 10 hits, including seven for extra bases as they edged Independents. Dave Middleton led the parade with a triple, while Glenn Smith and Albert Coe each collected a double and single.

Checking in with doubles were John Bannville, Manly Sly, and Randy Ian Norman. Bob Hoefle had a single to round out the winners hitting.

Ron Fuller had a double and single to lead the Independents with Ken Bertrand hitting for two singles.

Van Inman took the win on the PUC mound, going six and a third innings. He gave up five hits, struck out three and walked six before giving way to Bolzli in the bottom of the seventh. Bolzli came in to fan the last two batters to retire the side.

Earl Gillette started for the Independents, going five and two thirds innings. He gave up six hits, fanning six and walked three. Paul Trumpour came over in the sixth, taking the loss when the Utilities scored four runs in the top of the seventh.

He gave up four hits. Inman four walks and striking out one.

The other BSL game last night, CNR facing Black Diamond, was postponed due to poor field conditions at Prince Charles School.

Parent, MacLeish and Kate Smith Add Up to Stanley Cup

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — With some inspirational help from Kate Smith, Rick MacLeish's power-play goal and Bernie Parent's shutout goaltending, Philadelphia Flyers upset the experts and defeated Boston Bruins Sunday 1-0 to win the Stanley Cup.

It gave the Broad Street Bullies the honor of the seven National Hockey League final 4-2 and climaxed a miracle finish for the Flyers.

"If anybody had anything to prove to himself and the hockey world, he (Parent) did," said Terry Crisp.

The Philadelphia goalie jumped to the rival World Hockey Association's Philadelphia Blazers from Toronto Maple Leafs two years ago, became disgruntled near season's end, then jumped back to the established league.

His Toronto rights were subsequently traded to the Flyers so he could continue to play in Philadelphia.

The victory for the Flyers terminated a celebration Philadelphia hasn't seen since 1950 when the Phillies' Whiz Kids, an unlikely bunch of kids who the previous year had played for Toronto in the International League, won the National League baseball title.

Thousands of Spectrum fans invaded the ice surface to help Parent and captain Bobby Clarke parade the Stanley Cup around.

Outside the arena, police, some on horseback, held back crowds who tried to crash the party inside.

The Bruins, heavily favored to clean up the series early for their third Stanley Cup in five years, reluctantly admitted the Flyers deserved to win.

Kate Smith, the songstress whose record of God Bless America has a 37-3-1 won-lost-tied mark when being played before Philadelphia home games since 1967—the year the Flyers joined the NHL—received a prolonged ovation from the crowd of 17,007.

Kate, whose song was 8-5 a the Spectrum this year, made her first personal appearance for the hockey team earlier this year and the Flyers won 3-0.

Asked about the spell the singer's record seems to have over opposition, Philadelphia coach Fred Shero admitted: "Yeah, I guess (I'm) don't need me any more."

His team annihilated the Bruins with little evidence of the brute strength that marked its progress past the playoff rounds where they rolled up a record 252 penalty minutes against New York Rangers.

Parent helped Philadelphia to a West Division title, shared the goalies' Vezina Trophy with Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks, was named to the division all-star team and won the Conn Smythe Trophy as the most valuable player in the post-season game.

But Shero said the final outcome was determined by the ability of the Flyers to upset the Bruins' superstar defenceman, Bobby Orr.

"It was 17-to-1," Shero said of the Flyers' plans to keep pressure on Orr, forcing him to make mistakes that soon became frequent as he tried to generate a Boston attack. "We just overworked him."

Orr spent 36 minutes and 19 seconds on the ice Sunday. It might have been more except that he served a couple of penalties—losing his temper against Flyers' Bobby Clarke in the first period then hauling the Philadelphia centre down late in the game.

But the Boston defenceman said the Flyers deserved the win.

"You can't skate in sports like we did. You have to go all out. There's no excuse for the playing hard and well in the finals.

"They worked their butts off."

General manager Harry Sinden and team-mate Wayne Cashman broke Bobby Orr's rare swd of a 'ruling by referee Art Skov who called him for holding Clarke at 17:38 of the third period.

"He (Skov) told us in 1972 he'd get us," said Sinden, "and today he did."

Cashman agreed: "All Bobby did was take the puck off Clarke and all Clarke did was take a dive."

But Boston defenceman Carol Vadnais said hockey fans shouldn't be surprised at the Philadelphia victory.

"After all they finished with only one point less than us over the regular season so they sure didn't get there on luck."

MacLeish scored only his third goal in the series at 14:49 of the first period, but he led the three playoff rounds with 13.

"He took a big jump on that shot," Vadnais said of MacLeish's deflection of Andre Dupont's blast from the blueline with Boston's Terry O'Reilly set for hooking Flyers' Bill Barber and Orr and Clarke out with two penalties following a flareup in front of Boston goalie Gilles Gilbert.

"Save it was a lucky break," said Vadnais. "But you make your own breaks on a play like that by digging and hustling."

Shero said this year's Flyers "is a team that may never be duplicated."

"They gave you all you asked for, and if you wanted more they came up with some."

He said the championship completed a three-year program he began shortly after arriving in Philadelphia.

Shero spent most of his previous 13 years of coaching in the minor leagues with the Ranger organization.

Wild Celebration In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "It's the biggest turnout since VJ Day, bigger," said Mayor Frank Rizzo as Philadelphians went on an emotional binge Monday for the Flyers.

Police commissioner Joseph O'Neill estimated that two million people turned out for a parade honoring the National Hockey League Stanley Cup winners.

"It shows what can happen to a town with a winner," said Rizzo, his face speckled with confetti thrown on the 50 car motorcade through the city centre.

There were hundreds of signs along the six-mile parade route from the Flyers' Spectrum home, through the downtown business district to Independence Square.

Carried by four nuns was a sign which read: "God Saves Souls. Bernie Saves Goals."

Bernie is goalie Parent who earned the Conn Smythe Trophy as most valuable player in the play-offs.

The Flyers gathered for the parade at the Spectrum less than 12 hours after they defeated Boston Bruins 1-0 to wrap up the Stanley Cup.

Dave Schultz said he found graffiti over the outside of his home. Bobby Clarke's team captain, said 10 policemen kept vigil at his home all night.

Parent said he was buying a boat with his playoff money. "I'm going to name it The Stanley Cup."

Bernie Wins Smythe Trophy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Flyers' goalie Bernie Parent was named Sunday as the winner of the Conn Smythe Trophy, emblematic of the outstanding player in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

In the National Hockey League playoffs, Parent won 12 games and lost five, posting a 2.01 goals-against average per game.

He also had two shutouts, including Sunday's 1-0 victory over Boston Bruins, giving the expansion Flyers their 4-2 decision in the best-of-seven series.

Olympics Hold Spartans in Check

Spartans invaded Belleville on the weekend. Their foray into the Bay of Quinte area was successful, but only just so.

Part of the Toronto and District First Division Central, Spartans played a pair of exhibition games here. And they helped officials of Golden Mile Restaurant Olympics and Belleville Olympics realize something they probably suspected all along. And that is, the calibre of soccer in this area is top notch.

The Toronto team shaded Golden Mile of the Bay of Quinte Association 1-0, Saturday, returning to the Ontario School for the Deaf pitch, Sunday, Spartans pulled out a 2-2 draw with Belleville Olympics of the new Premier Soccer League.

In the Sunday match, Olympics held the edge in the early going and were rewarded when Kevin Kirby finished off a demonstration of combination play with Mike Dorsellas, John O'Neill, Nick DelGrosso and Tommy Maxwell.

The Belleville goal appeared to arouse the visitors who quickly moved to the attack.

Centre half Doug Gray got the equalizer on his second try from the penalty spot. The shot was awarded Spartans when Olympics' fullback Dorsellas handled the ball in his goal area.

Gray saw the ball go off the crossbar on his first attempt but when referee Harold Hiddenradt ruled goalie Sandy Duchart had moved before the ball was kicked, the Toronto star got another go at it.

Duchart had no chance on Gray's accurate drive. The ball found the lower left-hand corner to make it 1-1. And that's how the half ended.

The teams battled for control as the second half got under way. Again, it was Olympics forging ahead. This time, Fundicinrvko got his head to the ball on a long free kick taken by O'Neill.

Spartans once again bounced back to apply the pressure but poor finishing on their part spoiled some good work by former Portuguese professional Claude Daniels.

The Toronto side kept plugging away and it was Daniels who put the visitors back on even terms with a booming shot after he took control from a corner kick.

Neither defence was about to crack after that scoring play and it ended 2-2.

Dorsellas and DelGrosso were solid fullbacks for Olympics. Centre half Bob Kitcher also played a strong game.

Midfield star Daniels and halfback Gray were the pick of the Spartans.

Saturday, the only goal of the game was taken care of by Spartans' Kevin Andrews who sent a header past Golden Mile goalie Duchart who couldn't be faulted. He played a sound game all the way through.

Golden Mile's Peter Hillier appeared to have the equalizer but the ball found the crossbar on his blast from a few inches.

Outside left Dario D'Anna was a going concern for the Belleville team.

Gray and Andrews were the pick of the Spartans.

FREE KICKS — Olympics have arranged a return game with Spartans to be played in Toronto in the near future.

Practice sessions for the Belleville team have been switched to the pitch at the Quinte Exhibition grounds, Tuesday evenings.

Olympics have announced the signing or former Rovers' players Joe Iasenza, Duchart Ernie Brown, and Zdravko. Also signed is Tommy Maxwell who learned the game in his native Bermuda.

Belleville Olympics get their first taste of Premier Soccer League action Saturday, playing host to Kingston Portuguese Canadians at the OSD pitch, Palmer Road. Kickoff at 6 p.m.

The Golden Mile team makes its next Bay of Quinte Soccer Association start Thursday, hooking up with Belleville United at Zwick's Island at 6.30 p.m.

Rollins Takes a Pair

With a last minute cancellation by Toronto Globals forcing a stand-in team to play, Rollins Construction of the Quinte Fastball League took a pair of exhibition game wins on Saturday night, at the Alemite.

Lindal Cedar Homes of Toronto were the substitute team after the Saturday cancellation by the Globals. Lindals proved able competition for Rollins, although falling short in both games.

Rollins took the first game by a 5-3 count, and edged their opponents 3-2 in the nightcap.

Carl Boomhower led the winners in the first game with a leadoff home run and single, with Marv Stacey banging a triple. Dale Duvall had a pair of safeties, with Glen Carlston, Paul Goodfellow, Ralph Plane, Doug Adams, and Ted Waite adding one single each.

Vere Seall and Moose Jansen each stroked a home run for the losers, with Garry Marshall adding a double. Ken Clark and Bob Richie had a single each.

Ted Waite threw the win for the Constructionmen giving up five hits, striking out six.

Dwight VanDeveer took the loss, giving up 10 hits and striking out seven.

The second game saw Ken Demille get the win on the Rollins mound, giving up five hits. He struck out three and issued one walk.

Dale Duvall led the winners at the plate with a double and single with Carleton and Terry Meagher adding triples. Plane and Goodfellow each had a double with Boomhower and Adams rounding out the hitting with singles.

Back in 1955, Al Parker of Barrie, Ontario bought a Lawn-Boy power mower, model 8F20K. He didn't know it then, of course, but it would go on working faithfully for more than 18 years. That's what you get when you buy a Lawn-Boy—years of trouble-free use!

Compare our lowest-priced Lawn-Boy power mower with other so-called "bargain" mowers. Lawn-Boy is built to last. Like the gas tank, its lightweight magnesium alloy housing is completely rustproof. There's no risk of engine burn-out either, because Lawn-Boy's famous 2-cycle engine uses pre-mixed oil and gas. The largest muffler in the industry makes it quiet. A reinforced blade and staggered wheels make for a smooth level cut. Some models even offer Solid State CD Ignition, which means faster starts, no ignition points to wear out and up to 4 times longer plug life.

As the years roll by, your Lawn-Boy will keep rolling with them. Choose from the budget priced 19" model 5023; the 19" or 21" push or self-propelled Deluxe or Solid State models; 2 commercial models, a rider; or a cordless electric. Aeros Go All the Way in Four HOUSTON (CP) — Gordie Howe, playing in a style belying his 46 years, was at his best Sunday night as Houston Aeros beat Chicago Cougars 6-2 to win the World Hockey Association championship.

"I said before we went out there that a winner can take a lot of crap and be a winner by taking advantage," Howe said after the victory.

That's what the Aeros did, scoring five power-play goals in the final game to sweep the best-of-seven World Trophy finals in straight games.

"Chicago came out running and hitting," Howe, four-time Stanley Cup winner, said of the rugged contest played before a capacity crowd of 9,874.

"They took a lot of penalties and we took advantage of them."

If the Aeros needed any incentive, Howe provided it. He was playing with the existence of his two young sons — Marty, 20, and Mark, 18. He threw himself in front of shots, backchecked, played defence when asked and directed the power play that proved to be the killing factor.

"I don't think anyone will ever be able to say too much about the man," joyous coach Bill Dineen said of Howe, who set up four goals.

Houston scored three goals in less than 2½ minutes in the first period—two on power plays—and rapped in three more—all on power plays in a span of just over three minutes midway through the second period and coasted to the win.

"Our power play was working perfection tonight," said Murray Hall, who scored the first two power-play goals a minute and eight seconds apart in the first period.

We were throwing the puck around, moving well and just had everything right."

But before everything got going correctly for Houston, it took a number of big saves by goaltender Don McLeod to keep the Cougars under wraps.

"McLeod made four or five spectacular saves early," Chicago playing coach Pat Stapleton said, "but he got some good bounces and they cleared well. That's what makes a good team."

For the first time in four games, Chicago tested McLeod severely every period and the Houston goaltender had to make big stops off Jim Watson, Darryl Maggs, Stapleton and Ralph Backstrom in the first five minutes of the game.

After that, the Aeros got their skating legs and slowly took command. Once they withstood Chicago's opening rush, Houston swung the game around to their style and used strong positional hockey, excellent passing, tight defence and good goaltending to win.

Larry Lund, centring for Frank Hughes and Andre Hinse, picked up two of the Houston goals to emerge the playoff scoring champion with nine goals and 14 assists for 23 points in 14 games.

Hinse and Gord Labossiere got the other Houston goals. Jan Popiel, late in the second period, and Rick Morris in the third, scored for Chicago after Houston had taken a 6-0 lead.

The series victory was worth a total of $80,000 to the Aeros, raising their playoff money winnings to $200,000. The Cougars will receive $60,000 and they will split $180,000 in total playoff winnings.

Larry Lloyd led Philadelphia with five goals while John Grant had three. Bob Goulding, Larry Ferguson and Ian Montgomery scored two each. Single goals came from Zenny Lipinsky, Carm Collins, Barry Richardson and Terry Lloyd.

Montreal got three goals by Dave Litzenburger and two each from Jeffs John Davis, Bill Sheehan and Dale McKenzie. Rick Beasley and Bill Nunn scored one each.

Maryland won its second game, at the same time spoiling Jake Stringer's home opening with Cy Coombes leading the way with five goals.

Paul Suggat and Gord Keates got four goals each for the Arrows and two each from centre Bill Coghill and Greg Marchant. Wayne Graham, Ken Henderson, Ron Rey, Vic Generous and Mike McMahon each scored once.

Gaylord Powless led Syracuse with four goals. Jim Timpson got three and Pat Differ, Paul Cioci and Bruce Murdock scored two each. Ken Alexander, Robbie Fitties and Sir George completed the Slingers scoring.

Little Current Wins Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — Little Current scored a smashing seven-length upset victory in the 99th running of the Preakness Stakes, a race typical of th entire season for 1974's crop of three-year-old horses.

Before the chestnut colt crossed the finish line Saturday in 1:54 3-5, the third fastest time in Preakness history, Destroyer, Silver Florin, Jolly John and Cannonade had held the lead in Pimlico's 1 3-16 mile race.

Cannonade, the Kentucky Derby winner who was seeking to repeat Secretariat's 1973 feat as a Triple Crown champion, was in front momentarily as the 13 horses entered the stretch.

But Little Current, a 13-to-1 choice ridden by Miguel Rivera, bolted through a hole along the rail and drew steadily away down the stretch. Neapolitan Way, another longshot at 24-to-1, overtook Cannonade and finished second.

Completing the order of finish after Jolly John were Kin Run, J.R.'s Pet; Derby runner-up Hudson County; Rube The Great; Silver Florin; Destroyer; All Game, Heir to the Line and Buck's Bid.

Mike Micelli of Toronto was robbed of Hudson County and Sandy Hawley of Toronto rode All Game.

Darby Dan Farm, owned by John W. Galbreath, received $156,000 of the record Preakness purse of $209,000, boosting Little Current's career earnings to $207,192.

It was only the second victory in eight stake races this year for Little Current. He won the Everglades at Hialeah on March 26, then finished out of the money in the Flamingo, Blue Grass and Kentucky Derby.

The lone stakes victory this year by Cannonade, sent off as the 2-to-1 choice by the Pimlico crowd of 54,911, was in the Derby. Neapolitan Way's lone stakes triumph was in a division of the Woodlawn at Pimlico, but that was on grass.

The battle to determine the top three-year-old probably will remain scrambled into the fall campaign. And, the continuing inconsistency could entice a few owners to enter their horses in the Belmont Stakes, the last of the Triple Crown series on June 8.

Rod Curl Wraps Up Colonial

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Rod Curl, a Wintu Indian, celebrated his first triumph on the professional golf tour Sunday, overtaking Chuck Courtney and withstanding the challenge of Jack Nicklaus to capture the $50,000 top prize in the $250,000 Colonial Natl Open.

The former California ditch-digger turned Colonial's par-70 course with a closing 68 for a four-round total of 278, four-under-par and a stroke ahead of Nicklaus, who also wound up with a 68.

"I'll tell y u something," Curl said with a grin, "and you are not going to believe it. But I dreamed . . . that I would beat Nicklaus by a shot . . . That's every golfer's dream. I'm just happy to beat the best golfer in the world on one of the best golf courses in the world."

Nicklaus, whose bid crumbled with a bogey at th pear four, 17th hole, earned second place money of $28,500 with a 12-foot birdie putt at the final hole and said of Curl: "He never made any mistakes."

Junior Tourney Planned

WINNIPEG (CP) — An international junior hockey tournament involving teams from Russia, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Sweden, the United States and Canada will be staged here during the 1974 Christmas season.

Delegates to the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association were told agreements had been completed by CAHA officials during a recent visit to Europe.

Winnipeg applied several months ago for the competition and Jack Devine of Belleville, Ont., CAHA president, said arrangements have been confirmed. The Canadian representative will be provided by the Western Canada Hockey League, one of three major junior leagues in the country.

The basis for the WCHL selection has not been defined.

Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association competed in the event last year in Russia.

Devine said most of the games will be played in Winnipeg's 9,000-seat arena.

The announcement, at a luncheon sponsored by management of Winnipeg arena, highlighted the opening day of the convention, which drew about 176 delegates.

No Canadian Banks

As a Canadian banker said in the lobby of a Tehran hotel, "bees go to honey, and bankers go to money". Many of the world's banks now are chasing the money pouring into Iran, Iraq and Saudi Arabia as a result of recent price increases for oil. Canadian banks are among those competing and enjoying good reputations in Iraq and Saudi Arabia. However, no Canadian banks are represented in Iran. (CP Newsmap)

Canadian Banker Hunts Money in Wealthy Iran

TEHRAN (CP) — Peter Godsoe, the Bank of Nova Scotia's general manager of international operations, hardly has to point out why he's sitting in the lobby of the posh Royal Tehran Hilton.

"Bees go to honey, and bankers go to money," he says in a flat banker's understatement.

With oil at current prices, Middle East money pots will be sweetened with more than $50 billion by the end of this year. That's four times the region's oil income for 1973, and a lot of it will be invested abroad.

How much in Canada? A bil- perhaps, and more within a few years.

Godsoe says Canadian banks are already handling a share of the Middle East oil fortune, but mostly through their offices in Europe and the United States, and mostly in the form of short-term deposits.

Travelling with a recent business mission led by Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie, the Harvard-trained, Toronto-based Godsoe has been talking to money managers in Saudi Arabia, Iraq and Iran — three of the largest oil producers in the Middle East.

Here is an assessment he gave of the potential for Canadian banks in the three countries:

Saudi Arabia, expecting to spend $15 billion or more in foreign money markets this year, "is one of the very key factors in the international monetary situation."

By comparison, when Japan ran a payments surplus only $7 billion more than that three years ago, it was enough to cause President Nixon to declare his August, 1971, offensive aimed at revamping the international monetary system.

"And in the Middle East, this is but the beginning."

Other experts have said that in a few years, Saudi Arabia could control a third of the central bank reserves of the entire world.

The problem of Saudi money is compounded because that country has few men with the skill to invest funds abroad. So its enormous revenues are being invested in the short-term Eurodollar market—securities easily convertible into U.S. dollars on short notice through European banks.

Godsoe said virtually all major banks now are in the Eurodollar market, on their own or through partnerships, and all will be after the Saudi reserves.

Two Canadian banks are handling tens of millions in Saudi cash already, he said.

"Any bank not going after Saudi Arabia is not doing its job. Saudi Arabia is the largest pool of money in the world."

So many of the world's banks are knocking on Saudi doors that he found more people shedding the monetary agency governor, Anwar Ali, from interviews than actually getting the country's finances.

Despite competition from the world's biggest banks, Godsoe found Canadian banks enjoy a good reputation among the Saudis. They are admired as big, professional and politically neutral.

With the influx of oil cash levelling off now, the Saudis are starting to look at long-term investments. All was curious about the multi-billion-dollar James Bay power project in Quebec. But for now, they are sticking with short-term, liquid deposits.

In contrast to the free-enterprise, free-currency policies of Saudi Arabia, Iraq's finances are handled by its central bank and two state-owned commercial banks, and currency movements are strictly controlled.

Iraq might earn about $6 billion in oil revenue this year, five times last year's. Intent on a crash industrialization, the government in Baghdad wants to use as much as possible domestically. So it will invest abroad only in short-term bank deposits until it can spend the savings at home.

Two Canadian banks are already working with Iraq, and Godsoe said "it's not a hard place to do business in." But with the Iraqi government more able and willing to handle its own money in its own projects, it is not as lucrative a banking market as Saudi Arabia.

Iran has the oldest and best developed banking system of the three countries, but Godsoe said Canadian banks have never been widely recognized here.

Until about six months ago, Iran borrowed more abroad than it paid out. But its oil money is being used to pay old debts and by the end of the year it will enjoy a surplus.

Iranian ministers estimate oil revenues will exceed $20 billion this year, approaching 10 times last year's income.

Military's Role Large

The Iranian government will spend almost 10 per cent of the nation's gross national product on military expenses this year. The military's programs include the literacy corps — an alternative to actual military service — whose members help educate the young. (CP Photo)

Iran Has One Big Problem: How to Spend Its Money

TEHRAN (CP) — The Iranian government has this problem: Too much money.

Computers have been reprogrammed and development plans redrawn, but officials admit to bafflement from rocketing oil revenues that might rise as much as a single year, possibly approaching $30 billion.

It's not that they don't want the cash, or that they don't know what to do with it. But it's hard to find places where it can usefully be spent without, for example, causing inflation as too many people with money chase too few goods.

It's an unusual problem, but Iran is an unusual country.

Under the shah, a man a couple of days older than Prime Minister Trudeau, this may be the best example we'll see in a long time of a benevolent autocracy in action.

Even before oil prices tripled and quadrupled, the gross national product here rose 14 per cent in the Iranian year ended in early 1973.

On paper that means nearly $1,000 for every Iranian citizen, and per-capita income might double in the next 18 months.

To cut down the wealth and power of the small well-off upper class, the shah has enforced a land reform program that, outside observers say, may be one of the few in the world actually meeting intentions—handing land and economic power to former peasants on a broad scale. There is also a mandatory profit-sharing program for factory workers.

The influx of oil money will speed the process of redistributing national income and the growth of a managerial, technological middle class, outsiders have concluded.

Iran, which stresses it is not Arab, is seemingly already more egalitarian than its Arab neighbors. As one measure of the spread of cash, cars on the streets of Tehran are estimated to number 500,000, one for about every 10 people in a population of five million.

Still, officials guess that the top 20 per cent of the 30 million Iranians get about 60 per cent of all income.

Perhaps 40 per cent of the population lives on agriculture as wandering herdsmen or farmers.

According to latest figures, fully 20 per cent of the government's planned development spending in the next few years will go toward boosting growth in the lagging agriculture sector.

But farming can absorb only a limited amount of investment in a year and that proportion also is very small in relation to industrial and mining development originally scheduled for 15 per cent of government investment.

What else will they do with their oil revenues, including more than $130 million from Canada this year?

A. M. Majidi, minister for planning, says government investment in petrochemicals "will be expanded much more rapidly" than first estimated, so more Iranian crude will be processed at home.

"In view of the energy crisis, we have developed a national energy policy."

Energy crisis—in Iran? The oil cannot last forever, and Iran is planning, among other things, development of nuclear power. Canadian reactors are being considered.

Investment in iron and steel is also being accelerated, along with development of schools, public health, railways, highways and Canadian-supplied communications.

Mostly to lure technical skills, Iran is inviting foreign investment especially in joint ventures with Iranian firms. About $5 billion in foreign investment is expected this year compared to $1.5 billion last year.

Imports will continue to be weighted heavily by capital goods used to build up industry. Houshang Ansary, minister of the economy, says 92 per cent of all imports by 1978, will be capital equipment.

But, like the barren salt flats that flock the central desert, spots of Iranian life appear ugly to Canadian eyes.

The unconstrained power of the shah is so widely supported that one Canadian resident says a referendum today would return his regime overwhelmingly. But he keeps his power partly by an active secret police. Several dissident students, for example, suddenly disappeared from the campuses in the past.

Public criticism of the cabinet is permitted. It can be replaced with other politicians. But never criticism of the shah, the real ruler.

Says another Canadian: "Politics? There is none. Just the shah."

About 10 per cent of the gross national product—nearly 30 per cent of government spending—is going for military expenses this year.

Iran is the self-proclaimed successor to Britain as the major power east of Suez. With United States hardware, the shah plays a tricky diplomatic and military balancing act between the Soviets on the northern border, a sometimes-hostile Iraq to the west, and the strategic Persian Gulf to the south.

A sign of Iran's strategic importance is that Richard Helms, former director of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, now is ambassador in Tehran.

But the shah, who saw his father deposed in 1941 as British, U.S. and Soviet forces took over the country during the Second World War, is intent on preserving his country's political and cultural independence.

He wants western technology. About 2,500 Iranians are studying in Canada now, and 19 times that many are in the United States.

But he also aims at keeping the importation of western values to a minimum, retaining the national pride of Iranians, heirs to the ancient Persian empire.

Wind Churns Power

OSLO (CP) — Norway, a major producer of hydroelectric power, will use windmills as an alternative source of energy for its radio link system. The Norwegian Information Service said the first windmill has been installed atop a 140-foot-high radio link mast on a mountain peak in the central part of the country.

Long Time Coming

MELBOURNE (CP) — A psychiatrist who won the world's richest prize for research into mental health said the award came 25 years after he published the results of his findings. Dr. John F. Cade of Melbourne won the 1974 Kittay Award, worth $17,000, jointly with Danish psychiatrist Dr. Morgens Schou, for their findings on the use of lithium to control manic psychosis.

Color and Animals Subject of Special

The balance of life in the animal world is dependent on behavioral patterns and an animal's need to communicate basics such as mating and feeding.

They do this through an elaborate system of signals and signs: Sunday, June 9, 5.00-5.30 p.m. EDT, CTV's "Untamed World", looks into the effects of color in the animal world in the episode "Color".

Color plays an integral part in the continual competition waged between the hunter and the hunted in the evolution of the animal species. A particularly effective camouflage can mean the difference between extinction and survival.

Color can be a signal of territorial rights, a camouflage in a hostile environment, or the protection of a predator whose strength would depend on being well hidden from view. Bees, birds, fish, crocodiles, insects and man all utilize color for their particular needs of hiding, hunting, feeding or mating.

Color, natural and manmade, is essential to man's cultural life and is an activator for his imagination. Man uses color symbolically to attract attention, display his power and to dress himself and his surroundings; he uses color as his imagination dictates. In nature color is never merely decoration.

The subtle gradation of skin and hair color texture has evolved through generations of adaptation and man could not have survived in tropic or polar conditions without them. By understanding the vital role color plays, man can better understand how it operates in his own daily life.

"The Untamed World" is produced by Peter Rackham for the CTV Television Network.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Wednesday, May 22 . . .

Aries (March 21-April 19) Keep your lips sealed today. If you don't you are likely to let something that was told you in confidence out of the bag.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) If you are not careful you are going to be far more generous in a situation than you intended to be. You want to make a good impression.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Be sure goals you are aiming for are not too inflated and unrealistic. You will be disappointed when they don't materialize.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) This is not a good day to rely too heavily on others to help you with personal problems. Work out your own solutions.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You are counting a little too heavily on luck to get you through something today. You will fare better if you rely on your skills.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your affairs should be running smoothly but it would be a mistake to take things for granted. Down. A watchful eye is still needed.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you make an error where you are concerned, it is bound to be a whopper. Concentrate, concentrate, concentrate.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You will start out with good intentions but you will be easily led astray. It is unlikely you will be like the productive things you intended to do today.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't behave too independently in a situation where you have a partner involved. It will take two heads to solve today's problem.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19- It will prove to your benefit to closely supervise any service you are having performed if you want it finished properly.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) There is a little too much of the gambler in you today. You are apt to take risks you normally wouldn't. Be careful.

Pisces (Feb. 20 - March 20) You are prone to exaggerate a bit today to bolster your ego. Go ahead if you want to, but you are the only one who will believe what you are saying.

Persimmon Eaters Need Not Worry

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You recently had an article about a bezoar caused by the ten to digestible fibre in persimmons. We eat a few persimmons and a lot of persimmon pudding. Do these fibres remain indigestible regardless of how they are prepared? Are the fibres indigestible in everyone's body? Would you recommend that no one eat persimmons? —J.R.T.

No, I don't recommend that no one eat persimmons. But from the number of persimmon lovers who wrote me, I think if I had it to do over I might have started a persimmon farm instead of writing a medical column.

Keep in mind that the original article was in response to a question about a woman of 80 who had developed a bezoar and was astonished to have her doctor trace the cause to a persimmon (stomach ball) consisting of persimmon fibres.

When coarse fibres (some vegetable fibres, hair, wood shreds and the like) form a ball in the stomach, they can, naturally, trap other fibres of the same sort and soon become quite a large ball or bezoar.

Bezoars are not common, although among foods persimmons are a frequent cause of them. But in my experience the most frequent cause is hair, mainly among children who, under her psychological tension, pull out their hair and eat it.

You should keep that in mind: thousands of persimmon lovers never have any trouble. Many of us in our lifetimes swallow fibres, hair or whatnot, but do not develop bezoars. In most cases the fibres will pass on out of the stomach, and be carried through the intestinal tract and eliminated without distress, so a stomach ball doesn't get a chance to form in the first place. Such balls are more likely to form if the motility (or activity) of the stomach is somewhat sluggish.

Some people, I am told, eat persimmons in a blender to break up the fibres; that also softens the fibres. And, as I have indicated, a lot of raw persimmons are eaten without any harm.

And if a bezoar does form? At least, it is not life-threatening. Some are dissolved by administration of an enzyme—papaya (from papaya)—but this is a technical procedure which must be done by trained people, and is in no sense a do-it-yourself undertaking. And, of course, some bezoars are removed surgically.

Anyway, this is not so much a warning against persimmons as it is information about a situation that sometimes occurs.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: The mayor of a small village in the Bavarian Alps is fighting tooth and nail against a power line which is supposed to go over his hamlet. He claims that high tension wires induce cancer and cause people to die earlier than average.

Since I own a piece of property with a powerline crossing it diagonally where I intend to build this summer, I would be interested to hear from you if there is any justification for this fear. —C.F.

I don't know of any justification whatsoever, would question what data that mayor can offer, and would be inclined to leave the whole hassle where it is—in the Bavarian Alps.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been taking 54 units of insulin each morning. Dr. J. I get up very early. Is it safe to take the insulin before I eat breakfast? —J.B.M.

You can take the injection just before or immediately after breakfast. But if after, don't delay. Don't try to wait for the usual time to take the injection.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How can a fissure be cured, with or without an operation? What causes a fissure?

Must a rectum be closed because of such a condition—whether a fissure or hemorrhoids? When rectum is operated on for either fissure or hemorrhoids, how long generally speaking does it take to heal?

Under these conditions should the patient eat everything or be on a bland diet? Is there a medicine for such trouble? Will the trouble return?—E.W.

Quite a handful of questions! An anal fissure is a split in the surface membrane of the anus, and when one occurs it usually becomes infected, resulting in bleeding and a discharge. And pain.

There is no medicine that will cure a fissure. Cure is achieved by surgical removal of the affected tissue, and letting the healthy tissues heal together. This takes about 10 days or so.

No, the rectum is not closed for that or for hemorrhoids.

After surgery a diet with plenty of bulk usually is recommended, the purpose being to promote bowel action and thus to avoid adhesions. A bulk-producing medication may be used as well for the same purpose. With good bowel habits, a fissure is not likely to recur—but it can recur if stool material is hard. So learn to keep the stool soft, and avoid straining in the bathroom.

Removal of hemorrhoids takes about the same time for recovery as correction of a fissure, and the surgery considerations are similar. Again, there is no medicine that will cure hemorrhoids, although in mild cases medications can promote the patient's comfort.

A hemorrhoid is a varicose vein, and such a vein, once removed, cannot recur. That does not mean however, that other veins cannot become varicose. Avoiding varicose veins means the same precautions as for avoid another fissure.

Win at Bridge

By Oswald and James Jacoby

We won't go so far as to say that every player had a silver lining, but will content ourselves with saying that most clouds do.

South ducks the first diamond as a matter of principle. He wins the continuation, plays out his ace and king of trumps and stops.

A cloud has appeared on the horizon, but if South works things out he will find its silver lining.

If East has to follow to five rounds of clubs South can collect 10 tricks before losing the lead. Also, it is quite likely that West started with 11 red cards. He had passed originally and then made a takeout double.

In any event there is no profit in playing the South cards. Dummy's ace and king of clubs and sure enough, West shows out. Now he ruffs a club; enters dummy with the ace of hearts; ruffs another club; leads and ruffs his last diamond; ruffs dummy's last club and concedes the last two tricks. Poor East has to use his good trumps to ruff West's good hearts.

Three Big Wins For the Expos

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal right-hander Mike Torrez won his first game over Pittsburgh since Sept. 16, 1972, as the Expos defeated the Pirates 4-2 Monday in National League play.

Torrez, now 4-3, struck out five and walked two as he posted his third lifetime win over Pittsburgh in seven decisions.

He gave up eight hits before being relieved in the ninth inning.

The win also helped the Montreal right-hander snap a personal three-game losing streak. His last win came April 23 in San Francisco against the Giants.

The Expos rapped Pittsburgh starter Jim Rooker for four runs on eight hits in the six innings he worked.

Montreal grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first on a single by Ron Hunt, a sacrifice and Willie Davis' run-scoring hit. They added their second run in the fourth on back-to-back singles by Bob Bailey and Ken Singleton and Rooker's wild pitch which allowed Bailey to score home from third.

Bailey's 200th major league double scored Davis with the first of two Montreal runs in the fifth and Bailey score the second on Singleton's single.

The Pirates finally got to Torrez for a pair of runs in the top of the eighth inning.

Al Oliver filed to Bailey for the second out but a wild pitch advanced both base runners with Willie Stargell scoring both with a single to left.

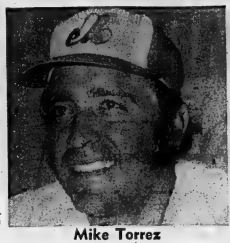
A lead-off single by Manny Sanguillen drove Torrez from the mound in the ninth but veteran reliever Chuck Taylor came on to retire the side for his fourth save of the year.

The victory was Montreal's third in a row and their third straight over the Pirates this season.

The Dodgers' Toy Cannon isn't shooting blanks this year.

Jimmy Wynn, admitting to "the best start I've ever had," continued to live up to his nickname Monday night, just as he's been doing since the baseball season began.

Wynn hit two more home runs and drove in four to spark the 5-3 Los Angeles victory over Cincinnati Reds.



The homers raised his major league-leading total to 14, and the runs batted in increased his aggregate to 41 for the season, two him with Jeff Burroughs of Texas Rangers for the japor-league lead.

"This is even better than I had hoped for," said Wynn, who raised his batting average to .328, recorded his 42nd and 43rd hits in 29 games, and scored a run for the 36th time this season.

In other National League games Monday, Chicago Cubs edged New York Mets 3-1, San Diego Padres beat Houston Astros 8-6 and Philadelphia Phillies defeated St. Louis Cardinals 3-1.

The Expos swept a doubleheader from New York 7-4 and 3-0 Sunday while Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh in the first game 3-2 and lost the second 3-1. San Francisco Giants beat San Diego 8-2 in the first game and the Padres came back for a 10-7 win in 12 innings of the second game. Cincinnati beat Houston 7-1 and Atlanta Braves defeated Los Angeles 4-2 in other Sunday games.

Saturday, Philadelphia downed Pittsburgh 9-2, New York blanked Montreal 6-0, San Francisco beat San Diego 4-2, Los Angeles edged Atlanta 1-0 in 13 innings, St. Louis whipped Chicago 11-3 and Cincinnati beat Houston 7-6.

Cash, Tigers Losers

Norm Cash lost his glove, an argument and a baseball game all in one shot Monday night.

Incensed over a "fair" call on Dave May's double down the right field line in the eighth inning, the Detroit Tigers' first baseman threw down his glove in disgust and let umpire Bill Kunkel have it.

It did the Tigers no good, though. They dropped a 6-5 decision to Milwaukee Brewers.

May's hit drove in the Brewers' winning runs—and it was fair, insisted Kunkel.

"That ball is fair if it hits the ground before going over first base and is fair at first base, no matter where it lands beyond first base," said Kunkel.

Cash's temper display got him an early shower. Kunkel threw him out.

In the only other American League game Monday night, Oakland As beat Minnesota Twins 5-4.

In Sunday action, Cleveland Indians swept a doubleheader from Detroit 3-1 and 8-4, California Angels and Minnesota split their double by 4-3 scores, New York Yankees beat Milwaukee 6-2 in the opener and the Brewers beat the Yanks 3-1 in the second game, Texas Rangers downed Kansas City Royals 8-3 and Oakland beat Chicago White Sox 8-3.

Saturday, Detroit edged Cleveland 3-2, Boston Red Sox whipped Baltimore Orioles 10-2, Minnesota beat California 10-4, Milwaukee defeated New York 5-3, Texas beat Kansas City 7-3 and Chicago edged Oakland 3-2.

Book Tells of Flying Saucers

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT

In October 1973, a U.S. Army helicopter over Ohio, and a UFO that whisked it 2,000 feet straight up, though at the time the helicopter's controls were set in the dive position. Fact or fiction?

In the same month two fishermen in Mississippi were taken aboard a UFO by "craft men" who subjected them to some sort of physical examination, then released them. One of the men later passed a lie detector test. Fact or fiction?

Beings from aboard a UFO showed a New Hampshire housewife a "star map" which she later drew under hypnosis and which showed actual stars the woman couldn't at the time have known existed. Fact or fiction?

These, and other cases like them, are reported by husband-wife team, Roy and Judy Blum, who started looking into UFO's they say, with open minds. They claim to still have them.

"My mind is very open as to the final interpretation of the UFO phenomenon," said Blum in an interview. A 42-year-old New Yorker, former Fulbright scholar and Russian language expert, he has written three novels, including two science fiction works well received by the critics.

But his latest book, "Beyond Earth: Man's Contact with UFOs," isn't fiction but fact, he says. He submits the evidence and the reader must make up his own mind. Consider some of the evidence.

On the night of Oct. 18, 1973, Army Capt. Lawrence J. Coyne, 36, was piloting a Huey helicopter with three other reservists aboard on a flight from Columbus to Cleveland, Ohio. Suddenly, at an altitude of 2,500 feet, the captain and crew saw a red light approaching on a collision course. Coyne, a veteran of 20 years of military flying, put the helicopter into a dive to avoid hitting or being hit by the object.

The helicopter dropped 2,000 feet. Meanwhile, the mystery object appeared to stop momentarily about 500 feet above the helicopter.

"We never saw anything like it before," said Coyne. "It was a cigar-shaped craft with a glowing steady red light on its leading edge. A green light emitted from the rear of the craft filled our cabin with a green glow. It was eerie."

What was even more eerie was that when the UFO "streaked away" Coyne discovered that the helicopter had risen some 2,000 feet from the low point reached in its dive, though none of the crew had felt the gravitational pull normally felt when a helicopter rises.

This case, say Roy and Judy Blum, has been investigated by the U.S. Army and other researchers, and the only "normal" explanation offered was the casual suggestion by one astronomer that the helicopter crew may have been "hallucinated."

On Oct. 11, 1973, in the now-celebrated case of the crab men of Pascagoula, 42-year-old Charles Hickson and 19-year-old Calvin Parker said they were accosted by a UFO while fishing. "floated" aboard it by creatures with leathery skin and pincers for hands, and subjected to a head-to-toe examination by a "giant eye."

The Blums quote a report of a lie detector test, taken by Hickson, two weeks after the experience, in which the polygraphist concluded that Hickson "believed" he was telling the truth.

But was the truth that the experience, though real, occurred only in the minds of the two men?

To this question, Roy Blum replied: "I believe that their experience was the result of an external stimulus." He refused to speculate about the nature of the stimulus.

However, the Blums aren't shy to say in their book where it's made plain that they favor the theory that UFO's are spacecraft. And they suggest, we may have a pretty good clue where some of them come from.

The Blums cite research by an Ohio grade three schoolteacher, Marjorie Fish, on a "star map" drawn under hypnosis in 1953 by Mrs. Betty Hill of Portsmouth, N.H. Mrs. Hill, with her now deceased husband, Barney, allegedly was taken aboard a UFO, examined by "humanoids," and released. The map was said to be a reproduction of one which the UFO commander had shown Betty Hill, indicating a certain planetary system as his craft's home base.

Mrs. Fish claims to have identified the stars in the map as parts of actual constellations which, in some cases, were unknown to astronomers when the map was drawn.

"No astronomer on earth between 1961 and 1964 could have known that," Dr. Allen Hynk, head of the astronomy department at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., is reported to have said of certain features of the map.

The UFO's home base, according to the map, is a planet orbiting one of two stars, identified as Zeta Reticuli One and Two. Both are a mere 30 light years from earth (a light year being the distance that light, at a speed of 186,000 miles per second, travels in one year.)

That's a long trip. But, as Roy and Judy Blum see it, evidently not too far for somebody who really wants to pay you a visit.

Accord Evades Grasp

By The Associated Press

United States State Secretary Henry Kissinger said today that "substantial agreement has been reached" on a truce line to replace the fighting on the Golan Heights front, but indicated he will not secure a full disengagement accord before he leaves the Middle East this weekend.

Emerging from his latest talks with Israeli leaders in Jerusalem before flying to Damascus, Kissinger said Israel and Syria have agreed to a "geographic demarcation"—meaning "a whole range of elements" still must be worked out, he said.

"I must caution . . . that each subject is very complex, heavy and full of nuances and subclauses," said Israeli Information Minister Shimon Peres.

The statements appeared to be a forecast that Kissinger will return to Washington without a pact to separate the Syrian and Israeli armies and leave final details to be settled by his aides.

Land Tax May Affect Many Sales

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Revenue Minister Arthur Wren said Tuesday that persons who hold on to houses after marital separations might be subject to the government's proposed land-speculation tax.

The new tax might also hit those who delay selling their property after moving to an apartment and some people caught between moves from one house to another, he told the legislature committee.

The bill, if approved, would put a 50-per-cent surcharge on land speculators.

Key to the issue, the minister said, is what constitutes a principal residence and when does a principal residence become an investment property. The bill would exempt principal residences and recreational properties from the tax.

Mr. Meen said persons unable to sell their homes but committed to purchasing another might be classified as speculators if they hold both properties for some time.

That situation, outlined by Fred Young (L—Toronto York) view) in a letter from a constituent, involved "speculation" to the degree that the author presumed prices would continue to climb and sale of his house would be easy, Mr. Meen said.

However, in all transactions, the government is considering setting a time period during which the principal residence provision would not be abandoned.

That period, yet to be determined, might be anywhere between three to six months, he said.

Quebec Insists On Pipeline Study

OTTAWA (CP) — The Quebec government insisted Tuesday that Interprovincial Pipe Line Ltd. carry out environmental studies on several alternate routes for its Sarnia, Ont., to Montreal crude oil pipeline.

"Quebec will not settle for less," Quebec lawyer Jean Piette told a National Energy Board hearing into Interprovincial's application.

At the urging of the Trudeau government, Interprovincial has applied for a 500-mile extension of its Western Canada pipeline. The federal government last March called it in the national interest that Eastern Canada no longer be entirely dependent on foreign oil supplies.

By law, the energy board must hear the application and itself decide whether it is in the Canadian interest that the $140-million project go ahead.

The company has said it needs relatively quick approval from the board if it is to supply 250,000 barrels of crude daily to Montreal by the end of 1976.

The route proposed by the company will have the pipeline cross the Lake of Two Mountains, an important water supply for a number of Montreal-area communities and also enter Paul Sauve provincial park, a prime recreation area for Montrealers.

Mr. Piette said the environmental study of the Quebec route took only a month and the environmental consultant was not part of the decision on the final route.

"All other possible routes were swiftly eliminated without consideration of environmental damages," he declared.

The Quebec government and the province's population had a right to expect that all necessary precautions be taken to protect the environment.

Montreal Waters Stop Their Rise

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A Hydro-Quebec spokesman Tuesday night said water levels were stabilizing around parts of the west Island of Montreal following evacuation of about 2,000 people.

The power utility spokesman reported an average flow of 297,000 cubic feet per second for Tuesday at the Carillon Dam on the Ottawa River. Average flow per second.

The excess waters flow into Riviere des Prairies, which borders the west of Montreal.

The west island communities of Pierrefonds, Ste. Genevieve, Roxboro, Ile Bizard, Ste. Anne de Bellevue and Cartierville were hardest hit by the flooding and three of the municipalities' mayors have requested financial aid from the government.

C. G. Bell, mayor of Roxboro, called the region a disaster area and requested government compensation.

Parts of the towns are under as much as four feet of water.

A civil protection co-ordinator said: "People are losing everything they have, everything they worked hard for."

Ste. Anne is into a $175,000 home the other day and furniture was floating in the living room. The people inside were crying," Jean Lamoureux said.

Canadian Armed Forces personnel were on standby Tuesday night in the event mass evacuations are called for, and civic authorities were continuing sandbagging operations in an attempt to contain the waters.

About 1,000 homes have flooded basements, but residents are refusing to leave them, a civil protection spokesman said.

Meanwhile, on the Ottawa River north of Ottawa, water levels have stabilized in the communities of Pointe Gatineau, Wakefield further north, Maniwaki.

In Maniwaki about 6,000 persons have been evacuated.

About 400 persons have been evacuated from neighboring Wakefield, and a spokesman said the flood waters could recede within three or four days if no rain falls.

Health authorities in Maniwaki report the threat of typhoid continues to loom because been cut off and sewage systems are paralysed. Health officials say there may be an outbreak of disease if residents fail to boil drinking water before use.

Gilles Masse, Quebec natural resources minister, told the national assembly Tuesday an interdepartmental committee was touring flooded areas

Belfast Strikers Confront Soldiers

BELFAST (AP) — Gunfire crackled today in Protestant strongholds of East Belfast as militant strikers defied thousands of British troops in combat gear by re-erecting barricades after the soldiers had torn them down. There was no word of casualties, but police said six or seven men were involved in the shooting.

One mob of young men armed with rocks and clubs attacked and encircled a police patrol, and soldiers in armored cars moved in to rescue the officers.

Objects thought to be bombs were reported to have been dumped on a half-dozen roads around the eastern quarter. Army demolition squads were dispatched to check the reports.

Traffic that had begun flowing for the first time in three days after the army swoop was stacked again as the new barricades went up.

The Protestant reaction came a few hours after soldiers in combat gear swarmed through Ulster's beleaguered capital, clearing streets blocked to back up a Protestant - led general strike.

It was a quick reply to claims by strike leaders that they controlled Northern Ireland to the point of being able to form a provisional government.

Soldiers with blackened faces and guns at the ready moved in at dawn and quickly cleared all main roads into the capital. They bulldozed vehicles to the sidewalks.

Extra British troops were placed on alert in Britain to be ready to reinforce the 14,000 man force already in Ulster.

After eight days of almost total industrial disruption, the militants had tightened their stranglehold on the Northern Ireland capital by cutting off the distribution of fuel supplies.

The early-morning action followed a night in which Protestant extremists were blamed for two attacks, with machine-gun fire and a bomb, in which four teen-age girls were wounded.

The ban on fuel supplies took effect at midnight. Cars were filled up Tuesday evening at the few service stations remaining open.

Leaders of the general strike said oil and gasoline will be allowed only for essential services such as hospitals and public utilities still operating.

William Craig, leader of the hardline Vanguard Unionist party, told reporters: "We are in effective control of the country. We certainly control the all-news of life in the community."

One of his lieutenants, Glenn Barr, took an even tougher line: "We could set up a provisional government if we took the notion. We have the power to govern in our hands."

Barr has emerged as the brain behind the strike called last week to gain reversal of concessions made to Ulster's Roman Catholic minority that strike leaders saw as steps toward unification with the Irish republic.

The first demand of the strikers is for elections by next fall. Their leaders believe this would demonstrate overwhelming opposition toward Irish unity.

Barr is a member of the Northern Ireland assembly, but his real power results from his role as co-ordinator of militant Protestant groups.

Triumphing over the failure Tuesday of a government attempt to get heavily-guarded workers back on the job at Harland and Wolff shipyards, Belfast's main industry, Barr told reporters: "We are prepared to do anything to save the province from being taken over by Republicans."

Strike leaders threatened to paralyze water and sewage services if the government tries to put troops into electric power plants now operating at one-third capacity.

Repeated power cuts have brought crisis for agriculture, a mainstay of the Northern Ireland economy. Scores of thousands of chicks have suffocated from lack of air conditioning. One factory farm, short of feed because mills are closed, reported 300,000 chickens too young for market.

Anne's Assailant Sent to Hospital

LONDON (AP) — Ian Ball, a 26-year-old former mental patient, pleaded guilty today to attempting to kidnap Princess Anne and was ordered confined indefinitely in a mental hospital. Lord Widgery, Britain's Lord Chief Justice, said he considered sentencing Ball to life imprisonment but decided against this in view of medical evidence proving that Ball is mentally ill. Ball, an unemployed drifter, also pleaded guilty to four other charges in connection with the incident that occurred two months ago. Ball told a preliminary court hearing that he attacked Anne and her bodyguard, Capt. Mark Phillips, on March 20 to protest what he called Britain's lack of facilities for treating mental illness. Neither the princess nor her husband were injured.

Canada's Inflation Tops U.S.

OTTAWA — The Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development reported yesterday that the rate of inflation in Canada was 10.4 per cent, compared to 10.3 per cent in the United States for the 12-month period ending in March.

Both countries fared better than the United Kingdom, where the rate was 14.5 per cent.

The OECD figures released yesterday to the end of March show an inflation rate of 24 per cent in Japan, 13.2 per cent in Australia, 12 per cent in Italy, and more than 30 per cent in Greece, Ireland and Portugal.

Denturists Unhappy With Proposed Law

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon Smith, public relations counsel for the Denturists Society of Ontario, has termed "ludicrous" provincial legislation that will allow denturists to fit full plates but not partial dentures.

In a letter Tuesday to Health Minister Miss Hilkene Miller, Mr. Smith accused him of introducing the new legislation governing denturists without honoring a commitment to meet with the society's executive board beforehand.

The bill, introduced last week, softens previous legislation that forbad denturists to work except under direct supervision of a dentist and set stiff penalties for failure to comply.

The new legislation says denturists may fit plates when no live teeth are involved in the procedure. However, when making partial plates, a denturist must work under the supervision of a dentist.

Mr. Smith said the bill is hostile to denturists, designed to placate dentists, and offers little relief to the public "who have been victimized for so many years by excessively high charges for denture services rendered by dentists."

Mr. Smith said that making and fitting full dentures is just as difficult as making a partial denture.

Ethnic Groups Alarmed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Reaction to the Quebec Liberal government's bill making French the province's official language has ranged from disappointment to hostility.

A section of the bill would repeal legislation which now prepaths all parents to decide the language of instruction for their children. Under the bill, children of immigrants who speak neither French nor English would be directed to French schools.

"That is not the answer," said Nicolo Chiamarra, publisher of the Italian newspaper Il Citadino Canadese.

For Report on Proceedings in the Quebec Legislature, see Page 13

Anthony Bartakos, editor of the Greek magazine Reporter, said many immigrants find Greece only to be confronted with another "dictatorial action". Any government's language bill.

"The Greeks won't stand for this discrimination," Mr. Bartakos said, adding that he thought many Greeks would leave the province.

Rev. Paul Chan of th Canadian Chinese Cultural Centre said many educated Chinese left abandon Montreal if the legislation is passed.

"A lot of people here are from Hong Kong and their English is better than their French," he said.

Moira Flood Waters Enhance Enjoyment

The Moira in full spate is a pleasant place for paddling in the spring sunshine, unlike other rivers in Ontario that have gone out of control with the spring runoff. This group at Riverside Park in north Belleville, sitting on a rustic bridge over one of the park's small brooks, reported that the water was fine after the first few days of warm weather that followed weeks of rain and unseasonable cold.

Disaster Strikes Tonight

Belleville General Hospital will test its revised disaster plan tonight during a major Quinte Emergency Measures Organization exercise.

The event will simulate the crash of a large military aircraft in central west Belleville, and the drastic possible consequences to projects fires, explosions, property damage with dead and injured in the hundreds.

The simulation will also test Belleville's peacetime emergency plan and update key officials and workers in services that would be brought into play by such a disaster.

Such planning is not as farfetched as it might appear, Belleville Angus Duffy, QEMO co-ordinator.

CFB Trenton, headquarters of Air Transport Command, is nearby and its presence make the crash simulation "appropriate for the exercise."

The potentials of a peacetime emergency disaster are on the increase," says the co-ordinator. "The first response to disaster must be at the municipal level of government."

Unemployment Insurance Said Right, Not Charity

Unemployment Insurance is no charity but is paid for by the work sector, labor spokesman told the Belleville and District Employment Committee, last week.

But publicity on ripoffs creats public prejudice against a social protection plan that is well-policed, said Reginald Loader, veteran Quinte-area union representative.

"I think you can become blased by publicity. I think the Unemployment Insurance (personnel) are policing well is their area," said Mr. Loader. A member of the committee, Loyalist College governor and a vice-president of the International Jewelry Workers Union.

Mr. Loader made the remarks at some committee members pondered the willingness of people to work while they were being helped by unemployment insurance.

"But you're not helping them. They're paying for it. Unemployment Insurance is not a charity," said Mr Loader.

He admitted there were abuses caused by people making false claims on a plan to which both workers and industry subscribe.

"I think we get prejudiced by the few violations at the top," added Mr. Loader

But there also were "abuses in other areas" involving industry and government programs he changed.

Some Canadian plants use government training plans as a source of cheap labor, said Mr. Loader.

Ed Buckley, Loyalist College retraining division director, said unemployment insurance and other social benefit schemes are designed to keep cash circulating.

Economists blamed one cause of the 1930s depression on the fact that money was withdrawn from circulation by those "who controlled it." But as a result, many small businesses — local grocers, landlords — were actually supporting those out of work in the Great Depression.

"This has all disappeared — but people have forgotten about that," said Mr. Buckley.

Questions on the social affects of unemployment insurance were raised by Elgin Orsm,— deputy-reeve Mosksquash-Wicklow - Bangor.

Deputy-reeve Gordon Jones, of Marmora-Lake townships, said he'd heard of a case recently in Marmora where a local resident had offered several young men on unemployment insurance $1 an hour to level cement. He was refused.

Local Group Buys Plaza

The east-end Belleville Plaza, erected more than a decade ago as the city's first shopping mall is now locally owned.

Purchase of the east end plaza from Fides Investments of Switzerland by a "small group," of local participants was confirmed today by Sidney Spiegel, Belleville waste metal dealer and developer.

Mr. Spiegel declined to name the other principals involved in the purchase.

"Our basic intent is to revitalize the plaza," said Mr. Spiegel.

Today Mr. Spiegel said only that discussions were under way with possible new tenants and that the new owners were "seriously considering" the idea of enclosing the plaza.

Two years ago the Belleville owners announced that the east end plaza would be enclosed in keeping with modern day shopping mall trend and plans for the work were said to be under way. At the same time it was stated that negotiations were under way for a major tenant.

The new owners take some pride in the fact that the east end plaza built by outside interests and later foreign owned had been purchased by a local group.

"It's like buying back a bit of Canada," he said "Basically it is the other way around."

Sidney Budget Up

Sidney ratepayers will be paying more in tax dollars in 1974 following a council decision to increase township expenditures by $288,599 to an all-time high of $1,549,312 this year.

During a 3½-hour budget meeting — Tuesday, council increased the general levy applied to farm and residential property owners by 1.3 mills— up from 30.6 mills in 1973. Commercially assessed properties face a general levy increase of 2.5 mills over last year's 37.5 mills.

Hastings County public school supporters will be footing bill in the annual dip into taxpayers' pockets.

School taxes are up by 8.3 and 9.3 mills for farm and residential, and commercially assessed properties respectively.

Separate school supporters are in for smaller increases as residents face a 2.2 mill increase and commercial properties bear a 2.7 mill hike.

In 1973, public school supporters were charged 66.4 mills on each $1,000 assessment on farm and residential properties. Commercial properties owners were assessed at 73.7 mills on top of the general levy of 37.5 mills.

The largest share of this years' increase is now formed by the hike in school taxes, township treasurer Robert Vandervoort told councillors Tuesday.

In the face of higher school taxes, councillors felt the line should be held on increases in the general levy.

Provided no further changes are made, council will ratify Tuesday's decision when it signs an enabling bylaw next week. At present, few details of the budget are available.

In budget considerations, council set aside $50,000 for an arena and $40,000 for a firehall. As yet these sums have not been applied toward actual land acquisition or construction. Council decisions as to need and location have yet to be made.

This year's approximate $.5 million budget is up from $1,230,713 expenditures in 1973 and $1,272,600 expenditures in 1972. Largest share of 1974 tax dollars will go toward the county ($232,450) and school boards' ($692,005 levies.

Ratepayers in Ameliasburg will be hardest hit by the mill increases. Public school supporters bear an over all 16.8 mill boost while separate school supporters face a smaller overall 10.7 mill increase.

The increase for Ameliasburg residents consists of the higher cost of sewage disposal (a 7 mill hike) and a smaller .4 mill increase in the cost of lighting streets. This comes on top of school board's levies.

Nine other Sidney township streets can expect changes in mill rates. Only three — Gorwin Acres, Dorthy Drive Extension, and Bayliss Drive — will see decreases in their mill rates as street lighting costs fall.

Cyclists Collide

A 13-year-old Belleville youth was treated at the Belleville General Hospital for minor cuts and bruises early yesterday evening after the motorcycle he was driving collided with a bicycle, ridden by Daniel McGrath, 11, of 205 Bellecrest, on the Fourth Concession Sidney, just west of Highway 14.

PC Terry Lewis, of the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police reports that Steven Frederick Bowen, 17, of 97 College Street, was driving his motorcycle west along the Fourth Concession Rd., around 4:45 p.m. when the accident occurred.

Miles was forced to drop his motorcycle on the roadway when the accident occurred.

Total damage arising from the incident was approximately $30.

Prince Edward Budget Cut

PICTON — Prince Edward County council has adopted a 1974 budget with a reduction of approximately one-third of a mill in its general mill rate.

Chairman of council's finance and personnel committee and reeve of Wellington, Robert Boyce, last night reported council was "surprised and happy" that the budget was cheap and added that one-third of a mill represents "a lot of money" on the county rate.

The general mill rate this year is 3.2236 and the road mill rate 1.87636.

The combined rate is 5.09631 mills. A mill is valued at approximately $127,000.

Total revenue to be raised from the municipalities is $640,521. Of this amount $220,000 is for roads and $410,521 for general purposes.

Ameliasburgh township this year pays the largest proion of the total, 21.74 per cent. The town of Picton will pay 19.50 per cent and Hallowell township 48.76 per cent. Sophiasburgh is responsible for 13.47 of the total and Hillier for 6.36 per cent.

Largest single grant of the 1974 budget was $154,000 to Wellington and District arena.

A total of $30,000 in grants was given to other Prince Edward organizations, libraries and museums.

The Prince Edward Centre Commission in 1973 received a grant of $10,000 and in 1974 will obtain $14,500.

Marysburgh and Wellington museums, each granted $100 in 1973 last year, in 1974 will receive grants of $200 each.

The new budget contains $187,028 for construction of the county home for the aged and $651,000 for roads.

The welfare budget for 1974 is $222,800 in comparison with $382,500 budgeted in 1973.

In 1974, $20,000 has been budgeted for the Prince Edward County museum in comparison with $30,000 budgeted in 1973. Actual amount spent was $15,781 in 1973.

Bodies Recovered

PICTON — Provincial police divers have recovered the bodies of two Prince Edward County men who drowned Monday night when their rowboat overturned in the Bay of Quinte.

Dead are Keith L. Hineman, 26, and Gerry Ralph Richards, 24, both of RR 3, Demorestville.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said Hineman's sister-in-law witnessed the accident and immediately notified police.

Police said Hineman and Richards were fishing in the area when their boat overturned and they failed to swim to shore.

The fatal accident occured in the bay off High Shore Road, about two miles off Highway 14 on County Road 14. A witness alerted police and a search for the bodies was begun early Tuesday.

Bayshore Study Proposed

Within the next month, Thurlow council will look at ground rules proposed by the Moira River Conservation Authority to cover a study of the Bay of Quinte shoreline.

Originally proposed by Belleville for its own waterfront, the study area has been expanded by the authority to include an area bounded by the Tyendinaga township line, Bayside and Highway 401.

Authority resource manager Bryan Boyce said last week, "the study would provide an idea on how to utilize the waterfront for the purpose of water control, public access to water, and improvement of parkland and necessary facilities associated with water."

Mr. Boyce requested council to consider the inclusion of the township in the study area.

Wood Ducks Like Chimney

WELLINGTON — At least one pair of Wood Ducks have an appreciated new nesting box program under way in Prince Edward County by the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority.

Wilfred Marvin of RR 1, Wellington, became curious last week when he noticed a pair of Wood Ducks perched atop his honey house. Upon investigation, he discovered a Wood Ducks nest inside the chimney some 12 feet down.

The chimney, constructed of 12-inch drainage tile, is located approximately 60 feet off the highway and about the same distance from Mr. Marvin's house.

Prince Edward County naturalist, Terry Sprague, states that such nesting behavior among Wood Ducks is uncommon and may very well be the first observation of its kind in the province.

Nomination Next Week

Nomination meeting for Northumberland-Durham New Democratic party will be held in Brownsville May 29 at 7:30 p.m.

Four candidates, one unofficial, are seeking the nomination for the riding. The three who have declared themselves are: Tina Gibbs of RR 3, Bowmanville, Elma Parker of Cobourg and Hugh Jonney of RR 4, Warkworth, teacher at Campbellford High School.

Nomination Postponed

The Liberal nomination meeting for the federal riding of Prince Edward — Hastings has been postponed from May 27 to June 3.

Hugh O'Neil, director of the riding association, said today that the difficulty of obtaining speakers was the main reason for the postponement.

The meeting will be held in the Bata Recreation Centre at 8 p.m. Monday, June 3.

Parajumpers To Compete

TRENTON — An international, precision parachute jumping competition will be staged at CFB Trenton's Mountain View airport this June.

Complete details were not available but teams of armed forces jumpers are expected from several North American locations. A spokesman for the Canadian Armed Forces said only military personnel would be involved in the meet.

At least two three-man teams are entered from the United States Air Force.

The competition involves jumping to precise locations marked on the ground while carrying packs of gear at various heights, simulating working conditions. Jumpers will also be required to open their chutes at specific altitudes.

CFB Trenton jumpers have been practising in recent days in preparation for the competition to be held in the first week of June.

A banquet at the base's yacht club will conclude the exercise.

Three Seek Nomination

Mrs. Grace Stalker of RR1, Bath, today announced she will be a Liberal candidate for the riding of Frontenac-Lennox and Addington in the July 8 election.

Mrs. Stalker is a member of the provincial executive of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture and past president of the local federation. Ross Baker of RR1, Arden and William Murray of Amherstview are also running for the nomination.

William (Bud) Acton of RR1, Napanee was nominated by the New Democratic Party for the Frontenac-Lennox and Addington riding. He is a teacher at Queen Elizabeth Collegiate and Vocational Institute in Kingston.

The riding has been held since 1963 by Douglas Alkenbrack of Napanee, a Conservative.

DONALD THRUSH will offer a pre-retirement course this fall under the sponsorship of Loyalist College's extension division. A retired auditor with the provincial government's retail sales tax division, Mr. Thrush will initiate the one-night-a-week seminars on the problems of retirement, including financial planning, personal and social relations, services available to retirees and problems of adjustment. The course will be offered at the former Queen Alexandra School in Bellville in two 12-week sessions.

He was presented the honor at his home by Gordon Bailey, Grand Master Masonic Lodge of Ontario, accompanied by Harry McMullen, of Holloway, Grand Master of Stirling Lodge and Bob Hoard and Gerald Irvine.

Venturers Meet Challenge

PLAINFIELD — The Plainfield Venturers group overcame a three-day challenge they were told they couldn't handle this past long weekend.

Six boys aged 16-16 and two leaders invaded their realm down Skootamatta Lake and Skootamatta River, past Flinton and Actinolite to their destination in Tweed in three days. Leading the group were Phil Isaacs and Jim Stewart.

Mr. Stewart was told by dock operators the trip could not be made in the time available. The operator told the group at least five days would be required.

The team hauled 50-pound packs and four canoes over 24 portages measuring an average of a quarter mile in order to meet the time limit.

Editor Protests Secret Grants

PICTON—Managing editor of the Picton Gazette Alan Capon Tuesday addressed Prince Edward County council to object to caucus discussions of grant allocations.

Mr. Capon said that he feels the acceptance or rejection of grants "a genuine consideration."

He added that he has attended approximately eight other county councils, boards of sessions and grants are discussed in public. The press is permitted to hear the reasons for accepting or refusing each grant.

Mr. Capon pointed out that probably many persons will be curious about the $154,000 grant to Wellington arena as it represents about one-and-a-half mills on Picton's tax rate.

"This has been procedure and I have never heard it questioned before," said county warden Keith MacDonald in reference to the caucus meeting to discuss grants.

Sophiasburgh reeve George Foster suggested that critics of this system might run for office in December.

The warden suggested that Mr. Capon discuss at open session next year when grant allocations are handled.

Wellington reeve Robert Boyce confirmed that the present system has been used for a number of years and grant figures are made available to the press when the budget is presented in council.

"What would your comments have been if you hadn't seen the grant to Wellington arena" he asked.

Mr. Capon replied that this had nothing to do with his remarks as he had taken a similar position last year and had written a newspaper article about the caucus session at that time.

"It's not the arena, I personally favor it," he commented.

Arnold Brown Salvationists' Canada Leader

LONDON (CP) — Commissioner Arnold Brown, 60, second in command of the Salvation Army around the world, has been appointed territorial commander of the movement in Canada and Bermuda.

Brown, who moved to Canada from Britain as a child with his Salvation Army officer parents, came here as chief of public relations for the Army's international headquarters in 1964 and became chief of the staff secretary in 1968, second highest officer — in 1969. He previously had been national youth officer in Canada from 1962 to 1964 and before that its national publicity officer.

In his new post, he will succeed General-elect Clarence Wiseman, another Canadian who takes over as the Army's world leader in July.

Brown's appointment takes effect July 18.

He succeeds Martin Hamelock in this position. Mr. Dunlop, of Canty Distilleries, was chosen chairman at the annual meeting of the Prince Edward-Hastings section in Batawa last week.

Special commendation awards were given out to five area industries for no lost time for accidents in 1973. These industries are: Mobil Chemical; Benedict Procter in Trenton; Quaker Oats, Frozen Food Division, Trenton; Riverside Dairy Products, Trenton and Armbro Construction in Marmora.

Also given out were certificates marking the successful completion of the accident prevention fundamentals course held at Corby's.

The 11 successful participants are: Lorne Bailey and Oscar Schallegger, of Cableyue; Jack Caddick of Stewart-Warner; Jim Foreshaw and Earl Thibeault of Quinte secondary School; George Hamilton and Harry MacDonald of Northern Electric; Walter Ledbury of Crane Canada Ltd. in Trenton; Gerald Mann and Maurice Fager of Electric Motor Sales and Clark Thompson of Corby's.

A highlight of the annual meeting held at Batawa Community Centre was presentations to the four students of Prince Edward Collegiate in Picton who were runners-up in the school safety awareness provincial finals held in Toronto last month.

The four are Lee Foster, Eric Graham, Herb Pilwichenko, Don Lavelle, with Warren McPaul as the fifth man, Coach of the team was Roy Mowbrey.

Guest speaker of the night was Fred Hutterman, of management and leadership Training Ltd., who presents Dale Carnegie courses in Waterford. He spoke to the 60 people attending the meeting about attitudes and motivation.

Earlier in the day, the activities included the annual golf tournament at Pine Ridge Golf Course in Warkworth and a tour of the Warkworth Institution.

Farmers and Inflation

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan may have been right when he told a Bloomfield audience recently that farm prices must rise to keep farmers in balance, and that any thought of prices coming down is simply "pie in the sky."

At the same time we know that prices have been rising more swiftly and steeply than at any time in the past and that the hapless consumer is having to perform financial gymnastics to keep up with the inflationary cycle.

Mr. Whelan speaks of food prices in Canada as being relatively low hitherto, and that they must now go up. No need to tell us that of course, for they have been going up "like crazy," as the saying goes.

There was a curious contradiction in the minister's Bloomfield remarks. On the one hand he said that Canadians, on the average, spend less of their income on food than people of other countries. On the other, he referred to the growing demand for food in a world that is far outstripping the concept of zero population growth — there will be an anticipated increase of one billion persons in the next 15 years. How come then, if people are eating less, there is so much obesity and incidence of heart disease occasioned in part by over-eating and lack of exercise?

But that is by the by. If the farmers are so badly off, and we must pay more to keep them going, we might have thought better of such a situation if the increases had not been so precipitate.

It is interesting to note an echo of Mr. Whelan's remarks on the dairy industry in a publication of the Food Prices Review Board. The minister says that net incomes in the industry have not been high enough and the Review Board, in its Canadian Dairy Industry — Short-term Perspectives, speaks of those same financial returns. It says they are low, especially in terms of alternative farm occupations.

"It must be clearly evident (the report continues) from the data we have presented on the reduction in the numbers of dairy farms and of milk production, that dairying has not been competitive. . .

"Secondly . . . the crisis in the dairy farm industry derives strongly from the lack of even moderately skilled labor at the farm or producer level. And we draw attention to the very large increases in the wage rates of farm workers. Historically, milk production in Canada has been dependent on a large number of poorly paid family labor particularly in Quebec. Those days have come to an end. . ."

So too, if we are to accept the minister's plain talk, have the low low prices he claims we were enjoying until recently. At least it is good to have it straight from the horse's mouth (if Mr. Whelan will pardon the phrase). At the same time consumers reeling under the inflationary juggernaut would be happier if the increases that prove from every side (food being only one example) had been brought on more gradually.

Furthermore, the buying public would feel a great deal better if there had been evidence of more government foresight in these matters — (the fuel crisis is another example). And lastly — and this is ominously what the current election is all about — there can be little confidence in a government which shrugs off inflation as a phenomenon that is international and therefore we must swim with the tide. Unfortunately this is one tide that may not lead on to fortune.

Anguish

Writing of the sled dogs and other sounds of an Arctic night, in a recent issue of Weekend Magazine, Alan Hustak of Pinrdy speaks in his sensitive way of "a faint sigh just outside my tent, the whisper of a sadness, joined by a gurgling moan, swelling into a many-voiced howl that shivered my spine into gooseflesh. It was the red dogs. They didn't care if I slept or not." All this is a very far cry from the Middle East and from Ireland, but we detect in such words an analogy with events there — and not just a "whisper," but a torrent of grief in those tormented places.

Can He Sustain It ?

Stanfield's Barbs Hit Home As Government Toppled

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — In his seven years in Parliament, Conservative Leader Stanfield never came through with such impact as he did the day New Democratic Leader Lewis pulled out the socialist prop from under Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's tottering government.

It was a Stanfield the Commons never had seen or heard before. Articulate. Fired up. Powerful voice projection. And this time, tough.

It was a Stanfield, too, who never has appeared on television or an election platform.

It was a new Stanfield, and if this is the Stanfield who now goes out across the country campaigning for vote, he could be a Stanfield to command a winning majority in the Commons.

Just listen to him, on that last day of life of the dying Trudeau government as he pronounced the death rites.

Stanfield: This is the government that still maintains it has a contingency plan for an emergency... evidently two-figure inflation is not emergency enough for this government ... so I just want to say that this House has a contingency plan too for getting rid of such governments.

(Interruption of triumphant roars from the Tories and cries of Liberal anger.)

Stanfield: There sits a government whose essential message is that inflation is an international problem which somehow falls domestically under provincial and municipal jurisdiction. Their message of course is absurd. But worse, it is a message of despair.

Stanfield: This is a sickening thing to happen to our country, and the responsibility for this sickness growing to epidemic proportions rests clearly on the government.

(More uproar in the House.)

Stanfield: These gentlemen in the government who like to call other people bigots, rednecks, nobodies —

— Prime Minister Trudeau: Nonentities.

(Interesting interjection this, of Mr. Trudeau's. For it was he, on the floor of the Commons, who called members of Parliament — including his own Liberals — "nobodies." And it was the Prime Minister who branded former British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett a "bigot." But what could hurt the Liberals more than anything this time, in the personal sense, was the election night outburst last time of Energy Minister Macdonald, who in anger and frustration lashed out at his own electors in his Toronto riding of Rosedale. As he watched, that October night in 1972, the former fat Liberal majority shrink to a paper-thin minority and his own vote totals fall, he blamed it all on what he publicly, on radio and television, berated as "rednecks and backbashing bigots." He apologized the next day, but his words, remaining on tape, still haunt him and will pursue Liberal candidates in this election, especially in the Toronto-Metro area constituencies on which ultimate victory or defeat may hinge.)

Stanfield: Yes, these petulant gentlemen who like to call other people bigots, rednecks, nobodies, who like to say: If you won't play it our way, you won't play at all, these desperate temporary occupants of the Treasury Benches, have demanded their last ransom and have uttered their last threat. Any shred of credibility or integrity that remains has surely been consumed in the fires of their own vituperation, scorched earth policy ...

Stanfield: The Prime Minister views this as regrettable interruption of some undefined great process he thinks is underway. I see no point in prolonging a process which features the Transport Minister throwing up his hands and saying "It's a mess." I see no benefit to Canadians in prolonging the life of a government that looks at two-figure inflation and says that nothing can really be done about it.

(Conservative cheering; Liberal catcalls.)

Stanfield: We hope in a few hours to see the end of this tired and crumbling government. . .

An Honorable Member: Why a few hours?

Stanfield: I say a few hours because we have to give the Liberal Right Wing Government House time to all that sort of thing. It will be an end which I am confident will lead the country to a new and better beginning.

Tommy Douglas of the NDP: This government has had its chance. They have run out of ideas. They have run out of courage. I close with words which are well known in British parliamentary history ...

Vatican Traditions Rejected

Divorce Backed Convincingly in Italian Referendum

Montreal Gazette

Divorce, Italian style — or how to get rid of a spouse to whom one is legally glued for life — appears to have vanished for good in its homeland. By a convincing 3-to-2 margin with a big turnout, Italians have rejected the mandate of the Vatican and their largest political party to reaffirm by referendum their 3½-year-old law legalizing divorce.

In typical Italian fashion, it was done the hard way. Because of the wording of the referendum, those who favored divorce had to vote No and those opposed Yes — that is, yes or no on the abrogation (abrogazione) of the law. A recent poll indicated that 30 per cent of Italians did not know what abrogazione meant, but no doubt they have learned fast.

The vote will surely have wide political implications, even if it has little effect on family life. Only about 70,000 Italians a year, many fewer than originally expected, have been obtaining divorces under the still stringent law, and the number is tapering off. Nevertheless, the issue is a highly emotional one that has become a focus of frustration and a national stigma, like the language issue in Canada.

Numerous bombings scarred the campaign, in which divorce became equated with Communism and permissiveness — there's an unlikely combination — and in opposition with fascism. Partly this was because the Christian Democrats' only ally against divorce was the MSI neo-fascist party. All the other parties of the present coalition — the Socialists, Social Democrats, and the Republicans — favored keeping the present law.

The outcome is a serious blow for the Christian Democrats, who have dominated Italian politics since the second World War but who now seem to have made a serious misjudgment. The Italian people have taken a small yet decisive step leftward and voted to keep their noses out of their neighbors' business. The problem now will be to take a look at the real issues of inflation, crime, and labor unrest.

Legacy of Revolution

Portuguese Women Writers Gain Freedom

The Christian Science Monitor

The aftermath of the Portuguese revolution has been the dropping of the case against three leading women writers who have become known as "the three Marias."

In the case, which dragged on for months, was in fact one of the harbingers of the revolution, particularly as it affects — and is likely to affect — Portuguese women.

The Marias are joint authors of a book entitled "New Portuguese Letters" — an anthology of letters, poems and essays. They said they had sought through the book to draw attention to the disadvantaged status of women in the male-dominated society of authoritarian Portugal. The former regime accused them of offending against public morals.

Their trial attracted wide attention elsewhere in Western Europe, particularly among women's liberation movements.

Now the Marias have been acquitted. Commenting on their acquittal, one of them, Maria Barreno, said: "April 25 (the day of the military coup) was the beginning of everything. Now we can talk freely."

How far-reaching the effects of the revolution will be for Portuguese women has yet to be shown. But the long-frustrated women's rights movement at last can come out into the open under the favorable wind of freedom now blowing through the country.

Teens Are Introduced To Politics

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to take this opportunity to inform Bellevillians of the wonderful progrem that their Rotary Club Members have set up for the youth in this community. I refer to the "Mayor of the Week" program recently sponsored by this organization.

Being fortunate enough to participate in this experience I would like to express my sincere gratitude to the Rotary Club. I was exposed to the responsibilities of municipal governments and I learned, at city hall, a type of knowledge which is not taught in school. Previous to my week I was unaware of the vital importance that each and every municipal member plays in the welfare of a city.

I had the pleasure of being introduced to all the various departments heads and learning about their functions.

The council meeting thoroughly impressed me to the point where I found it hard to keep quiet during suggested resolutions.

Having trust placed upon me I attended a caucus Budget Meeting and might I add that our "way" is in good hands. How can anyone criticise how the tax dollar is spent before they have the facts?

The Marians realize that today's youth are tomorrow's future. They have given us the opportunity to experience civic government now in order that we gain a clearer understanding of municipal affairs before defeated upon it as a future ambition.

I hope that the people of this city realize the wonderful insight we have been given. It is my view as an unfortunate work for me. I, for one, have concluded that I like it for me and it took that one week of exposure to convince me of my decision.

Three cheers for the Rotary Club and City Hall.

Performance Of 'Elijah' Is Praised

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Too much praise cannot be given Robert Reid, his choir, soloists, and instrumentalists for their recent, inspiring performances of Mendelssohn's "Elijah".

This group very successfully manages to defy all musical traditions of this district. There is no doubt in my mind that America Act 107 years ago today—in 1867—and Canada became the first dominion of the British Empire the following July 1. YMCA Facilities in Cambridge Need About $500,000 to Survive

Cambridge Reporter

The bankruptcy of the Cambridge YMCA is the culmination of a long history of limited management, faulty planning and, perhaps, unimaginative programming. As in most businesses if corrective measures are not taken sooner, they will have to be taken later and at greater cost.

From a strict business point of view, there should be no question about the soundness of such an investment or about the ultimate municipal responsibility for maintaining the Y. The crisis does come at a time when there are many such demands on the tax dollar but, in the final analysis, few of them are as crucial to the vitality of the community as the survival of good Y programming.

The problem basically is that Y facilities have been permitted to deteriorate to the point that they are unmanageable for staff, unattractive to the clientele and uneconomical to operate.

Consider that a $500,000 investment to salvage a $1½ million physical plant and the social and recreational services it generates, the value of which is incalculable.

Oldest Fruit Is Still 'Top Banana'

The bananas is by far the most ancient of fruits with its origins tangled in antiquity in a way that not even the scholars have unravelled.

Old though the banana may be on this earth, there are always interesting new ways to serve the mellow fruit.

Quite different is a main-dish salad made with bananas. It's a brand new version of Chicken Salad, a classic well-liked by everyone. This new style Chicken Salad not only has the surprise ingredient of bananas in it but also another tropical fruit, the avocado. The dressing is mayonnaise with a touch of blue cheese.

Salad with Walnut Dressing

3 bananas
2 cups orange sections
2 apples, cubed
Salad greens

Peel bananas, cut into diagonal slices and mix with orange sections and cubed apples. Turn into bowl lined with salad greens and serve with Walnut Dressing. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Walnut Dressing

1 cup heavy cream
¾ cup ground walnuts
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon orange rind

Whip cream until stiff. Fold in walnuts, sugar and grated rind. Makes 2 cups dressing.

Chicken and Avocado Salad

1 cup mayonnaise
2 tbsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
2 tbsp. crumbled blue cheese
3 cups cut-up cooked chicken
2 cups chopped celery
4 bananas, in long slices
1 avocado, peeled and cubes

In a large bowl blend mayonnaise with lemon juice. Stir in salt, pepper and blue cheese. Add chicken and celery, mix well and chill. Just before serving, add bananas and avocado and mix lightly. Serve with salad greens. Makes 8 servings.

Honey Baked Bananas

2 tbsp. honey
2 tsp. lemon juice
½ tsp. grated lemon rind
2 firm bananas
1 tbsp. flaked coconut

In small bowl, combine honey, lemon juice and lemon rind. Peel bananas, cut in lengthwise halves and place in baking dish. Pour sauce over bananas and sprinkle coconut over all. Bake for 20 minutes in 375F oven. Serves 4.

Baked Banana Dessert

3 firm ripe bananas
2 tsp. cornstarch
2 tbsp granulated sugar
one-third cup orange juice
1 tbsp. butter or margarine
1 tbsp. brown sugar
one-third cup shredded coconut

Peel bananas and cut in half crosswise and then lengthwise. Arrange in a shallow buttered baking dish. Combine cornstarch, sugar and orgone juice. Pour over bananas, coating well with the mixture. Dot with butter or margarine. Sprinkle with brown sugar and coconut. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 F) 20 minutes or until bananas are tender and the sauce is slightly thick. Serve as dessert, warm and topped with whipped cream or with a small scoop vanilla ice cream.

Praline Baked Bananas

2 firm bananas
2 tbsp. brown sugar
1 tsp. lemon juice
2 tbsp. chopped pecans

Peel bananas and cut in lengthwise halves. Place in baking dish and sprinkle with brown sugar, lemon juice and pecans. Bake in 375F. oven 15 to 20 minutes. An easy dessert that is really impressive. Serves 4.

Walnut dressing makes a triumphant finish for a fresh fruit salad made with bananas, oranges and apples.

Imports Protested

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 20 members of the International Ladies Garments Workers' Union picketed the downtown Woodward's department store to protest increasing imports of women's and children's clothing. "The whole aim is to enthuse the consumer to buy Canadian goods in the clothing industry," said union business agent Ernie Mickoski.

Engagement

The engagement is announced of Nancy Ellen Mohr, daughter of Mrs. Lawrence Sutton of RR 3, Belleville and the late Jeremiah Daniel Moher, to Robert Andrew Murray, son of Mrs. Mary Murray and the late Alfred G. Murray. The marriage will take place Saturday, June 29 at 4 p.m. in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel.

Slapkauskas — Hanbidge

Jane Ellen Hanbidge and Vitas Benditas Slapkauskas exchanged wedding vows May 18 in a candlelight ceremony at Eastminster United Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Hanbidge, Belleville. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Slapkauskas, Belleville.

Rev. Alexander McDowell officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a chiffon over satin gown with stand-up collar and appliqued cuffs and trimmed with Alencon laces. Pink ribbons and white mums were in her hair and she carried white mums and carnations with pink stephanotis.

Pamela Broad attended the bride in a pink chiffon over silk dress with white lace trim. She carried pink carnations and white stephanotis.

The groom was attended by his brother Andrew Slapkauskas.

Proposal Dangerous

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Real Estate Board urged city council to reject a proposal for rent control. Maurice Park, board chairman, said such controls "would discourage new construction and the maintenance of existing housing stock." He quoted an Urban Development Institute official who said "worldwide evidence shows conclusively that rent controls . . . create a housing shortage and cause deterioration of existing housing."

Ann Landers

Give Children Time, Not Money

Dear Ann Landers: I heard you speak at a gathering recently. One sentence you uttered will stay with me forever. It really hit home because, like so many other parents, we have spoiled our children. You said, "The only thing kids get out of frequent gifts, usually handed to them on a silver platter, is the habit of receiving."

I know you are right, but how can parents say no to their children when money isn't a problem? Our kids see us buying luxury items for ourselves and naturally they feel that they have a right to them, too.

I grew up in a family that didn't have a pot to cook in or a window to throw it out of. It was easy for our parents to say no because we knew darned well we couldn't afford anything fancy. Nobody asked very often. What's the answer for the members of the affluent society?—Loaded And Vulnerable

Dear L. and V.: What's the question? Do kids really want everything they ask for? The answer is, "No, they don't."

An attorney I very much admired once said the greatest gift he ever received in his life was a note his dad gave him one Christmas. It read, "Son, this year I will give you 365 hours. One hour every day after dinner. We'll talk about whatever you want to talk about. We'll go wherever you want to go, play whatever you want to play. It will be your hour." That dad kept his promise and renewed it every year.

Time spent with a child is much more meaningful than any gift that can be bought in a store. It never wears out—and it costs nothing.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been running most of my 58 years—running away from painful childhood memories, running from one loveless marriage to another, running from hospital to hospital, operation to operation, lover to lover, job to job, city to city, pill to bottle, and even from psychiatrist to psychiatrist.

The last psychiatrist gave me the strength and courage to face the truth about myself. I was a lesbian.

I know you have been in combat with certain "authorities" who insist that homosexuality is not an illness. Well, for me it was.

Now that I have resolved my inner conflicts, I am functioning happily as a contented woman.

Keep plugging away for better mental health, Ann. So many frightened, stumbling people in this world need to know there is help for them. And when you tell them, they believe it.—Running No More

Dear R.N.M.: Your letter makes a point I've tried to get across repeatedly. People who feel they aren't making progress after eight or nine months of therapy should get another therapist. Not all psychiatrists hit it click with every patient. A competent psychiatrist often senses this even before the patient and will suggest another doctor. If he doesn't, however, and you really feel as if you're getting nowhere, ask him if he will help you make the change.

Confidential to Burning the Candle at Both Ends: Your letter was a masterpiece, but...you don't want advice, honey. You just want more wax.

Successful Living

You Are What You Eat

By DORIS CLARK

In a very real way, we are what we eat. You've heard that before, but did you know that it applies particularly to very small babies and very young children?

Here is what one authority on nutrition says about infant malnutrition and adult learning:

"Among the more serious effects of infant malnutrition is permanent damage to the central nervous system. A number of studies conducted in various countries have demonstrated that damage of the central nervous system is most pronounced on a diet deficient in protein but adequate in calories.

"The importance of the first few years of life can be appreciated when it is realized that the child's brain achieves 80 per cent of its adult weight by age three. The body reaches little more than 20 per cent of adult weight by age three.

While it is difficult to separate the complicating influences of social and psychological factors (such as lack of stimulation), it is clear that the learning ability of underprivileged children could be improved enormously through the provision of adequate diet in the early years.

Remedial school programs may prove useless if the damage has already been done.

This was considered important enough information, from Mr. Nevin S. Scrimshaw's article on the subject, to be requoted in the newsletter "Information", of the Canadian Association of Social Workers.

Dear Doris: After being married for 20 years to a man I despised, that man died. Not long after, I took up with a boy I had known in my teens. We found we were made for each other. He had never married.

I thank God for this miracle. He is fond of my children and I don't think there is any way in which we could be happier, even though we do have hard times. He is 52 but looks younger, has ambition and energy for two men, but has learned to be careful.

He doesn't care for my religion (I'm Anglican) and I don't care for his (Baptist). But I go with him to church. He says I can go to my church if I want to, but it is several miles away so I only go when my sister drives us.

I Believe In Miracles.

Dear I Believe: Well, it was a miracle and it did happen to you.

As for your difference in religion, look at it this way: Our Christian faith springs from the same teachings those of Christ, even though in the centuries following Christ's birth, we have split up into a number of denominations, each with its own way of doing things. When we are brought up in a certain kind of formal religion, this is where we feel at home.

It is great if you can understand this about each other.

'The Troubles' Separate Friends

BELFFAST (RRster) — Two middle-aged women call them Marie and Dorothy—illustrate the gruesome irony and tragedy of a Northern Ireland torn by years of communal strife.

They work together and are close friends. Both are articulate and well-groomed. They live within two miles of each other but would not dare to visit each other's homes because they are terrified of what could happen if they did.

For Marie is a Roman Catholic while Dorothy is a Protestant. The two mile that divide their homes may as well be 100.

In a community where a small number daily use the bomb and the gun to further its urban war, Catholics and Protestants do not lightly go into each other's neighborhoods, let alone homes.

And although the people of Northern Ireland are peace-loving and good-humored, the lives of Marie and Dorothy are dominated by the great divide.

Eighteen months ago British troops burst into Marie's flat in the republican stronghold of Andersonstown and took away two of her fourteen-age sons. She did not see them again for eight months.

They were interned as guerrilla suspects because they had been photographed by the army at the funeral of a young Irish Republican Army (IRA) gunman who had been shot in an exchange with troops.

Marie swears that neither was in any way involved with the IRA.

"They went to the funeral because they had grown up with the dead boy. It's a tradition all over Ireland that friends and neighbors take part in funeral processions."

Dorothy knew that Marie's sons had been interned and believed without question that they were innocent.

"If they were associated with the IRA their mother would have known about it. There's a lot more to it than just keeping a gun in the house. I've met the boys and they are not villains."

Both women agree that the gunmen and bombers on either side are people who in any event would have been killed.

"They've never done a day's work in their lives and they never have any intention of doing so," said Marie. "The troubles are pennies from heaven as far as they are concerned.

"If you can stop funds from reaching the IRA and the UDA (Ulster Protestant extremist 'Ulster' Defence Association) then you are half way to solving the problem."

The women agree to differ on whether the British army should stay. Marie echoed the widening belief here that as the army has failed to contain the problem it might just as well pull out and leave the province to work out its own future.

Dorothy was adamant that the troops should stay. "If they are withdrawn now, the two sides would be at each other's throats immediately. There would be a bloodbath."

The most saddening aspect of the relationship between these two friends is their inability to meet at a social level.

Said Marie: "I remember my mother shopping in Dorothy's street 30 years ago. I wouldn't dare show my face there now. If I went to Dorothy's home I would be more frightened for her than myself. The neighbors would talk, and that could lead to anything."

How would they know she was Catholic? Marie pointed to the gold crucifix around her neck. "I'm damned if I am going to hide that," she said.

Until Jurors Punish Guilty Rape Crimes Will Continue

BOSTON (AP) — Superior Court Chief Justice Walter McLaughlin delivered a scathing denunciation of jurors' attitudes toward rape victims after a jury acquitted the defendant in a rape case Friday.

"I am reluctantly coming to the conclusion, whether it is the permissive society or what we are living in, at least as far as jurors are concerned, rape is no longer a crime," McLaughlin said from the bench after the jury of nine men and three women found a 27-year-old man guilty of raping a 22-year-old secretary.

The prosecution had maintained that the woman had met the defendant in a singles bar and had been coerced into accompanying him to his apartment where he forced her into a bedroom and raped her.

"You had two responsible citizens, persons of integrity and principles, who testified before you that they heard screaming there for 20 minutes," McLaughlin said to the jury after the verdict had been returned.

"Can it be, ladies and gentlemen, that you believed the screaming, terrified girl, with bloodcurdling calls, consented to the advances of this defendant?" he asked.

"Rape is going to continue until jurors by their verdicts convict and punish, when the evidence is overwhelming, as I think it was in this case.

"Girls don't report rape for the humiliation involved in it, the degradation they go through in a trial. When we have a trial, instead of trying the defendant, you make the poor girl the defendant."

Hearst Girl Faces Additional Charges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Hearst and two comrades faced additional charges today resulting from two alleged kidnappings as hundreds of lawmen pressed their search for the three they say make up the remnants of the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA).

Heavily-armed lawmen swarmed into the Los Angeles suburb of Van Nuys and into a neighborhood in Sacramento Tuesday night in response to reports by persons claiming to have seen Miss Hearst and two SLA members, William and Emily Harris.

Neither report proved to be true. FBI agent Charles Bates, in charge of this case since Miss Hearst was kidnapped 3½ months ago, appealed early today to the trio to surrender to avoid more bloodshed.

Meanwhile, an 18-year-old youth who said Miss Hearst and the Harrises kidnapped him last week was quoted today as saying the 20-year-old newspaper heiress told him she had joined the SLA of her own free will.

Tom Dean Matthews was quoted by Los Angeles Times as saying Miss Hearst told him she had nothing to do with her kidnapping, but decided to join forces with her abductors because of dissatisfaction with her father's sponsoring of a $5-million food giveaway that was to win her release.

Energy Board Case Is Considered Closed

CALGARY (CP) — Marshall A. Crowe, chairman of the National Energy Board, said Tuesday he considers closed the case of Donald J. Morgan, former head of the board's domestic policy branch who resigned following an allegation of conflict of interest.

"No legal action will be taken," Mr. Crowe said.

He also said in an interview that "to the best of my knowledge," no other board employees were involved in the affair.

Mr. Crowe said his office was told May 3 that a board employee might have been involved in a conflict-of-interest transaction.

"We conducted an internal investigation immediately," called Mr. Morgan to my office on May 6 and he admitted that in November, 1972, he did make a transaction. He also gave me his verbal resignation at that time."

Regional Parole Boards To Start Work in July

OTTAWA (CP) — Parole will start wearing a new face in July when five new regional parole boards start hearing applications across the country.

In preparation, 10 newly-appointed board members are holding meetings this week with William Outerbridge, 43, new chairman of the national parole board, and other board members.

The meetings are determining terms of reference for two-member boards that will operate in the Atlantic provinces, Quebec, Ontario, the Prairies and British Columbia.

These boards will deal mostly with applications from prisoners under provincial jurisdiction—those serving less than two years—and from persons serving sentences for relatively minor crimes in federal institutions.

Major cases, such as crimes of violence, will still be dealt with by the central board in Ottawa.

In a recent interview Mr. Outerbridge said the board's more experienced members will sit for a time with the new members in the regions.

Ford, Stelco Asked To Explain Prices

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said Tuesday he has asked Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. and the Steel Company of Canada Ltd. (STELCO) to explain recent price increases on their products.

He told the legislature in reply to opposition questions that he has not talked to oil companies about their increases, but is not ruling out the possibility.

However, the premier said he has not sought to requisition company books "and I don't intend to do so."

Outside the legislature, Mr. Davis said he has had no replies to his request late last week for a detailed account of the nature and reasons for increases."

He is considering tabling the information in the legislature when it is received.

Opposition members continued to blast the government for its part in the federal-provincial oil pricing agreement reached last March.

Energy Minister Darcy McKeough told the House last week that Ontario agreed to a new price without fully understanding the ramifications.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon asked Tuesday for government action "in the next few weeks" to cushion gasoline-price increases through reduction of the provincial gasoline tax.

Gasoline prices last week jumped by between nine and 14 cents.

The premier said any suggestion that Ontario intends to reduce gasoline prices at the pumps would be "unfair" to the consumer.

The province received no additional revenue from the $8.55-a-barrel oil price.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, suggested that the premier ask the oil companies to restrict their increase for gasoline, to eight cents a gallon.

The NDP leader also asked the government to scrutinize food companies and major retailers in light of food price increases reported last week by the Ontario Food Council.

The council's market basket of 147 consumer items this month cost $82.13, up from $78.49 in April.

McNie Is Given Role In Manpower Control

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis has appointed a cabinet minister to act as chairman of a committee to co-ordinate manpower policies on the Federal-provincial level.

Mr. Davis announced the decision to the legislature Tuesday, giving the new role to Jack McNie, 53, minister without portfolio.

He said the province faces significant changes in the 1970s in its economic priorities, and the committee is important enough to be headed by a cabinet minister.

The committee, was created earlier this year.

"It's a recognition by the premier that manpower planning presents an unusual problem today," Mr. McNie said later in an interview.

Blaze Damage $30,000

Belleville Firefighters spent slightly more than an hour and a half extinguishing a blaze that destroyed Bob's Auto Body Shop, 31 Geddes St., late yesterday afternoon.

The fire, which according to Gene Flunder, a Belleville Insurance adjuster, caused an estimated $30,000 damage started in the storage section of the one floor, wood frame building just as the company's employees were preparing to close the shop for the night.

No one was injured in the blaze but at least four customers' cars that were stored in the garage, were destroyed.

Deputy Fire Chief Bob Emerson, said that the fire had spread rapidly and had engulfed most of the building by the time firefighters arrived at the scene at 5:17 p.m.

Firefighters who manned two pumpers from the Moira Street West fire hall poured water on the blaze until 6:55 p.m.

Fire Inspectors Paul Stephenson and Reg Christopher were at the scene this morning trying to determine the cause of the blaze.

Witnesses at the fire yesterday said that they believed the fire had started in a section of the building in which paint and paint thinner were stored.

Firefighters were recalled to the fire scene for 20 minutes to extinguish a few "hot spots" in the building rubble around 7:05 p.m.

Garage Destroyed

A fire that is believed to have started in a paint storage room, completely destroyed Bob's Body Shop, at 11 Geddes Street, late yesterday afternoon. Employees at the shop were just preparing to close the shop for the evening when the flash fire started in the storage room to the right of the car bays and quickly spread to engulf the wooden frame building. Belleville insurance adjuster, Gene Flunder, was at the scene immediately after city firefighters had extinguished the blaze and he estimated damage to be in the vicinity of $30,000.

PUC Building Unsuitable Says Recreation Committee

The Belleville Public Utilities building on Front Street, soon to be vacated by commission personnel in favor of a new structure at College and Sidney Street, is not adequate for the needs of the city recreation department.

This is the feeling of recreation-areas committee members who Tuesday voted to inform utility commission members that the Front Street building does not meet requirements for a recreation department office and senior citizens' drop-in centre.

Several weeks ago it was proposed by the city parking authority that the Pinnacle Street site on which the present recreation building is situated be used for construction of a downtown parking garage and that the recreation department move over to the utilities building when it is vacated.

The public utilities commission has offered its building for sale to the city for $92,000.

But recreation committee members have reported heavy renovation costs and also say the multi-storey utilities structure would not be suitable as a senior citizen drop-in centre.

In the meantime, however, in view of the fact that their present quarters could be required for a parking garage, it is realized the department could still be required to find other quarters.

The recreation committee has plans for enlargement of their present building to provide additional space for senior citizens' activities.

These plans are now being held up pending a final decision on the part of the parking authority, and recreation committee members are toying with the idea of a complete new building on a different site.

One possible site for such a structure is the open area immediately east of the Memorial Arena which is now used as parking space for city hall staff.

Committee member Joan Godfrie said if the recreation department was forced to move from its present building she would prefer the arena area site for any new building.

Robert Phillips said he would not like to see a recreation building in the Front Street business area.

Alderman Paul Russell did not feel the PUC building would be suitable and Mayor Robin Jeffrey also questioned is adequacy.

Approval of the motion stating the PUC building is not adequate for recreation needs puts the matter back in the lap of the parking authority.

The recreation committee will now wait for further word from the parking authority before deciding on whether to go ahead with renovation plans for their present Pinnacle Street building.

Contract To AOCO

OTTAWA — AOCO Ltd. of Belleville has received an $18,000 federal contract to provide optical services during the 12 months ending March 31, 1975, the Department of Supply and Services announced this week.

It was one of 316 unclassified contracts — each worth $10,000 or more for a total value of $29,448,363 — awarded to Canadian firms during the week ended May 3.

Five Docks Unauthorized

Local boat owners with private docks at Victoria Park will not be allowed to install electrical outlets on utility poles near their boat slips.

This was the decision yesterday by members of the city parks board following discussion on the request of the boat owners.

The board was told that five local boat owners have private docks at Victoria Park for which they pay no space rental.

The city council harbor improvement committee would like to have the private docks removed and the city solicitor has been asked for advice as to the owners' rights.

Alderman Stu Meeks told the parks board that the harbor improvement committee would be asking for permission to install electric service outlets for the new floating docks that are now going in.

He said that hydro service facilities for docks were customary at marinas in other centres.

Alderman Meeks was assured that the recommendation disallowing installation of electrical outlets applied only to the five private docks.

At the same time it was pointed out the parks board must retain control over wiring any installations at Victoria Park or it could get into a mess.

One-tier Government Proposal

County Council Requests Delay in Restructuring

PICTON — Prince Edward County council has passed a resolution asking the provincial government not to pass legislation implemeoting restructured local government at this time.

The resolution requests a further study of the purpose and provision of more information regarding the last structure, government grants, administration costs and related details from county and provincial sources. This would permit Prince Edward residents to become better informed before making a decision on the proposed one-tier system.

Further dialogue between the province and the county also was urged in connection with making public the requested information.

The resolution was presented to council following a series of public meetings throughout the county to discuss the proposal for one-tier government.

It was noted that the general view at these meetings was that there had not been enough time to study the proposal and further information should be provided.

The provincial government required support of approximately two thirds of the county's population before legislation could be drafted to implement the proposals.

Approximately 600 Prince Edward residents attended the ten public meetings held throughout the county and failed to provide the required representation for the county's population of 20,000.

"Don't think for a moment that the majority of people are opposed to the one-tier system," said Wellington reeve Robert Boyce. "We have heard from less than three per cent."

He referred to the low turnouts at the public meetings and added that residents who did not attend apparently trusted their councillors to make the decision.

"They must have accepted the fact that it was only a step in the right direction in the county," he remarked.

Reeve Boyce said that the press had presented the proposal well but criticized individuals who "ran like chickens with their heads cut off" opposing it.

His referred to the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority and said that although it had passed no formal motion against the proposal, several members objected to it openly.

Reeve Boyce added that, hopefully, the ministry will "leave the door open" for Prince Edward and allow the requested time "before making this decision for us."

Picton deputy-reeve Larry Richardson expressed disappointment at the turnout for public meetings and suggested apathy is a major problem.

"Where are the people who are so concerned They sure as hell weren't at the meetings", he said.

Councillors Confused

PICTON — Prince Edward warden Keith MacDonald last night asked county councillors "what kind of salesman" they had been for a one-tier government.

"I don't know what you are trying to prove tonight," replied Bloomfield reeve Elsie Anderson. "Our citizens turned it down," he said.

Reeve Anderson added that he had not seen "eye to eye" had been for a one-tier system from the outset but could change his mind "tomorrow".

"It's no one's business in county council how I feel today," he asserted.

"I'm not going to be negative. When I get all the facts I could be the first one to change or I could think the way I think."

Warden MacDonald then asked reeve Anderson for five reasons why his municipality rejected the one-tier proposal.

The Bloomfield reeve replied that among the reasons were lack of cost estimates, insufficient time to study the brief, no understanding of grants and a fear of losing village boundaries.

Arena Rental Protested

Use of security police rather than firemen and police officers at league hockey games held at the Belleville Memorial Arena is to be investigated.

This was revealed at Tuesday's Recreation-Arena committee meeting, when Bellville Bobcats' minor hockey manager Jim Matthews appeared before the committee objecting increased arena rental charges set for the next season.

The committee is asking the Bobcats for $150 a game next season, or double the $75 rate paid last winter.

Mr. Matthews also objected to the current policy of the city handling game ticket sales, stating that the team would rather handle sales itself, and also to the late hour practice times allotted the players.

The team manager questioned the need or city firemen being on duty at the arena during hockey games.

He said firemen could not prosecute patrons for smoking in the arena, only tell smokers to put their cigarettes out. Firemen are paid $34 each for attendance at games.

Committee members agreed to allow Mr. Matthews to handle his team's ticket sales, but turned down a motion to reduce the arena rental to $125, per game.

Allocation of ice practice time was left to the arena manager.

Board Requests Reduced Speeds

Members of the Hastings-Prince Edward Roman Catholic Separate School Board would like to see the speed limit on roadways passing their city schools reduced to 15 or 20 miles an hour.

This was the request to the city traffic and light committee Tuesday from a delegation of board members headed by chairman Mrs. Lillian O'Connor and board administrator E. J. Cassidy.

In addition to the reduced speed limit in front of schools, the delegation asked for sidewalks on Treacy Street where the Genevieve Vanier school is situated and also on Sidney Street at Our Lady of Fatima School.

It was pointed out that all separate schools in the city are on heavily travelled roadways where the speed limit was not likely to be reduced, by the proposed council move to reduce speeds to 25 miles an hour on non-arterial roadways.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell told the meeting that school warning signs were now in place near city schools but the there was no reduced speed requirement.

He said that under the Highway Traffic Act, speed limits in front of schools and for 500 feet beyond school property speed limits could be reduced to 25 miles an hour.

The request of the separate school board was prompted by the death earlier this year of a young pupil from George Vanier school who was fatally injured when struck by a motor vehicle on her way home from school.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said the delegation's request for reduced speed limit in front of schools seemed valid and assured the traffic committee would determine what could be done under the highway traffic act.

Last Ride

For the past 33 years, Calvin Garfield (Gar) Matthews has worked with Canadian National, first as a fireman and then an engineer. He's the man who handles the passenger runs heading from Belleville to Toronto and Belleville to Brockville. In early May, Gar retired from the railways and now plans to keep busy fishing, hunting and enjoying his 11 grandchildren with his wife, Hilda. Here, Gar takes the Lakeshore Run 51 to Toronto out for the last time.

New Executive Members

The Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society introduced a new commdnity service at its monthly executive meeting last night. For the first time here, the Red Cross will have a First Aid Committee that will be responsible for conducting introductory and standard first aid courses in the area. Harry Hitchon and Fred Elliott, standing, two City Ambulance employees and qualified first aid instructors, will serve as chairmen of the committee. The Belleville Red Cross branch also introduced the new chairwoman for its water safety committee, Lesley Ingraham, right. Christine Virgilio, centre, will join the public relations committee. The new executive members discussed their duties with branch president Murray Workman at the end of last night's meeting.

"It's absolutely ridiculous that a town of 3,000 gets 30 persons out", commented the deputy-reeve.

Ameliasburgh reeve Russell Thompson observed that in his township only six persons at the public meeting where 250 attended voted to reject the proposal completely.

He said that the majority in attendance "did not say much" but did want more information.

Reeve Thompson pointed out that either a "yes" or "no" to the one-tier system would have been wrong unless the residents were fully aware of what the proposal meant.

County warden Keith MacDonald suggested that Prince Edward may not be given time to further consider the proposal but could be ordered into a regional government.

"My feeling on the one-tier system from the start was the hope that there would be some choice and a chance to better ourselves," replied reeve Thompson.

"I hope Queen's Park will give us this time and will allow us to stay as a county without our borders," remarked warden MacDonald.

Stanfield Opens Campaign Tuesday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield opened the election battle Tuesday with appearances at two Toronto nominating meetings.

But unlike the already-rolling campaigns of Prime Minister Trudeau and New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis, it was a low-key start.

The Conservative leader allowed almost no advance publicity and made no major announcements when he spoke in Don Valley and Scarborough East, both won by Conservatives in 1972.

He is not scheduled to start his campaign officially until Thursday in Winnipeg. Sources say his slow start is a deliberate strategy manoeuvre to avoid peaking before election day.

Mr. Trudeau, who visited Toronto, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island during the holiday weekend, carried his campaign into Quebec Tuesday, winning personal nomination at an enthusiastic convention in Montreal Mount Royal. He has held the seat by a wide margin since entering federal politics in 1965.

Mr. Lewis, on a 10-day, 10-city national tour, moved from Manitoba into Saskatchewan where he delivered an NDP policy speech on agriculture and answered questions on an open-line radio show.

Mr. Stanfield renewed his longstanding call for price and wage controls when he spoke to applauding supporters in Toronto.

He said more than half of all inflationary pressures are generated within the country, not from outside, and his proposed 90-day wage and price freeze followed by an 18-month to two-year period of lesser controls would help.

He also repeated an earlier pledge to invite former Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson to become an economic adviser if the Conservatives win power.

Mr. Henderson was a vocal critic of government spending when he was auditor-general.

The Conservative Leader also commented on Prime Minister Trudeau's weekend pledge to campaign "flat out" between now and July 8.

"I don't care how he goes out—as long as he goes."

Mr. Trudeau, addressing a partisan overflow crowd at the Mount Royal Town Hall, continued the fighting, punching style that marked the opening of his campaign.

Flats clenched and eyes blazing, he criticized both opposition leaders, Mr. Lewis in particular.

The NDP Leader claimed he wanted to fight inflation, the prime minister said, "yet he voted against a budget that would have cut the sales tax on clothing and shoes . . . and he voted against a budget increasing corporate taxes."

Mr. Trudeau, shouting into the microphone, said Finance Minister John Turner could have given the NDP leader "a copy of the Holy Bible wrapped in the Regina Manifesto" and the NDP still would have opposed the budget and forced an election.

Officials estimated that 1,500 people showed up to hear the prime minister. There were 850 seats in the main auditorium and the overflow watched on closed-circuit television downstairs.

Mrs. Trudeau again accompanied her husband and was given a standing ovation by the crowd.

Mr. Lewis, speaking at a nominating meeting in Assiniboia, Sask., urged farmers to vote for NDP agricultural policies.

"Canadian farmers are sick and tired of the off-again, on-again programs we've had under Tory and Liberal governments," he said in his first major campaign speech on agriculture.

"They are particularly tired of the antics of Otto Lang in his single-minded devotion to the destruction of the Canadian wheat board."

Mr. Lang, minister of justice, also is responsible for the board.

Mr. Lewis said Mr. Lang wants to end board control over domestic feed grains and "help ing him hammer and tongs are the Tories."

The federal government plans to implement a new policy Aug. 1 that will remove feed grains marketing from board control.

The NDP leader refused to predict how many seats his party will win but repeated that the time has come for people to look seriously at an NDP government. The NDP held 31 of 264 seats in the last Parliament.

Ontario Cabinet Will Consider Flood Damages

By RON SUDLOW
The Canadian Press

While residents and merchants in flooded southwestern Ontario towns continue to bail themselves out, the Ontario cabinet will meet today to discuss possible provincial aid to flood victims.

Following a day-long aerial tour and open-car tour of the 130-mile stretch flooded by the Grand River, west of Toronto, Premier William Davis declined to pinpoint the extent of provincial aid to the area.

He conceded damage to the area was "obviously quite extreme, . . . but we've still got to get all the facts and figures."

The province would do nothing to match contributions collected by municipalities and volunteer organizations, the premier told reporters at the end of his tour.

He said communities involved will be responsible for distributing the funds, although it would probably take "tens of thousands of three more days to totally assess the situation."

Mr. Davis would not comment on whether Cambridge, Brantford or Kitchener—considered the hardest-hit by the flooding—would be declared disaster areas for the sake of relief financing.

Flooding began Friday in the wake of heavy rains that swelled the Grand River 18 feet above normal levels, leaving homes filled with water, silt, sewage and other debris.

The river level was near normal Tuesday, but the left-tal silt was piled in the downtown areas of some towns and debris clung to fence.

Damage was estimated to be near $10 million, although municipal officials fear it may be worse. No deaths or severe injuries have been reported in the area as a result of the flooding.

Residents of Cambridge remained under order to boil their drinking water Tuesday. In Brantford, residents were told their water was again safe to drink.

Mr. Davis refused immediate comment on charges from some angry flood victims that, the Grand River Conservation Authority did not do enough to control the flood waters, but later in the legislature, he ruled out a public inquiry into the action played by the authority during the flooding.

He said some residents hold "different points of view" on the action the authority might have taken, but government officials have received no indication that the authority was at fault.

The premier was replying to Ian Deans, the New Democratic Party member for Wentworth, who called for a provincial inquiry into the authority's handling of flood conditions.

Mayor Claudette Millar said in Cambridge an investigation would be launched following the clean-up.

"Right now we are still pumping raw sewage into the river, people have to be mucked out and we need homes, food and clothing," she said.

In Brantford, authority operations director Rmar Kao said it would take a three-inch rainfall over most of the Grand River watershed to cause a recurrence of last weekend's flooding. He said the flooding was prompted by 2¼ inches of rain Thursday night—the total average for the month of May.

Mr. Kao said it is "standard operating procedure" for the authority to keep the dams full after the beginning of May to allow a steady flow of water along the river throughout the summer.

GRIM NECESSITY

Scientists say the repeated uplifting of the earth's crust by earthquakes is essential to life; with mountains constantly eroding, if they were not raised again the world would become a place of stagnant seas and swamps.

Monoxide Victims Very Ill

TORONTO (CP) — Three Toronto men found unconscious in their Muskoka area cottage Monday suffered carbon monoxide poisoning, Dr. F. M. Fyfe of Bracebridge said Tuesday.

Wayne Murphy, 20, and David Noseworth, 19, were severely poisoned, said Dr. Fyfe.

They are still unconscious and critically ill and were expected to remain unconscious for at least a couple of days, a Toronto General Hospital spokesman said.

The men were flown here from Bracebridge Monday.

PATRICIA NIXON

Pat Nixon Bristles

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was to be for Pat Nixon a pleasant occasion as congressional and cabinet wives entertained the American first lady.

But as so often happens these days in Washington, the subject of Watergate came up. And Mrs. Nixon bristled.

"Yes," she said tersely when asked if she has read the edited transcripts of her husband's Watergate conversations. "I did. It takes nine to 12 hours. You can't just read excerpts."

Then she turned to a reporter questioning her and asked whether she had read the entire volume.

"Only about 300 pages," came the reply.

"When you've read it all come back," Mrs. Nixon said, turning away.

Sabotage

TORONTO (CP) — Three recent interruptions in television service to subscribers of Metro Cable Ltd. bore were the work of "saboteurs," says company president Colin Watson.

He said Tuesday that an axe was used to sever a cable in a manhole April 14, cutting service to about 30,000 subscribers in downtown Toronto.

All 102,000 subscribers were blacked out May 15 and May 20, when someone used a hacksaw to cut through cables close to where the company receives its TV signals, he said.

Mid-road Language Act Introduced in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Education Minister Francois Cloutier took the middle of the road in the Official Language Act tabled in the national assembly Tuesday, but the opposition Parti Quebecois said it was "not enough" and three dissident Liberals declared it was "too much."

The bill declares French the official language of the province and contains measures to increase the use of French in government and private enterprise.

It also gets into the thorny area of language of education, preserving English schools but making it more difficult for French-speaking children and immigrant children to be educated in English.

Repealing the controversial 1969 law which allowed parents to choose what language their children would be taught in, the bill calls for language tests before French students could transfer to the English system or English students to the French system.

But children who can speak neither French nor English would be required to attend French schools—a move aimed primarily at immigrants who have traditionally chosen English schooling.

"There is still freedom of choice but it is conditional," said Mr. Cloutier who described as "extremists" the three Liberals and six PQ members who abstained on the recorded vote for automatic first reading of the bill.

"The door is still open for the assimilation of the Francophones," said Claude Charron, the PQ education critic who described the legislation as unacceptable.

George Springate (Lib.—Montreal Ste-Anne), joined Ken Fraser (Huntingdon) and John Ciaccia (Montreal-Mont Royal) in bolting Liberal ranks to abstain on the vote.

All three English back-benchers backed the removal of freedom of choice and what Mr. Fraser called the infringement of basic civil rights.

The bill would make French the official language of all government work and communications and the official language of all school boards and municipalities except those where it has been the practice to work in French and English or where the majority is English.

Official texts and documents are to be drawn up in French although they may be accompanied by an English version.

French will be the language of communication between Quebec and the federal government, the other provinces, and companies but the public may still communicate with the government in either language.

The bill does not touch the courts or the national assembly, where the British North America Act guarantees equal footing for French and English, but would require the minister of justice to see that court judgments rendered in English are translated into French.

While the clauses dealing with education may be the most controversial, the bill also contains obligatory moves for firms operating in the province and economic incentives for these firms.

All labor negotiations and grievance procedures would be conducted in French unless the union voted for English as the language of negotiation.

OUT OUR WAY — by Neg Cochran language 668 ... negotiation

And firms dealing with the public would be required to have their labels, advertisements, neon signs, contracts and communications in the official language although English copies could also be provided.

Mr. Ciaccia said one reason he abstained was this aspect of giving "quite a bit of legislative power to the bureaucrats"—a trend in Quebec which has come under fire from assembly members and other groups recently.

PQ spokesmen said one of the reasons they abstained was that they did not know what the bill contained.

By abstaining, Premier Robert Bourassa said, the PQ made a very great blunder on a fundamental issue for Quebecers.

"It is a move which will cost you dearly."

NDP Got Jump on Rivals In Its Election Campaign

OTTAWA (CP) — Being able to decide when and how it would bring down the minority Liberal government gave the New Democrats a slight jump on the July 8 federal election campaign.

The party was 75 per cent prepared for the campaign 10 days before the election date was announced, says a party campaign spokesman.

It was "the earliest date for this state of preparedness that anyone can recall," he says.

Other party officials say the decision to have posters, lapel stickers, leaflets and candidates' calling cards prepared in Ottawa is a chief reason for the state of readiness.

Murray Weppler, executive assistant to leader David Lewis, says this saved considerable time and effort for local campaign organizers, who in the past often spent several days preparing such material.

"The party—expects to spend $75,000 on radio, television and newspaper advertising, but emphasis will be on radio, Mr. Weppler says.

Spending would be done at local and provincial levels. There would be no national television advertising.

"We just can't afford it."

The party's total campaign spending—be as high as $2.5 million, with the central campaign committee spending about $625,000, largely on Mr. Lewis's tour. Party spending in the 1972 campaign was about $2 million.

Mr. Weppler says one-third to one-half of the $625,000 will come from union contributions. He says the most to be spent by any one riding probably will be about $25,000, while in some ridings it will be as low as $1,000.

So decentralized is the NDP approach to campaigning, that while Mr. Weppler expects there will be 75,000 to 100,000 volunteer NDP workers in the field by election day, there will be only about 25 working at national headquarters in Ottawa.

Japan Has Completed First State Guesthouse

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japan has completed its first state guesthouse, an opulent symbol of its foreign policy.

The government decided 11 years ago that the country needed a guesthouse to accommodate important visitors in safety and comfort as Japan's foreign relations expanded.

Renovations began more than five years ago on the Akasaka Palace, originally built as a residence for the Japanese crown prince.

The question now is who will be its first occupant.

The late French President Georges Pompidou was to have been the first state visitor to us the ornate house during his planned visit to Japan this month.

Now it awaits President Nixon, Queen Elizabeth, Chinese Premier Chou En-lai or one of the three top Soviet leaders—Communist party secretary Leonid Brezhnev, Premier Alexei Kosygin be President Nikolai Podgorny.

All of them have been invited to Japan.

The Akasaka Palace was renovated with the addition of a new Japanese-style annex at a cost of $21 million.

The two-storey palace, with a floor space of 49,300 square feet, was built in 1909 for the father of Emperor Hirohito when he was crown prince.

The present emperor and his empress lived there from 1923 to 1926 as crown prince and princess and the Prince of Wales—later King Edward VIII—stayed in the palace in 1922.

After the Second World War, Crown Prince Akihito and his younger brother Hitachi used the palace for a year before it was turned over to the Diet (parliament) as a library and Japan's impeachment Court was established within its portals.

It also housed the organizing committee for the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo.

The rooms and halls are decorated with luxurious chandeliers from France, wall and door ornaments, tapestries, plaster decoration, elaborately designed furniture imported from France and England and ceiling murals.

Tokuma Katayama, a Japanese architect who specialized in Western-style court buildings, led the original construction team of architects, artists and artisans.

The building cost $182 million at today's rates and took seven years to complete.

Reporters who were shown the building and grounds earlier this month were struck by the opulence of the reception rooms, banquet hall and ballroom. They were not admitted to the private suites for state guests for security reasons.

A guesthouse spokesman said the renovation of the palace resembled a delicate major operation, changing the internal organs and blood vessels while leaving the flesh and bones intact.

The original building had only six toilets and few baths. Its heating, plumbing and electrical systems were antiquated and there were no elevators.

To install new systems meant removing floors and ornate walls which had to be carefully replaced later.

A major problem in the renovation work was the thickness of the walls—nearly six feet in places.

The walls, accounting for 30 per cent of the total floor space, proved their worth, however, when the building was one of the few large structures to survive the 1923 earthquake which destroyed much of Tokyo.

Mistaken Identifications Bothering British Jurists

LONDON (Reuter) — The recent release from prison of two men convicted for crimes they did not commit has raised serious doubts about the efficiency of British police identification techniques.

Home Secretary Roy Jenkins, whose department is in charge of police affairs, told the House of Commons that the cases of Virag, released after five years' imprisonment, and Luke Dougherty, released after nine months, represent "a grave miscarriage of justice."

The Virag and Dougherty cases are only the latest in a sequence of convictions by mistaken identity and seem certain to raise the spectre of James Hanratty, who many people say was wrongfully hanged for the murder of Michael Gregsten in the A6 murder trial in 1962.

Another man confessed to the A6 murder—named the highway on which it was committed—in 1967, but his confession and searching inquiries by the press, television and even a full-length book failed to instigate a new investigation into the case.

The admission by the home secretary that the Virag and Dougherty cases proved the fallibility of identification evidence has brought a demand for a new inquiry into the Hanratty case by Labor member of Parliament Phillip Whitehead.

Hungarian-born Laszlo Virag, 35, was sentenced to 10 years in prison in 1969 on charges that included shooting a police officer, stealing from parking meters, using stolen cars and using a firearm to resist arrest.

Throughout his trial Virag protested his innocence and insisted that he had never visited the scene of the crime, could not have driven the car concerned because he could not drive and was playing poker at a London club with his wife at the time of the shooting.

Eight witnesses at two identity lineups picked him out, including the policeman he was alleged to have shot. Nine other witnesses testified that he was elsewhere at the time of the crime.

The controversy arising from the Virag case centres on the validity of identification lineups. At such a lineup, the suspect is allowed to take his place among two or a line of at least eight volunteers, who are as far as possible of the same age, height, general appearance, including standard of dress and grooming and position in life" as the suspect.

Legal reformers contend that if policemen, who are trained in observation, could have mistakenly identified Virag, the average layman could make even bigger mistakes.

Virag's case was in the hands of the home office for almost two years before his alibi was properly checked and before a sequence of similar crimes in England prompted a review of his entire case. It was another three years before he was released.

But critics of the home office agree that in his case the identification procedure was properly carried out.

They were less satisfied with the case of Dougherty who was freed last month after serving nine months for a shoplifting offence he did not commit.

Dougherty was charged with stealing three pairs of curtains from a department store.

The manager of the store and an assistant said they saw a man steal the goods and gave his description to the police.

The police then showed them the "rogues gallery," a police collection of photographs of known and convicted criminals, from which they picked out Dougherty, who had several previous convictions.

They then decided not to hold a lineup, but to have a "dock identification," in which the suspect takes his place among the jurors and the witnesses are asked whether the man they saw is "in court today."

Critics of the case say the witnesses recognized the face of the man they picked out from the "rogues gallery."

The witnesses later said they saw Dougherty through the glass window of a courtroom door as he took his place among the jurors.

Dougherty testified that he was on a bus trip at the time of the crime, and two passengers on the bus trip supported his alibi.

But the court did not believe him. It took an independent association of jurists to assemble 20 of the bus trip members to prove Dougherty's innocence, nine months after his conviction.

Both Dougherty and Virag have been awarded an ex yet unspecified compensation by the home office, although Birkin is one of the few Western countries where wrongfully convicted defendants have no automatic right to compensation.

Among the measures called for by critics is the court's automatic rejection of all identification evidence which has not been properly carried out.

Massage on a Water Bed Offered in Manila Sauna

MANILA (Reuter) — "Massage on a water bed," "latest scientific techniques," "soft piped-in music." These are some of the enticements offered to patrons of Manila's rapidly expanding variations on the original Finnish theme of a quiet sauna bat.

In the last five years almost 120 sauna parlors employing some 12,000 persons—mainly female "attendants"—have mushroomed throughout the city and drawn business away from the older massage clinics in the city's Chinese section.

According to available figures for 1973, the revenue from these parlors totalled 60.5 million pesos (about $9,900,000) and brought local governments a total of 21 million pesos in a variety of taxes ranging from police licensing fees to health department clearances.

Like their counterparts in many other Asian centres, they advertise under a variety of names—fountain of youth, health clinic, temple of health, spa—and provide the same basic services, varying only in the degree of extras individual attendants may offer.

Gimmicks prevail as in any other competitive business. When President Ferdinand Marcos introduced a midnight to 6 a.m. curfew in his martial law decree of September, 1972, some parlors countered with "our curfew special—four hours for the price of two."

The pattern of service is initially predictable—a sauna or hot bath followed by a massage, but after that, it depends on what the customer wants and whether the attendant is willing.

Sauna parlor operators say they have put between 200,000 and 300,000 pesos into their establishments and admit to a fairly fast return on their investments.

Informed sources say the total investment rose 40 per cent as last year compared with 1972.

A MEMBER OF THE FAMILY
Mary Carter

The annual family reunion at Cape Cod was a time of contentment for the Thrashers; their lives were full and happy. Within days, a tragic accident takes the life of their only child. How they adjust to this tragedy is the essence of this moving story. We share the sorrow of John and Ellie in their futile attempts to have another baby and live through their frustrations when they try to adopt a child.

SMILING WILLIE AND THE TIGER
John Harris

John Harris is a first class story-teller and his latest novel is about a daring payroll at the end of the Boer War. The thieves are overcome by the enormity of their haul and decide to bury the loot outside of a small town in the Orange Free State until things quieten down. The author vividly portrays an inept army officer sent to track down the thieves and a series of hilarious events during the chase, all against a background of the South African diamond fields.

ONE OF OUR OWN
Frand Norman

This is a compelling novel of a London docker and his family, and the impact World War II has upon their lives. The father, Ernie, born and bred in dockland, accepts his narrow existence without complaint, the mother Molly, is almost an archetypal mother figure, and their sons returning from the war, are unwilling to accept traditional values. Told with warmth and understanding, the author writes of a community he knows well, having grown up there.

DECK WITH FLOWERS
Elisabeth Cadell

When Rodney Laird received permission to write and publish the memoirs of Madame Landini, it promised to be a sensational scoop. But having covered her childhood in Russia, her exile in Paris and the discovery of her phenomenal voice which made her a prima donna, Madame Landini decided she could write no more when the subject of her first husband's death was revealed. Was this just a display of temperament or was there a mystery surrounding his death?

MURDER WITH MUSHROOMS
John Creasey

John Creasey has an international reputation as a mystery writer, and his fans will find this latest book has all the ingredients which have made his previous books so successful. Sir Mortimer Kidde, a brilliant financier of dubious reputation, dies after eating mushrooms which prove to be poisonous. His death is due to natural causes, according to a coroner's verdict, but his mother believes her son has been murdered, and approaches Patrick Dawlish of Scotland Yard to investigate. Dawlish draws up a list of suspects and pursues many leads linking the prime suspects to Sir Mortimer's death. A train ride to Manchester, where a series of brutal murders have taken place, leads Dawlish to the solution of Sir Mortimer's mysterious demise.

Insect Stings Kill More Than Snake Bites

CHICAGO (CP) — More deaths are caused by allergy to insect stings than by snake bites, says the Journal of the American Medical Association.

A report by Dr. Solomon E. Barr of the George Washington University School of Medicine in Washington, D.C., appearing in the AMA publication, says regular injections protecting supersensitive persons from future stings are highly successful in reducing the severity of the reaction.

Reporting on a study of 249 insect-allergic patients seen over a period of 12 years, Barr says they received a total of 300 stings after taking desensitization shots. All but five of the stings caused less severe reactions.

The article says insect stings can cause a number of dangerous and unpleasant reactions in a highly allergic individual, sometimes death. There may be general itching, skin rash, shortness of breath, weakness, low blood pressure, loss of consciousness, vomiting, diarrhea, rapid heartbeat, choking, asthma or stuffy nose.

The most effective treatment is administration of the drug epinephrine to counteract the sting, the article says.

It urges patients to destroy insect nests around the house using an aerosol container with a long jet spray, to wear shoes and socks outdoors and to avoid floral prints, bright colors, perfumes or scented hair.

Another principle is never to touch, sit on or step on anything without looking first.

Don't Yell

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Codling of Issaquah, Wash., one of the leading trainers of show dogs in the Pacific Northwest, told dog handlers at a dog show here they should never yell at their pets. "They don't understand what you're yelling at them," he said. "They just know that you're mad at them and they don't respond. You have to give them gentle but firm commands."

German Immigrant Operates Surrealistic Annapolis Farm

CANNING, N.S. (CP) — There's something surrealistic about Jock Peill's farm at night.

Gleaming augers crowning bins of home grown feed grain rise futuristically in the Annapolis Valley mist; around the bins warm barns throb with the grunts of hundreds of pigs growing to slaughter size.

Jock Peill moves through the pulsating rows of pigs in a long white technician's coat, explaining carefully-kept growth charts and the efficiencies of up-to-the-minute hog farming.

Outside, his 1,000-acre farm slumbers, pregnant with next winter's food for 4,000 pigs.

Permeating all, Jock Peill himself: a 42-year-old German immigrant with an old-world sense of land and a deeply-rooted respect for farming and the cycle of life.

He is articulate and sophisticated, determinedly bucking trends in an effort to prove that Maritime livestock farmers can thrive without reliance on Western feed grain.

He is aghast at the "sloppy" practices of more traditional farmers who he says have become subsidy addicts.

In a world where, increasingly, every ounce of food counts, Mr. Peill appears to be on the right course.

His fields are carefully moulded by big machines and underlayed with plastic so they will drain quickly in the spring.

Each acre is shaped, fertilized and nursed to grass as much as possible without hurting the land for future crops; no small task on farmland that can vary from the lightest sand to the heaviest clay in the space of yards.

The sows live on concrete but it is specially heated so each animal is more comfortable than she would be on a bed of straw. Each fattening pig is fed strict, scientifically-determined rations to promote the fastest, most efficient growth.

Yet for all the bustling efficiency, the Peill farm remains a personal, human place. Employees live with their families in spacious houses on better-than-average incomes for farm families and benefit from the fruits of the farm.

Mr. Peill says his herdsman receives roughly $10,000 a year in income and "income in kind," a pig for his table, and a garden of his own.

A 23-year-old student who came to pick tobacco two years ago has become a part of the family, teaching the younger of Mr. Peill children in addition to farm duties.

Occasionally he joins the Peills after dinner in the comfortable elegance of their living room, sharing with any other guests who happen by in the spirited talk of the day.

The Peill farm appears to be a model for the future.

Yet Mr. Peill is faced with social and economic obstacles that threaten his type of operation and, perhaps, viable Maritime agriculture in years to come.

Livestock is the mainstay of the farm industry in this province, producing $72 million of Nova Scotia's $91 million farm cash receipts in 1972.

Apples traditionally regarded as the king crop of the valley, now are just another product which contributes to the annual $6.3 million fruit harvest.)

Most livestock and poultry farmers depend for the bulk of their feed supplies on Western Canada. Under a 32-year-old assistance program, that feed is shipped in at a subsidized rate to offset the cost of transportation and handling.

The idea behind the program was to help Nova Scotian and other Maritime farmers develop and expand their livestock, dairy and poultry output.

The effect of the subsidy, however, was to make Maritime farmers less interested in growing their own feed crops. Now, only about 300,000 of a potential 900,000 acres are being used to grow grain and Mr. Peill says that slumbering 100,000 or 200,000 of the idle acres would be enough to supply our present needs and still leave substantial land areas available for the future.

But to achieve this would require a major change in thinking by both farmers and governments.

"We have to break 200 years of tradition."

The government, for its part, appears less than sympathetic.

E. E. Scammell, director of marketing and administration in the Nova Scotia agriculture department, puts it this way:

"Serious attempts were made a few years ago to foster the large expanding type of farm run by Jock Peill.

"But now more consideration is being given to smaller farmers."

He argues that Nova Scotia, with all its "ditches, gullies, brooks and dikes," is not adaptable to large operations and that dependence on western feed grain is really "no big deal."

"The fellows out west like to market grain," he replied when asked what would happen if westerners decided to feed their grain to animals on the Prairies.

But he admits that Western grain growers could "put us out of livestock" if they decided to use their feed crops for their own animals.

Mr. Scammell says the general government approach is based on the assumption that a small farm can still be economic; that the province is better suited to compact, diversified operations.

"We are not writing off the Jock Peills," Mr. Scammell says.

"But Nova Scotia cannot continue in agriculture with only that kind of operation. There's the social problem: What do you do with the people if a rural community dies?"

Mr. Peill maintains there is plenty of room for all people who want to farm.

One of his neighbors, Jim Borden, for instance, has tied his farm to that of the Peills, and the two men work together farming the land as a unit.

What is needed, he says, is a feed grain industry that will supply the needs of Nova Scotia livestock men through a cooperative program to develop all farmable land in the province.

Part of the problem lies in the fact that a good deal of potential farmland in this picturesque valley is owned by people who have no interest in farming.

Currently, there are no zoning laws that prevent developers from buying land where they please for subdivisions. As well, there are provincial plans to build a new superhighway along the valley floor, right through the heart of the best farmland.

Mr. Peill suggests that farmers be given greater opportunity to borrow money in group crops; that a program of land co-ops be set up to allow adjacent owners with uneconomic land acreage, to pool their resources.

The land could then be put into shape to grow grain, an operation that can cost $300 or $400 a acre, and it would "continue individual ownership of land but certainly in a more productive form."

Mr. Peill counters, critics who favor small diversified farming with this argument:

"If we had more lucrative alternate uses for our land, I would say let's forget about grain production and pursue these alternatives.

"It must be remembered, however, that the lands I speak of are unused or underused and thus contribute little or nothing to the local economy or food base."

Further, he advocates spending public money to develop part of the currently unproductive 800,000 acres of Nova Scotia farmland.

Cost of developing 100,000 acres would, he agrees, be as much as $50 million. But that same land in an average year could produce 200,000 tons of feed grain that is currently being shipped in from the West.

At current costs of more than $140 a ton, that grain would represent $28 million a year that is leaving the province.

Meanwhile, Mr. Peill is committed to his own $1-million operation.

Hog prices have been low—they hit 43 cents a pound shortly before the provincial government instituted a stabilization program with a 50-cent-a-pound floor price recently. Mr. Peill says a farmer must sell his animals for 52 cents a pound to break even and 60 cents to return a reasonable profit.

Grows Own Feed

Jock Peill holds up one of his pigs at his 1,000-acre farm near Canning, N.S. Mr. Peill grows his own feed for his livestock to prove Maritime farmers don't need to rely on Western feed grain. Mr. Peill says if 100,000 of the 800,000 acres of unproductive farmland in the province was developed for feed grains, it should be enough to supply current needs. (CP Photo)

Thurlow EOBA Teams Off on Right Foot

Thurlow teams had a profitable weekend in Eastern Ontario Baseball Association action.

Playing at home, Thurlowsquads got the season started on the right foot by recording wins.

Plane's Concords' peewees won by default over Whitby Saturday, when the team didn't show for a scheduled game. It was learned later that Whitby has dropped out of the EOBA at the tyke level.

Monday, Plane's marched in attack with a three-run second inning on the way to a 4-1 defeat of Cobourg Pirates.

Steve Gibby's solo home run, hits by Tommy Masterson and Gerrard Combined with a walk to do the early damage. Another walk and a Cobourg miscue put Thurlow its fourth run in the third inning.

Plane's got a route-going performance from Dave Blakely who was in mid-season form. Dave fired third strikes past 15 batters and walked five while spinning a strong two-hitter.

Gordie Sharpe and McIver shared the Cobourg hitting.

The Thurlow squad has an important four-somter with Lindsay this Saturday at home. Game time is 2 p.m.

Big Ted Foster held Orono to just four hits Sunday, as he pitched Thurlow Keith Redmond past the visitors, 1-3.

Over the nine innings, Foster chalked up 15 strikeouts.

Losing pitcher was Don Martin.

PENSSL Season Under Way

The Prince Edward North Shore Softball League opened play for another season Monday night with a pair of games at Archibald Park. Bayview Orchards doubled the score on Consecon, 8-4, while Palmer Ford dumped the Belleville Gems 18-8.

Dwayne Dostaler went the distance for Bayview, allowing four runs on six hits. He struck out five and didn't give up a walk.

Art Keller took the loss for Consecon, giving up six hits. He fanned four and walked two.

Gerry Inglis, Dostaler, Mitchell Vail, Rick Pellerin, Doug Mason, and Don Bonter each had one hit for the winners. Tod MacDonald had a pair in defeat, with Al Clarke, George Phillips, Ted MacDonald Lionel Addir, and Wayne Clarke each collecting one.

In the nightcap, Palmer Fuels exploded for nine runs in the sixth inning to take the win. Harry Cole and Pat Mullins each had a pair of hit for the winners, with Rod Wyatt, Bill Hubbs, Lyle Johnson, Brian Montgomery, and Al Nisbet each collecting one.

Dennis Snell and Bill Hubbs shared the win, combining for five strikeouts and 12 walks. Neil Goyer and Rick Goulah split the loss, striking out six and walking seven.

Adoption Program Popular

LONDON (Reuter) - Lou Angles television personality Ben Hunter offer four homeless children for adoption Monday night to 20 million British television viewers in a controversial Dial-a-Child program.

The program was based on Hunter's daily Los Angeles television show which once a week features children in need of adoption.

Within 10 minutes of the half-hour program's end, 125 viewers had phoned a special number to say they wanted to adopt or foster one of the four children shown.

The show was delayed for two weeks while the Independent Broadcasting Authority considered the storm of controversy aroused with the announcement that such a program was being contemplated.

Critics of the program charged that it would be no more than an auction of children.

Imaginary Invalid On CBC

Despite the passage of 300 years, Moliere's satire on medicine and manners, The Imaginary Invalid, has lost none of its bite and charm.

This French classic, in English translation by Miles Malleson and adapted and directed for CBC Radio by Francois Jourdan, will be broadcast on CBC Tuesday Night, June 4, at 8:30 p.m. It will be repeated on CBC-FM's Encore, Thursday, June 6. This 90-minute production marks the first time the play has been presented on either CBC Radio or TV.

Written in 1672, Le Malade Imaginaire was the great French dramatist's last play. At its fourth performance on February 17, 1673, Moliere was attacked by a hemorrhage of the lungs during the final scene. He succeeded in playing out the lead role, but died within a few hours.

The action centres around the wily hypochondriac Argan who schemes to marry off his eldest daughter, Angelica, to a young doctor in order to cut down on mounting medical bills for his supposed ailments. Angelica, however, loves Cleante,and with the aid of the maid Toinette, manages to foil her father's heartless plan.

The story amply demonstrates Moliere's comic techniques, culled from his acute observations of life and character weaknesses. His burlesque of 17th century medical practice was based on personal experience. Moliere suffered from chronic illnesses, but found little relief from the average physician who relied on copious bleedings and purges.

Cultural Importing Valuable to Canada

STRATFORD (CP) — Jean Gascon, artistic director of the Stratford Festival, said Tuesday night it would be self-defeating for Canada to form "an exclusive Canadians only cultural club" and bar its doors to foreign talent.

"I believe that we have now established in this country a strong national culture," he said. "We are mature and sure of ourselves."

Mr.' Gascon, this year's recipient at the Royal Bank Award, was speaking at a dinner where W. Earle McLaughlin, chairman and president of the Royal Bank of Canada, presented him with the award—a $50,000 cheque and a gold medal.

The Stratford artistic director is the eighth recipient of the award, established in 1967 to honor Canadians for outstanding achievement contributing to human welfare and the common good.

Mr. Gascon was chosen as the 1974 recipient for his contribution to the performing arts in Canada.

In his address, Mr. Gascon said Canada can "well" come artists from other countries but the nation must learn from the experience of being exposed to their talents without feeling that the importation of them is, we risk losing our own cultural identity."

The Montreal-born artistic director remembered that seven years ago his appointment at Stratford was criticized because was regarded as a "foreigner" to Ontario.

"I was given a chance to show what I could bring to the English-Canadian culture," he said. "It is my great hope that when once again we, at Stratford, are deafened by the ovations ying yappings of the watchdogs of our national culture, that the new 'foreigner' at Stratford will be given as much of a chance to show his worth as I was."

He was referring to Robin Phillips of London, England who is to replace Mr. Gascon as artistic director at the end of the 1974 season.

A text of his remarks was released in advance of delivery.

Two Join Cast

Jean-Pierre Masson and Robert Rivard have been added to the cast of the National Film Board's "Why Rock The Boat?", a newspaperman's comedy now filming in Montreal, starring Stuart Gillard.

Masson, who is renowned who is renowned for his role as 'Seraphin" in the popular French television series 'Les belles histories des pays d'en haut", will portray a private detective in the film.

Rivard, a well-known actor who recently was succeeded as president of Union des Artistes, will play the role of a former reporter.

In addition to Masson and Rivard, several other noted Quebec actors are appearing in "Why Rock The Boat?" Among them, Jacques des Ballets, J. Leo Gagne, Benoit Lemay and Marie-France Beaulieu.

Openings Changed

To emphasize the overall policy governing the operation of the Stratford Festival opening nights are rarely rearranged, says artistic director Robin Phillips.

The Festival and Avon Theatres will both open the first week of June, "We will open two Avon Theatre and three Festival Theatre productions within a three-day period. Mid-season, the Third Stage program, the third Avon Theatre production, and the fourth Festival Theatre play will be timed to open in the same week, thus making the Third Stage the centrepiece of the Festival's activities at the height of the season."

Opera Chairman Appointed

Toronto — Monique Larkin, President of the Canadian Opera Association has announced appointment of Mrs. Normand D. Coxall as chairman of the Canadian Opera Guild.

Mrs. Coxall succeeds Vida H. Peene founder of the Guild, who becomes honorary chairman and patron of the Canadian Opera Association.

Born in Scotland, Mrs. Coxall came to Canada in 1953. Her interest in personnel and advertising in Toronto until 1961, then moved to Victoria to manage Hilker Interiors' Concern. Currently associated with some of the world's greatest artists in the field of theatre. Returning to Toronto in 1851, she became a valued member of the Metropolitan Toronto Association for Retarded Children and in 1953 joined the Canadian Opera Women's Committee — on its executive from 1956-69.

In 1970 Mrs. Coxall was appointed vice-chairman of the Opera Association's Board of Directors, and is presently a member of its executive committee. She is chairman of the Canadian Opera Guild from the average physician who relied on copious bleedings and purges.

Electric Railway Faster

LONDON (CP) — Completion of an electrified rail route between London and Glasgow now permits passengers to travel there and back in a day.

British Rail said rescheduling of services on the 400-mile route has cut the time of a one-way trip by 45 minutes in five hours. The number of trains in each direction has been increased to eight from five.

Alex Philip, general manager of British Rail in Scotland, said new colour-coded, air-conditioned and modernized stations have been established on the route.

British Rail also announced that its high-speed train (HST), which has set a world record of 141 miles an hour, has accumulated nearly 50,000 miles in proving trials and that HST service is expected to be fully operational in three years.

Rollins Construction: 2 Games, 2 Shutouts

Continuing in a style they have adopted for thier own in the Quinte Fastball League-winning Rollins Construction took their second victory of the young season in as many games last night, shading Devolin Motors 1-0 in one of two games played at the Alemite. In the other contest, the Ellis Juniors defeated Barden Supplies 6-3.

The defending league champion Rollins got a single run in the fourth inning, to take the win. Carl Boersmeyer led off the inning with a triple off Devolin pitcher Don Holoway, scoring on a base hit by first baseman Ralph Plane.

Paul Goodfellow followed Plane with a single, but both were stranded on the bases when Holoway fanned Wayne McTaggart to retire the side. The three hits were all the usually heavy hitting Rollins could muster off the towering Holoway.

Devolin outhit the winners by a 6-3 count, having more chances to score as well, but could not push a runner across the plate. Ken Deveille allowed runners to reach third base twice in the contest, but sharp fielding both times shut off any threat.

Jim Horwood got as far as third in the third frame, with one out, but an infield out and a fielder's choice quieted any scoring attempt.

Terry Meagher tripled in the fifth inning, but was thrown out at the plate when Rosebush grounded to short.

Other Devolin hits went to Bruce Stickle, Jim Horwood, Lyle Thompson, Rick Rosebush, and Don Holoway. All the hits were singles with the exception of Meagher's.

Demille got credit for the victory, fanning eight. He did not walk a batter. Holoway got seven strikeouts and walked none.

In the second game, the Juniors made use of a four-run rally in the fifth inning to take the victory from Barden, who had been leading 3-1.

Ken Vos led off the inning with a single, followed by base hits by Bob Meers, John Sprackett and Brian Gariepy. A fielder's choice by Jim Richardson and a sacrifice by Steve Campbell drove in the last two runs in the inning.

The Juniors picked up single runs in the second and sixth innings as well, both scored by Vos.

Barden picked up a pair in the second, getting three consecutive singles by Sid Davies, Bill Harrison, and Bill Dewey, a sacrifice by Gary Johnson, and another base hit by Wayne McConnell.

Their other run came in the fifth inning after a walk to Dewey.

Gery McMurray started for the Juniors, going three and one-third innings before giving way to John Sprackett. He gave up two runs on six hits, walked two and struck out none.

Sprackett allowed one run on one hit. He struck out two and walked one.

Jamie Hunter started for the losers, going four and two-thirds innings. He gave up five of the six runs, and all of the Ellis hits. He walked two and fanned none.

McConnell came on in the fifth, striking out, four, and walking one.

Play in the league resumes Thursday night, with Auger Men's Wear taking on Barden Supplies in the first game, with Howard and Robert Printing meeting Devolin Motors in the second game.

Elliott Motors Tykes Win in First Start

Steve Taylor and Rory McLeod combined talents to pitch Belleville Elliott Motors tykes to a 5-3 Eastern Ontario Baseball Association win over Oshawa, Sunday, at Parkdale Park.

Limiting the visitors to four base hits, the Elliott Motors hurlers set down 14 batters on strikes while walking six.

Billy Kirkpatrick and Billy Brady split the pitching for Oshawa, surrendering eight hits, fanning seven and walking nine.

The Belleville youngsters moved in front with a two-run burst in the first inning and never looked back. They added singles in each of the second, fifth and sixth innings.

Oshawa was held off the scoresheet until the late innings, counting one run each at the fifth, sixth and seventh frames.

Rich Manderville and Stu Emerson each banged a pair of singles for the winners. McLeod checked in with a triple while Brad Hunter, Scott Dafoe and Brian Crook right supplied a single each.

Robert Lambert Gets Win

Robert Lambert Construction outlasted Simpson-Sears 22-13 as the two teams got their first taste of action, Tuesday, in the Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League.

Bonnie Goodfellow and Janice Lucas took care of the pitching for the winners, Simpson-Sears used pitchers Joanne Garvin, Maxine McCallum and Sherry Young.

Leading the hit parade for the Lambert's squad were Nancy Birch, with five safeties, and Janice Lucas, Margie Scanlan, Judy Scanlan, Sue Yaha and Bonnie Goodfellow with four each.

Joanne Garvin and Brenda Wood connected for three hits each in a losing cause while Sherry Young, Christine Paquet, Nancy Pound and Jean Donald supplied two apiece.

CNR, Posties, UIC Winners

Wayne Shandrew cranked a grand slam home run for Black Dimond in the bottom of the fourth inning in their Belleville Industrial Softball League game with CNR, but it wasn't quite enough, as the Railmen took a 13-5 win in an abbreviated six inning game. The game was called because of darkness after six innings had been played.

The CNR belted out 11 hits to take the victory, with Mike Fahey leading the way with a triple. Bob Wannamaker stroked a double, with Brian Plumb, Jerry Hill, and Bob Duvall each banging two singles. Bob McMurter, Jim Murray, and Wayne Brannan rounded out the hitting with singles.

Shandrew had his homer for the losers, with Ralph Francis drawing a pair of safeties. Gene Francis and Bob Jones each had one hit.

Perry Soule and Wayne Casselman split the pitching duties for the winners, each going three innings. Soule gave up one run on one hit, fanning two. Casselman gave up four runs and four hits, striking out three and walking two.

Ron Bateman went all the way for Black Dimond, allowing 11 hits, walking six and leaving the same number standing at the plate.

In another BISL game played last night, the Post Office edged Crustellation 6-5.

Norm Lockhart took the win on the Posties' mound, giving up five hits, walking six and fanning 11. Ken Kerik took the loss, also allowing five hits, fanning four and issuing three free passes.

George Johnson had a pair of safeties for the winners, with Lockhrt adding a double. Soup Campbell and Steve Cronkwright added singles to the winners' hitting.

Jim Thompson had a seventh inning home run to narrow the score for Constellation, with Wayne May collecting two singles. Rob Humphrey and Mike Callaghan each had a single to round out the hitting.

UIC used eight runs in the second inning to trounce Mead Johnson 18-3, collecting eight hits enroute to the win.

Peter Lloyd led the way with a triple and double for the winners, with Al Walker, Dale Ducarme, and Rick Sullivan—each stroking doubles. Bill Healy had a pair of safeties, with Bill Beinap adding one hit.

Tim O'Connell had a double and a pair of singles in a losing cause for Mead's, while Gary Genereaux had a double and a one-base hit. Blaine Young and Jim Sopka, had two base hits each, while Jeff Soule had a single.

Sullivan hurled the win for UIC, allowing 11 hits over his seven inning stint. He struck out two and walked three.

Genereaux and Harold Wilkinson shared the loss. Genereaux went three innings, allwing six hits and walking three.

Wilkinson went the remaining four, allowing two hits fanning two and issuing one free pass.

Stumbling Expos Lose 8-4

MONTREAL (CP) — Pittsburgh Pirates took advantage of wildness by Balor Moore and shoddy fielding by his teammates to score an 8-4 National League win over Montreal Expos Tuesday night.

Pittsburgh got to Moore early in the contest as the game's second batter, Gene Clines, walked and scored without the benefit of a hit.

Clines broke for second on Moore's third pitch to Richie Hebner and it appeared he would be picked off when Moore turned, aimed and fired to Hal Breeden at first.

However, the ball soared over the first baseman's head and down the right-field line and Clines pulled up at third. Two pitches later, he scored on a wild pitch.

Montreal got a run back in the bottom of the inning when Larry Lintz scored from third on a wild pitch by Pirates' Ken Brett but Pittsburgh took the lead in the second on Rennie Stennett's run-scoring double.

The Pirates boosted their lead in the fourth inning when Manny Sanguillen led off with a base hit and scored when Dave Parker singled to right and the ball got past Ken Singleton for an error. Parker went to third on the play and scored on a sacrifice fly by Frank Taveras.

Taveras scored Sanguillen with another sacrifice fly in the sixth after the Pirates catcher led off with a base hit which again bounced past Singleton for another error.

Montreal cut the margin by a run in the bottom of the sixth when Lintz singled, stole second, was awarded third when umpire John Kibler ruled that Taveras had interfered with him and came in on an infield out.

But the Pirates put the contest out of reach in the seventh when they pushed two more runs across on hits by Bob Robertson and Sanguillen.

Elsewhere in the National League, New York Mets pounded Chicago Cubs 10-3, Philadelphia Phillies trimmed St. Louis Cardinals 4-2, Houston Astros nipped San Diego Padres 5-4, Los Angeles Dodgers edged Cincinnati Reds 3-2, and Atlanta Braves downed San Francisco Giants 4-1 before dropping the second game of their doubleheader 5-4.

Ed Farmer of the Phillies, making his second NL start after American League stops in Detroit and Cleveland and bus stops in Wichita, Monroe, Waterbury, Reno and Sarasota in the minors, checked the Cardinals on four hits before leaving in the seventh inning.

Bill Robinson's three-run homer, climaxing a four-run first, gave Farmer his second win.

Houston's losing streak ended at 10 when Milt May hit a homer and Tom Griffin gave up only six Padres hits before needing eighth-inning relief help. May's two-run shot off rookie Dan Spiller capped a four-run first inning.

Pitcher George Stone drove in four runs with a pair of singles while Rod Martinez' two-run triple capped the Mets' biggest outburst of the season, a six-run explosion in the third inning that carried them to victory over Chicago.

Pinch-hitter Joe Ferguson lofted a sacrifice fly with one out in the ninth inning that scored the winning run and gave Los Angeles an eight-game lead over San Francisco and Cincinnati in the NL West.

San Francisco's Ron Bryant, the majors' winningest pitcher with 24 victories last season, posted his first triumph this year in the second game of the doubleheader with the help of Garry Maddox, who hit a two-run homer.

In the opener, Norm Miller's pinch-hit home run triggered a four-run rally in the eighth inning that enabled the Braves to beat the Giants. —

ADVICE FOR FRAZIER

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Trainer-manager Eddie Futch says he has advised Joe Frazier to retire if the former heavyweight champion doesn't win impressively against Jerry Quarry next month. "This is something we have agreed on," Futch said Tuesday before a Frazier training session for the June 17 fight at Madison Square Garden.

FLAMES ANNOUNCE TRADE

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Flames announced Tuesday the trade of their third-round National Hockey League draft choice in 1975 to Buffalo Sabres for the negotiating rights to Ken McMasters of the World Hockey Association Cleveland Crusaders. McMasters, 22, was Buffalo's third-round draft pick in 1972, but signed with the WHA.

BENGALS SIGN VETERANS

Boston's Hit Parade Has Manager Smiling

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Manager Darrell Johnson of Boston Red Sox flashed a big grin. That's what happens when your team is hitting.

Manager Bobby Winkles of California Angels threw a pair of shoes against the wall. That's what happens when your team isn't hitting.

Johnson's Red Sox have a four-game winning streak during which they've pounded out 41 runs on 61 hits and moved into second place in the American League's East Division, one game behind Milwaukee Brewers. Eighteen of the hits came in Tuesday night's 14-6 romp over the New York Yankees.

Winkles' Angels managed seven hits in a 4-2 loss to Kansas City Royals. It was their 11th defeat in the last 14 games.

Elsewhere in the American League, Milwaukee edged Detroit Tigers 6-5, Oakland Athletics shelled Minnesota Twins 8-1 and Baltimore Orioles trounced Cleveland Indians 7-1. Texas Rangers and Chicago White Sox were rained out.

Rico Petrocelli started a 10-run outburst with a home run leading off the second inning in Boston's rout of the Yankees and doubled two runs across in the eighth. The Red Sox jumped on Dick Tidrow for four runs in the second inning and nailed down the decision with six more in the third against Dave Pagan and Sam McDowell.

Bill Lee, 5-4, defeated the Yankees but needed relief from Diego Segui in the eighth to clinch the Red Sox' victory.

John Mayberry drove in three runs with a homer and a double to power the Royals over the Angels. The game was a pitching duel between Kansas City's Steve Busby and California's Frank Tanana until Mayberry hit his homer with a runner aboard in the sixth inning.

Mayberry put Kansas City ahead 1-0 in the first inning with double and Fred Patek homered in the fifth. Frank Robinson homered for the losers.

A double steal and Johnny Briggs' triple produced two decisive runs for Milwaukee in the seventh inning. Ten John son opened the seventh with a single to chase Detroit starter Lerrin LaGrow. Don Money batted and reliever John Hiller's wild throw put runners on first and second.

Johnson moved to third on Dave May's fly and scored on the double steal. Briggs then tripled home Money with the winning run.

Willie Horton hit two homers and Bill Freehan one for Detroit while George Scott and Darrel Porter connected for Milwaukee.

Home runs by Oakland's Gene Tenace and Reggie Jackson highlighted a six-run outburst in the seventh inning that broke a tie with the Twins.

Dave Hamilton pitched the first seven innings for Oakland. He allowed four hits, including Bobby Darwin's 6th-foot homer.

Paul Blair hit a grand-slam homer off Steve Kline of the Indians in a five-run second inning and Mike Cuellar tossed a seven-hitter as the Orioles snapped a three-game losing streak.

Official Says Race Will Go On

Speedway Faced with $1 Million Suit

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There will be a 500-mile auto race Sunday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, a top Speedway official says, despite a $1 million lawsuit to keep it from going off on schedule.

"We will have a race Sunday," Chief Steward Tom Binford said. "The only person who can stop it is God, and we haven't talked to Him."

Actually, the $1 million spectacle is in the hands of a judge.

The suit was filed Tuesday in Marion County Superior Court in Indianapolis by lawyers Wright Hughes and Don Tabbert on behalf of sixteen car owners.

Besides the $1 million in damages, the suit seeks a temporary restraining order halting further activity at the track until the case is heard.

Judge Frank Symmes set a hearing for today.

The action arises from last Saturday's trials that left 11 cars at the line when the track closed for racing. The dead-line, speedway officials say, was set down in the entry blank signed by each of the 81 would-be contestants.

The car owners who did not get a chance to qualify contended the deadline should have been extended to give all of the 50 cars that had been certified an opportunity to make the 33 car field.

The owners' pleas were denied. And Speedway officials turned down further requests for a reopening of qualifications.

Talbert said he and Hughes want to gain at least one more attempt for the cars involved.

The plaintiffs are Roy Woods Racing, Carl Gehlhausen, Leroy McCoy Sr., R.L. Racing, Webster Racing, Rasmussen Racing Products Inc., and Grant King Racing.

King, whose No. 1 driver, Tom Sneva, already holds a thirdrow starting spot, said: "I don't need to go to court to tell the Speedway people what I have already told them in person. They didn't treat these people right."

Don McMahon is Back Again

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pitching coach Don McMahon of San Francisco Giants made another comeback to the playing ranks Tuesday, becoming the oldest active player in major league baseball.

The 46-year-old relief pitcher, who has appeared in 865 games and has a 90-71 lifetime record, also began last season as a coach and later was made player-coach.

The Giants returned McMahon to the active list before Tuesday night's doubleheader against Atlanta and optioned outfielder Jim Howarth to Phoenix of the Pacific Coast League.

Gaels Tripped

TORONTO (CP) — Rick Bennett's three goals led Toronto Maple Leafs to a 14-9 victory over Oshawa Green Gaels in the only Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior 'A' game Tuesday.

Also scoring for Toronto were Don Butt and Lance Bullock, with two goals each. Ted Hopkins, Duart Verio, Gerry Frolick, Rick Dixon, Ron Smith, Joe Sheehan and Nino Partai.

CAHA Meeting

Branches Win, Or Do They?

WINNIPEG (CP) — A power struggle between operators of provincial hockey organizations and the well-established junior council of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) ended Tuesday in apparent victory for the association's provincial branches.

The branches received approval and instructions to finalize terms of membership in various classifications including Junior. In previous years, the council dictated, contingent on membership approval, the status of individual clubs.

Gordon Juckes of Ottawa, CAHA secretary manager, and president Jack Devine of Belleville, Ont., suggested in an interview that individual provinces or branches might not be happy with Tuesday's decision.

"It means there will be extra pressure on provincial organizations," said Juckes. "Until now, the council has been able to decide when a club that wanted elevated status didn't qualify."

Juckes and Devine agreed that Tuesday's ruling allowed almost any junior league to declare a higher classification.

He and Devine both were concerned that a league might declare itself qualified in a higher level and then lose by lopsided scores in competition.

"There's no point in losing 14-1 to anybody or for anything in Canada," said Juckes.

The first two days of the annual CAHA convention were marked by ill-concealed hostility between major junior operators, and holders of junior A franchises in Newfoundland, Ontario and British Columbia.

"I don't think we're opposed to tier one clubs," said Hal Jones of Regina, Saskatchewan Amateur Hockey Association president and one of those who led the move toward reconstruction of the junior pyramid.

"What we want," said Jones, "is a fair deal for the operators and the players in lower categories."

Alex Delvecchio Named Wing GM

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit coach Alex Delvecchio was named coach and general manager of the National Hockey League Red Wings Tuesday, succeeding Ned Harkness as general manager.

Harkness resigned Feb. 6 and the position has been vacant since.

Delvecchio, a long-time player with the Wings, took over as coach early in the season when Ted Garvin was fired after leading Detroit to a 2-9-1 record. The team finished at 29-36-10 and out of the playoffs.

Wing's owner Bruce Norris cited "the tremendous respect Delvecchio has earned from the players and everyone connected with the team since he became coach" as reasons for his new position.

Norris said high morale on the team was "directly attributable to Delvecchio."

Delvecchio, a centre for the Red Wings for more than two decades before his retirement when he took over as coach, was promoted to general manager in time for the NHL amateur draft next Tuesday. The Wings will pick ninth on the first round.

Billy Dea will continue as Delvecchio's assistant coach.

Harkness, a successful college coach at Cornell, was criticized heavily by Detroit fans and media who looked forward to a playoff team in 1974. The Wings last made the playoffs in 1969.

Delvecchio is the Wings' fifth coach in five years.

American League All-stars

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Murray Kuntz, a four-year pro with Rochester Americans, topped balloting for the 1973-74 American Hockey League All-Star team announced today.

Kuntz, 26, who scored 51 goals to become only the 11th AHL player to reach the 50-goal mark, earned the left wing berth on the league's All-Star team with 69 of a possible 180 points. He was the first pick on 19 ballots.

Five other teams are represented on the team voted by writers, sportscasters and players in each of the AHL cities.

The Calder Cup-champion Hershey Bears gained only one berth on the first two teams.

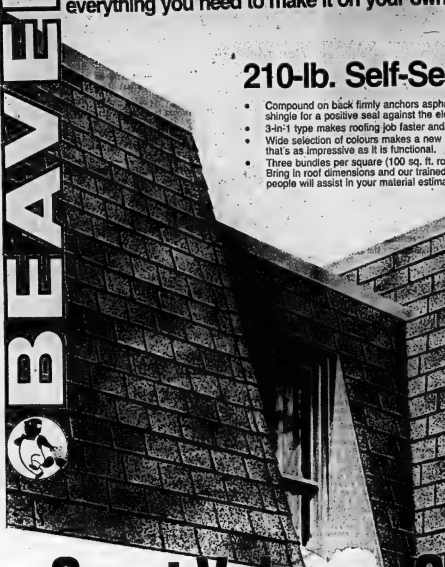
Busniuk, 25, has the most pro experience, signing his first contract five years ago.

Named to the second team were goalie Dennis Delpardy and right winger Marc Dufour of Baltimore Clippers, defencemen Duane Rupp of Hershey and John Bednarski of Providence, centre Art Stratton of Rochester and left wing Jerry Byers of New Haven.



Members of the first team each receive $400. The second-team members receive $300.

ROOFING...to repair or replace?
The average life of an asphalt shingled roof is 10-15 years. If roof starts leaking, after 10-15 years, usually the entire side is worn, particularly if it's the weather side. In such a case it is more practical to replace the roof or side rather than just spot repair.
It is possible to apply new shingles over the old, but we recommend stripping off the old ones. Your new roof will be flat, you'll see what you're adhering to and you may discover roof damage that would otherwise be missed. A flat spade or lawn edging tool makes an excellent tool for removing old shingles quickly. It'll slice through hoking nails and strip shingles off.

Wannamaker Pitches Oshawa to 2-1 Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario Football League action opened in London Tuesday with the home team losing 4-2 to St. Catharines.

In other games, Oshawa edged Burlington 3-1 and Kitchener blanked Niagara Falls 3-0.

Dick Balint, who relieved starter Don Clark in the fourth inning when the score was tied 2-2, won the London season opener.

Loser Dick Hannes, making his first start after coming out of a one-year retirement, gave up 10 hits before being replaced in the last inning.

In Oshawa, the home team scored both runs in the fifth inning when Don Hudgin hit a single with bases loaded.

Burlington's run came in the seventh inning as Jde O'Neil doubled and came home on an infield hit by Don Benalick.

Paul Wannamaker took the win, striking out six. The loss went to Al Few.

In Niagara Falls, Keith Wagler of Kitchener allowed three hits in earning the shutout, striking out 16. All three Kitchener runs came as a result of errors.

The first run in the third inning came off a single by Tim Burkhart, an error and a stolen base. The second run came in the seventh on an outfield error and a wild throw. The third, in the ninth, resulted from another error followed by a double by Gary McDowell.

Losing pitcher was Jake Nesfield, who allowed five hits.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Stingers of the World Hockey Association have acquired Brad Bastow and Ralph Hoplavourt from Cleveland Crusaders, it was announced Tuesday. Bill DewWit Jr., executive vice-president of the newly-formed team that will begin playing in 1975, said the two were acquired as part of a deal in which Cincinnati granted Cleveland negotiation rights to Al McDonough. McDonough recently signed with the Crusaders.

CASH SUSPENDED

BOSTON (AP) — Norm Cash, veteran Detroit Tigers first baseman, was suspended Tuesday for two days and fined $100 by American League president Lee MacPhail as a result of an altercation in Monday night's baseball game at Milwaukee. Cash was involved in a dispute with first base umpire Bill Kunkel, following the umpire's call on a line drive down the right field line by Milwaukee's Dave May that drove in the winning run.

ASPARAGUS — FIRST ON THE LIST FOR FREEZING

For owners of home freezers, spring and our wonderful Ontario asparagus are reminders that it's time to take inventory, schedule the finishing off of last year's fruit and vegetables, and re-organize the freezer for the time when this year's fresh produce will be available.

Nothing quickly, remove all contents of your freezer and list the kind and amount of food in it. Replace in the freezer, then plan meals that will use it up to make room for each new fruit or vegetable as it matures, remembering that frozen fruits and vegetables lose quality after 12 months.

Since home-freezing asparagus is such a treat, and since there's no time to lose if you want to freeze it at its best, here's how:

Wash thoroughly, and sort as small (up to 1/4" diameter), medium (1/4 to 1/2"), and large (over 1/2"). Trim to even lengths.

For a pound of asparagus bring a gallon of water to rapid boil. Enclose asparagus loosely in cheesecloth or wire basket. Lower into water, bring again quickly to boil, start timing and blanch in the boiling water while shaking gently to ensure even heating. Blanch 2 minutes small, 3 minutes medium, 4 minutes large. Chill quickly in cold water and drain well. Do only small amounts at a time.

Although King Faisal is using Saudi Arabia's vast oil wealth to build a welfare state, the impact of oil prices has hardly been felt yet in the nation's cities and towns. Although a building boom is under way in the two largest cities, life in the mudbrick oasis towns so far seems unaffected. (CP Photo)

Autocrats and Technocrats Unite To Build Welfare State in Desert

RIYADH (CP) — Through an odd partnership of autocrat and technocrats, King Faisal and his government are using Saudi Arabia's immense oil wealth to build a welfare state in the desert.

It's not like the bad old days of King Saud, his half-brother. In those times the national income was the royal family's income. Saud kept 100 wives in style and bankrolled scores of relatives through Europe's fun spots.

By 1961, the country bankrupt and the family fed up, Saud was peacefully deposed in favor of the conservative, frugal Faisal.

Then, in the middle of the government's first five-year plan last summer, the price of oil began to double and triple.

The impact of the oil prices has hardly been felt yet in Saudi cities and towns.

In the largest centres—Riyadh and Jeddah, on the Red Sea coast—a building boom is developing, as in most Middle East cities. And in the blocks of new government buildings there is an endless train of foreign officials and businessmen suggesting how the Saudis should spend their oil money.

But life among the nomadic Bedouins—perhaps half the population of about six million—and in the sweltering mud-brick oasis towns seems unaffected so far.

The national accounts still are trickling down through funnels held by the government's small but highly skilled economic managers, always under the hand of the king.

With more than 90 per cent of the country's income flowing from exports of crude oil, their first goal is to expand industry against the day when the last barrel of oil is drawn from the barren ground.

So the government is financing a schooling campaign, sending 3,000 students abroad every year to university, putting up schools with free tuition throughout the country, enticing Bedouins to settle into industrial or farming lives, expanding irrigation to grow more food and cash crops, offering medical care to town-dwellers.

But even with unlimited cash, more than $21 billion in oil-revenues this year alone, the development task is great.

Saudi Arabia has only been a nation for a little more than a generation. Faisal's father bound the state together in the early 1900s from a collection of warring tribes. Only in the last 10 years has a Western-style bureaucracy been developed to oversee the coming changes.

The country can absorb only about $7 billion of this year's revenues. The rest will be invested abroad.

Along with the spreading system of social welfare, the government insists on nourishing private enterprise.

"We are a true believer in the so-called free-enterprise system," says Faiz Badr, United States-educated deputy minister of planning.

He went on to tell a group of Canadian visitors of the rewards for corporate true believers. Companies here pay no import duties on needed raw materials and machinery, pay no corporate taxes, get cheap government land, benefit from government-paid manpower training and get preference in government purchase tenders.

The government hungers for Western technology. So these financial benefits are open to Canadian and other foreign firms that set up joint ventures with Saudi companies here.

Iraq Seems Little Changed By Heavy Flow of Oil Cash

BAGHDAD (CP) — Iraq is riding an oil prosperity boom carrying its 19 million people to unexpected wealth. But where this sometimes politically troubled Arab country will end up is a question.

A Canadian on a brief visit here, noting the contrast between modern government offices and the Arab bazaars, finds it difficult to develop an accurate picture of the ancient nation, most of whose people live in poverty by Canada's standards despite the flow of oil cash.

Although an opponent of the Arab oil embargo imposed on allies of Israel last fall, Iraq has been an adamant supporter of higher prices.

A. H. Zaizahh, Iraqi ambassador to Ottawa, remarked in a recent interview that wheat prices have been raised by Canada and other countries about fivefold in the last few years. But the price of oil, which Iraq must sell to buy wheat, remained static for 20 years.

Iraq has also suffered a stagnant economy, and probably a declining standard of living for most of its people, since the coup d'etat in 1963.

Jawad Hashim, minister of planning, told Canada's trade minister, Alastair Gillespie, here recently the tithe price of oil still is cheap in relation to its declining supply and its value in developed countries.

But he added that the speed of price multiplication late last year has imposed problems even on producers. Five-year plans are suddenly outdated, and government economists and their computers are working overtime to keep planning on some kind of course.

The authoritarian government in Baghdad, a combine of the socialist Baathist party and former military officers, is hurrying to transform oil money into a diversified economy.

That means modernizing agriculture, livelihood for about 45 per cent of the people, with irrigation and mechanization. It means erecting an industrial sector from the desert up, largely founded on petrochemicals.

Because schools cannot be built soon enough to train technicians and managers needed immediately, it means sending hundreds of students abroad every year for training.

And it means seeking skills and hardware from developed countries. During Gillespie's visit, Economics Minister Hikmet Al-Azzawi requested and got agreement to negotiate a framework for trade and investment by Canadians in Iraq.

Iraq nationalized its oil industry in 1972. Like other oil producers, it now is turning to conservation.

The planning minister says production is being geared so Iraq "won't be the only country with all the oil at the end, but one of the only ones."

But what does this mean for Iraqis?

A rash of new apartments and offices is growing around Baghdad, but there are few signs of the big money building up in government treasuries.

Consumer buying—for the small middle class with cash—seems brisk. French and Russian cars await delivery in local rail yard. Most United States models, imported before relations with Washington were broken off after the June, 1967, Israeli war.

Joan Fielden says:

"Barbecue sauce is no mystery. Simply a blend of oil, seasoning and lemon juice, vinegar, wine or tomato juice. Try making your own barbecue sauce by heating Dominion tomato juice, consomme and meat sauce with a sprig of thyme and two or three whole cloves. Just before boiling add other seasonings and sherry. Then allow sauce to heat for a minute or two longer before serving."

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Thursday, May 23

Aries (March 21-April 19) Though your course of action looks clear and well thought-out, you are moving faster on something than you should. Be careful.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You will not get full value from an important purchase you are making unless you do more comparison shopping.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Making impulsive commitments today will later prove either expensive. It's better to go without than to over-obligate yourself.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Your second thoughts regarding a domestic issue will be far more bitter than your first. Stop re-hashing an old problem.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 23) It's likely a misunderstanding will arise with a close friend over an unusual issue. Don't let something small get out of perspective.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You are going to be put on the spot regarding an obligation you are failing behind on. Do all you can to keep things current.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll be meeting some solid opposition and roadblocks to hinder a goal you seek. Don't give up. You can overcome.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Before you point an accusing finger today, be sure you have the real culprit. Your judgment may be based on circumstantial evidence.

Sagittaries (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Keep a sharp pencil handy so you can make a careful, up-to-date accounting of a venture you share with another.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Later in the day you will not be as agreeable and easy to get along with as you should. This will cause another to react similarly.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You are going to end up doing something you are counting on another to do for you. Temper, temper.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) If you are planning anything social today be sure it's with persons who are interested in having fun. A "sour puss" type will spoil the party.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: Can you tell us whereabouts in Tennessee the Iroquois Steeplechase is held? We understand that there is a fabulous eating spot there called "100 Oaks."

ANSWER: The Iroquois Steeplechase takes place in Nashville, Tenn., every spring when Tennessee sheds her drab winter dress and being out of doors becomes a pleasure. Nashvillians begin to look forward to the annual Iroquois Steeplechase, held this year on May 11.

People from all over the South drive out Old Hickory Boulevard or down Highway 100 to Percy Warner Park. There on a grassy hillside that forms a natural amphitheatre everyone can get a good view of the Iroquois course. Brainchild of Marcellus Frost, Tennessee's racing classic was first started in 1941. Since then it has steeped itself in such time-honored names as Rockmayne, Frederick II, Bank Robber, and Apposition.

The Steeplechase, a course of three miles over eighteen jumps, is exciting to behold. The casual observer probably never suspects the events surrounding such a performance. To be sure, the training of horse and rider, but also the hours involved with hospitality are part of Nashville's heritage since Civil War days.

A gastronomical legend in its own time, the Steeplechase has been the excuse for countless breakfasts, dinners, cocktail parties, and late suppers. Usually hosted in private homes there was a time, however, when members of these affairs were held at 100 Oaks. Older Nashvillians will remember the charming log house that once stood among tall virgin oaks looking, for all the world like the home of a prosperous frontiersman.

Rustic and beautiful, the old place housed a lady — Virginia Hughes by name — known for her excellent cuisine. With the help of a small staff Virginia turned this talent into a thriving business hosting as many as three or four parties a day. If you were invited to one of her wedding breakfasts, or to a bridal luncheon, or just an informal supper in front of the den fireplace you remember it with pleasure. The atmosphere was relaxed and homey; the food divine.

So it was only natural for 100 Oaks to be a frequent setting for Steeplechase parties. An outstanding one was Virginia's last breakfast where the menu listed turkey hash, smoked pork chops, asparagus soufflé in tomatoes, sausage links in spiced apple rings, bacon-wrapped chicken livers, curried hominy casserole, and popovers with assorted conserves. A tray of apricot frappe and caraway sticks was passed among the guests as a first course.

During the entertaining days at 100 Oaks, Virginia married London Smartt, a real estate broker. In 1965 the Smartts sold their home to land developers. The old house was dismantled and moved to another county. The magnificent oaks were cut down and a shopping centre was built. Some would call it progress but many Nashvillians remember and mourn the passing of such a place.

The silver lining is that after several years of semi-retirement Virginia is once again offering her good cooking to the public via the Lebanon Tree in Franklin on U.S. 31 about 20 miles south of Nashville.

Oil Broken Down By Weathering

ALERT BAY, B.C. (CP) — A Canadian government study of oil pollution in a small West Coast cove shows natural weathering has broken down much of the oil dumped in the cove.

The oil ended up in the cove after the freighter Irish Stardust grounded briefly on a reef off nearby Haddington Island on Jan. 24, 1973, spilling at least 200 tons of heavy bunker oil.

Reserved Cove is typical of many of the coves on the Inside Passage polluted by the 208-mile spill. It is located in one of the Pearse Islands between northern Vancouver Island and the British Columbia mainland, about 180 miles northwest of Vancouver.

After the spill, which cost the ship and its master $10,500 in fines for violating the Canada Shipping Act after the ship was found guilty of not reporting its grounding or its damage, Marine Sciences, a branch of the fisheries and marine service of Environment Canada, requested that Reserved Cove be left polluted in order to study the effectiveness of natural weather and oil degradation.

Chemist Dave Green, who conducted the study with biologist Carole Bawden, said natural weathering has been 90-per-cent effective after more than a year, combining the mechanical action of wind, wave and tide with natural bacterial action to erase the pollution.

But Mr. Green cautioned that natural weathering only works for small spills. The Irish Stardust spill, he said, is "definitely a very small one on any scale", even though it is the second-largest to hit B.C. waters.

He said the oil coating was generally no more than one-quarter of an inch thick. Natural cleaning "could take an indefinite time" if the oil was thicker.

In a larger spill, said Mr. Green, the overwhelming volume of oil which "immobilizes" a beach hinders natural cleaning.

Prince Charles, the 25-year-old heir to the British throne, is getting this 17th century mansion with 115 rooms and 3,000 acres of grounds, for his bachelor pad. The mansion is Chevening House, near Sevenoaks, 22 miles southeast of London, willed to the nation by the Earl of Stanhope who died without an heir in 1967. He asked in his will that Charles be invited to live there. (AP Photo)

Sub Leaves Swedish Waters

STOCKHOLM (AP) — An unidentified submarine that was reported trapped by a small task force of the Swedish Navy in a Baltic bay left Swedish waters after the task force was withdrawn, the defence headquarters reported.

The headquarters said it pulled out the task force to give the submarine "a reasonable chance to leave Swedish territorial waters."

"It seems we have accomplished what we wanted," a defence spokesman said.

Crew members of an aircraft participating in a Swedish naval exercise reported spotting the submarine's periscope Tuesday in Kapellskarsn Bay on the north coast of Gotland, the largest island in the Baltic Sea.

Two destroyers dropped around 20 light depth charges in the bay Tuesday night, then returned to their base, the headquarters said. Other smaller ships guarding the area withdrew around midnight, it said.

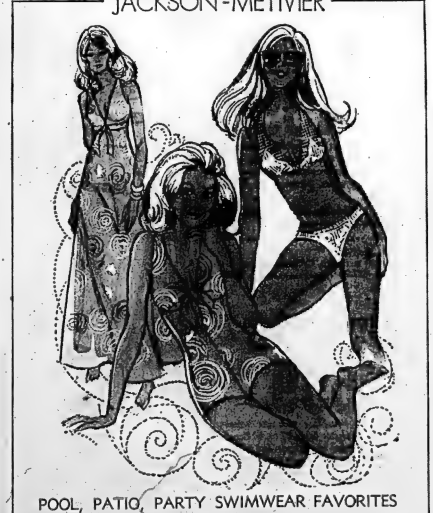
Gardening Champ Losing Battle With Own Weeds

TROY, Mich. (AP) — Jerry Baker, "America's master gardener," is waging battle with the enemy in his front yard, and he is losing. He says every time he turns around Mother Nature "is giving me a punch in the mouth."

A glance about Baker's yard in this Detroit suburb would not indicate that the gardening author lives there—like thousands of other yards it is dotted with weeds.

The grass needs mowing; the half-acre is dotted with dandelions, dehydrated rhododendron, chickweed and creeping junipers," and a 15-by-15-yard vegetable patch needs spading.

Baker's fast-selling gardening books—Plants are Like People and Talk to Your Plants—have earned him the label of "America's master gardener" and Mr. Grow It All.



Redesign Rapid Transit

TORONTO (CP) — A delay of three to four months in Ontario's experimental rapid transit project was announced Tuesday to allow planners to redesign the station and some of the guideway to cut costs.

John Rhodes, minister of transportation and communications, announced the delay in the legislature, but said the planned design modifications will not affect the performance or technical perfection of the project.

"I didn't know that Kissinger was on our plane!"

Kissinger Making Tenth Trip

JERUSALEM (AP) — United States State Secretary Henry Kissinger goes to Damascus for the 10th time in his bid to close two wide gaps which remain between the cease fire he can separate the battling armies of Israel and Syria.

Kissinger said Wednesday his wife, Nancy, will accompany him on his shuttle back to the Syrian capital, where he plans to give a luncheon for Syrian leaders involved in negotiations.

He leaves for Damascus after another morning session of talks with Israeli Premier Golda Meir and her negotiating team.

A senior U.S. official said that although substantial progress has been made toward an agreement, there remains a "pretty wide" gap between the hostile neighbors on two major issues.

The official said these are Syria's resistance to thinning out its forces defending Damascus and the size of a United Nations team to man the proposed buffer zone between the opposing armies on the Golan Heights, where fighting has raged for more than two months.

Inquiry Ordered

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday the government is setting up a commission to investigate price increases by the Steel Co. of Canada.

Mr. Trudeau told reporters after a cabinet meeting that an investigation of whether profiteering was involved in the increases is the only recourse left to the government.

He said the inquiry will be headed by Mr. Justice W. Z. Estey of the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Today's Chuckle

Another person who doesn't make house calls is the contractor who sold it to you.

OTTAWA (CP) — The man the people see and know is Pierre Trudeau, but, as part of the Liberal party campaign the prime minister is only the tip of a vast pyramid.

Under him is a complex election machine comprising key personalities, candidates, workers and a campaign nerve centre. Party officials say it is the biggest and best-financed Liberal machine ever.

They have not released figures on the projected cost of the July 8 election campaign, but it likely will match or exceed the $4.2 million the Progressive Conservatives expect to spend.

Prior to the campaign, the operations centre for the party was the national Liberal federation in Ottawa, directed by Blair Williams. With the race now on, Mr. Williams and his staff will spend most of their time dealing with provincial organizations, both Liberal and administration.

The key headquarters men until July 8 are Senator Gil Molgat, president of the Liberal party of Canada; Senator Keith Davey and Transport Minister Jean Marchand, co-chairmen of the campaign; and James Coutts, Mr. Trudeau's political adviser.

Senator Molgat, 47, was elected president last September. He was the youngest Manitoba member of the legislature in history when he was first elected in 1953 at age 26. He became provincial Liberal leader eight years later and held the post until he retired in 1969. He was appointed to the Senate in 1970.

His first pledge as national Liberal president was to work on the "critical communications problems" between he party and the people.

Senator Davey, 48, a former Canadian Football League commissioner, steps into his campaign role with extensive experience behind him. He was campaign director for the late Lester B. Pearson in 1962, 1963 and 1965—elections in which the Liberals failed to win a majority.

With the exception of Mr. Marchand, who is concentrating on Quebec, Mr. Trudeau has been meeting this group daily. He also meets frequently with his three main speech writers—Alan Grossman, Jim Moores and Ivan Head.

Montreal Floods May Stay 3 Weeks

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Residents of 2,000 homes affected by flooding in several western Montreal Island suburbs were prepared for a lengthy struggle today after officials warned that the water may not recede for three weeks.

More than 150 families have been evacuated and civic officials issued a statement Wednesday night saying Hydro-Quebec workers would disconnect power to houses to prevent general power failures.

The statement provided relief to residents who leave that Montreal Urban Community police would patrol the region in patrol cars, boats and helicopters to prevent looting.

The suburbs affected primarily consist of single-family dwellings.

Some neighborhoods in the region are high and dry, but residents are surrounded by several feet of water. In one such area of Pierrefonds, high-aided buses are running a shuttle service through the water circle as housewives can get necessities at a supermarket.

A Hydro spokesman said it was necessary to cut power to some houses where it was partially flooded because the water can cause short circuits which blow fuses in transformers.

Concession Called Trick

Ulster Strike Continues

BELFAST (AP) — Protestant extremists continued a paralyzing general strike today, rejecting a government concession as "a confidence trick."

The Northern Ireland executive, headed by Brian Faulkner, announced Wednesday it will postpone for at least three years handing over any legislative powers to an all-Irish council.

The strikers fear a strong council would drive Ulster into union with the predominantly Roman Catholic Irish republic. Faulkner announced a delay in other provisions of the agreement that set up the council.

Britain sent another 500 troops into Northern Ireland, bringing the strength of its garrison there to 16,500 men.

Four explosions resounded through Protestant east Belfast the night, and industry and commerce in Belfast continued at a virtual standstill as the strike went into its ninth day. New barricades went up in Protestant areas to replace those torn down by British soldiers.

An explosion wrecked a section of the Belfast-Bangor railway, apparently the work of Protestant extremists determined to block all transportation except for emergency services.

Authorities warned that all electricity may be cut off in another four days. Supplies are already less than a third of usual, and many factories suffer power cuts of 15 hours a day.

Most gasoline stations were closed. Toughs with cudgels stood guard at others to decide whether or not drivers were "essential users."

The Ulster assembly heard Faulkner announce Wednesday that immediate plans for the Council of Ireland are being scaled down to a purely advisory function in view of "continuing violence."

The rest of the package, he said, will wait at least until after the Northern Irish elections due by 1978. A major demand of the Protestant extremists has been for a referendum on the council and the Sunningdale agreement, which established it.

The original agreement had envisaged a council with legislative powers, a ministerial executive, a permanent headquarters and a secretariat which in effect would have been an all-Ireland civil service.

Rev. Ian Paisley, political voice of hard-line Protestants, said the strike will go on until negotiations are opened with Britain on the council, new elections and sharing power with Catholics in Belfast.

Nixon Won't Supply Tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's refusal to supply 11 Watergate tapes in providing new grounds for impeachment, say some members of the House of Representatives judiciary committee.

"It means the cover-up continues," said George Danielson (Dem., Calif.) after Nixon notified the committee Wednesday he will not comply with its subpoena or any other issues for Watergate material.

"It's hurting him with the committee," said Tom Railsback (Rep. Ill.), one of a number of Republicans who expressed disappointment at Nixon's action.

Chairman Peter Rodino (Dem. N.J.), calling Nixon's refusal "a very grave matter," scheduled a committee meeting next week to deal with it.

There was some talk of citing Nixon for contempt of Congress and of seeking court enforcement of the subpoena, but a majority appeared to favor merely stating the president's action into account when considering whether he should be impeached.

The committee has been advised by its staff that it is proper to infer that anyone possessing subpoenaed evidence and refusing to provide it is withholding material that could be incriminating.

In a letter to Rodino saying he will not produce the tapes, Nixon said the committee's request, and others it is getting ready to make, amount to "a massive invasion into the confidentiality of presidential conversations."

Rodino rejected Nixon's argument, saying the requests related specifically to the impeachment inquiry.

Rodino said the committee will issue more subpoenas if it decides the White House is withholding evidence it needs. The next one likely will deal with the dairy funds and ITT controversies.

The committee has requested tapes of 66 conversations in these two areas and Nixon's lawyer, James St. Clair, told it Wednesday it will get only one partial transcript.

St. Clair said many of the requested conversations had never been recorded, and that production of the rest of the material asked for would not serve any useful purpose.

The committee delved deeper into the crucial March 21, 1973, meeting with Watergate cover-up Wednesday, adding secret grand jury evidence to its tapes and papers concerning the dealing with hush-money payments.

The Watergate grand jury said a $75,000 payment was made to the lawyer for convicted burglars E. Howard Hunt and Hunt the night of March 21. The committee learned earlier that day, Nixon appeared to be ordering his former counsel, John Dean, to make the payment.

There is some dispute as to whether the $75,000 actually was paid that night, but committee members said the evidence presented Wednesday made it clear that it was.

Lastman Wants To Fine Drivers Aiding Hikers

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Mel Lastman of North York says he plans to propose legislation to give the borough the power to fine drivers who pick up hitch-hikers.

Mr. Lastman said in an interview Wednesday night that such legislation would help curb "the many rapes and murders of young girls" who hitch-hike.

Hitch-hiking, he said, is "a game of Russian roulette."

"A lot of sexists, rapists and killers look very, very friendly. And a girl may hitch-hike for 10 days without incident. But it only takes once . . .

"We can't stop people from hitch-hiking, especially kids. But you can stop drivers from picking them up."

Area police forces believe that at least six girls murdered within 20 miles of Metropolitan Toronto in the last two years may have been hitch-hikers.

Any legislation passed by North York council would have to be approved by the provincial government before taking effect.

Electric Kettles May Be Dangerous

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray urged consumers Wednesday to stop using electric kettles until tests by his department determine whether they are lead-poison hazards.

Initial tests by his department's product safety branch on a limited number of electric kettles confirmed that they can release lead into water to varying degrees, Mr. Gray said in a prepared statement.

John Dean, testifying before last week in Toronto that eight out of nine kettles failed lead-presence tests conducted after a seven-month-old baby was found to be suffering from lead poisoning.

Testing on all makes of kettles is continuing on a most urgent basis, them minister said.

"Until the testing is completed and the results are assessed by medical consultants, I urge consumers to avoid the use of electric kettles, particularly in heating water for baby formulas and foods.

Lake Ships Collide

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A Canadian tanker and a United States bulk freighter collided in fog on Lake Erie today but both later were heading for port under their own power.

Two injured crew members were taken from the Canadian-owned Cardinal by a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter and flown to hospital in Wyandotte, Mich., after the collision with the George M. Steinbrenner in fog-shrouded Peice Passage off Canada's southernmost tip.

The U.S. Coast Guard base near Mount Clemens, Mich., reported that a third crew member was trapped in a forward compartment of the 252-foot Cardinal, but there was no information on this from Canadian officials.

Jury Finds Foxboro Man Guilty of Assault

A County Court jury composed of nine men and three women deliberated for one hour and 32 minutes yesterday before returning a verdict of guilty against Raymond David Drake, of RR1, Foxboro, on a charge of assault with the indecent assault of a 15-year-old female schoolgirl on Highway 62 near Flinton Road last Nov. 9.

Drake was charged with having abducted a 15-year-old Actinolite girl, who had been hitchhiking along Highway 37 between Tweed and her home, and forcibly her at knife and gun point to perform a series of sexual acts upon himself.

During the two day trial, the court heard the evidence of 12 witnesses, eight for the Crown and four for the defence.

The main Crown witness, the 15-year-old girl told the court that she was hitchhiking along Highway 37 in Tweed when Drake stopped and gave her a lift. Instead of stopping to let her out of his pickup truck in Actinolite, however, Drake forced the girl to get down on the floor, under the dashboard and drove out to a secluded spot on the Flinton Road, where he forced her to perform a series of sexual acts.

Drake then drove the girl back to Actinolite and before letting her get out of his truck told her he would come back and kill her if she told the police what had happened.

The girl tried to memorize the licence plate number on the truck as it sped away and then immediately ran to a neighbor's house where an older brother called the Madoc detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

The girl was able to give the police a verbal description of her assailant, a description of the truck, four numbers of Drake's truck's licence plate and a partial description of Drake's name and address which was passed on the side of the truck.

Three days later, after Drake had been arrested by the police, the girl immediately picked him out in a "police line-up" as her assailant.

During the trial, the girl identified a number of

418 Wing Honored

Belleville 418 "Hog RCAF" Association was among the hobbers and awards winners at the Association Ontario Group convention held last weekend in Kitchener-Waterloo.

A trophy for increased membership was presented to King Lake, president of the local Wing, who with Kenny Chambers, were convention delegates. Jim O'Bryan, Quinte regional vice-president attending in an executive capacity presented reports of local Wings at the convention, held a Sir Wilfrid Laurier University.

Handicapped Helped

The Belleville Recreation-Arena Committee will co-operate with the Quinte Handicap Athletic and Recreation Club (Quinte East Sailers) by extending the use of school recreational facilities for the summer months.

The Quinte club, which has a membership of 29, some coming from as far away as Madoc, Deseronto and Picton, provides a recreational outlet for area disabled. The majority of members, however, are from the Trenton - Belleville area.

As originally conceived, the club was to be for paraplegics, quadraplegics and polio victims, but the range has been widened to include those with multiple sclherosis, cerebral palsy, arthritis and car accident related disabilities.

Steven Jones is club president with Larry Van Norman, vice-president, and Marjorie Walker, secretary-treasurer.

In January an LIP grant of $12,000 was received, the money being used to hire four full-time athletic instructors for a six-month period. Instruction is given in swimming, basket ball track and field and other recreational fields.

Auditorium A Memorial

PICTON — The auditorium planned for the Prince Edward county home for the aged, now under construction, will be named in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hooper of Picton.

The decision, approved by county council this week, was made following a generous bequest to the county home project by members of the deceased couple's family.

The social services committee also agreed that the county clerk should question the families of other persons who have made bequests to the home, asking if they would like rooms dedicated in memory of the donors.

Citizens' Bureau Time Running Out

TRENTON — The Citizens Bureau here has fielded and dealt with more than 1,000 "calls for assistance" since February — but the money to run the bureau is running out.

According to Bert Gerling, approximately 80 per cent of the calls stem from consumer related problems — particularly landlord - tenant relations, home improvement problems and itinerant salesmen.

The bureau's money is supplied by the federal government and it's only expected to last until some time in June. Mr. Gerling could not provide a specific closing date.

There is still no word on extended government subsidization of the bureau, applied for last February. Mr. Gerling said application was made to the federal secretary of state's office and word is expected within the month when if more money will be forthcoming.

The bureau has approached the councils of Belleville and Trenton for municipal funding and "a number of private sources have been approached," said Mr. Gerling.

The budget allows $61,621 for the fire department this year. In 1973 a total of $60,405 was budgeted.

The public works streets department this year has a budget allotment of $180,790 in comparison with $159,000, budgeted in 1973.

Dusty Road Draws Fire

PICTON — Athol reeve Keith Perry this week termed the condition of the county road leading to Outlet Provincial Park "absolutely ridiculous."

Reeve Perry added that, at times on the recent holiday weekend motorists were forced to drive with their lights on in order to see on the dust-clouded unpaved road.

He declared that the road, under construction, has been re-graded and this week is dustier than ever.

Chairman of county council's road committee, Sophiasburgh reeve George Foster, reported that originally it was planned to spread "black liquor" on the road to stop dust.

When the county engineer was required to place the order, last week it had been raining for several days and he was hesitant in sanction delivery. Cancellation of the application of the mix would have cost approximately $1,000.

Reeve Foster suggested that motorists will have to "bear with a little dust" if new roads are wanted.

County engineer Donald Clark observed: "We are all in the same boat, dammed if we do and damned if we don't."

He said that he could send a water truck to county road 11 or use black liquor on its surface but it is imperative for it to be dry for priming.

The engineer added that if it is not primed "we'll be fighting with calcium chloride all summer."

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters calls for assistance during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Thursday:

Wednesday, May 22, service call involving a faulty electrical plug at Sore's Restaurant, 48 Bridge Street East, minor damage.

Wednesday, May 22, car fire at G.T. Lanning Ltd., 257 Colenton, 10:43 p.m., minor damage.

Checking It Out

Frank Miron (far left) had his hands full at Trenton's Chamber of Commerce Golf Tournament Wednesday night. Mr. Miron was presented the 32-square-foot cheque for $300 by winning the club hockey pool. Mr. Miron topped the golf field during the day, shooting a low gross of 39 over Trenton Country Club's nine-hole, par 35 course.

Picton Council Supports One-tier Government

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

PICTON — Town council has passed a resolution supporting one-tier government in Prince Edward County and calling for a provincial government's establishment of this proposed system.

Picton reeve Ross Cronkwright observed, "It seems to me the minority in this county is winning over what the majority would be if you could get people out."

Reeve Cronkwright was referring to a series of public meetings held throughout the county last week at which the proposed single-tier system that would eliminate Prince Edward's 10 autonomous councils.

Attendance at the 10 meetings held totalled approximately 600 persons or about three per cent of the county's population of 20,000.

Reeve Cronkwright noted that council's motion might appear "ridiculous" in view of the fact that county councillors Tuesday passed a resolution asking the provincial government not to implement legislation for a one-tier system.

"I didn't vote for that motion," he said.

The reeve added that perhaps some provincial government will establish the new system in any event or "else we are in big trouble."

Deputy-reeve Larry Richardson added that, in his opinion, the government has three possible alternatives to county council's decision.

He suggested it might consider that public opinion has not been truly reflected and proceed with the one-tier system.

The additional time requested for study of the proposal might be granted as a second choice.

Finally, deputy-reeve Richardson observed that there is a "distinct danger" that Prince Edward will be included in a regional system.

"We would be the traditional little fish in the big pond," he said.

The deputy-reeve added that it is "a sad commentary" that only 30 persons of Picton's population of 5,000 attended a public meeting here to discuss the proposal for a single-tier system.

He commented that the town's submission of a resolution in support of one-tier government may seem a waste of time. However, Picton previously has indicated support of the system and the resolution is consistent with this view.

Deputy-reeve Richardson remarked, "We are elected to represent the people and when it comes to this type of situation we should be able to vote as we see fit."

Picton mayor James Bird commented that ratepayers seem content to allow their elected representatives to make decisions for them.

"We'll take what they hand out and if we don't like it, kick them out in the next election", he summarized.

MORE

Picton Take 3

He considered this attitude as, perhaps, the basic reason for public apathy regarding one-tier government discussions.

He said the one-tier system was costly — council's answer to avoid being thrown into a regional system. The provincial government finally accepted it as a viable alternative and the proposal was put to the public.

"Government is becoming so complex it is getting difficult for the small municipality to survive," said the mayor.

"There is no use crying over spilt milk," he noted as he spoke of the rejection of the system at several public meetings.

He said copies of town council's supportive resolution will be forwarded to county council and the ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs.

Meteorology School Moving

TRENTON — The school of meterology at CFB Trenton is being transferred lock, stock and barrel to Winnipeg this summer, it was learned Wednesday.

The move will affect about 16 armed forces and civilian personnel. No firm date has yet been set.

Earlier this winter fire gutted a large portion of the school here but armed forces spokesmen said this was not the sole reason for moving the school.

Capt. Bob Burke, base protocol officer here said a new building would be required to house the school if retained at Trenton. The move was in the offing prior to the blaze.

The school — which annually trains 150 weathermen for armed forces and government ministry posts — is attached to Training Command which is based in Winnipeg. Space is already open for the school there.

Napanee Band To World's Fair

NAPANEE — The Senior Concert Band of Napanee and District Secondary School will receive a cheque for $1,500 from the provincial government to assist with its expenses for a trip to play at the World's Fair in Spokane, Washington.

Road Subsidy Up $2,000

AMELIASBURGH — James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox, has confirmed that John Rhodes, minister of transportation and communications has verbally advised him the entire amount of supplementary construction subsidy for Ameliasburgh township will be approved.

The maintenance subsidy will be increased by $2,000.

The presentation will be made Sunday, May 26 by James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward Lennox, on behalf of the government.

The Senior Concert Band is one of two school bands selected to play at the World's Fair this year. The second will arrive from Calgary, Alberta.

While in British Columbia, enroute to Spokane, the band will perform at the BC Legislative Buildings at Victoria. Taylor arranged for this special performance through Alex McDonald, attorney-general of British Columbia.

Committee Will Collect History

PICTON — Prince Edward County council has agreed to appoint a county museum archive committee to collect and catalogue materials for historical and museum requirements.

Committee members Mrs. Bernard Brooks, Winston Hicks and chairman, W. J. Musgrove will work in co-operation with the Prince Edward Historical Society. Liaison officer between the groups will be Mrs. Brooks.

Collections will be made of newspapers, magazines, books, letters, wills, maps and other materials. Estate beneficiaries will be advised that a museum representative will be glad to examine unwanted photographs and other memorabilia before it they are destroyed.

Mill Rate Reduced in Picton

PICTON — Picton taxpayers this year will experience "a break" according to mayor James Bird, through the town's 1974 budget with its reduced mill rates.

A special session of council was held last night to adopt the 1974 budget and to pass a bylaw providing for this year's tax levies.

Public school supporters, residential, this year will pay a levy of 24.53 mills in comparison with the 1973 rate of 28.00 mills.

Public school supporters, commercial, in 1974 will pay a levy of 28.57 mills in contrast with 31.40 mills in 1972.

A mill rate of 34.14 mills in 1974 for separate school supporters, commercial, will have a mill rate of 28.15 in comparison with 30.64 in 1973.

Mayor Bird observed, "I feel our finances are in good shape."

He attributed the "break" to the efforts of a concerned council, substantial government grants and a "careful" civic staff.

"In this time of inflation it is absolutely necessary for a close look at all aspects of the situation," said mayor Bird.

He termed the provincial government's grants in aid to municipalities as a great asset.

Mayor Bird commented that council is "heartened" at all levels for funds put now must curtail the largesse displayed in the past.

He remarked that Picton's portion of the county rate this year is 19.2 per cent.

Council's 1974 budget includes $8,000 for council incorporation in comparison with $6,000 in 1973.

Administration salaries for 1974 are budgeted at $35,400 in contrast with $33,000 last year.

The 1974 budget includes $145,180 for the police department in comparison with $130,000 in 1973.

Up to $3.00 a month. Absolutely free.

At Guaranty Trust you can write as many cheques as you want absolutely free. And you don't have to pay up to $3.00 a month for a package of other services you'll probably never use.

There are no cheque charges of any kind. No monthly service charges. No minimum balance requirements or any other strings attached.

Summer Sun

Victoria Park and the harbor presented as peaceful and attractive a scene as any around Belleville at the weekend.

On Sunday, we waited and, as it happened, sunny, holiday weekend, people were fishing, boating or getting their vessels ready, or just relaxing.

Four youngsters, three girls and a boy ranging in age from about nine to 15, were seeking a catch over by the yacht club. They were doing their thing with all the grave determination of their age; and yet they looked as if the afternoon's enjoyment did not depend exclusively on success, but as much on the summer atmosphere in general and a day off from school.

In the harbor itself there was evidence of the industry of Ald. Stu Meeks and his band of volunteers in providing additional docking space — facilities that surely will be appreciated by visitors. And a pair of cherry tree in the garden of a handsome residence on South Front provided a touch of additional color on this summer's day.

The only flaw in this overall scene, as ever, was the evidence of human carelessness and of pollution. Along the bank and in the water there was the usual litter and at one point there was even a garbage bag lying in the shallows inshore.

The water looked sudsy and none to clean. Goodness knows we have heard often enough that it is far from being either crystal clear or clean. Certainly it does not look good to the eye and we wonder how any fish survive there, let alone provide pollution-free sustenance to anglers.

It is something we should not lose sight of, this pollution thing, and each of us should play his part to avoid aggravating the problem in any way. But aside from that it has been a welcome break in the sun for all this past holiday period. Let's hope the weeks ahead are as pleasant.

Act of Courage

It would have been the better part of valor if a fisherman at Point Anne last Sunday had looked the other way when he saw a man pointing a revolver at a young woman.

But this citizen is made of sterner stuff. He kicked the pistol (which was loaded) from the man's hand and drove the woman to the police station.

A man is under arrest on charges connected with the incident. But the fisherman who came to the woman's rescue remains unidentified.

Maybe he wants it that way. Be that as it may, he is deserving of the community's praise for his courage and resourcefulness. It is rare enough these days to hear of acts of public duty and heroism. But this was such an occasion and it should not go unrecognized.

India's Bomb

An American spokesman put it rather well when he said of India's nuclear bomb test explosion: "It can't see that it will do much to prevent wheat."

There was a time a year or two ago when India was supposed to have almost achieved self-sufficiency in wheat production, but what with many events the worldwide food shortages, India's usually chronic difficulties with regard to food production, over-population, communications, and lately, a real shift in the monsoon rains is a perpetual state of adversity of one kind or another.

This is not to say that India has not made strides of one kind or another, mostly economically or industrially. It has; but at the same time it has been to war with Pakistan, and the bomb (an achievement made possible with assistance from Canada which was intended for peaceful purposes only), while it is evidence of technical progress, also makes for a pattern of development that detracts from India's pressing social and economic needs.

Now Pakistan is talking of being ready to proceed with development of a bomb, in an Asian re-enactment of the "balance of terror," and no doubt it will turn to China or the Soviet Union for help in this undertaking.

For all that, we do not foresee these countries ever using such weapons, although the very fact that they may both own them eventually cannot but contribute further to the unease of the world today.

U.S. Influence in Unions Panned At CLC Conference

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The annual gathering of the Canadian Labor Congress is usually like a staid shareholders' meeting, or like (as one shareholders' meetings used to be. More so.

But there was nothing dull about the 1974 CLC convention in Vancouver, especially when the talk turned to the controversial topic of U.S. influence over Canadian labor.

On the one hand was the traditional view that so-called international unions—those with headquarters in the United States, and with predominantly American membership—play a constructive role in the affairs of Canadian organized labor.

Their size makes them stronger than purely Canadian unions, they have much greater financial resources to contribute to the partnership, and they are a fund of strategic information, especially where international business enterprises are concerned.

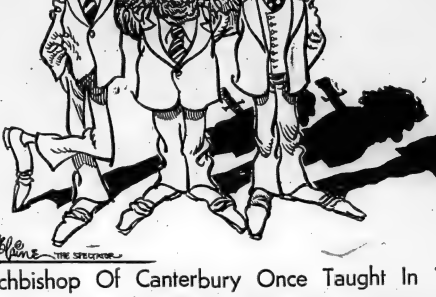
On the other hand was the so-called reform view, arguing for greater self-government and self-determination within the Canadian labor movement, and against the flow of so much of Canadian members' dues to U.S. headquarters.

At the recent convention, it was the argument for Canadian autonomy that prevailed. In the end, a large majority voted in favor of more independence for the Canadian sections of U.S.-based unions.

The vote came only after vigorous debate. Some CLC delegates—especially the construction men—held that Canadian members of international unions already had as much self-government as they needed.

Other delegates, including representatives of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, contended that these proposals didn't go nearly far enough in the Canadian autonomy.

But the voting showed that most labor leaders wanted to broaden the powers of Canadian locals to the extent that those locals could engage freely in Canadian politics, for instance. In addition, Canadian sections of U.S.-based unions must be given direct representation on any truly international—that is, worldwide—trade secretariats.



Any U.S.-based union that might try to resist these new powers could be suspended by the CLC, whose executive council could then even set up a new union to replace the suspended one.

There is no denying that the Canadian labor movement has, on balance, derived benefits from its affiliation with the strong, sophisticated U.S. unions.

No less can it be denied that some U.S.-based unions have been blind to the interest of their Canadian members. Some have allowed Canada to be used as a battle-ground on which to wage war against management, on the tacit understanding that whatever Canadian agreement is reached would be made applicable to the United States as one.

Some have allowed strikes to continue in Canada for purely U.S. reasons, long after both sides in Canada would have been glad to settle.

With its new powers of self-government, the Canadian labor movement is at last in a good position to encourage the tiny Canadian unions in certain industries to come together into larger, more effective bodies.

BROTHERS IN ARMS

Winds Of Change In Politics

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — These times are breeding some strange bedfellows.

Politically from day to day it is harder and harder to know who is on first.

For example the normal attitude between the government here and the federal government is one of conflict.

It is constant. Pretty well every public speech by a Davis minister, or the premier himself, will have its criticisms of Ottawa.

But then there can be sudden changes, and the province will find itself as a supplicant at the federal throne.

There is such a situation at present with the Petrosar project.

This development would put a huge refinery plant into Sarnia, with an investment of more than half a billion dollars and jobs for 1,500 people.

The plan was that Alberta would provide the oil.

But Premier Lougheed has been making noises that the oil may not be available. He wants the plant for his own province.

There is nothing much the province can do on its own except declare open war.

This it could do by saying "all right then we won't let you have the Ontario steel, zinc, copper and other materials you would need to build either this plant or the other one of the same size that is already pledged for Alberta."

But, of course, it doesn't want open war.

So it has to turn to Ottawa.

The federal government, it was assured Premier Davis, would have all supplies. And it expects Ottawa to live up to the commitment.

In doing this the province is firmly recognizing that Ottawa has full control of resources outside provincial boundaries.
